LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1903 NO. 77

A Summer Emulsion

There is a popular impression that Cod Liver Oil is only suitable for cold weather, and so far as plain Cod Liver Oil and most emulsions are concerned, there is a good foundation for this idea. However it does not apply to FERROL, which (although it is particularly rich in oil) may be taken as freely in the heat of summer as in the coldest weather.

This must be considered a fortunate circumstance, because on account of the enervating effects of the hot weather a reconstructor is really more urgently needed in summer than at any other time. Ferrol is the ideal summer emulsion.

Steamer Still Hard Aground.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—The Lake Manitoba is still aground. The work of discharging the cargo is being done rapidly. It was decided to land the passengers, and this was done at noon yesterday. They will be forwarded to their destination by the other boats. The steamer is drawing nearly 25 feet of water, and the depth of water on the bank against which she is resting is 21 feet the shallowest part.

Baby's Body Found.

Hamilton, Aug. 1.—Evidence of a horrible crime was found last evening when the body of a five-months-old baby was discovered at the mouth of the sewer at the foot of Ferguson avenue. It was stark naked. Coroner Wolverton will open the enquiry this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

ABOUT THE CROPS OF CANADA

Every Prospect Pleases—Ontario Will Be Well Favored and the Northwest Harvest Will Also Be Excellent—Encouraging Reports Also From Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Quebec and British Columbia.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—Although it is early yet to forecast definitely the prospects for agricultural products the reports received promise another good, if not extraordinary har-

Altho it is early yet to forecast definitely the prospects for agricultural products the reports received promise another good, if not extraordinary harvest, taking Canada as a whole. The outlook in Ontario is especially pleasing, and the very poor crop in Southern Manitoba is counter-balanced by the good yield promised in the Northwest Territories, which is exceedingly good, notwithstanding the abnormal weather prevalent during the growing season. In general, the severe drought in May and early June will not apparently prevent a good all-round harvest, because of the abundant rains since.

The Farming World has undertaken the collection of reports from the different provinces, according to which the conditions of standing crops are as follows:

Ontario.

Fall wheat will yield from 20 bushels in the north and extreme west to 35, in Elgin and the Niagara peninsula. The spring wheat crop is found chiefly in the northern districts, and is fair. There is a greater acreage of oats, and a good prospect of a crop of from 40 to 50 bushels per acre. Barley is also promising, and 40 bushels per acre is expected. Corn does not show so well, partly on account of early droughts, but largely also because of inferior seed. A yield of over 70 bushels in some districts is expected, however. Pasture is in fine condition now, a fact very important to a dairying province, but the hay generally is below the average, being both thin and short, except in Wentworth and Haldimand. Apples are few. Fewer beets and mangolds are grown that last year, and the crop varies in different districts. Plums are a fine crop.

Nova Scotia.

Fall wheat—none grown, and but little spring wheat. Oats, a slight increase in acreage and a full average yield in prospect. Barley is a good average, recent rains having improved the crop. Pasture is only fair, tho improving a little. Hay will show about 60 per cent. of the average. Rather better than an average crop of apples is expected, and the root crop is fair.

New Brunswick and P.E.I.

Fall wheat is not grown. Spring wheat will average about 18 bushels to the acre. Oats are very promising for a good crop, and barley will yield about the same as last year. Corn, not extensively grown, is below the average. Pasture, which was poor till June 15, is improved very much. Hay will run about 75 per cent. of the average. Apples will be only about half an average crop, and plums about 40 per cent. Roots are an average crop.

Quebec.

No fall wheat grown, but spring wheat will probably run into a crop of from 25 to 30 bushels per acre. Oats are only of fair promise, tho some districts will have a crop of 30 to 40 bushels. Barley looks well, and, tho the acreage is less, the crop will be an average total. The corn was frosted early, and prospects are therefore poor. Pasture is poor also, and hay, the standby of the French farmer, is only half a crop. Apples are no crop, but potatoes are a good average.

Manitoba.

Southern Manitoba suffers this year very severely from early and continual drought. From Winnipeg to Deloraine the wheat crop will not average more than 12 bushels to the acre, where it harvested 25 bushels last year. Many farmers are summer-fallowing their grain field. Further north and west of this extensive area the conditions are not so unfortunate. In the north the pasture and hay, tho small, are much better, and oats will reap one-half the average crop over the whole province.

The N.W. Territories.

With abundant rains of late the wheat promises to thresh about 25 bushels per acre, off shorter straw because of early droughts. There is a somewhat increased acreage, but over the whole Northwest there is not thought likely to be more, if as much, of a total yield of wheat as last year. Pasture and hay are fine in the ranching districts. Oats are a fair crop, with a slightly increased acreage.

British Columbia.

All crops are reported doing finely, tho wheat is not grown to any extent.

Hon. Edward Blake Ill.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—A cable advice received at Ottawa states that Hon. Edward Blake, now in London on the Alaskan Boundary Commission, is seriously ill. More than this is uncertain, though it is feared he may not be able to fulfil his commission. Members of his family in the city have as yet received no confirmation of this report.

THE CARDINALS LOCKED IN.

Prognostications as to the Outcome of the Balloting Have Little Value, Because There Has Been No Opportunity For the Cardinals to Get Together—One Guess Almost as Good as Another—Cardinal Gibbons' Denial.

Rome, July 31.—The largest conclave in the history of the Catholic Church has now assembled in the Sistine Chapel for the purpose of electing a successor to Leo XIII. Sixty-two cardinals, with over 200 clericals and lay attendants, are, to all intents and purposes, prisoners within the Vatican. One of them, Cardinal Herrero y Espinosa, Archbishop of Valencia, was prostrated immediately after entering the conclave, and lies ill in his cell.

To-morrow morning the cardinals will enter upon the solemn duty of choosing the new Pope by ballot. The general impression exists that within two or three days, possibly, tho not probably, to-morrow, a new Pope will have been chosen. But no matter how long a time may be required, the absolute seclusion of the princes of the church from the outer world must, according to the church law, continue until a choice is made.

Prognostications as to who will wear the tiara as Leo's successor have little value, as even the cardinals who this evening entered their cells seemed to be without definite ideas as to the issue. Cardinals Rampolla Serafino Vannutelli, Di Pietro, Gotti and Oreglia continue to be most frequently mentioned as the likeliest candidates, but the moment the name of one of them is mentioned a hundred reasons are supplied to show that he could not possibly be elected. So seldom have the majority of the cardinals now here met each other, and so widely do they differ in nationality and personality, that no organized movement in support of any one cardinal has thus far been practicable, nor, in fact, seriously attempted. This does not apply to the Italian cardinals, who, naturally, are well acquainted with each other. With their numerical strength the Italians could, if united, practically insure the election of a Pontiff of their own choosing. It is the disunion and rivalry among the Italian cardinals which, in fact, makes the question of Leo's successor so open as to make one guess almost as good as another. The rival claims of the leading Italian cardinals, so freely ventilated in the local press, are matters which are all important in connection with the decision of the conclave, because it is assumed as a foregone conclusion that the next occupant of the Holy See will be an Italian. The foreign cardinals have shown no indication of opposition to this assumption, but however willing they may be to honor an Italian it is believed that the serious differences among the Italians themselves on matters of political and religious opposition must be reconciled before one of them suitable to all sections can be elected.

Before entering the conclave Cardinal Gibbons requested the Associated Press to deny all interviews alleged to have been given out by him while in Rome, and also all published accounts of conversations he is alleged to have had with private individuals, referring especially to the statements of the Italia yesterday to the effect that he had criticized the policy of Rampolla.

At midnight news from within the precincts of the conclave is to the effect that after prayers the cardinals took supper at a common table with the exception of nine of them, who had their meals served in their cells. Cardinal Herrero y Espinosa, with the assistance of a cordial administered by Dr. Lapponi, is reported to have gone quietly to sleep.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Two St. Thomas Boys May Be Charged With Manslaughter.

St. Thomas, Aug. 1.—George Orr and Frank Clark, both 18 years of age were arrested yesterday morning on a warrant charging them with assault and doing grievous bodily harm, a charge which will likely be changed to manslaughter, as the man they assaulted, Benjamin F. Cascadden, M.C.R. switchman, it is said by the attending physicians, cannot recover. The assault took place last Friday night and the victim has since been in an unconscious condition and is growing worse. It is charged that he was knocked down and kicked in the head by the youths under arrest. Cascadden is a married man and has a family. The accused were remanded till next Tuesday.

COUNT EZAPARY CONFESSED.

The bribery commission assembled last evening and after Deputy Papp, who charged that ex-Deputy Dienes had attempted to bribe him with 10,000 krozen to desert the Obstructionist party, and leave Buda Pest, had given his evidence, Count Ezapary confessed that he was the author of the whole affair. He exonerated Premier Hedervary and asked pardon for his act.

Drowned Herself in Thames.

London, Aug. 1.—Loneliness and depression, following loss of her husband, who died last spring, caused Mrs. Jos. Tilson of this city to commit suicide by drowning herself in the Thames. Yesterday morning about 10.30 two boys, bathing in the river, noticed the body lying in the water close to a clump of willows, and they notified their parents. A physician was summoned, and though there was a spark of life in the body, his efforts at resuscitation were without avail.

Murphy Given Five Years.

New York, Aug. 1.—Lawrence Murphy, former treasurer of the Journeymen Stone Cutters' Union, who was arrested last December, charged with embezzling $12,000 from the organization, was yesterday sentenced to five years and six months in State Prison.

BRIDGE SPAN GAVE WAY.

Over 100 Dropped Into the Water—Three Were Drowned.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 1.—A section of the bridge which spans the Willamette River here collapsed yesterday afternoon, precipitating more than one hundred people forty feet into the water. Three people are known to have been drowned, and it is feared that the list of dead will be much larger. Many fell on two small boat-houses, moored to a pier of the bridge, immediately under the spot where it gave way. About 25 were injured. The known dead: Minnie Raymond, aged 10, Lottie Cameron, aged 16. Unidentified boy, aged 15. The crowd had gathered to watch Clarence Lutz, an armless man, swim the river.

Died in Harvest Field.

Berlin, Aug. 1.—Fred Shafer, a market gardener near this city, died suddenly of heart-failure through over-exertion in the heat of midday on Thursday, while at work harvesting. Deceased, who had lived here for 10 or 12 years, was over 60 years of age. He belongs to the Dunkard sect, and leaves a family of married children, besides his wife.

Drowned From a Raft.

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 1.—Stella Uppel of Providence, and Teresa Mahoney of this city, were drowned late yesterday afternoon in Cazenovia Creek. They were playing in a flat scow which started to drift into the centre of the stream. Two little girls who were with them jumped into shallow water and waded ashore. The other girls waited too long and jumped into deep water. Two men tried to save them. John Henses was nearly drowned, and Denis McCarthy hit a rock as he dived and broke his arm. The drowned girls were each fourteen years old.

Jumped Into the Bay Twice.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—Tired of life and a desire to free himself from the unhappiness of home life R. McDonaugh threw himself into the bay at the foot of York street last night. He was rescued and told to go home. A little later he was again seen in the water with suicidal intent and again rescued. This time he was taken charge of by the police and brought to No. 1 police station. He will answer to the charge of attempted self destruction to-day.

Postal Frauds Indictments.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The federal grand jury which has been considering evidence growing out of the post office investigation yesterday returned indictments against several high officials for conspiracy.

VISITED LORD LANSDOWNE.

Galway, Ireland, July 31.—King Edward, Queen Alexandria and their party arrived at Kenmare from Galway at 3 p.m. Their Majesties visited the residence of Lord Lansdowne, the Foreign Secretary, where they were entertained by His Lordship. The King and Queen afterwards proceeded to Berhaven and embarked on the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, bound for Queenstown.

Peasants Pushed Royal Carriage.

Galway, Ireland, July 31.—For the visit of King Edward and the Queen to the famous Connemara marble quarries, near Recess, yesterday, the local authorities provided a dilapidated, damp, grimy landau with two jaded horses and a "Jarvey" of the usual class.

It was doubted whether Their Majesties would enter such an equipage, but to the delight of the crowd of peasants and barefooted women with red petticoats, who lined the steep, muddy hill, the King, smiling at the singularity of the vehicle, entered it without hesitation, the Queen, the Princess and the Earl of Dudley following him. The "Jarvey" was somewhat nervous, and the King asked a member of his suite to take the box beside him. In a similar vehicle were Lady Dudley and other ladies of the Queen's suite. An escort of Connemara cavalry completed the procession.

Progress was slow on account of the mud, but going up hill there were always a dozen peasants who sprang to the back of the landau to help push, the Queen smiling encouragement. At the quarries mementos were presented to Their Majesties, and returning down hill the progress of the equipage was checked by two ropes attached to the axle to which a score of men were holding and acting as a brake.

Vice-Regal Campers.

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—Lord and Lady Minto and party are down the Ottawa on an outing. They have dispensed with attendants, do their own cooking, pitch tents and have dispensed with such luxuries as camp beds, sleeping on cedar boughs. They sail by day and camp by night.

THREE BROTHERS DROWNED.

While Gathering Floatwood They Were Caught in the Undertow.

Ogdensburg, Aug. 1.—Word has just reached here from Beaumaris that a drowning accident occurred on the Bonnechere River between Round and Clear Lakes, by which three members of a family named Wilson perished. The victims were brothers. While engaged in gathering floatwood one swam out toward a log when his progress was arrested. Another went to his rescue. He, too, seemed to be caught in some mysterious undertow. The third brother was hastening to the rescue when the bank gave way and he was carried over a chute. A fourth brother, a boy of twelve, started to wade to the rescue, but fearing he could do nothing, turned about and ran for his father, who had gone to a neighbor's for a boat to help gather the driftwood.

The father was within a short distance of the two older sons when they went down for the last time. Neighbors recovered the bodies. An under-current of an eddy is supposed to have caught the two older sons.

TORONTO YOUTH DROWNED.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—A report comes from Bala, Muskoka, of a sad drowning accident of a Toronto youth.

John Johnston and R. F. Dodge, both of Toronto, while canoeing in the Moon River, were upset above Moon chute, and Johnston, who tried to swim to shore, was drowned, while Dodge, who hung to the canoe, was rescued.

The drowned lad is a son of James Johnston, foreman of the Shedden Co., living at 388 West Front street, and was employed in the G. T. R. shops.

Johnston's body has been recovered and his father went up yesterday at noon and will return with it this morning.

"MURDER WILL OUT."

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—Mitchell Emery and Moise Emery, two young men of Tetreuville, Hull, were arrested yesterday on a charge of manslaughter. On March 24th last they assaulted a man named Charles Guilamette, who died eight hours after of cerebral hemorrhage. The matter was not brought to light until about a week ago when High Constable Groulx was serving a warrant for petty larceny upon the son of the late Charles Guilamette. At that time the widow of the deceased told the constable that he was in a greater hurry to arrest the boy than to arrest those who had killed her husband. The remark led to an investigation and the subsequent arrest of the parties.

Dominion Steel and Coal Companies Have Dissolved—The Terms Are Promised For Next Week.

Montreal, Aug 1.—The Dominion Steel and Coal Companies have been dissolved. The cancellation of the lease was voted to-day at the directors' meeting and the terms were promised in a circular to be issued to the shareholders the first of the week.

PECULIAR RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—On Thursday afternoon, while a gravel train on the Aurora and Schomberg Railway was passing over a portion of the roadbed, a short distance from the intersection of that railway with the Metropolitan Railway, a gang of workmen were engaged in ballasting the roadway at this joint, and had just finished unloading the gravel cars and were backing down to the gravel pit to reload when James King, foreman of the construction gang, who was standing on a flat car, immediately in the rear of the tender, noticed that the roadway was rapidly sinking. He called to the driver, Norman Walton, apprising him of his danger. Walton instantly reversed the lever and together with the fireman, William Obe, jumped from the engine.

The monster engine has buried herself to a depth of fully 15 feet in sand and water, carrying the track along for a distance of probably 50 feet. In a lesser degree the track has subsided from 2 to 10 feet. The smokestack of the engine is now lower than the roadway. It is thought quicksand is the cause of the accident.

DECEIVING THE PEOPLE.

Sir William Mulock last week made a most astounding admission in regard to the Government's neglect in the matter of the fast Atlantic service. For seven years the Laurier Administration has indefatigably labored to impress upon Canadians that everything possible was being done to start a fast steamship line between Canada and Great Britain, which would meet the requirements of the two countries. In 1896 arrangements were completed by the Conservative Government for a weekly 20-knot service. The Liberals allowed that opportunity to slip through their fingers, and after seven years the Postmaster-General coolly announces that practically nothing has been done to secure a substitute line. He went further and declared that the Government was not fully convinced of the necessity for fast steamers. The present crisis at Ottawa has evidently bereft the Ministers of their senses. Only a few years ago Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced that a contract had been signed for a fast line, and the ink is hardly dry on the last tenders received for such a service of 16 and 21-knot boats. From what Sir William Mulock says, it seems that these feeble efforts were mere bluffs intended to deceive the public. Gulling the people is evidently the stock in trade of the Liberal party.

TIMELY TOPICS

MR. DOOLEY ON CURRENT TOPICS

"Lave the road," said Mr. Dooley, "bedad, I'm goin' on a deppytashun to thry and injuce a couple of rich Yankees to come here and shtart a glue facthry. What we need here, Hinnissy, me bye, is glue. Thin we can get people who make promises to shtick to their texts and not be our byes to shtick to their ould home and not go rovin' away to other places; thin we can get our preachers to shriek to their texts and not be ramblin' and keepin' their congregations listening to a three-quarters of an hour sermon; thin we can get Grit pollytishuns to shtick to the truth whin they make out their accounts."

"It's a pity we didn't have more of it lasht winter," said Mr. Hennessy, "thin some of the coal dealers might have shtuck to the promises they made their cushtomers."

"Or the assessment fellers to the instructions they were given," said Mr. Dooley. "Yes, Hinnissy, 'tis a glue facthry we nade."

"Did ye hear what the new industhry Ald. Chown went after is to be like?" said Mr. Hennessy.

"I hear it's for the mannyfacture of flyin' machines," said Mr. Dooley, "an' faith, Hinnissy, if we have another assissmint commission nixt year we'll need a flyin machine to get over the tax rate."

"I hear," said Mr. Hennessy, "that there's a petishun to be shtarted to ask the Government to shtop fishin' wid a hook and line in the bay. They're afraid, Hinnissy, that thay won't be any fish left for the poor min that earn $75 a week net fishin' in the fall. Ye'd best hurry up and sign the petishun, for 'tis a mortal shame to think that six or sivin min should be put out for the sake of tin or fifteen thousand people."

"They say Mr. Kirkwood's forfeit money is goin' into the sinking fund," said Mr. Hennessy.

"The sinking fund, is it?" said Mr. Dooley. "Bedad, Hinnissy, it seems to me that most of the money raised in this town in the lasht forty years has gone into the sinking fund, for every cint of it has sunk out of sight."

"Yer a pessimist," said Mr. Hennessy.

"Yer a direct descendant of Ananias," said Mr. Dooley. "No, Hinnissy, I'm no pessimist; I belave, in the language of me frind, Ald. Grogan, that brighter days are dawnin' for us, and that the silver cloud can now be seen through the linin.' But, mind ye, Hinnissy, it won't come through till people shtop talkin' wid their mouths and let their money have a chance. They talk about industhries, why don't they shtart a few thimselves? They're all the time lookin' for somebody to come and lay out his money and help to make thim rich, and in return they'll give him their blessin' and all the scenery and fresh air he can dhrink in. They make me tired, Hinnissy, they do. Sure, why is it we don't prosper, they say, wid all our advantages and beautiful shade threes, and nine min out of tin, if ye ask thim to take a share or two in a local concern which helps to keep our byes at home, will button up their pockets and run and hide in the tall weeds."

"Where will they hide whin the weeds are cut down?" said Mr. Hennessy.

But Mr. Dooley was gone.

There has been such a rush for our Ice Cream this summer, especially on Saturday evenings, that a number of people have been small enough to take advantage of the rush and have gone out without paying for their Ice Cream. On this account we have decided that on Saturday evenings, and other busy times, all cash will be collected at the table when the order is served.

LACTATED FOOD

A PERFECT SUMMER FOOD FOR INFANTS.

Infant mortality is always high in August. This is largely due to the character of nourishment that infants receive. The babies who are deprived of mother's milk are too often fed on cow's milk diluted and impure.

To mothers who are anxious for the safety of their babies in hot weather, we would confidently recommend Lactated Food, now so generally prescribed by physicians and so universally used by mothers.

Lactated Food prevents cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea and fevers: it promotes perfect digestion and healthy growth, and for the teething period it is the ideal food. Give Lactated Food a trial, dear mothers, if you would have your little ones well and strong.

Excursions Coming.

One of the largest, if not the largest, excursions to this city this season will be held by the Omemee Methodist Church, of which the Rev. J. A. Locke is now the Pastor. It leves Omemee next Wednesday morning, the 5th, and comes by train to Port Hope, thence by steamer through the Murray Canal, a trip of over one hundred miles. They expect friends to join them at every station,

Then on Wednesday, the 12th, the Campbellford Methodist Church arrives here, and also provides for some of the party to go on to Picton. The Rev. B. Greatrix, a former Bellevillian, is the Pastor of this church.

On the 20th the eastern Methodist Church, of which the Rev. C. E. McIntyre is pastor, will come here by the Aletha.

On August 5th the Millbrook Methodist Church will have an excursion to the city. A former Bellevillian, Rev. H. Bruce Kenny, is the pastor of this church.

THE ANAEMIC YOUNG GIRL.

Perhaps she is sixteen. Suddenly she seems to lose strength, her beauty fades because her strength fails, her eyes lose their lustre. How her spirit droops! It alarms you, but all this may be corrected quickly. Get her Ferrozone, it is a nerve tonic, it aids the stomach to do its work. Appetite? She'll eat anything and digest it, too. Ferrozone is an absolute specific for the anaemia of young people. Ask your druggist for it.

JUDGMENT IN McDONALD CASE.

ACTION DISMISSED WITHOUT COSTS BY JUSTICE BRITTON.

Osgoode Hall, July 30

Trial Court. Before Britton, J. McDonald v. McDonald.—Judgment (L.) in action tried without a jury at Belleville. Action to set aside and remove from the registry an alleged conveyance of 42 acres of the north half of the west half of lot 21, on the east side of Point Ann Lane, in the township of Thurlow. The instrument impeached bore date 18th July, 1902, and purporting to have been made by George McDonald, in consideration of natural love and affection, and one dollar to his son, Donald McDonald, defendant. George McDonald made his will on the 13th of February, 1903, devising this land to his daughter, Jane, for life, with remainder to all his children equally. He died on the 24th February, 1903. At the time he made his will he appeared to have thought himself the owner of this land. It was not shown that he had lost his memory or that he was not capable of doing business. The duplicate of the impeached conveyance, produced from the Registry Office, had no seal upon it, and its appearance indicated that it never had a seal. The original, when produced in court by defendant, had the mark of where a small seal some time or other had been attached, but not opposite to where deceased's name was written. Defendant and his solicitor both swore to the existence of seals upon both documents at the time of execution. The execution purported to be by deceased as a marksman, his name being written by defendant's solicitor. The evidence as to deceased being at solicitor's office, in Belleville, on the day sworn to by defendant was conflicting. Held, that as the solicitor and the defendant had given their evidence in the most positive way as to the due execution of the deed by the deceased on the day of its date, they could not be mistaken, and the deed must be affirmed unless the court could find the solicitor and the defendant guilty of conspiracy, forgery and perjury, whereas the witness for plaintiffs, who spoke of the occurrences of the 18th July, might possibly be mistaken. Action dismissed without costs. Stay till 1st October. A. B. Aylsworth, K. C., for plaintiffs. E. G. Porter (Belleville) for defendant.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

A good name in business is worth more than all the advertisements. A pleased and well satisfied customer is what proves the best drawing card. Newspaper advertising is good, but a store that makes it a point to always satisfy, is the store that wins in the long run. This is the principle the Oak Hall works upon.

Notes From the Sandbanks.

Picton Gazette: Mr. and Mrs. Lazier, Belleville, organized the best progressive euchre of the season, which was given in the pavilion on Tuesday night. There were twenty-five tables. The first prize for men—a gold watch—was won by Mr. Jas. McDonald, Wellington. Mrs. Chubb, of Toronto, won the ladies' gold watch. The other prizes were less elaborate yet in perfect good taste.

The hurricane that swept through here on Tuesday night, completely destroyed the large tent of Col. Lazier. In the hotel the doors were blown open, windows broken, and many of the guests were up and about.

COLLEGE CUSHIONS.

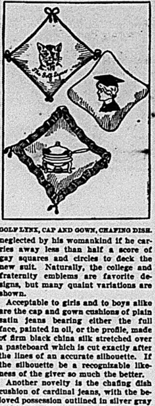
College and Fraternity Emblems Novelties That Include Many Captivating Touches—The Golf Lynx and Other Neat Devices.

Of making and giving sofa cushions there is no end. They are as acceptable to the grave and reverend senior, who stows them into a trunk checked for Guam or Dawson City, as to the departing freshman, who feels himself neglected by his womankind if he carries away less than half a score of gay squares and circles to deck the new suit. Naturally, the college and fraternity emblems are favorite designs, but many quaint variations are shown.



GOLF LYNX, CAP AND GOWN, CHAFING DISH.

Acceptable to girls and to boys alike are the cap and gown cushions of plain satin jeans bearing either the full face, painted in oil, or the profile, made of firm black china silk stretched over a pasteboard which is cut exactly after the lines of an accurate silhouette. If the silhouette be a recognizable likeness of the giver so much the better.

Another novelty is the chafing dish cushion of cardinal jeans, with the beloved possession outlined in silver gray and black. The corners of the shaped jeans ruffle are finished with black tassels. A captivating "last touch" is the addition of a tiny tinsel frying pan or kettle to each tassel which completes a corner.

The blue print cushion is one of the prettiest bits of decoration imaginable. Eighteen inch squares of heavy blue or white sateen bearing a blue print of a college building in the center may be purchased in the college town shops for a moderate price. A dainty finish is given by a ruffle of china silk of the exact soft blue of the print, edged with white beading, run through with blue ribbon.

The golf lynx is developed in bright green satin jeans, edged with bronze and green cord and embroidered solidly in shades of bronze. The eyes are spangles of jet set on a larger spangle of orange. The explanatory legend is done in rope silk of a darker green than the pillow.

A pretty Stanford cushion is of pale green silk wreathed in four leaved clovers done solidly in shaded greens. The S is outlined in darker green rope silk and netted closely in fine silver thread. —Designer.

Good Cheap Ice Cream.

Good cheap ice cream is what the Boston Cooking School Magazine labels the following: Stir two and a half level teaspoonfuls of flour and half a teaspoonful of salt with cold milk until perfectly smooth and of a consistency to pour. Then stir into a quart of milk scalded over hot water. Stir and cook until slightly thickened, then stir occasionally for fifteen minutes. Beat the yolks of two eggs, add a fourth of a cup of sugar and beat again. Add the rest of a cup of sugar to the contents of the double boiler, then add the egg and sugar mixture. Stir and cook until the egg is set. Then strain and add two tablespoonfuls of butter, and when cold freeze as usual. This gives a good foundation, which may be flavored to taste.

Sterilized and boiled milk are no longer considered best for young babies—in fact, sterilization has been pronounced a failure by prominent physicians because in the process the milk undergoes such a change in character that some of the substances of the most nutritive value disappear and what is left is to a large degree nondigestible, says Good Housekeeping. The latest scientific investigations point toward pure, clean cow's milk as a substitute for human milk.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

There's room enough and to spare. I'll never give up my little Rosa; and that's why I want no rake-helly, that can't stay at home, to have you."

"But it's the duty of a wife to follow her husband," replied Rosa, argumentatively, "and if I marry I must needs follow my husband if he should wish to go to the ends of the world."

"I'll care for that," said the hearty old man laughing; "I've chosen you a fellow whose lands will join mine, and I'll make my own terms with him, and never shall you go from this house while I live."

"But I do not wish ever to marry, father," replied Rosa, somewhat vexed at her father's cool disposal of her in his match-making plans.

"Pooh, pooh," was the response, "'Tisn't nature. All women wish to marry. You're old enough now, and, by my dunder, I'd rather give up half my farm than see you grow up into a sour old maid. No, no. Think you you'll cheat me of having half-a-dozen grandchildren to clamber round my knees before I die? 'Twouldn't be honoring your old father, girl. There's Ralph—a fine young fellow; but a smile will make him yours and will you turn him away for a scapegrace that leaves you as soon as he gets a little money to scatter, and who, a thousand to one, will never show his face here again?"

Rosa did not answer; but the tears, stealing down her cheeks, told of the distress her father's words caused her.

"There, there," continued the old man, "they are foolish tears; but cry it out; you will feel better for it, and be my merry little girl again one of these days. If I was a girl, it's few tears I would waste on the scamp that ran away from me."

"I cannot believe that Claude meant to desert me, father," interposed Rosa, pleadingly.

"Believe it or not, girl," he said, "he's but a scamp, and I'd sooner see you dead than married to him. He's made a fool of you, and I must leave it to work off. When your wits come back, you'll be ashamed of every tear shed for such a scapegrace."

Rosa saw that to attempt to controvert her father's opinion of Claude would only be to arouse his anger, and she wisely chose to be silent.

The old man did not attempt to press his wishes on her any further, but turned away with the bluff counsel to cheer up and forget her troubles.

Cheer up! The words sounded like mockery to poor Rosa. In the conflict which she saw ahead between her filial duty and her plighted troth, there appeared nothing to cheer and encourage her. The future lowered on her vision dark and threatening, and portentious of the wreck of all her hopes of happiness.

CHAPTER XXI.

Lawyer Saybrook had very little of the sentimental in his disposition. But who is proof against the rosy archer at all times and under all circumstances? The time comes when the most wary must be taken in a snare.

The elder Saybrook entered his domicile one day, with thoughts intent upon business. He wished to have a talk with Ralph, who, however, was not in the office. He made his way to the domestic department where Mrs. Grewy presided. That excellent housekeeper had been engaged in moulding bread, and three shapely loaves stood on the moulding board as he entered. Mrs. Grewy blushed slightly, and then smiled sweetly, as she saw the lawyer.

Somehow, it had never before struck Mr. Saybrook that Mrs. Grewy was an attractive female, but just at this particular moment it flashed on him that the widow, as she stood with her sleeves rolled up above her elbows showing a white and shapely arm, and with a jaunty cap on her head, presented rather a handsome figure. This thought entered the lawyer's mind, but his immediate object was to enquire for Ralph, so he said:

"Has Ralph been in, Mrs. Grewy?"

"He went out about half an hour ago," replied Mrs. Grewy, and again a rosy hue suffused her face. Now, there was really no reason for the widow to blush. Mr. Saybrook's object was plainly very prosaic, and there was certainly nothing unusual in his inquiring for his son. Still, his sudden advent had evidently so accorded with some fancy of the widow's as to produce the tell-tale signal in question.

"Oh, bless you, no," replied the widow; "he never does, you know; and I shouldn't presume to ask."

"Or didn't say where he was going?"

"Oh, dear, no, Mr. Saybrook; but then if you are anxious to know, I might make a pretty good guess. He dressed himself with unusual care, and I suspect that he was going up to Mr. Bruyn's."

And having said this, the widow thought it proper to look down archly, and again let a rosy tinge suffuse her face.

Now the lawyer had been fully answered, and there was no occasion for him to remain longer in the kitchen. But he hesitated a moment, and then advanced toward the table where the widow had been at work.

"Making bread, eh?" he said. "Really, Mrs. Grewy, I must compliment you on your effort."

The effect of these words on the widow was truly remarkable. They not only caused her to blush again in a very charming manner, but the lawyer could have sworn that in the space of about three seconds she grew twenty years younger, so pleased and animated did she become under the effect of his compliment.

Now the truth was that the widow had long worshipped in silence the stately lawyer, and had in fancy cherished the idea that he would make a more than acceptable substitute for the late Mr. Grewy, who in truth had been but a plain and illiterate, though good-natured blacksmith. Mr. Saybrook, however, had hitherto never manifested the slightest interest in the widow's efforts to please him, and this sudden unbending quite took her by surprise. The lawyer, though, had long been aware of the not very carefully concealed worship of his housekeeper, but, while it had not been displeasing to his vanity, to reciprocate her sentimental attitude was about the last thing he would have thought of under ordinary circumstances.

But this digression is delaying the widow's answer.

"Really, Mr. Saybrook," she replied, "you are very kind to speak so; and, if I do say it myself, I do not think there are many women who can surpass me in baking of any kind; but then I always put my whole soul in my work, which is a good deal, but very natural, as it is my highest ambition to please you."

"U-m-m—yes—of course," replied the lawyer. "And so Ralph has gone up to old Bruyn's?"

"Yes—that is, I think he has," said the widow. "And I must say, Mr. Saybrook, that I think the young lady is very fortunate who succeeds in getting him. Of course, I admit I am somewhat prejudiced—but how can I help it? I think he is really the most elegant young man I ever knew."

"Ah," interposed the lawyer.

"Yes, indeed," continued the widow, gazing archly up." "And he resembles you so much; it is really quite remarkable."

"Well," said the lawyer, "I agree with you about Ralph. The girl will be fortunate who gets him. And yet I am particularly anxious about this present affair of his. I think he is getting along, Mrs. Grewy. I do not think it would be any mistake to have it understood that he is to marry Rosa, but of course I would not wish to have it known as coming from me, you know."

"Oh, certainly not," replied the widow. "Really, I am quite surprised—and pleased, too, although one may be sure that Ralph cannot get anybody too good for him."

"Well, if Ralph comes in this way, tell him I want to see him," said the lawyer. "I am going up in the office."

"But won't you have just a bite of something before you go, Mr. Saybrook," inquired the widow, with a sudden display of tender anxiety for his carnal comfort. "Let me show you some cake I have just been baking."

"No, no, Mrs. Grewy; not at present; do not disturb yourself. I must go at once."

And so the lawyer left, having succeeded in raising the most ardent hopes in the bosom of the widow that she would yet be the rich and distinguished Mrs. Saybrook, while he had at the same time taken the best measure possible to have it publicly understood that Ralph and Rosa were not only engaged but very shortly to be married. He took his accustomed seat in his office, and hour after hour flew by while he was deeply absorbed in writing.

"Eh, Ralph," said the elder man, "take a seat. Just home, eh? Well, what lucy to-day? Any more favorable report."

"Well, slightly, perhaps," replied the young man, drawling out his tones with easy indifference. "It isn't my tactics, you know, to hurry matters. I undertook to press my claims a little to-day, however, and succeeded in extracting the answer that, while I was held in the deepest respect, it was not possible that I could become the recipient of anything more than friendship while any doubt remained as to the actual sentiments of a certain young gentleman now in Europe. Not a very encouraging answer, perhaps; but inferentially I see therein a sign of hope."

"Ralph, I am rather out of patience with you," exclaimed the father. "And yet I admire your imperturbable coolness. But I never can bear to delay in such matters as this. There is no telling what new difficulty will spring up.

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

Cholera Infantum is one of the most dreaded diseases of infancy. It is prevalent during the heat of summer in spite of all the care mothers may take to guard against it and it sometimes progresses so quickly that death occurs in a few hours no matter what care is given the child. The first thing to do is to stop feeding the child and give him plenty of fresh air and pure water to drink. Give Baby's Own Tablets to carry off the poison in the system. Do not under any circumstance give a medicine to check the diarrhoea, except under the advice of a doctor. By using Baby's Own Tablets the cause of the diarrhoea will be removed, and the disease will thus be checked in a natural manner. Proof that the Tablets cure this too often fatal trouble is given by Mrs. Herbert Burnham, Smith's Falls, Ont., who says: "When my eldest child was six weeks old he had an attack of cholera infantum and was at death's door. My doctor advised me to try Baby's Own Tablets and in twenty-four hours baby was better, the vomiting and purging ceased and he regained strength rapidly."

Keep the Tablets in the house—their prompt use may save your little one's life. Sold by medicine dealers or sent postpaid at 25 cents a box by writing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE CHILD MIND.

Play and Its Significance—Prof. Murray, of Halifax, Lectures.

At the recent Presbyterian Summer School at Knox College, Toronto, Prof. Murray of Halifax delivered an address on "Child Mind and Teaching." He pointed out that the human being had certain instincts, but not the special instincts that he requires to meet civilized conditions. The aim of the teacher should be to enlarge the religious knowledge of the child, to utilize his instincts to interest him in religious things. It had been charged against such story writers as Seton-Thompson and Long that in dealing with animals they read too much of the man into their observations. What the teacher must avoid was reading too much of the adult into the child.

Prof. Murray entered into a long discourse with racy illustrations on the play of children. Spencer, he pointed out, had held child's play to be merely imitation of their elders. This was not the whole truth; little girls and little boys sought wholly different amusements; the real definition of play was that it was the expression of instincts. Many of those who had recently attended the General Assembly at Vancouver had visited Chinatown, and at least five different men had pointed out to him that Chinese children play just as Caucasian little ones do. But the customs of Chinese adults were entirely different from our own. Accepting the traditional view of the various periods in the life of the young, he pointed out that the first period was spent in acquiring sensations, or knowledge of the capabilities of the senses, touch, taste and so on. The second period was spent in competitive sports. Tag, hopscotch and the like were but tests of growing strength. Then, with adolescence of the social faculty.

Following up his subject, Prof. Murray showed that the ordinary human being acquired his knowledge of any object or subject, first by a general impression and then by a grasp of the ideals, taking the very apt illustration of how one recognizes a friend approaching from the distance. The general deduction he drew was that the teacher should avoid burdening a child's mind with detail. Knowledge commenced with the vague and ended with the definite. The teacher should pick out the salient features of his theme and appeal to the child through his imagination.

The Battle of Ticonderoga.

On the 8th of July, 1758, was fought the battle of Ticonderoga, by which a small force of Canadian volunteers, a few Indians and a small number of French soldiers under Montcalm defeated an army of British and American troops, far superior in numbers and discipline, commanded by Abercrombie. Montcalm, who was born in France, had been in the French service from the time he was fourteen years of age and had served his apprenticeship with the French army in Italy and Germany. In 1750 he was sent to take command of the French troops in Canada. France and England were at war at the time. Soon after his arrival he captured Fort Ontario, at Oswego. With his small army of 3,600 Canadians he had suffered from lack of provisions, but by taking Fort William Henry, at the head of Lake George, he not only caused the garrison of 2,500 men to surrender, but he became possessed of 42 guns and large stores of ammunition and provisions. Word was received that Abercrombie was marching north with an immense army to invade Canada, and Montcalm intrenched himself at Fort Carillon (Ticonderoga) to await his coming. When the two forces met a fierce battle took place, which, however, lasted only four hours. At the end of that time the small Canadian force made the enemy, numbering 15,000, retreat in disorder.

Fish Journey Overland.

The two officers of the Provincial Fisheries Department, Mr. W. W. Ellis and Mr. W. R. Wood, who conducted the recent shipment of 400 parent bass to Rat Portage, where they were deposited in the vicinity of Lake of the Woods, have returned to Toronto. They report that the fish safely withstood the journey of 1,500 miles from their Lake Erie home to the land, or rather the water, of their adoption. The citizens of Rat Portage were delighted with the prospect of better fishing which this gave promise of, and tendered the visitors the freedom of the town. Mr. Ellis reports that the trout fishing on the Nepigon River, by which he passed on the way home, is said to be excellent this year. A Chicagoan who had been there every year for fifteen years, said he never saw it so good.

The Canada Fish Company, who have a fishing lease for Lake Nepigon, are expending large sums of money in the erection of buildings, etc., but have done little fishing as yet.

A carload of bass has also been deposited in the lakes in the County of Renfrew. They were conducted to Scotia Junction over the Grand Trunk and thence east over the Canada Atlantic.

A report has reached the Fisheries Department that several sea salmon had recently been caught by Mr. Charles Nurse in his nets at the Humber.

Many Dangers.

Drink water and get typhoid. Drink milk and get tuberculosis. Drink whiskey and get the jimjams. Eat soup and get Bright's disease. Eat meat an[illegible]courage apoplexy Eat oysters and acquire taxemia Eat vegetables and weaken the system. Eat dessert and take to paresis. Smoke cigarettes and die early Drink coffee and obtain nervous prostration. Drink wine and get the gout. In order to be entirely healthy one must eat nothing, drink nothing, smoke nothing, and even before breathing one should see that the air is properly sterilized.

The Flagging Energies Revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These come from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare powder, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression, and reviving the flagging energies.

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is a speedy cure for dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera, summer complaint, sea sickness and complaints incidental to children teething. It gives immediate relief to those suffering from the effects of indiscretion in eating unripe fruit, cucumbers, etc. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to conquer the disease. No one need fear cholera if they have a bottle of this medicine convenient.

Sleeplessness.—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body gives up to wretchedness, when the mind is filled with gloom and dismal forebodings, the result of derangement of the digestive organs, sleeplessness comes to add to the distress. If only the subject could sleep, there would be the oblivion for a while and temporary relief. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will not only induce sleep, but will act so beneficially that the subject will wake refreshed and restored to happiness.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one-half, the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done, it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using 3 bottles of the Vegetable Discovery, the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 68 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

THE PUBLIC should bear in mind that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has nothing in common with the impure, deteriorating class of so-called medicinal oils. It is eminently pure and really efficacious—relieving pain and lameness, stiffness of the joints and muscles, and sores or hurts, besides being an excellent specific for rheumatism, coughs and bronchial complaints.

All trails are long to the lazy.

These two desirable qualifications, pleasant to the taste and at the same time effectual, are to be found in Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, Children like it.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

The best way to get even is to forget.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief, They never fail to do good.

Much talk, many lies.

They make one feel as though life was worth living. Take one of Carter's Little Liver Pills after eating; it will relieve dyspepsia, aid digestion, give tone and vigor to the system.

Nothing so suddenly obstructs the perspiration as sudden transitions from heat to cold. Heat rarifies the blood, quickens the circulation and increases the perspiration, but when these are suddenly checked the consequences must be bad. The most common cause of disease is obstructed perspiration, or what commonly goes by the name of catching cold. Coughs, colds, sore throat, etc., if attended to in time are easily subdued, but if allowed to run their own course generally prove the fore-runner of more dangerous diseases. Nine-tenths of the consumptives date their afflictions from a neglected [illegible] and the diseases that are caused by wet feet, damp clothes, or exposure are more numerous than are generally supposed. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, which frees the lungs from viscid phlegm by changing the secretions from a diseased to a healthy state, tural.

Ideal weather, isn't it?

You ought to be able to get to church twice to-morrow, if the weather stays like this.

• • •

A wireless message from the Chief says that he has been a week on the ocean, and can now splice the main brace as well as any sailor man that ever trod the quarter-deck. A concert was held in the fo'castle last night, for the benefit of the old d.s.b.g. The Chief sang "The Good Old Summer Time," and some of the cattle on the ship broke loose and were with difficulty prevented from jumping overboard. They saw a school of porpoises, but most of them were no bigger than bass caught in the bay a few years ago, before net fishing spoiled it as a fishing ground. The usual verse winds up the message:

While riding here upon the foam
I'm thinking now of home, sweet home,
Our vessel safe does gently rock
(What about that light in the city clock?)
The sun goes down with gorgeous glint
Like a suspended sentence of Magistrate Flint
At Belleville fair I'd like to peep,
But can't because I'm on the deep.

Mr. J. J. B. Flint's defence of the ladies on the Hospital Board who were slandered by a local yellow sheet, though rather late, is very much in order. It will, we are sure, be applauded by all honorable men. Making war on women is small business, though, of course, no man can be greater than his mind.

• • •

It will be seen, by the article from the Kingston Whig in another column, that Mr. S. T. Bastedo, head of the fisheries department of Ontario, is making a searching enquiry throughout the province as to the general opinion in regard to net fishing. So far, the Whig says:

"The universal desire expressed was for restriction of netting, for at least five years. It came alike from city and country. The people's sport and enjoyment has been cut off, for the benefit of a few only who make it a partial occupation, who have had little scruple as to the catch, and have heedlessly destroyed their own business while using up the general supply."

The Whig's words voice the opinions of the very great majority in this city and district. It is gratifying to see that the petition now being signed in this city is in line with the general sentiments expressed throughout the province, and that in all probability the practise of net fishing will soon be either stopped or greatly restricted.

THE HOSPITAL AGAIN.

MR. J. J. B. FLINT REBUKES A PAPER WHICH DESCENDED SO LOW AS TO SLANDER LADIES.

My Dear Sir,—Now that the Hospital pot has ceased to boil, and everything connected with that excellent institution has settled down into its normal condition, I wish to correct a flagrant injustice done to two ladies of the Hospital Board in a recent editorial of the Ontario. The ladies alluded to were named, and it was stated that they had opposed the investigation asked for by Miss de Pensier. Knowing the facts, I beg to inform you that the statement was entirely untrue.

So far from opposing the investigation, they attended at the meeting of the Board where Miss de Pensier appeared and where all matters in issue were long and exhaustively discussed and heard and considered every statement made by Miss de Pensier.

I am yours,
John J. B. Flint.

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Courage of Wild Dogs.

The whole tribe of wild dogs, which in closely allied forms are to be found in the wildest jungles and woods of Asia, from the Himalayas to Ceylon and from China to the Taurus—unless the "golden wolves" of the Roman empire are now extinct in the forests of Asia Minor—show an individual and corporate courage which entitles them to a high place among the most daring of wild creatures. The "red dogs," to give them their most characteristic name, are neither large in size nor do they assemble in large packs. Those which have been from time to time measured and described seem to average some three feet in length from the nose to the root of the tail.

The pack seldom numbers more than nine or ten, yet there is sufficient evidence that they are willing and able to destroy any creature that inhabits the jungle, except the adult elephant and perhaps the rhinoceros, creatures whose great size and leathery hide make them almost invulnerable to such enemies as dogs.—London Spectator.

He or she who enters a house for the first time is supposed in the Balkan countries to bring it good or bad luck for the whole twelvemonth. This belief gives rise to a curious observance. The visitor before crossing the threshold picks up a stone (token of strength) or a green twig (emblem of health and fruitfulness) and lays it on the hearth. He also brings with him some grains of salt, which he casts into the flames, and then, squatting by the fireside, wishes his hosts "a prosperous year, a plentiful crop and many blessings." Then as the grains of salt burst and crackle in the fire he utters the following quaint formula: "As I am sitting even so may sit the hen and warm the eggs. As this salt splits even so may split the eggs of the clucking hen and the chickens come forth."

Why Men Eat Too Much.

Eating is the greatest of all our standard amusements. A great number of people obviously eat a great deal more than they need, and it is entirely credible that a large proportion of the moderate eaters might thrive as well and look as handsome and work as hard and live as long on a very much restricted diet. But would the joy of life continue unimpaired for them? The native born might raise plenty of children if they could subsist for 11 cents a day, but would they think life was worth living on 11 cents worth of food a day? No, they wouldn't. That is one thing that ails them.—Harper's.

Chairs In the Dark Ages.

The chairs of the dark ages, modeled partly on those of the Romans, were in keeping with the comfortless dwellings in which the people of the north of Europe then passed their lives. The Saxon kings of England are represented as seated on thrones in the form of a box, the ends slightly raised, the bottom advanced to form a sort of footstool. There is always a cushion to add a degree of comfort, and sometimes a back in the form of a crosspiece or remotely resembling the backs of modern chairs.

Courage Begets Courage.

One brave step makes the next one easier. True, the road seems more piled up with obstacles as one goes along; but, then, one is made stronger and more capable with every step, so that relatively we have an easy road always before us. At least if not exactly easy it becomes more interesting—one feels less inclined to grumble.—Cosmopolitan.

Turned Out.

"Yes," replied his son gloomily, "our college turned out the man who was sure to have won the hundred yard dash for us next year just because he didn't pass any of his examinations."

Comes Natural to Him.

"Qupon is a good fellow, but his conversational abilities are remarkably limited. He has a few stock phrases, and that's all."

Curious Bits of News.

English bacteriologists have taken a small piece from a woman's skirt which had been trailed through London streets, and after washing it in distilled water, have examined the offscourings under a microscope. One hundred and fifty drops of the water contained more than twenty-five thousand germs of such diseases as consumption, diphtheria and typhoid fever.

The automobile lawn-mower was sure to come. No sooner was it prophesied than an inventor made one, and it can be seen in operation on the Capitol grounds in Washington. When it is produced at a popular price, the suburbanite, of whom the comic papers make so much sport, may take a few turns about his lawn every morning, and then head the mower toward the railroad station to take his train for town. On his return in the afternoon he may finish the job of mowing the lawn, while he keeps the grass along the roadside cut and rolled by his daily trips. Then on Sundays he may give his baby a ride up and down the road in its horseless carriage, that it may understand what the modern inventor can do.

The Shawnee "Herald" offers this exceptional value in bird stories: Jesse Davis, a farmer, who resides east of town, has a sparrow's nest which was built in the rear of a buggy seat which Mr. Davis frequently uses. The cover of the seat had worn away, and the old birds took possession of the moss padding and made a very comfortable home. Mr. Davis once a week comes to town to remain all day, but the old bird stays at home on these occasions, returning to her nest as soon as the buggy reaches its shed. The eggs she laid there have now hatched and Mr. Davis is in Shawnee today with the buggy and the little sparrows, but the parent bird is at home awaiting the return of her young ones.

The Pullman Company has made a demand on F. P. Woolston, a prominent Christian Endeavorer, of Denver, for two hundred dollars damages to the sleeper in which he recently made his bridal trip. It seems that the car was captured by Woolston's friends and decorated in a unique manner. Men's and women's shoes and old horseshoes and banners and things were nailed to the windows of the Pullman sleeper, inside and out. Nails were driven into the car with as much abandon as if it had been a picket fence. When the sleeper got back to Denver from Ogden it is said that it looked as if it had been the target for a Gatling gun. It was taken out of service and put in the shops, and now the Pullman Company is trying to make Woolston pay for the repairs.

The court of Amsterdam has a strange lawsuit before it. As far back as February last year a newly-born child was taken from the mother's care to be reared in an incubator. In accordance with medical advice the infant was packed in wadding and hurried to the hospital, where the incubators stand ready to receive weakly babies. Meanwhile, in compliance with Dutch law, the father had the birth of a son registered and the child was given the name of Franciscus Gerardus, there and then. At the hospital a receipt was taken for the baby boy, and he was put into one of the incubators. Some weeks passed, and the parents received notice that their child was well enough to be taken away. Imagine the father's surprise when he went to fetch his son to have a baby girl thrust into his arms! The hospital nurse declared some mistake had been made by the parents. The parents, nurse and other witnesses declared the mistake was on the part of the hospital authorities. The baby girl was not wanted by the parents of the missing baby boy, and nobody else owned her. The father took proceedings against the mayor of the city, and claimed two hundred and forty pounds damage for his lost son. During the time the child was in the incubator the outside of the machine was painted, and according to the plaintiff's advocate, the cards on which are written the particulars regarding the inmates were mixed.

In Dear Old London.

The "Argonaut's" correspondent "Cockaigne," says that the recent warm spell in the British metropolis brought out two really marvelous street costumes, which were worn by well-known clubmen. "One popular army officer on the headquarters staff at the Horse Guards," he writes, "coming down the shady side of Regent street, was arrayed in a pair of thin, white cambric trousers, very wide and caught in at the knees but there made very little smaller by a white and narrow and elaborately embroidered band. This garment was worn over a white cambric shirt, made full and baggy, with a deep turn-over collar of the same material, and edged with white lace. The front of the shirt had also wide lace trimmings of the 'frog' pattern. On his head he wore a white straw 'Toredor' hat, with a puggaree attached; on his feet, which were bare, were white canvas sand shoes. It was said that his wife (a young woman) had materially assisted in providing the outfit, and that it was done for a wager. I do not think so. The other get-up was quite as grotesque, and there was no wager about it. It was worn by one of the cleverest young king's counsels at the Chancery bar, and consisted of an entire suit—bar waistcoat—of thin, flesh-colored silk, over which was worn a sort of dinner jacket and trousers, made very loose, of ordinary white muslin, with pink satin bows at wrist and throat. It was fragile, and would need constant replenishment for a whole summer's use. But it lasted quite long enough for this spell. You will doubtless be inclined either to doubt the existence of these costumes or the sanity of their wearers, but I can assure you that they appeared on the street exactly as I have described them, and were seen by hundreds of people."

Somewhat Mixed.

Mrs. Scatterbrain—It was when we were at the pyramids in Norway—oh, wasn't it there, dear?—then it must have been at the field of Waterloo in Egypt—or was it the fiords in Rome? Now I come to think of it, I do believe it was when we were seeing the Vatican at Cologne, or the leaning tower of Gaza up the Rhine, or the Louvre at Venice—anyway, it was at one of those foreign places, which we saw when we went away last year, that—that—that—well, there now—if I haven't forgotten what I was going to tell you!

Quick & Robertson's for Fine Clothes

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard--built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

HOT WEATHER FAG.

"Fagged right out," is an appropriate way to express the feelings of many people during the hot summer months. No strength, no vigor, no snap, no ambition, too weary to work and too languid to take any keen pleasure in life. You need a tonic for this summer fag, and the very best summer tonic in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Every dose makes new rich blood, tones the nerves, sharpens the appetite, stimulates the liver, and banishes weakness and weariness, headaches, backaches, languor and despondency. The only tonic that can do this for you is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—it's a waste of money to experiment with anything else. Mr. Louis Doucet, Grand Etang, N.S., says: "I was very much run down in health and was weak and easily tired. My appetite was variable, my nerves unstrung and I often felt a complete indisposition to work. After trying several medicines without benefit, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking a few boxes I felt better than I had done for months, and equal to any exertion. I don't know anything to equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when one feels fagged out."

You can get the pills from any dealer in medicine, or they will be sent postpaid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing direct to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Be sure you get the genuine with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around the box.

COL. MONTIZAMBERT OUT OF HARNESS.

HAD A LONG AND BRILLIANT MILITARY CAREER—A FAVORITE OFFICER—WILL RESIDE IN KINGSTON.

The following, from the Kingston Whig, will be read with interest by many in this city who have had the honor and pleasure of meeting the gallant old soldier in question:

With the sounding of retreat at sunset this evening, the long and illustrious military career of Col. C. E. Montizambert, D.O.C., will practically close, by reason of his having been "born so young in life" as to have reached the age limit in his very prime. He is, therefore, by the laws of Canadian military economy, called upon to lay aside his armor and rest from his labors.

Every soldier in Canada who has at any time served under or come into contact with the genial D.O.C. now retiring to private life, will regret to hear of his transfer to the reserve of officers. He was ever a friend of "Tommy" and nothing but kind words will be said of him in connection with his retirement. His popularity was boundless, because his judgment was wise at all times in the exercise of the arduous duties of his office. He was ever kind to a fault, and never knowingly caused any officer or man with whom he had dealings a moment of sorrow or bitterness. He steps out of harness carrying with him the good will of every officer and man in Canada who at any time served with or under him.

Col. Montizambert is a native of Quebec, being a son of the late Edward Louis Montizambert. Early in life he acquired a taste for soldiering and as a youth joined the Victoria Rifles, a volunteer corps, as a private. His taste led to artillery, however, and he shortly afterwards was transferred to the Quebec garrison artillery, also a volunteer corps. He joined this regiment in February, 1867, as a subaltern, and rose to be adjutant of it. In 1871 he assisted in raising "B" Battery, of the permanent force, under the late Gen. Strange, taking the rank of captain. In 1872 he was gazetted major, and in 1877 lieutenant-colonel, when he was placed in command of "B" Battery, and upon the retirement of Gen. Strange was given command of the artillery school in Kingston, in August, 1882.

In 1885 he served with the Canadian forces through the Northwest rebellion, having command of the artillery section, and so meritorious was his work that he was several times highly mentioned in despatches. In 1895 he was appointed assistant instructor of artillery, performing his duties to the satisfaction of the department he was serving under. In July, 1897, he succeeded Col. Cotton as D.O.C. of militia districts Nos. 3 and 4, in which office he has since continued, serving with honor to himself, distinction to the districts, and satisfaction to the department.

Col. Montizambert served in both Fenian Raids, in 1866 and 1870, for which he possesses a general service medal and two clasps. He also has the Northwest medal with clasp. He is well advanced in the seniority list, there being only five ahead of him on the list. He received coloneley in 1901 when the rank was given to a few Canadian officers whose length of service and meritorious conduct earned the distinction. No more will his kind, genial face be seen at the annual military camps, but he will not be forgotten; the good seed he so wisely scattered will continue to bear good fruit and "Tommy" will remember him for it.

Col. Montizambert has been granted three months leave of absence with full pay, though his tenure of command expires to-day. He will retire to private life in Kingston, being allowed a generous annuity by the Government. That his years may be long is the sincere wish of his host of friends in Kingston and abroad.

SHOULD STOP NET FISHING FOR AT LEAST 5 YEARS.

MR. S. T. BASTEDO, AN ONTARIO GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL, FOUND THAT TO BE THE UNIVERSAL OPINION IN THE PROVINCE.

Kingston Whig: S. T. Bastedo, head of the Fisheries Department of Ontario, has been devoting three days to a visit in this section. In the company of the local member for Kingston, he made the rounds. At Battersea they met Inspector Judd, of the Rideau system, and W. J. Shibley, and considered the policy to be pursued next year, in view of the decline of sport by rod fishing in a number of lakes. This year netting has been prohibited in Loughboro lake to restore some of the excellent fishing advantages lost through ruthless slaughter by netting. Some illicit fishing has, however, been going on. The once fine fishing of Dog lake is being lost through over-netting and disregard of regulations for protection of bass. The reports received from the Rideau system generally were more favorable. The catch by rod and line, near Jones' Falls especially, has been excellent and visitors are enthusiastic. The preventive work of the inspector and his assistants, with the patrol steamer Swan, has been effective.

A visit was paid to Amherst Island, where netting has also been excessive, putting almost an end to bass fishing or even taking of small fish at the Brother Islands, in Stella Bay, and other sporting spots, near the great shoals and spawning grounds. The professional fishers have left their old haunts because they are "played out," and are netting off the Ernesttown shore.

Mr. Bastedo's enquiries were many and general. The universal desire expressed was for restriction of netting, for at least five years. It came alike in city and country. The people's sport and enjoyment has been cut off, for the benefit of a few only who make it a partial occupation, who have had little scruple as to the catch, and have heedlessly destroyed their own business, while using up the general supply. This view has been so strongly pressed upon the Government that a special investigation was in order, and that it will bear good fruit on Ontario shores, and in the back lakes as well there is no doubt. Increase of number of netting licenses has been refused this summer in this section, but a wider protective policy will be pressed upon the Government next year. Many classes are deeply concerned in the restoration of good angling; it means attraction for summer visitors, support of hotels and growth of business generally, as well as enjoyment of hosts of home people in good sport.

Who are They After?

A deputy sheriff and a state attorney from Watertown, N.Y., are in the city on an important mission, so it is alleged, but the particulars of which they refuse to divulge, at least to newspaper men. It has, however, been learned that they are in search of a party who is wanted for a serious offence, and it is said that the accused was a former resident of this city.

MANY FALLING BY THE WAY BECAUSE OF THIN BLOOD AND WEAK HEART ACTION.

Scarcely a newspaper but contains the report of some sudden death resulting from heart trouble. With the blood in proper condition the heart repairs its own waste and throbs on day after day and year after year. By enriching and purifying the blood Dr. Chase's Nerve Food prevents and cures palpitation of the heart, irregular beating, weak heart action and all similar derangements. It ensures healthful and vigorous action of all the vital organs. Note your increase in weight while using it. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase are on every box. 11

The Market.

The market to-day was well attended by both sellers and buyers. Prices were good for all farm products offered for sale, being as follows: Butter 20c to 23c per pound, eggs 14c and 15c per dozen, chickens 20c to 75c per pair, ducks 80c to $1.00 per pair. A few turkeys sold at about 13c per pound. Potatoes, new, brought from 80c to $1.00 per bag.

PEN PICTURES OF PEOPLE YOU MEET

ON A BELLEVILLE STREET.

ALD. W. H. PANTER.

No one who has attended Council meetings in this city, we are sure, but has been impressed with the sturdy independence and evident sincerity of the gentleman whose name appears above. Since Ald. Panter entered the Council in 1896 his popularity has steadily risen, and his fellow-citizens have so far honored him as to name the West Belleville park "Panter's park." A great honor, truly, and a well-deserved one, for the worthy Alderman, as the representative of the West side of the river, is very jealous of its rights, and is ever ready to break a lance with anyone who begrudges West Belleville its just due. Naturally, in his seven years in the Council, Ald. Panter has had to speak and vote on many important questions. Everybody has not agreed with him in the views he took, but nobody has doubted his conscientious impulses. He is not an orator, at all events so far as grandiloquent language or verbosity is concerned, but makes his meaning plain in a straightforward, unvarnished way, and without showing a trace of that overbearing spirit which some people assume, and which sits ill on a man who would never be charged with having stripped the tree of knowledge. When the famous municipal upheaval took place a couple of years or so ago, Ald. Panter was one of the two Aldermen who, out of ten, were re-elected. Quiet in his tastes, the subject of our sketch can safely be called "a home body;" in fact, his only dissipation consists in attending Council meetings, and those who have been in the habit of bearding the municipal lions in their den will cheerfully testify that, as a form of hilarious amusement, the meetings of the Belleville City Council are not at any time to be compared to a circus. Ald. Panter was educated at the Public and High Schools. He never studied for a profession, and never even took a course in anatomy, though they say he can dissect a ham or side of bacon with anybody. A plain, unpretentious man of business, Ald. Panter can still bear himself with dignity, as anyone who saw him in silk hat and frock coat when Lord Minto was here, will testify. As Chairman of Public Works he has done fully as well as any of his predecessors in that position. That may not be very high praise, but we can't think of any higher just now. He is not a prominent politician, but, when wanted, is always to be found in the ranks of the good old Conservative party. In religion he is an adherent of the Reformed Episcopal Church. He was born in October, 1861, and is thus nearly 42 years old. The belief has somehow gained ground that Ald. Panter will be a candidate for the Mayorality next year. We are told that he has stated his intention of declining the honor should it be offered to him on a silver platter. Lack of time, he says, is the cause. Be that as it may, our citizens, in looking for their next Mayor, might go farther and fare a precious sight worse than by offering the gold chain to straightforward "Billy" Panter.

McINTOSH BROS.

DISCUSSING THE ESTIMATES.

Trade and Commerce and Railways and Canals in the House.

Canadian Mail Via. New York Several Times Greater Than That Via. Canada Ports—Tribute to the Work of Mr. J. S. Larke—Salary of Mr. Haycock, the Patron—A Threat From Nova Scotia and Its Result.

Ottawa, July 31—(Special.)—The estimates of the Department of Trade and Commerce were discussed by the House to-day. Before leaving the appropriations for the mail service between Great Britain and Canada, Mr. Blain asked what quantity of mail is sent from Canada to Great Britain via New York. Sir Richard Cartwright had not the figures, but he expressed the opinion that the Canadian mail forwarded via New York is several times as great as the mail sent direct from Canada.

The item of $7500 for a steam service between St. John and Glasgow was then taken up. Sir Richard explained that the trade between these ports was rapidly growing, and it was probable that the subsidy would be doubled in order to improve the service. The additional amount required will be provided for in the supplementary estimates.

Mr. Wade of Annapolis criticized the steamship service provided by the Furness, Withy Company between St. John and Halifax and London in summer and between St. John and London direct and Halifax and London direct in winter. This company is paid a subsidy of $40,000 a year. Mr. Wade declared that the people of the Annapolis Valley have suffered heavy losses thru the failure of the company to provide standard ships and thru damages for which the company declined to assume responsibility.

Sir Richard Cartwright promised to look into the question. Messrs. Blain, Gourley and others insisted that the Department of Trade and Commerce was negligent in not compelling the company to sail its steamers on the dates specified.

During the discussion of the vote for commercial agencies, Sir Richard, in describing the duties of the agents, paid a high tribute to the services of J. S. Larke, whose efforts had, he said, no doubt contributed to the increase in trade between Canada and Australia.

A long discussion ensued over the salary of the Inspector of Binder Twine. Mr. Taylor asserted that the position was created to give a job to Joseph Haycock to reward him for his services in the Liberal cause in 1896, when he stumped Ontario in the guise of a Patron of Industry. "You might as well have no Inspector of Binder Twine."

Mr. Blain moved to strike out the item of Mr. Haycock's salary, $2500.

Mr. Blain thought that a number of inspectors at small salaries would be preferable to one inspector at a large salary.

The motion was subsequently lost.

Mr. Fielding was inclined to think that a general officer, liable to drop in upon the manufacturers or dealers at any time, would be more effective.

Mr. Taylor said he had information that half of the binder twine imported into Canada was the product of Illwater Prison, and the importation of prison-made twine was contrary to law and should be stopped.

Mr. Heyd doubted this. He thought if it were so the Canadian manufacturers would get on to it and inform the government.

After some further discussion the item passed.

Franco-Canadian Treaty.

Before the trade and commerce estimates were finished up, Thomas Earle of Victoria drew attention to the fact that canned salmon from British Columbia was refused entry into France under the minimum tariff, while lobsters and other canned fish were given the benefit of the tariff. Mr. Earle asked what steps the Department of Trade and Commerce had taken to induce the French government to bring about a change in this respect in the interpretation of the Franco-Canadian treaty.

Railways and Canals.

The supplementary estimates of the past year for railways and canals were taken up, and Mr. Haggart obtained the admission from the Acting Minister, Mr. Fielding, that the mitre sill of lock No. 2 on the Welland Canal was one foot higher than the canal level.

Mr. Gourley was astonished at the large sums spent on canals for the benefit of Ontario, while Ontario members cavilled at trifling amounts spent on harbors in Nova Scotia. He thought the canal expenditure should be cut down.

Nova Scotia was tired of being the milch cow of Canada, and would insist on reducing the canal expenditure unless the rates on the Intercolonial Railway were reduced by 50 per cent., as the compensation for abolition on the canal tolls.

The Finance Minister's appeal to the hon. member's magnanimity induced his withdrawal of the motion to strike out the item, which was one for $20,000 for electrical appliances for the Lachine Canal.

The House rose at 11.35 p.m.

Categorically Condemn G.T.P.

Ottawa, July 31.—(Special.)—Senator Macdonald has given notice of a motion categorically condemning the Grand Trunk Pacific policy of the government and regretting that the practice was prevailing of bringing down important business in the last days of parliament, when there was not sufficient time to discuss them.

The motion also endorsed the action of Hon. A. G. Blair in resigning his portfolio rather than be party to a scheme of which he did not approve, and stated that the Premier's statements in introducing the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Bill were not worthy of much consideration.

Manitoba Schools Delegation.

Ottawa, July 31.—The Manitoba Separate School delegates, Messrs. F. W. Russel and T. D. Deegan, had an interview with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick, Minister of Justice, to-day. They were courteously received, and represented their views to the Minister, and it was arranged that they should have another interview on Tuesday, when a written memorial of the objects they desire will be presented.

Liberal Gets the Seat.

Winnipeg, Aug. 1.—The recount for Kildonan and St. Andrew's seat resulted in the judge declaring O'Donohue, Liberal, elected by five. The returning officer had given his casting vote in favor of Grain, Conservative. The final totals are: O'Donohue 918, Grain 913.

FAILED TO ELECT A POPE!

Remarkable Scene in the Square of St. Peter's in the Eternal City—All Classes and Conditions of People There—At 6.40 p.m. Sunday Smoke of Burning Ballots Told Outside World That Conclave Is Divided.

Rome, Aug. 3.—No successor to Leo XIII. has yet been chosen. The conclusion is drawn that the strength of the leading candidates remains unbroken, and that no compromise candidate has yet appeared. And there is no indication of how long this condition of affairs will continue.

The prolongation of the contest has aroused tremendous public interest. Every trace of that apathy which followed the death of the late Pope has vanished, and instead there now exists a burning interest in everything pertaining to the election of his successor. Last night this culminated in the appearance of a great crowd which packed the square of St. Peter's, and presented a spectacle seldom seen, even at the scene of so many historic ceremonies.

Princes, princesses, archbishops, bishops, monsignors, priests, in short people from every walk in life from that of nobleman to street beggar talk of nothing but las fumata (the smoke from the burning ballots.)

An Impressive Scene.

The scene at St. Peter's last night was by far the most impressive that has occurred in Rome since the late Pope became ill. After the fruitless morning ballot a belief spread that a new Pontiff would surely be elected last evening. Carriages and vehicles of every description rattled into the piazza of St. Peter's. The regular Sunday leisure was forgotten in the anxiety to see the new occupant of the Holy See. The streets converging into St. Peter's became black with the thousands who entered the square with the ceaseless regularity of an incoming tide. From the barracks came large reinforcements of troops, who marched across the piazza and lined up at the foot of the steps of the Basilica, leaving only small spaces between the companys in order to prevent a sudden rush to get inside St. Peter's to witness the new Pope give his blessing to the Catholic world. A strong force of cavalry was picketed in case if riot.

Guarded by Soldiers.

Two thousand soldiers were in the square. By 6 o'clock it was estimated that 50,000 people occupied the vast amphitheatre. Almost encircling this great audience rose the stately pillars of the colonnade, beneath which many rested and waited. Nearby hundreds of cabs were drawn up, their occupants eagerly scanning through glasses the little smokestack of the chapel. Stretching away for over a quarter of a mile, a distance from which it would have been absolutely impossible to see the smoke, were other thousands waiting to know the result. The rays of the setting sun glancing from the dome of St. Peter's lighted up the house tops at the opposite end of the square, and they also were crowded with anxious watchers. Among the vast throng in the square itself were many German students, whost scarlet cassocks formed vivid patches of color.

Watching For the Signal.

When the hour of 6 struck, a tremor of expectancy ran through the multitude, became, according to yesterday's program, the burning of the ballots, or the announcement of an election would come within a few minutes.

Hundreds gathered below the window from which the new Pontiff is to bestow his first blessing. Suddenly, exactly at 6.40 p.m., a sharp cry arose "Ecco Ecco." Instantly the cry was taken up by fifty thousand throats, and grew and grew until the immense piazza fairly roared with —Ecco! Ecco! las fumata." Then silence fell like a spell, while the thousands watched. From the smoke stack of the Sistine Chapel a tiny stream of light grey smoke curled lazily downward. With no wind to carry it away, the smoke hung heavily in the hot air and then gradually disappeared.

For a moment the crowd believed that the signal meant an election, for there is a tradition that the cardinals are allowed to send up a little smoke as a notification of an election, and much smoke in the case of a disagreement. Any such hopes, however, were almost immediately dissipated, for a cloud of very thick smoke emerged and continued for five minutes.

With many ejaculations of disappointment the populace watched the last trace of the ballots disappear, and then dispersed.

Quick Work.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 3.—Walter Nichols was arrested in this city at 4.30 o'clock Friday afternoon. He was wanted at Niagara Falls, Ont., on a charge of larceny. At 5 o'clock the same day he was turned over to the Canadian chief of police, and at 5.45 he had been sentenced by Magistrate Cruickshank to six months' imprisonment in the Central Prison at Toronto.

Girl Badly Burned.

Hamilton, Aug. 3.—Early Saturday evening Katie Dwyer, daughter of Frank Dwyer, was terribly burned about the back, arms and chest. Her apron caught fire while she was pouring water into the kettle and every stitch of her clothing was burned off. The doctors at the City Hospital said last night that they have hopes of her recovery.

Will Hold the 24th.

London, Aug. 3.—The British colony of Gambia has followed in Canada's footsteps and has declared that May 24 shall henceforth be celebrated as a holiday.

Third Trial Begins.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 3.—The third trial of former Secretary of State, Caleb Powers, as accessory before the fact to the murder of Gov. Goebel, will begin here to-day. Both sides claim to have much additional evidence. Powers has been convicted twice, and sentenced for life both times.

Guelph Woman Killed.

Guelph, Aug. 3.—Friday Mrs. Harris, widow of the late Mr. Harris of the Rockwood Woollen Mills, while driving to this place, through the axle of the buggy breaking, was thrown out on her head, rendering her unconscious. She was taken to the hospital and died without regaining consciousness.

B. C. Miners Deported.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—Eighteen British subjects, two Italians and one German were denied a landing by United States Immigrant Commissioner North on the ground that they had come to this country as contract laborers. They will be deported to British Columbia.

Lake Manitoba Floated.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—The Lake Manitoba of the C.P.R. steamship line, which ran into the mud the other day near Longueil, floated all right yesterday morning and returned to the city. It is understood that the ship has sustained no damage and will be reloaded at once.

THE ROYAL TOUR OF IRELAND

King Was Deeply Touched by Visit to the Emerald Isle.

Issues Address to "My Irish People" on Reaching Isle of Wight—At Cork His Majesty Was Wildly Cheered, the Streets of the City Being Brightly Decorated and Filled With Jubilant Sightseers.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 3.—The royal yacht Victoria and Albert reached here last evening, and King Edward immediately issued the following address:

"To my Irish People:

"I desire on leaving Ireland to express to my Irish people how deeply I have been touched by the kindness and good will they have shown to the Queen and myself. Our experience on previous visits had indeed prepared us for a traditional welcome of a warm-hearted race, but our expectations have been exceeded. Wherever we have gone, in town or country, tokens of loyalty and affection, proffered by every section of the community have made an enduring impression upon our hearts. For a country so attractive and a people so gifted, we cherish the warmest regard, and it is expected, therefore, with supreme satisfaction, that I have so often during our stay, heard the hope expressed that a brighter day is dawning upon Ireland. I shall eagerly await the fulfilment of this hope. Its realization will, under divine Providence, depend upon the steady development of self-reliance and co-operation upon better and more practical education, upon the growth of industrial and commercial enterprise and upon that increase of mutual respect which the responsibility my Irish people now enjoy in the public adminisitration of their local affairs, is well fitted to teach. It is my earnest prayer that those and other means of national well-being may multiply from year to year in Ireland, and that the blessings of peace, contentment and prosperity may be abundantly vouchsafed to her.

"August 1, 1903."

Copies of the address will be posted throughout Ireland to-day.

CORK CHEERED WILDLY.

Cork, Ireland, Aug. 3.—The firing of royal salutes and enthusiastic cheering welcomed King Edward, Queen Alexandra and the royal party on their arrival at Cork Saturday morning on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert from Berehaven. The port was bright with bunting, the town was well decorated and the streets were filled with jubilant sightseers.

The Lord Mayor and corporation of Cork welcomed the visitors when they landed. Their Majesties drove through the decorated streets, which were lined with troops and blue jackets, to the race course, where the King presented colors to two Irish regiments.

During the afternoon Their Majesties visited the exposition. Addresses were presented by several local bodies, to which the King jointly replied, expressing his great interest in the welfare of Ireland.

Their Majesties subsequently returned to Queenstown, where they received further addresses. The King in his farewell reply said that the people could rest assured that he had the interest of Ireland at heart.

When Their Majesties embarked on the royal yacht for Cowes the strains of "Come Back to Erin" mingled with the salute of guns.

The royal yacht Victoria and Albert, having on board King Edward and Queen Alexadnra, sailed for Cowes at 7.40 p.m.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

London, Aug. 3.—May Barker, about 18 years of age, daughter of William H. Barker, of 14 Bruce street, left her home and proceeded to the cove about two blocks dissant. Here she entered the water unobserved and was afterwards discovered close to the banks in an unconscious condition. She was found by her mother and sister, some time afterwards, on being missed from her home. Assistance was called, and after some time she was restored to consciousness by Dr. Hunt and removed to her home. It is thought to be a deliberate attempt at suicide, as the girl had expressed the desire to take her life earlier in the evening, and would have succeeded but was found just in time.

Three Straights For Thorella.

Montreal, Que., Aug. 3.—For the tenth time in succession Canada has again proved its title to the possession of the Seawanhanka Cup for small boats, the Royal St. Lawrence Club's boat Thorella winning three straight races from the American challenger, Kolutoo, owned by the Manchester, Mass., Yacht Club. The final race of the series was sailed Saturday afternoon on Lake St. Louis and resulted in an easy victory for the Canadian boat, which finished with a lead of nearly two miles.

Killed at Thetford Mines.

Quebec, Aug. 3—George Turner, a well-known resident of Quebec, was instantly killed by a dynamite explosion at the asbestos mines at Thetford Mines on Thursday last. Deceased was a brother to Hon. Richard Turner.

Religious Corps in Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—Ottawa is in the hands to-day of the French-Canadian religio-military regiments of Quebec City, Hull and the Capital. In all about 300 uniformed men are mobilized at Lansdowne Park.

BEATEN WITH BAMBOO RODS.

Pekin, Aug. 3.—A journalist of this city named Shen Chien, was executed here Saturday. According to the official report of the execution, Chien was beheaded, but it has become known that this report is false and that the condemned man was beaten to death in accordance with special instructions issued by the Dowager Empress.

The incident is declared to be the most horrible that has occurred in China since the massacre of 1900. The killing occurred in the court yard of the Yamen of the Board of Punishment. The victim was beaten with bamboo rods for two hours in the afternoon, the flesh on his back, arms and legs being torn to ribbons. After life had apparently become extinct the executioners, fearing that Chien had merely fainted and might revive, twisted a rope tightly around his neck and left the body in this condition until yesterday morning.

Despite the precautions taken by the officials, the prisoner smuggled from his cell a farewell message in the form of a poem, in which he glorified reform and exhorted his colleagues to continue the work.

Getting 23,000 Rifles.

Pekin, Aug. 3.—Yuan Shai Kai, the viceroy of Chi Li Province, is said to be placing large orders for arms in anticipation of the prohibition of their importation into China, which occurs this month. He has ordered from Japan 23,000 rifles and 48 field pieces and from Germany a number of machine guns.

Two thousand soldiers from Moscow have arrived at Port Arthur and 11,000 more are reported to be en route.

EXPLOSION AT THE FALLS.

Dynamite Cartridge Causes Serious Injury to Five Workmen.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 3.—A bad explosion occurred in the Dawson and Riley wheel pit of the Canadian Niagara Power Company about 6 o'clock Saturday evening, knocking five men unconscious for some time, cutting their heads and bruising and breaking their limbs. It seems that the man known as the "monkey driver" while loading a drilled hole in the pump hole section, by accident knocked the cap of one of the dynamite cartridges against a rock, prematurely exploding it.

The explosion felled the men around the hole to the ground unconscious. One of their number, named Lundy, received a five-inch scalp wound, while another, named Willick, got his ankle broken. Both men named, with the "monkey driver," were badly injured. The latter had his face badly lacerated. The other two men escaped with a bad shaking up and bruises. None of their injuries will prove fatal.

SWIMMING TEACHER DROWNED.

Tried to Save a Bather and Both Went Down at Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—Prof. Lessard, a famous swimming teacher, was drowned late Saturday afternoon while attempting to save Armand Duflesis, who had been bathing at St. Helen's Island. Seeing Dufiesis about to sink Lessard swam to his assistance. The drowning man clutched his would-be rescuer and both sank.

30 PEOPLE HURT.

Unfortunate Accident Mars Old Country Cricket Match.

London, Aug. 2.—As a result of the collapse of a grand stand at Perth, Scotland, during a cricket match Saturday, 30 people were more or less injured, but there were no fatalities. The match between the Perthshire and Forfarshire teams was immediately called off.

Woman Hangs Herself.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—Another suicide occurred yesterday morning, Mrs. Mary McBride having hanged herself in the woodshed at her residence, 318 Wellesley street. The lifeless body was found by her 9-year-old daugter shortly after 9 o'clock. Deceased leaves a husband and three daughters. It is thought that melancholia, resulting from the death of her only son a short time ago, caused her to take her life. Coroner Greig decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The Boy Escaped.

St. Thomas, Aug. 3.—John Johnston, a 14-year-old lad of Springfield, was on Saturday committed for trial on charges of housebreaking and theft and was brought to the county jail here by County Constable Clunas. Governor Moore, however, refused to take the lad on the ground that he being under 14 years of age could not be received into the jail. The boy was taken to a hotel, but escaped.

FIGHT WITH THE CONVICTS

Three Officers Killed and Ex-Prisoners Still at Large.

The Convicts Took Refuge in the Grand Victory Mine—Shots Were Exchanged Between Them and the Sheriff's Posse and Placerville Militia With Disastrous Results to the Attackers—Deaf Mute Victim of a Mistake.

Placerville, Calif., Aug. 3. — Reports of an encounter between the law officers and the thirteen convicts who escaped from Folsom prison were received Saturday night. The sheriff's posse, assisted by a force of the Placerville militia, came upon some of the fugitives near the Grand Victory mine about dusk and shots were exchanged.

Dallas Bosquit, the son of Sheriff Bosquit, is said to be among the slain. Militiaman Dill was shot through the body, and is not expected to recover. The greatest anxiety prevails here concerning the safety of the soldiers. It is known that six of them went into the brush after the convicts, and the only trace of them was the wounded man Dill, who was unable to give any clue concerning his companions. The convicts are believed to have taken refuge in the Grand Victory mine, and there is talk of setting fire to it and driving out the criminals. Additional forces are being hurried to the mine.

The convicts are still at large. The five who engaged in a fatal fight with the pursuers at the Grand Victory mines Saturday night were not seen yesterday, and apparently have made a successful retreat. The dead bodies of Festus Rutherford and W. C. Jones, the two militiamen who were shot by the outlaws, were found yesterday morning where they had fallen. Gill, the National guardsman, who was shot through one lung, is now expected to recover.

Another victim of the convict chase was Philip Spinger, a resident of this district. He is deaf and failing to respond to an order to halt, was fatally shot by a picket early yesterday morning.

In the 43rd, D.C.O.R., one qualified in the first class special, eight in the first class and eight in the second class, making a total of 17.

CONFLICTS IN MACEDONIA.

Turkish Patrol Fell Into Ambush Laid by Bulgarians.

Constantinople, Aug. 3.—Isolated conflicts continue to occur in Macedonia. Last Friday a Turkish patrol which was pursuing the authors of a dynamite outrage, fell into an ambush laid by the Bulgarians near Drama, which is close to the famous plain of Philippi, where Brutus and Cassius were defeated, and seven Turks and three Bulgarians were killed. The Porte, however, announces that before long the forty thousand troops now in Macedonia will be disbanded.

It is stated that as a result of enquiry by Austrian and Russian consuls into the recent events at Salonica, Austria and Russia will demand the dismissal of the chief of police of Salonica. Reports from Armenia tell of rather serious disturbances, similar to those which preceded the trouble of 1891. Several conflicts have occurred between Turks and armed Kurds on one side and Armenians on the other, resulting in losses on both sides.

FELL HEAD FIRST INTO CAN.

Dennis Keegan's Peculiar Death at Silverthorn Farm, Toronto Junction.

Toronto Junction, Aug. 3.—Dennis Keegan died Saturday evening under very peculiar circumstances. He was employed by Mr. Adams, the tenant of the Silverthorn farm, at the north end of the Junction, and when last seen alive was about to empty a pail of milk into a can which was standing in a vat of ice water used for chilling the milk. Shortly afterwards he was found dead, with his head and shoulders submerged in the water and the lower part of his body quite dry outside of the vat.

MR. BLAKE'S ILLNESS.

He Cannot Act in the Alaska Boundary Case.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The Government learns by cablegram from London that Hon. Edward Blake has been ordered by his physician to take a complete rest for six months. Under the circumstances he will be obliged to resign his position as senior counsel in connection with the Alaska boundary matter. It has not been settled who will succeed him.

Load Passed Over Him.

New Glasgow, N.S., Aug. 3.—Calder Fraser, a young business man of Stellarton, was killed four miles from his home on Saturday. He was removing a load of hay to his barn, when his horse became unmanageable. He had the animal by the bridle, and was trying to check it when the horse bolted and threw him down, the heavy load passing over his body, causing almost instant death.

Mother and Daughter Killed.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Mrs. Henry McDermott and her daughter Nellie were run down by an R. W. & O. passenger train a mile from this city Saturday afternoon, and both were instantly killed. They were walking on the track.

"Calamity Jane" Dead.

Deadwood, S. D., Aug. 3.—A noted female character, "Calamity Jane," who has been known on the western frontier since 1870, died yesterday afternoon at Terry, eight miles from Deadwood. Her name was Jane Burk.

UNFAIR TREATMENT FOR MR. BORDEN.

Probably no leader of a Canadian Opposition has ever been treated as unfairly as Mr. R. L. Borden was, in the matter of the Government's announcement of the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme. Sir Wilfrid Laurier attempted to get his scheme before the country without comment, and to do this he denied Mr. Borden the ordinary courtesy of a copy of the bill and contract before the conclusion of his speech. The Leader of the Opposition, however, was equal to the occasion, and in a speech lasting over an hour he drove a coach and four through the arguments of Sir Wilfrid. That was an easy matter, considering that the oration had been written by Edward Farrer and E. W. Thompson, the former furnishing the political matter and the latter the fireworks. Sir Wilfrid played the part of the parrot and recited his little piece about a subject he knew nothing about. But this is apart from the exhibition of cowardice and discourtesy given by the Prime Minister. If the scheme is a proper one, why fear criticism? The country will not fall in love with this line of statesmanship. It is little, and it cannot but lower Sir Wilfrid in the opinion of those who admire manliness and fair play.

NET FISHING IN THE BAY.

Picton Gazette.

Petitions are now in course of signiture to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Ottawa, to prohibit net fishing in the Bay of Quinte, so as to preserve these waters for the use of anglers. The people generally about the Bay, recognize that if the use of nets are prohibited, it will provide better fishing, and therefore attract summer tourists who desire to indulge in this sport, and be a source of advantage to the community.

• • •

Another Daniel! As an authority on bad habits our two by four contemporary is in a class by itself.

• • •

But which particularly bad habit does our yellow contemporary find hard to break off? Is it the bad habit of securing licenses for saloons which have not proper accommodations, while well-appointed hotels are cut off? Or is it the habit of blackguarding people who refuse to advertise in a sheet of small circulation and scant respectability, and thus secure the enmity of the boss? Or is it the habits of telling falsehoods about charitable and self-denying ladies, whose good deeds are legion, and who deserve, and receive, the gratitude of all honorable men? Or is it the habit of breaking that particular commandment which says "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor?" Many of our religious friends will we are sure, rejoice to hear that the yellow chap is trying to turn over a new leaf, and will, when offering up supplication for the heathen, remember him in their prayers. But he should tell us which particular bad habit he finds it hard to sidestep.

• • •

It would be hard to find a nicer summer resort than Belleville, this kind of weather. If we only had better fishing in the bay, now—

• • •

Said a gentleman on the street: I don't who Mr. Dooley is, but his remarks on industries in Saturday's paper contained a good deal of common sense put in a rough and ready way. If the people of Belleville would remember that the Almighty helps those who help themselves it would be a good thing."

• • •

If the members of the Public Works Committee would take a walk in some of the back streets, they would, by the time they had taken a few falls on the crazy old sidewalks, see the necessity of putting down some of those promised gravelithic walks without delay. The Council could not afford a public bath because the sidewalks needed repairing, yet the walks in question are not being looked after with any unseemly haste. The worst critics of our City Fathers must admit that they do not rush into such matters without due deliberation.

CHAFF OF THE UNGODLY.

Buffalo Commercial.

Of course there are the usual jokes and sneers in some of the papers because the ministers are taking their annual vacation. As a rule these witticisms are popular among those who have hardly been to church since they were baptized and are not likely to enter one again unless kind friends deem it prudent to give them a good church funeral as a send-off.

THE SHAMROCK'S CHANCES.

Cleveland Plain Dealer.

There appear to be certain conditions that govern the chances of the Shamrock winning the cup. They are:

She may win in a light breeze.
Or in a gale.
Or in a choppy sea.
Or in a heavy sea.
Or with the wind astern.
Or with the wind ahead.
But she cannot win in a dead calm.

The Belleville Public Library seems to be a very popular institution, and no mistake. Mr. Alex. Walker, the urbane librarian, informs us that the library now has a membership of 1140, and the average output of books is 600 per week. The new catalogues, by the way, fill a long-felt want.

Sir Thomas Lipton visited the falls of Niagara, and, if his new cup challenger is beaten, he may go over them in a barrel.

Rev. Mr. Silcox, of Winnipeg, says he cannot preach a sermon in twenty minutes, and does not intend to try. The Rev. gentleman's flock should see about getting electric fans in their church at once.

The occupation of a journalist in China must have its drawbacks. One of them has just been beaten to death with bamboo rods because he advocated certain reforms. Some Reformers in this county deserve a rod, but hardly so strenuously as they lay 'em on in China.

COL. COTTON AS D. O. C.

LIKELY TO SUCCEED COL. MONTIZAMBERT IN THIRD DISTRICT.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—The report is current in official circles that Col. Cotton, Quartermaster-General, will succeed Col. Chas. E. Montizambert as D.O.C. of Military District No. 3, with headquarters at Kingston. Col. Montizambert will shortly retire on account of the age limit.

Col. W. H. Cotton, who is mentioned as his successor, was for some years at Kingston, in command of the artillery. Lieut.-Col. Biggar, who is now assistant quartermaster-general, and in command of the Army Service Corps of Canada, will likely succeed Col. Cotton as quartermaster-general.

ACUTE AND CHRONIC RHEUMATISM

are equally influenced by the almost magical pain-subduing power of Polson's Nerviline, equal in medicinal value to five times the quantity of any other rheumatic remedy. Nerviline cures because it reaches the source of the disease and drives it out of the system. Nerviline is an unusually good rheumatic cure, and makes many unusual cures. Just rub it in the next time you have an attack. The immediate result will surprise you. 25 cents.

Decoration Day at Picton.

The beautiful ceremony of decorating the graves of deceased members was performed yesterday at Picton by the members of Bay of Quinte Lodge, I.O.O.F., assisted by members from Napanee, Deseronto, and this city. The members met at the lodge room, and each were supplied with two bouquets. A procession was formed, numbering a couple of hundred and, headed by the Citizens' Band, marched to Greenwood cemetery. Here each squad marched to the grave to be decorated, designated by a number and a flag, and literally covered the grave with flowers. Returning to a selected spot, Bro. A. H. Blackeby, P.G.R., of Kingston, delivered the oration, which for composition and delivery, was grand and fitting to the occasion. Everything was done quietly and with decorum, as becomes the traditions of the Sabbath day.

VALUABLE TIME SAVED.

Slight injuries often disable a man and cause several days' loss of time and, when blood poison develops, sometimes result in the loss of a hand or limb. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment. When applied to cuts, bruises and burns it causes them to heal quickly and without maturation, and prevents any danger of blood poison. For sale by all druggists.

A GREAT SHOW OF DOGS.

When we say that Mr. Walter S. Glynn, of London, England, one of the most prominent cynologists of the old land, is going to be in Toronto especially to judge various breeds of dogs, we get some idea of the importance attached to this branch of the Dominion Exhibition by the directors and management. America has been scoured to secure the services of the best men on this side to complete the list of judges. It is expected that the number of entries will exceed a thousand, as all the prominent kennels in the United States and Canada have promised to place their most valuable specimens in competition and on view. All branches will be fully represented, the lordly life saving St. Bernard, the intelligent, keen scented blood hound, the sturdy old British mastiff and the typical bull dog. Terriers of all kinds will be a feature, as will the useful collie or sheep dog, and the handsome and intelligent cocker spaniel. The ladies' pets will not be overlooked, as several exhibits of the silky haired Yorkshire terrier, the short-nosed Japanese spaniel, the long-coated Pomeranian, now most fashionable in select circles, and a host of other "toy" dogs have been promised. No one should miss seeing the Dog Show. Entries close with A. W. Bell, 70 King St., East, Toronto, August 17th.

Were Welcomed.

Messrs. Ambrose Kent and J. Pemberton Page, of Toronto, who are in the city to attend the meeting of the Sun & Hastings Loan and Investment Co., arrived in the city on Saturday evening so as to spend Sunday here. Both of these gentlemen are members of Trinity Methodist Church; Mr. Kent has been for fourteen years the superintendent of its Sunday School and Mr. Page a teacher in it. They both met with a cordial reception at Bridge Street Sunday School in the afternoon, and expressed themselves as very much pleased with their visit to Belleville.

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by all druggists.

AN UNDOUBTED CURE FOR CANCER.

A New, Painless Method of Treatment That Completely Cures The Disease.

The swift march of medical science has at last overtaken cancer and placed it on the list of curable diseases.

The old painful methods of treatment by the knife or plaster and which were almost sure to result in failure, have been superseded by our Constitutional Treatment, which completely roots out the disease from the system and leaves not a vestige or trace behind to again cause trouble. Full particulars of this pleasant home treatment sent to anyone on receipt of two stamps. B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

WATERS'

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

That girl's obstinacy annoys me exceedingly. Everything is straight now if it wasn't for her infatuation for that young fool of a Rolff. I have the old man completely in my power, I think, and I believe I could speedily bring him to exert his authority. But you have been so opposed to it, I have hesitated."

"Well," interposed Ralph, "I don't know but that I am getting a little tired of the way matters are going myself. I don't like to own up beat in such a contest—in fact, I don't; but if time is a question of moment, I don't know that I should object to a little pressure being used."

"Well," responded the elder, "I have a plan in my mind to stir up the old gentleman that I think will work satisfactorily, and I must put it in operation."

"What is it?" asked Ralph.

"Well, never mind at present," replied his father. "All you need concern yourself about is to note the result. Old Bruyn will doubtless be in this evening, and I shall see what I can do with him. My idea is, that if we can only induce him to bring a moderate amount of pressure to bear on Rosa she will speedily yield. This is the sentimental period of her existence, and young Rolff having secured the first place in her affections, she naturally clings to him. It is very natural, and, in fact, she is to be commended for it; only it is cursed inconvenient for us. But she will not be a whit less devoted to you, my boy, after she once makes up her mind to accept you as her lover. She is rather more constant than her sex generally, and I like her the better for it."

"She's a tip-top girl," replied Ralph, "and I'm hanged if I don't grow to like her better every time I see her. She's the soul of sweetness and sincerity, and I'm almost sorry for her, she grieves so over that fellow Claude. But of course I'll make her a better husband, and I fancy I'll cure her yet of admiration for anybody beside myself."

"Well, Ralph, we'll hope for the best, and work for it as well. And now just look over these papers in Saybrook vs. Miner, and see if they are all right."

Evening came, and shortly after supper hour was over, Farmer Bruyn dropped into the office of the lawyer. Anthony Saybrook received him with especial warmth, and speedily ordered in glasses and bottles, and pressed his hospitality on the free hearted old fellow with all his arts of persuasion.

After they had both tossed off a couple of glasses of wine, and exhausted the ordinary topics of interest, the lawyer thought it time to introduce the subject of his plan to influence the old gentleman to so exercise his parental authority over his daughter as to induce her to look more favorably on Ralph's suit.

"By the way, Mr. Bruyn—but, come, let me fill your glass up again. There, there—don't say no; it is a very light wine, and wouldn't hurt you if you drank a gallon of it. What was I going to say? Ah, I recollect—I have a bit of news that may interest you. I have an offer to sell the Rolff property."

"Who to?" he asked.

"Well, I am not at liberty to state yet. He is a very wealthy city merchant, who wishes to retire, and seek a healthy and quiet locality to spend the remainder of his days. The offer came to me through a legal friend of mine, and is really a very good one, as the old gentleman is willing to pay liberally."

"If you are going to sell," interposed Farmer Bruyn, "first sell me the wood lot, and the meadows next to the road. I'll pay more than he will."

"Ah, but, my dear sir, that would cripple the balance of the estate, and spoil my bargain."

"But you promised me," said the farmer doggedly, flushing up in a way that showed how deeply he was interested.

"I said I would consider your claims; but the fact is, my dear Mr. Bruyn, I do not wish to sell the place at all. My ambition has been to put it in repair, and deed the place to Ralph as a wedding present, of course calculating also to make it my own home for the balance of my days. If there were any immediate prospect of Ralph getting married, I might still adhere to my plans—in fact, I undoubtedly would; but it is an expensive project, and one I would not care to undertake without the boy was to make a good match with a young lady who would have something to add to his own fortune and enable them to support the place in the style it would require. As matters are, however, there seems no immediate prospect of Ralph succeeding with the only matrimonial suit he has yet undertaken—of course, my dear sir, you know to what I refer—and the old place is rather a weight on my hands; and I don't know as I am justified in refusing such an excellent offer. Of course, my dear Mr. Bruyn, I would like to oblige you, if my interests rendered it in any way admissable. The truth is, I have indulged the fond hope that Ralph would succeed in his suit with your daughter and that thus our two properties, which seem destined naturally to be united, would come together as the joint property of our children. But, of course, you know, Mr. Bruyn—"

"No, I don't know," interrupted the old man. "I thought we understood each other pretty well on that subject, and as far as I'm concerned, I don't see why there is any trouble about it."

"Ah, but Ralph informs me that your daughter positively refuses to give up her belief in the good faith of her former lover, Claude Rolff, and makes every prospect of his winning her hand dependent upon her being first fully assured that young Rolff will not return to fulfill his pledges. Of course, that creates an obstacle whose removal is so uncertain and indefinite that it seems absolutely foolish, from a business point of view, to refuse a good offer to sell in order to take such improbable chances."

Farmer Bruyn sat down the glass he had been holding in his hand, and leaned forward in his chair.

"And so Rosa tells Ralph she intends to marry Claude Rolff yet?" he asked.

"That's about it," replied the lawyer. "She seems to have full faith that he will come back, and is resolved at least to wait and give him the chance to claim her."

The farmer leaned back in his chair, and laughed heartily.

"Ah, sir, she's a rare girl, and, by my dunder, I believe she's got some of my own grit in her. But don't you fear sir; she'll never throw herself away on that young scamp. I'll take care of that. She's always been a good girl, and she'll do as I say, I'll warrant. I've taken a liking to Ralph myself, and Rosa will like him too, yet. But he's a dunder head. Why don't he spark her so as to cut out that young scamp? Ain't got the courage of a mouse, eh, sir—ha, ha, ha! 'Twasn't so when I was a young man. I never gave my wife any peace till she said she'd have me. She was bound she wouldn't marry me, but I was bound to have her, and I got her. No, no; Rosa's all right. It's Ralph that don't know how to manage. Well, I must see to it—I must see to it. It won't do to have our plans broken up.'

"It would grieve me exceedingly," replied the lawyer. "I had already begun to make my estimates for having the old house repaired and fixed over, when this offer came, and, together with Ralph's despondent report, set me to thinking seriously. But, of course, my dear Mr. Bruyn, as you say, we must not allow our plans to fall through so easily. I am disposed now to agree with you that the fault is partly Ralph's. I must talk to him, and give him some advice. These young people need the supervision and advice of their parents, Mr. Bruyn."

"Aye, that they do; and I mean my daughter shall have it."

Thus under the influence of wine and the blandishments of the lawyer, the old farmer was fully caught in the trap that had been laid for him; and, after some further talk, he started for home, full of thoughts and plans that boded no happiness to Rosa.

CHAPTER XXII.

Some days passed by, and the toils about poor Rosa Bruyn grew more distressing and hard to bear. She could see that her father had fully set his mind on her marrying Ralph Saybrook. She was aware that he was a man who, with all his kindness of heart, never could brook being thwarted in any way, and was altogether too practical and coarse in his nature to appreciate her sentimental objections to the proposed matrimonial agreement. He apparently did not consider that her objections could be anything more than temporary, or that sooner or later she would not forget Claude Rolff and be ready to accept Ralph in his place with all her accustomed cheerfulness and obedience.

At the same time, a change was going on in the nature of the old farmer. He had for two or three years retired from the more active labor in managing his farm, and now found time every day to spend a few hours in the village, and was certain to make thither a regular evening trip. This spare time was mostly spent either in the tavern or in the company of lawyer Saybrook. The lawyer not only liked a social glass himself, but was well aware of the effect of good spirits in promoting a friendly and complying disposition in those he wished to influence, and, interested as he was in securing the welfare of Ralph with the old farmer, he did not fail to ply him with his best liquors as often as he called. Moreover, the old man took pride in supporting the character of a free-hearted burgher, and did not escape from Ronk's tavern of an evening without having indulged in more strong spirits than was good for him.

Mrs. Bruyn and Rosa could both notice that the effect of these potations was to increase the irascibility and obstinacy of the head of the household when he was crossed, while the constant brooding to become the possessor of more lands, and particularly of the rich fields and heavy woods adjoining on the side of the Rolff estate, became more and more a monomania with him.

The means the old farmer took to influence his daughter—or, rather, the attitude and disposition toward her which were a natural result of his feelings and wishes—were such as to greatly increase her distress and weaken her resolution.

He used no harshness toward her. His irritability showed itself rather in a quarrelsome and dictatorial disposition toward his farm laborers, and a faultfinding habit about the house which was a source of great anxiety to Mrs. Bruyn.

The generous-hearted girl was deeply grieved thus to see herself the innocent cause of trouble to others.

Toward herself, however, her father was more than usually kind. He treated her obstinacy in clinging to her faith in Claude with a bluff and hearty ridicule, but under it his love for her shone out in a certain tenderness of look and tone that belied his curt words.

Rosa recognized this, and it added to the difficulty of her position. Her nature was naturally a self-sacrificing one. Were her own happiness alone involved, she felt that she could yield without a murmur to anything that her father wished. But her word was plighted; deep in her heart she felt convinced of Claude's constancy and faith; she could not face the reflection of his returning one day to find that she had been weak and false.

Thus, all the efforts of her father to convince her of Claude's unworthiness only resulted in her clinging more firmly to her faith in him.

The old farmer was withal amused with her display of firmness, and rather admired her spirit. Had it not been for his frequent visits to lawyer Saybrook's office and the skill with which that accomplished schemer played on his ambition and avarice, he probably would have left Ralph to his own fate. But the fear of seeing Rolff House go into the hands of a stranger, and of entirely losing the lands he had coveted for so many years, spurred him on.

He sat on the front stoop one day, in his accustomed chair, smoking his pipe. It was early autumn, and his eyes could wander over a portion of his own land, and down to where the woods and meadows of the Rolff place joined his own line. Over the crest of the intervening hill, the gables and chimneys of Rolff House rose clear against the sky.

It was a beautiful view, and Rosa, who had appeared at the hall door stood awhile passively admiring it, indulging, no doubt, sad reflections as to the future.

"Come here, Rosa," said the farmer. She stepped quietly to his side.

"See there," he said taking his pipe from his mouth with one hand, while with the other he pointed toward Rolff House, "there lies the best bit of land in the whole country. The old house there, in my day, was a grand place, and everybody thought it a palace. It's in bad shape now—'twasn't in the Rolff blood to keep it up. Ah, it's bad blood, girl, it never could keep what it didn't gain honestly. That place now is Anthony Saybrook's and he tells me he is going to sell it if Ralph don't get married, but if he does he will give it to him. A grand place it would be if it was fixed up and the spooks driven out. It can be yours and Ralph's, and with it enough money to make it as grand as it ever was. Now, I am going over to Mr. Saybrook's to-night, and if I tell him you are willing to marry Ralph, he'll draw up a deed giving the whole property to you two, and of course what I've got will be yours, and in my old age I'd be happy to see my little girl the lady of the country."

Rosa grew pale, and was silent a moment.

"The place is Claude's, father," she said finally; "it was left to him; it ought to be his."

"Tut, tut, girl; he gave it away for the money to waste and riot in a foreign land. It's his no longer. I knew he would never keep it; but I never thought he'd be such a dunderhead as he was about it."

"He was cheated; there is fraud somewhere; Claude would never have given up Rolff House," replied Rosa, speaking low but with painful intensity.

"What's done is done, girl," said the old man, resuming his pipe. "I saw the paper deeding the old place away, and it had Claude's name to it. I know his writing well enough. He's lost it, and lost it for good, and there isn't much chance that he'll ever come back here. Come, Rosa, give up your foolishness about Claude, and take a man that's got brains, and knows how to make money and keep it, too. You'll never get a better chance."

"Oh, father, you do not know what you ask me," replied the poor girl, breaking into tears.

"Yes, I do; I ask you to give up a vagabond and scamp for a steady, honest young fellow, who's got everything I want the man that marries you to have. Don't be foolish, girl. It's too good a chance to throw away. I don't want to see anybody else have that property. I've always wanted to buy it, to settle on you when you marry; but now it can be yours with just a word. When Ralph speaks to you next time, Rosa, take an old man's advice, and don't put him off for a poor coof who never meant to marry you."

Poor Rosa could not reply. She attempted to speak, but her tongue refused to perform its office. Finally overcome by her feelings, she turned and walked slowly away and entered the house, her manner showing only too plainly her deep agitation.

"Ah, poor girl," he muttered. "She's sore hurt by that young scamp, and I was fool enough to let it all happen when I might have nipped it in the bud. But it's better she should suffer now for a little while than all her life. She'll come around. I can trust her; she's got rare good sense; and as soon as her eyes are opened, she'll think more of Ralph than she ever did of that vagabond."

And with this comforting reflection, the old farmer puffed anew on his pipe, and turned his thoughts to the bargains he could drive with the shrewd lawyer when it came to arranging the terms of the marriage settlement.

CHAPTER XXIII.

It was not usual, in the early part of the present century, for wives to oppose their wishes to those of their husbands, especially when they were men of property and character in the community; still less was it permissible for a daughter to question the authority of her father. But Love has been a rebel in all ages. The conventions of society have never been able to bind the limbs of the sly and sturdy rogue.

Rosa Bruyn was by nature the very pattern of a dutiful daughter. She shrank with a reluctance amounting to anguish from the thought of placing herself in open rebellion to her father's wishes; but there appeared no other alternative save to surrender herself an unwilling victim to a hateful marriage.

Her anguish and conflict of mind caused her to grow paler and sadder of demeanor, but her strong physical nature was not of a kind to bend speedily to trouble, however overwhelming it might be. The anxiety of her mother for her was much increased. The tender-hearted matron at last began to read the secret of her daughter's absorbing love for the errant heir of Rolff House. She was drawn into deeper sympathy with her feelings; and the anguish and suffering on one side and the tender condolence on the other at last broke down the vestige of a barrier to perfect confidence that had existed between them. Rosa confessed to her mother all her hopes and doubts and sorrows, and earnestly sought her advice as to the course she should pursue. It was but meagre comfort the good matron could give.

"It is a decision, my dear child," she said, "that must rest with your own heart. [illegible] from [illegible] you, for your happiness is so dear to me that should I unhappily direct you wrongly

The Flagging Energies Revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These comes from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare powder, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression, and reviving the flagging energies.

Sleeplessness.—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body given up to wretchedness, when the mind is filled with gloom and dismal forebodings, the result of derangement of the digestive organs, sleeplessness comes to add to the distress. If only the subject could sleep, there would be the oblivion for a while and temporary relief. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will not only induce sleep, but will act so beneficially that the subject will wake refreshed and restored to happiness.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes; "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one-half, the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done, it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using 3 bottles of the Vegetable Discovery, the billiousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 68 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

THE PUBLIC should bear in mind that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has nothing in common with the impure, deteriorating class of so-called medicinal oils. It is eminently pure and really efficacious—relieving pain and lameness, stiffness of the joints and muscles, and sores or hurts, besides being an excellent specific for rheumatism, coughs and bronchial complaints.

People whose money goes in a slump of the stock market, are, as a rule, blamed more than they are pitied. Sympathy for them there is, but it is of the mixed kind to which the great heart of the public is moved by the case of the culprit caught and brought to punishment. Mercy tempered with justice, rather than justice tempered with mercy, is the portion of the unsuccessful stock dealer. When Job's sores were in the rawest state his friends gathered about him to comfort him with words of sharp reproof for his former naughtiness. So when the unfortunate victim of a stock market reaction is trying to staunch the fresh financial gashes that are fast bleeding him white, he is forced to listen to the lectures and the censures of the innocents who never speculate. This salting of his wounds may be a moral duty and a public service. It makes the wretch writhe when he might be taking a little ease between spasms; and thus helps to keep him in a state of suffering which should be to all beholders a warning against the temptations of the stock market.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Our Chinese Placer Miners.

A place where the Chinese have assumed control of a British Columbia industry is on Wild Horse Creek, in East Kootenay. This is one of the most famous historical placer mining camps, and from it fully $15,000,000 were taken in the early days. The Celestials work the "side-hill ground" with modern hydraulic appliances and no little success. The gold they obtain is worth $18.25 an ounce, and the exact amount they win is never told, though it is expected to reach $50,000 for the current year. That it is considerable is shown by their staying by the creek. The Bun Quon company has two six-inch "giants" in operation on the lower part of the Invicta ground. The Nip and Tuck ground has been leased by Celestials, and several other Chinese outfits are working along the bed of the creek, taking out on an average from three to five dollars a day per man.

To Encourage Latin.

An interim schedule of regulations for high school examinations has been published. One change is to give encouragement to pupils to take the Latin option in languages by allowing all marks over 50 per cent. in Latin to count as a bonus on the other subjects. The examinations for the commercial course diploma are abolished, and hereafter each school board will lay out its own commercial course, and grant its own diplomas, the object of the change being to provide greater elasticity. Each district may now teach the commercial subjects best suited to its individual requirements. For instance, cities may place emphasis on stenography, and in towns the greater stress may be put on simpler forms of bookkeeping.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Certain loyal societies of Toronto are protesting against the proposition to erect a statue to George Washington in St. Paul's cathedral, London. The point in well taken. The project might well be delayed till the U.S. authorities cut out of their school books all untruthful and insulting references to the British men who took part in the Revolutionary war. The only monuments erected by the Yankees to our forefathers, so far, are monumental lies.

The Brockville Times mistakenly credits the following extract to this great family journal. The article did not appear in these columns, but it nevertheless expresses our sentiments to a T. Here it is:

"Mr. Robinette, K.C., comes to the support of the Commissioners' report on the Gamey charges. A thieves lawyer may be a very necessary and even reputable adjunct of civilization, but he naturally has his peculiar manner of looking at things. For him it is all right if his client escapes conviction and manages to keep out of the penitentiary, but this should hardly be the position of a Minister of the Crown, and a member of a representative Government. Mr. Robinette admires the Commission because it was so like the criminal courts where he is wonderfully successful in pulling through their difficulties the kind of clients who patronize him.

People who are martyrs to mosquito bites can take heart of grace. The New York Press says oil of citronella will keep away mosquitos which are as hungry as Grit officials. Remember the name. Five cents buys an ounce of it. Rub a little on the exposed parts of your body and no mosquito will touch you. Some persons prefer to sprinkle a few drops on the pillow when going to bed. Here is a boon that millions of victims never heard of. The odor is like a mixture of lemon, heliotrope and hay, lemon predominating.

Canadian Soldiers Used Foot Elm

IN THE LATE SOUTH AFRICAN CAMPAIGN—THEY SPEAK OF IT IN THE HIGHEST TERMS FOR PREVENTING BLISTERING AND CHAFING OF THE FEET.

Through the courtesy of Messrs. B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., proprietors of "Foot Elm," 1,000 boxes of this much-prized remedy for the feet went to South Africa with the 1st Canadian Contingent.

Here is how one or two of those who went through the campaign speak of it.

A. MacGregor, Col.-Sergt., 48th Highlanders, Toronto, writes: "The Foot Elm supplied us was appreciated by everyone who used it, as it prevented chafing, eased and rested the feet, and robbed marching of a great deal of misery."

Arch. MacColl, "C" Co., R. C. R., says: "As I had good feet I seldom had occasion to use Foot Elm, but I have found that it allays the burning sensation caused by ill-fitting boots, and accelerates the healing of any raw spots on one's feet."

Foot Elm is 25 cents a box of 18 powders and may be obtained at any drug store.

Indian Stabbed.

Hamilton, Aug. 3.—Saturday night Dr. Jones, Kilbride, who was driving up York street, found Joe Johnston, an Indian from the Reserve, lying on the walk. He had been stabbed in the chest. The doctors at the City Hospital had to sew him up. Ben Garlaw, another red man, has been arrested and charged with the crime.

The Child's Body Found.

Sarnia, Aug. 3.—Chief of Police Sarvis yesterday morning received word that the body of a child was floating in the St. Clair, opposite Corunna, and went down and brought the body to Sarnia, when it was claimed by Geo. Thompson of Port Huron as his child, Bella, who was drowned on Tuesday last, and in attempting whose rescue Mrs. Gilbert Taylor also lost her life.

SCHOONER GEORGINA SUNK.

Was in Collision With the Barque Brigitte on Thursday.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 2.—The Norwegian barque Brigitte, from Havre, France, for Sheet Harbor, arrived at Canso yesterday and reported having been in collision fifty miles west of there on Thursday night with the schooner Georgina of Burgeo, Nfld. The schooner filled and sank, but the captain and crew saved their lives by climbing aboard the barque. The schooner was bound from Burgeo to Halifax with a cargo of dry fish and was uninsured. The barque's stem, bowsprit and headgear were carried away and she sustained other damages.

A HERMIT'S DEATH.

Honore Paquette, the hermit of the sixth range, Quebec, is dead. Thirty years ago a man of this name, in the full flush of manhood, loved a pretty country maiden of St. Jerome, and seemingly fortune smiled for him, for the wedding day was named, and the bans were published in the little church near the girl's home. But before the hour of Honore's happiness arrived, even as he stood bedecked for the ceremony, a man came with a note, and the expectant bridegroom crushed it in his hand. The friends who had gathered learned afterwards the contents of that note; it had told that the girl had gone with another lover. But Honore walked away, and no man would have known his great sorrow. He went into the backwoods, into the Laurentian Hills, and thereafter, repelling all advances of friend or stranger, eked out his lonely life. Few persons ever saw him, for he chose an unfrequented part of the range, and seldom again sought the haunts of man.

But a few days ago some lumbermen came by chance upon the hermit's home. In the little clearing surrounding the dilapidated shack lay the old man, prone upon the ground, one hand clutching the tin with which he had been about to prepare a meal. How long he had been there could not be told, for the body was fast returning to the dust from which it had come. A shirt, trousers, boots, scarcely holding together, were the only protection. The shack had but one room, and all that it contained was a stove, a heap of straw for a bed, and a few cooking utensils. Rumor had credited the mysterious hermit with having much gold, but all the treasure that has been found is a bag containing $160.

Buried treasure is a magic word, and the minds of an imaginative people cling tenaciously to pet theories. Everyone had heard that the hermit was wealthy; not a man in the county but had spoken of gold which the strange old man had hidden in the earth and guarded with the zealous watchfulness of a miser. ...

So, ever since the discovery of the body, when the sun has shone bright down upon the little clearing in the sixth range, men have probed and dug, hunting for the treasure. But Honore has taken the secret, if any, to the burial ground in the village of St. Adolphe de Howard.

Historic Albania.

Albania lies 180 miles on the Adriatic sea and is fifty to a hundred miles wide. It was formed originally, says William Jackson Armstrong in his "Heroes of Defeat," from part of Ilyris, all of Epirus and part of Macedonia in the eleventh century. From this territory sprung Pyrrhus, who defeated the Roman invader; Philip and Alexander of Macedon, the conquerors; Perseus, whose fame as a soldier covered the world sixty years after Christ, and Skanderbeg, who for forty years defeated armies sent against him by the Turk. Ancient Albania lay in Asia, just east of the Caucasus.

The Whole Thing.

"Then you've been to Niagara?"

"Yes. I was quietly married last Tuesday week, and the next day we reached Niagara. Soon as we got there I started out to see the falls with my wife."

"Magnificent, eh?"

"You bet! You should have seen all the other men turning around to look at her as she passed."

Club Benefits.

"It's a shame the way those Squallop children are growing up without any parental restraint whatever."

"Yes; when their mother joined the Woman's Literary society and began attending all the meetings Mr. Squallop got sort of reckless and joined a Don't Worry club."—Exchange.

His Busy Day.

Customer (to printer)—You promised to have my work done yesterday, and you haven't touched it yet.

Printer—My dear sir, we've been so busy in this office that you ought to be very thankful that we took the time to make you a promise.

A DOLL'S DRESS.

JANE is a good girl, but she has no sense. She is always telling people that I am "out" when I am "in," and "in" when I have told her that I am "out." That was what made the trouble about the bazar.

I was reckoning up the butcher's book when she came bustling into the room. I have to be careful about the books, because father does not get so much money for his tales as they are worth. He is Mr. Marchant, the great author. My name is Molly, and I have kept house for him and the boys ever since I was a child. Now I am fourteen.

"What have you come bothering about now, Jane?" I asked. The bill was five shillings more than the month before, so I was rather cross.

"Mrs. Cattley to see you, miss."

"Of course you told her I was out?"

Jane jerked her thumb in the direction of the door, and I heard a rustle outside. Mrs. Cattley is the sort of woman that always wears crackling skirts.

"No," she called, in a loud voice. "Jane told me that you were in."

I gave Jane such a look! Then I slipped the butcher's book under something, and got up with my best smile.

"Jane generally does the wrong thing," I explained. "I was so afraid that she had sent you away. Do sit down."

"Umph!" she said. Of course I knew that she did not believe me, and she knew that I knew.

"Bring some tea, please," I told Jane. She walked out, grinning all over her face, and I made up my mind to speak to her when Mrs. Cattley was gone. "Put your cap straight before you come in again." She shut the door with a bang. "You've no idea what a trial servants are."

"I was keeping house before you were born." She shut her mouth with a snap.

"Long before," I agreed. She turned red, and I looked innocent. "So, of course, you know exactly how to manage them." She can never get a servant to stop.

"Things were very different when I was a girl." I hoped that she was different in those days; but I did not tell her so. I have a good deal of tact, father says.

"You never had any trouble with servants, I suppose?" (I have heard that they did not keep any.)

"None whatever." She put up her eyeglasses and stared at me as if she wanted to be contradicted. Fortunately, Jane knocked at the door.

"Come in," I called; but she only opened it a little way and beckoned.

"Hush!" I shut the door hastily. "You must go to Scales' for a pound."

She shuffled from one foot to the other. She always does that when she is uneasy in her mind.

"'E said as 'e wouldn't let us 'ave nothink more till we settled for wot we'd 'ad." It was only a few little things; but he is a surly man.

"Then go to the new shop round the corner. He doesn't know us, but——"

"'E'll let us 'ave it," said Jane, promptly; and off she went.

"I beg your pardon for leaving you," I apologized, when I returned. "Jane requires so much telling."

"I should not keep her a month."

"I am sure you would not," I agreed.

Mrs. Cattley pursed her lips and looked at me very hard. Then she sighed, as if she thought me too bad for words.

"I came to see you about the bazar," she said; "but perhaps I had better speak to your father."

"Oh, no!" I said, hastily. "You can tell me." Anybody can persuade father into anything.

"The rector insisted upon my being on the committee." She seemed very proud about it. "They have unanimously elected me collector."

"Oh!" I made up my mind not to give anything.

"I have come to see what you will subscribe."

"I will ask father," I promised. Of course I did not mean to do anything of the sort!

"Why don't you make something yourself," she said, unpleasantly, "instead of troubling poor Mr. Marchant? He must have expenses enough already."

"If you think that," I suggested, "there is no need to trouble him."

"I do not ask my husband for money when—er——"

"I am sure you don't." I am afraid I smiled a little. Everyone knows that he has to ask her!

She looked as if she were going to fly at me; but she changed her mind and pretended not to understand.

"I suppose you can make fancy things? When I was your age——"

"I hate making fancy things," I interrupted. I like making them really; but they cost such a lot for material.

"I presume you can sew?" she enquired sarcastically.

"I never do sewing." I do nearly all the mending of the house really; but it wasn't likely I was going to tell her.

"I am afraid that the wish is lacking," she said severely. "Of course, if you choose to be the only persons who do not give anything, you must please yourselves. At the same time I think it my duty to warn you that people will talk."

"It doesn't matter."

"Perhaps not"—she sniffed—"to you. If I were in your place I should study my poor father."

I should have said something rude if I had answered her, so I held my tongue. I don't suppose I manage very well, but I do study father. I promised mother that I would, the last thing of all.

"There are people enough already," she went on, "who speak disparagingly of him, because he is an author."

I laughed. It is called ironical, I believe, the way that I did it.

"Your friends are jealous, because they have not the brains to write," I said. Father has often told me that this is the reason that people run down authors.

"My friends are not people who are in the habit of—er——"

"'Ere's the tea, miss," said Jane, coming in suddenly. "An' the loaf sugar. An' the grocer says will yer be sure an'——"

"That will do, Jane. Put it here, please. How many lumps will you have, Mrs. Cattley?" Jane was beginning again, but I frowned at her so that she went. "Jane is always forgetting to tell me what things have got low."

"Ah!" said Mrs. Cattley. "You can't expect a girl to think of everything!"

Of course she meant that we were always running short; but I pretended not to understand.

"Father has been very successful with his tales lately," I said in a confidential way. "He looks for the postman to come every evening regularly." He says he only goes into the drawing-room to pull down the blinds. "To bring a cheque, you know." Unfortunately, it doesn't often come.

"They don't pay very well, I suppose?"

"Then no doubt he will be pleased to subscribe handsomely, if I ask him." She looked very determined.

I did not know what to do. Father cannot bear people to think we are poor; and when he is asked to give he never refuses. I felt sure he would subscribe a sovereign; and the tradesmen were worrying me so about the books.

"You need not trouble," I told her. "I will get something, or make it." I meant to make something—an excuse!

"Thank you, dear." She was quite polite. "Any little thing will do."

"Will it?" I thought at once of some small scarves in Tape and Drape's. They were one and eleven-three.

"So long as it is suitable to your father's position, of course. People naturally expect that everyone will give according to his means. I mention these things because you are so young, my dear." She got up.

"It is very thoughtful of you. Thank you so much. Must you really go?"

She said she must. So we embraced one another, and she went. When I embrace Mrs. Cattley, we put our cheeks alongside and a little way off, and kiss the air. It is the proper way—with her!

"I won't give her a thing," I said to myself, as soon as she had gone. "The horrible, spiteful old creature!"

I said the same thing to Mrs. Serplis, the new curate's wife, when she called next day. They are no better off than we are; but she is a dear. "I shall say I forgot," I told her; but she shook her head.

"You don't know the artfulness of that woman, Molly."

"What has she done?"

"She is telling everybody that, according to your account, your father is 'getting over his difficulties.' That is how she puts it. She doesn't believe it, she says; but they'll see what sort of a present he gives to the bazar."

"The hateful woman!" I cried. "She is——"

"She was talking about it in Joynt's, the butcher's, when I passed this morning. Of course I did not listen—"

"Of course not," I agreed.

"But I could not help hearing what she said. Old Mrs. Wilkins heard her say the same thing in Staize's, the costumier's; and Mr. Cattley asked Charlie about it, and said he did so hope it was true."

"I don't think he is to blame," I said.

"My dear, he is to be pitied—poor fellow! But anyhow you see——" she shrugged her shoulders and held up her hands.

"You mean they'll say nasty things if father doesn't give something expensive?"

"That's what I'm afraid of, dear." I drew a long breath. "They shan't. I will give something good somehow. I don't know how I'm going to do it." I felt like crying, but Mrs. Serplis stroked my shoulder.

"Couldn't you get some fancy materials? I'd soon run you up something."

"They cost such a lot."

"I know they do," she sympathized. "I wish we had something to—lend you. But there's the doctor's bill—where we came from; he's been waiting such a time—and the rates just come in." She sighed. "I hardly know what we shall do ourselves, Molly."

I sighed, too, and we did not say anything for a few minutes; then she found it was time to go, and we said good-bye. When she says good-bye, I put my arms right round her. It is the proper way—for her!

After I had thought the matter over, I made up my mind to save the money out of the housekeeping, by giving up jam and things that are not really necessary: but the boys grumbled dreadfully. Boys want such a lot to eat, and they don't know any better, poor little chaps! They said something about it, too, when father was playing with them, and he gave me four shillings extra.

"Buy the little beggars some goodies, Molly," he said. "Yes, yes, dear! I know you do your best: and a wonderfully good best it is. But you get too much for me, dear. I really don't want bacon for breakfast, and——" I put my hand over his mouth.

"Don't," I said. "Oh, daddy, don't!" Mother always saw that he had things.

However, I promised that they should have some nice cakes. Mrs. Serplis helped me to make them one afternoon, so they came rather cheap. You see, she was one of a large family. I saved one-and-three out of the four shillings. That made five-and-six altogether.

I expected to make it up to nearly half a sovereign the next week; but father was worried because he had not quite enough for the gas bill. It will run up, though I am ever so careful. So I gave him part of my housekeeping money toward it, and tried to put off some of the bills: but the tradespeople were not very nice.

"Seein' as ev'ryone sez as 'ow yer father's doin' better," the butcher told me, "I was expectin' as 'e'd pay orf some of the back owin's. I'm a man wot's got to live, I am." I suppose he has; but he need not do it so disagreeably.

Then there were the boys' boots. Bob's were right out at the toes, and they'd been capped twice and soled half a dozen times. Tommy's were nearly dropping off his feet. He came home crying because the boys at school teased him about them. Boys do not mean to be unkind, but they never think. The shoemaker was very pleasant, and said if I paid for one pair I might owe for the other. I could not expect more than that, because he has a large family, and they are very poor. If we had a lot of money I should like to help them.

A few days before the bazar Mrs. Cattley sent a printed circular. It was addressed to father, but I opened it. There was a list in it of "Donors who had given handsome presents." In the list I found: "Mr. and Miss Marchant."

I really did not know what to do, so I consulted Jane. Jane is not much use to consult, but Mrs. Serplis was not well, and I felt I must talk to somebody.

"Yer carn't give nothink, w'en yer ain't got nothink to give," Jane said, when she had nearly bitten the end off her apron.

"You always put things so clearly!" I told her. It was meant to be sarcastic, but she took it for a compliment.

"That is exactly my difficulty."

"What?" I asked. She fidgeted about.

"I've got three-an'-six."

"I wouldn't dream of such a thing."

"I don't see——"

"I couldn't, Jane. Really, I couldn't; though it is very very kind of you." It really was. "Besides, it is not nearly enough."

"No," she agreed. "I don't suppose it ain't. Well, yer'll 'ave to do it out of the 'ousekeepin'."

I shook my head.

"Wot does them boys want with treacle, an' suet puddin's, an'——"

"Oh, Jane! They must have something, poor little fellows."

"Greedy little pigs, I call 'em!" Jane does not get on with the boys, because they say her hair is red. It is not red really, but carroty.

"If you cannot speak properly of them, Jane," I said, "you had better hold your tongue."

"Alwus goin' without things for 'em," she grumbled, "you an' the master: stuff an' rubbidge, I call it. Wot I don't 'old with, an'——"

"Last Saturday," I pointed out, "when I had no pennies for sweets, you made them some toffee; and——"

"More fool me!" She bit her apron savagely. "'Owsomever, that ain't neither 'ere nor there."

"No; but you said there was something I could give."

"I didn't say no sich thing."

"Well, you looked it."

"Wot if I did?"

Jane can be very obstinate. I am not obstinate; but I am firm.

"What did you mean?" I insisted. She fidgeted about more than ever. "For goodness' sake, stand still!"

"I was thinkin' of—the doll's dress."

"In course, I didn't suppose as 'ow yer would, but—— Don't look like that, Miss Molly. Don't, there's a dear!"

"I—I shall be all right in a minute. It—it isn't that I mind, only—oh, Jane!"

I laid my head down on my arms, and Jane put her hand on my shoulder. It may not be a soft hand, but it is a very kind one.

"I know, dear," she said—and I think she was crying—"I know as yer mother made it, an' no one couldn't 'ave done it lovelier; but——"

"What would she think, if—if——"

I got up from my chair quickly. "You are quite right, Jane. I shall send it to-morrow; and—thank you."

Then I ran upstairs and locked myself in my bedroom. I bathed my eyes before I came down, so that no one should notice. Jane was very nice, and did not grumble, even when I gave the boys a penny each to spend. I thought it would please mother if she knew.

The next morning I took out the doll's dress, and did it up very quickly, and sent Jane round with it. It was a very beautiful dress—white satin worked all over with tiny little silk flowers and leaves. It must have taken mother a long, long time; and I know that she would never have done it if she had not been very fond of me. Even Mrs. Cattley could not find any fault with it, and she wrote to say that she should be surprised if it did not fetch at least a couple of pounds. People could not say things of father after that; so I was glad.

At least, I tried to be glad; but I did not seem very bright somehow. Father asked several times if anything was the matter. He always notices. I told him "Nothing;" but I was afraid that he did not believe me. So I tried my hardest to be cheerful, because he is so quick at guessing anything, and I did not want him to be worried about the dress.

I played with the boys more than usual; and Mrs. Serplis helped me to make them some soldiers' clothes. They were very pleased with them; and when they caught me moping, I said it was only toothache, and they must not tell father, because I did not want to go to the dentist and have it pulled out. So they did not say anything. They are good little fellows, if they are tiresome sometimes, like all boys are.

When the day of the bazar came, however, I was right down miserable. Of course I would not go to it; and in the afternoon I went to sleep. When I woke up, Jane told me that father had been home, and dressed himself, and gone out again.

"Rare an' smart 'e looked," she said. "I 'ope as 'e ain't got one in 'is eye, wot wouldn't never do for 'im wot you done."

I was so cross that I stamped my foot at her.

She stared at me. "No fear, I don't do no sich thing. I know when yer well off, if yer don't yerself."

"It is not your business whether I am well off or not," I told her. "Please leave the room."

She stared at me again. "Lie down on the sofa, Miss Molly," she suggested, "an' let me bring yer some tea. It'll do yer 'ead good. Yer know I didn't mean nothink, an'—there! there!"

If Jane does silly things sometimes, she never means any harm. That is why I like her, and will not let the boys tease her about her hair.

After I had had some tea, I went to sleep again upon the sofa. At least I should have gone to sleep, only the boys came in from school and jumped on me. They were playing that I was an elephant, when father came in. Then they made believe that he was a tram-car, and climbed up on his shoulders. He said they might have tea with us, if they were extra good. After tea he read two chapters of Robinson Crusoe aloud. Then he gave them some chocolates that he had bought, and Jane took them up to bed.

When they had gone he came and sat beside me. "What is wrong?" he asked, "dear little girl?"

"Nothing, daddy," I said.

He walked up and down the room two or three times. Then he came back and put his arm round me. "Tell me, little mother?" he begged.

So I told him. He blew his nose very hard several times; but he did not speak till I had done.

"I am glad you have told me, dear," he said at last, "but I knew."

"You knew?" I cried. "Who? When?"

"It was Cattley. He—he is a good fellow."

I nodded.

"He came to me this morning and told me about it. He wanted his wife to let him buy it and send it back to you, but she would not. That woman ——!" He kicked the footstool suddenly. "I can't say things about a woman, but——"

"I can." I sat up on the sofa. "She is——"

Father held up his hand. "We should pity her, Molly," he said, "for being—what she is! Anyhow, Cattley begged me to accept a couple of sovereigns and buy it for you. He dared not buy it himself, he said, and he was set on your having it. He is a good man."

"A very, very good man," I said.

"Luckily I had no need to borrow. The 'Whirlwind' sent me a cheque for three tales this morning. So I went to the bazar this afternoon, and I brought back your doll's dress."

"Daddy!" I cried. "Daddy!"

He lit his pipe, but let it out again directly.

"When your mother was finishing that dress, one night"—he seemed to be talking to himself—"I remember teasing her about spending so much time and money on a plaything for a little girl. She smiled up at me—you remember how she used to smile——"

He turned away and pretended to light the pipe again.

"'Isn't she worth it, dear?' she said. 'She always—she' . . ."

He stopped suddenly, and I jumped up and put my arms round his neck.

"She thought there was no one like you," I whispered; "and there isn't, daddy dear."

He sighed, and smiled, too. "You are just like her, my child," he said. "Just like her!"

I know myself that I am not good, like mother was; but I want him to think so!

A Frenchman's View of our Girls.

In his volume "Business and Love," based on his observations during his recent visit to the United States and Canada, Hugues Le Roux, the distinguished French critic, wholly disapproves of university education for girls and still more emphatically of female teachers for boys. He says: "Men should no more learn to think as women do, than women should mould their thoughts and their natures after the pattern of the masculine temperament." The sort of woman which the colleges turn out here he dubs the "third sex," and he includes in this category the "American business woman," for whom he has a special dread. He descants on the frequency of unhappy marriages in the United States, and says: "Almost always it is the woman who is responsible for the bankruptcy." He thinks that co-education is largely responsible for ill-fitted matches and for the disillusionment that follows. About the American girl he says: "The absolute joy she brings into the family simply because she has taken the trouble to be born is keener in America than anywhere else in the world." Then he describes how she is spoiled by everybody, how no duties, only privileges, are imposed upon her, how she becomes utterly selfish and never loves, but only graciously permits others to love her. "This worship of self, raised to the standard of a moral principle, is the outcome of the absolute independence wherein the American girl is brought up by her family." Le Roux considers the circumstances surrounding the society debut of our girls shameful and in wretched taste. He says: "The American girl, face to face with her conscience, does not recognize any very pressing duty except toward herself." He thinks, however, she is better educated and the intellectual superior of the American man, owing to a longer intellectual training and to favoring outward circumstances, and thinks this deplorable for the whole country. He discusses at length her disinclination to marry, and draws very far-reaching conclusions. He says: "Is motherhood a bondage or a joy for woman? Does the individual owe more to society or to himself? History answers: To society. The third sex answers: To one's self." He goes somewhat extensively into the question of the increasing sterility of the American woman, and says: "Such is the moral ruin to which is condemned any society wherein woman has usurped the place that belongs to man." And he says Americans of the older stock are "deluded as to the destiny of their race," and that "all the great qualities handed down to us from the past are being wiped out mercilessly under the torrent of gold, the burden of feminine pride, and feminine selfishness." The female reporter he holds in special dread and thinks she is a "blackmailer" if she has the chance. To the "Restless Woman" he devotes a whole chapter. He says: "Wherever fate gives the weak a chance to rule, they take unfair advantage." After fashioning Man in the United States to suit herself precisely Woman is still unsatisfied, and does not like her handiwork. That is why she prefers foreigners for husbands, they being "more romantic." The men, too, Le Roux claims he found all discontented with their wives and with the position of women here. But he is sure there will be soon a dreadful awakening for both, and another "great revolution," to set matters right, with Man re-established the undoubted master of Woman.

Robert Henri, the painter, told the other day a story about the Philadelphia physician Dr. W. W. Keen: An artist was escorting Dr. Keen through an exhibition of pictures. Before the portrait of a man of middle age the physician stopped. "Do you know this man?" he asked. "I believe," the artist answered "that it is a Mr. So and So." "Is he dead?" "Yes; he has been dead for some months." "Well," said Dr. Keen, "I would wager that he died from heart disease." The artist, struck by a skill that could find material for diagnosis in a picture, enquired into the death of the portrait's original, and found that the man had indeed died of heart disease the winter before.

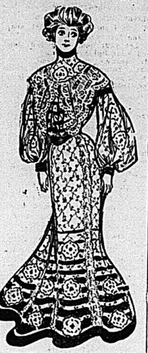
DRESSY COSTUMES.

Elaborate Tailor Mades—White Serge Made With Flounces.

The short pelerine or collar of beautiful lace is a feature of the more dressy tailor mades. A smart frock designed recently was of a soft white fabric, a very superior kind of cashmere, with a pelerine of deep ecru point lace. A beautiful panel of the lace was carried down the skirt and formed a deep, full flounce. The rest of the skirt was closely gauged from the waist to the knees.



BLACK AND WHITE EFFECT.

Ever so smart was a white serge made with a series of seven flounces beginning three or four inches below the waist and very full at the feet. Each of these flounces had a border of black spots of different sizes. These spots also formed a trimming on the smart coat bodice, which was finished with a yoke of beautiful lace having a lining of rose pink. With this was a hat of simple black, the only decoration being a wreath of old rose velvet pansies. The white parasol was ornamented with black spots.

The black and white costume is the very essence of smartness. With all of these dressy costumes a three-quarter coat of black silk is desirable, the latter plentifully enriched with lace.

For uncertain weather a costume of silk and wool crape is smart, light and yet not too cool. Many delicate tones of gray are in favor, and lace is universally employed as the chief trimming, but there are as well all sorts of additions, such as tassels, strappings and little tabs of panne or velvet.

The illustration shows a costume of black and white silk velvet and venetian lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION HINTS.

Effective Muslin Dresses — Gowns Which Are Practical.

TAILOR MADE DRESS.

One can never dispense with the useful black gown or something of a dark order. A bright shade of blood red is extremely effective in the evening when it happens to suit. One great advantage of a gown of this sort is that it comes in well for an afternoon reception frock. It may also do duty for quiet dinners and traveling. A dress of this sort may be worn twenty times as often as a paler one.

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard--built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

EVERYBODY SHOULD TAKE A VACATION.

Whether it be for a few days or a few weeks, the change of occupation, the peaceful quiet rest in the woods, or a trip through the charming lakes and rivers of "the Highlands of Ontario," breathing in the pure air, impregnated with the odor of the balsam and pines, will not only do you and your family good, but will make you of more benefit to your employer. Think of this and call on U. E. Thompson, C. P. & T. A. or T. H. Coppin, station agent, Grand Trunk Railway. j28toa8

Thirty Days for Rogers.

Judge Lazier on Saturday gave judgment in the case of John Rogers, who was found guilty of threatening to shoot a woman named Mrs. Vollick, of Madoc Township. Owing to the fact that the party complaining was trespassing and the accused did not shoot at her, but only threatened to do so, His Honor dealt leniently with him. The sentence was 30 days in jail. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. Masson the accused.

VERY REMARKABLE CURE OF DIARRHOEA,

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who was cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists

Directors Enjoy Themselves.

Messrs. A. Kent, P. Page, F. Barker, J. Vandusen, Dr. Gilmour and Prof. H. Aikins, of Toronto, Directors of the Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company, of Ontario, were in the city to-day attending a meeting of the company. This afternoon the gentlemen were taken for a drive about the city and for a sail out on the bay. They were accompanied by Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Col. Ponton, Mr. J. P. C. Phillips and Rev. A. Campbell.

DRUGGING WILL NOT CURE CATARRH.

This loathsome disease is caused by germs that invade the air passages of the head, throat and lungs, and can be cured only by inhalation of medicated air. Stomach medicines, atomizers, snuffs are ineffectual, because they fail to reach the cause of the trouble. Catarrhozone is successful, because it is inhaled to every part of the breathing organs, and has power to kill the germ, heals the inflamed tissues and prevents droppings in the throat. Catarrhozone treats more than one thousand square feet of the mucous surfaces with every breath taken through the inhaler and affords instant relief. It perfectly cures catarrh, asthma and bronchitis. Sold by druggists. Two months' treatment, price $1. Small size 25 cents, or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

CHURCH CHIMES OF YESTERDAY.

John Street.

In the absence of the Pastor, Rev. A. W. R. Whiteman, of Toronto, is occupying the pulpit of this church for a few Sundays. The Rev. gentleman preached yesterday to fair congregations. In the evening his text was from St. Luke, 12th chapter and 35th verse:

"Let your loins be girded about and your lights burning."

Mr. Baguley, of the Bond Street Church, Toronto, sang a solo at the evening service, which was much appreciated.

Holloway Street.

The Pastor, Rev. J. R. Real, preached at both services yesterday, and his discourses were much appreciated. In the evening his text was from St. John, 1st chapter, 45th and 46th verses.

St. Thomas'.

Some trees had abundance of leaves, but bore no fruit; so some so-called Christians had abundance of the profession of religion, but in deeds they were barren. How different it would be if men would remember that their outward protestations are but leaves, and that the word of God said "By their fruits ye shall know them." We should ever remember that, wherever we are or whatever we do, we are in the presence of God.

Bridge Street.

At this church in the morning, Rev. R. N. Adams preached, and in the evening Rev. D. Williams. There were fair congregations present. At the evening service Mr. Baguley, of Toronto, sang "Ora Pro Nobis," with nice effect. He has a strong bass voice, which was listened to with much pleasure. Miss Mabel Vermilyea sang a solo entitled "By the Waters of Babylon," and her dulcet voice was never heard to better advantage, the beautiful song being a source of delight to all who heard it.

Christ Church.

Rev. Prof. Howard conducted the services yesterday. In the morning Holy Communion was administered, the sermon being dispensed with. In the evening the Rev. gentleman's text was from St. John, 21st chapter, 3rd and 4th verses. Mr. E. Henthorne sang a solo entitled "The Heavenly Son."

Emmanuel R. E. Church.

The Rector, Rev. Mr. Gilliland, preached yesterday to good congregations. In the morning his discourse was a thoughtful one, the text being the 4th verse of the 17th chapter of St. John:

"I have glorified Thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do."

Only the Saviour of Mankind was privileged to use the words of the text, but it was in the power of everybody to try and imitate Him. Though they could not hope to finish the work which God gave them, as Christians, to do, they could strive to walk in the footsteps of their Lord and Master, and help to make the world better because of their having lived in it. This was everyone's privilege. Holy Communion was celebrated at the close of the morning service.

Tabernacle.

Rev. George Brown, pastor, was the preacher of the day. At the morning service sacrament was administered. In the evening the Rev. gentleman's subject was "What are You Doing?" and the text was from Genesis, 3rd chapter and 7th verse:

"And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid because I was naked, and I hid myself."

WEARY BRAIN WORKERS.

Fagged out, ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snap's gone! The buoyancy that made work a pleasure—that's gone too. The doctor would tell you that you are run down, not eating enough nor digesting enough. Your stomach needs aid, your digestion needs a bracer too. Your blood requires phosphorus and iron that it may be formed readily. Now Ferrozone is a wonderful nerve bracer and blood maker. It's food for the blood and nerves, it will make you strong quickly and permanently. Sold by all druggists.

In the Justice Shop.

Unlawful Bathing.

Two boys were up before the Magistrate this morning charged with bathing in the river without having on the necessary suits. The Magistrate, after lecturing the lads, allowed them to go.

A WELL KNOWN ALBANY MAN.

Recommends Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

About eighteen months ago Mr. W. S. Manning, of Albany, N. Y., widely known in trade circles as the representative of the Albany Chemical Co., was suffering from a protracted attack of Diarrhoea. "I tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," he says, "and obtained relief. cheerfully recommend this medicine to those similarly afflicted." Sold by all druggists.

OPPOSED TO THAT STATUE,

PROTEST FROM TORONTO AGAINST A MEMORIAL OF GEORGE WASHINGTON IN ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

Toronto, July 31.—A protest against the erection of a statue in St. Paul's Cathedral to General Washington, first President of the United States, was made yesterday at a meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, at which two representatives were present from the United Empire Loyalists, Historical Society, York Pioneers, Navy League, British Empire League, St. George's Society and Army and Navy Veterans.

At this meeting a resolution was passed calling the attention of the British authorities to the rumor that a statue was to be erected to General Washington in St. Paul's Cathedral, in London, and protesting against this as being extremely hurtful to the feelings of Canadians, especially to the descendants of the United Empire Loyalists, who endured terrible hardships for the upholding of England's flag and their loyalty to the King.

GAS FOR ALL AT LOW COST.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Gas for lighting purposes at 25 cents per 100,000 feet; gas for heating purposes at 15 cents per 100,000 feet, these are claims of Attilio Monaco, a chemist, for a discovery which he hopes soon to put to commercial use. Monaco has found a chemical which he says will decompose water into its constituents at a trifling cost. From the oxygen, modified, he will get light, and from the hydrogen heat.

"This can only be done now by electricity," said Mr. Monaco to-day, "and the cost is prohibitive. I have been experimenting for three years and believe I have arrived at success. The process will make light and heat 400 times cheaper than they are at present. That, in a nutshell, gives the result of my work.

Monaco studied chemistry in Italy and New York. While visiting his native land three years ago, he shot a gun at close range into the water. The appearance of the water after the shot set Monaco to thinking. He noted the rising bubbles and the manner of their spreading, and then went to his laboratory, and he has lived in it a good deal of the time since.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

It's rather early yet to talk of hockey, but down in Kingston they seem to be commencing it. The News and Times of Saturday says:

Mr. George James, of Perth, was in the city yesterday and to-day on business. While here he had an interview with several hockey enthusiasts in the matter of starting an Eastern Hockey League, with teams comprised of the Aberdeens of Ottawa, and teams from Perth, Smith's Falls and Brockville and Kingston. He was given some encouragement in regard to the proposition, as the local teams are tired of so much travelling to play off their O.H.A. games. A five-team league would be far better for the Kingston players who will give Mr. James' proposition their best consideration, and will no doubt assist in the formation of the new league. A covered rink is being built at Brockville.

It will be noticed that Belleville is not mentioned as a candidate for a position in the Eastern Ontario Hockey League, and, all things considered, it might be well for the locals to stick to the O.H.A. To be sure, they didn't get the fairest kind of treatment last season, and that Marks business will not soon be forgotten, but the fact remains, that they might go farther and fare worse. Hog-town is bad enough, but, if it came to an argument with dear old Kingston, Belleville would be very much to the bad. Taking all things into consideration, it does not seem that the local hockeyists can do better than again cast in their lot with the O.H.A.

By the way, it is said that five of last year's hockey team will again don the red and white of Belleville next winter, and the two vacancies will be filled by lads quite capable of keeping up their ends with the old quintette. If that be true, the team which heads Belleville's crowd next winter will have to step lively, and that's no idle warm weather joke.

The Toronto Eastern League team is getting walloped in most artistic style these days. Judging by present appearances, they seem doomed to finish in the last division.

NAMES THAT COUNT IN MEDICINE

Physicians who are familiar with the stock of drugs and chemicals we carry express their appreciation freely. The names upon the packages of goods indicate to them that this is a store that stands for all that is best in pharmacy. These names might mean little to you as far as their direct significance is concerned, but they are apt to mean much to you whenever you have a prescription to be compounded. THE GOSPEL WOMAN.

PAUL'S PLEA FOR THOSE WHO LABORED WITH HIM IN THE WORK.

AS THE "MAN BEHIND THE GUN."

Woman For Centuries Has Borne the Greatest Brunt of Religious Strife, and Rev. Dr. Talmage Thinks the Time Ripe For Their Reward and For the More Practical Recognition of Their Services.

Chicago, August 2.—In this sermon the preacher pays a fitting tribute to consecrated mothers and daughters and pleads for a wider and more practical recognition of their services in church and religious work. The text is Philippians iv, 3, "Help those women who labored with me in the gospel."

The conspicuous places in the church have always been filled by men. The effective, personal work of the church, however, has to a large extent been done by women. Opening the scroll of gospel triumphs the names of the greatest preachers and organizers have been men; but in the ordinary walks of religious life the consecrated female workers have always outnumbered the consecrated male workers. In the history of the Christian church the women members, as a class, have rarely failed Christ in hours of need.

The part woman has in the gospel campaign is that eulogized by military historians and poets as that of the "man behind the gun."

But, though in military parlance we may talk about the "man behind the gun," we cannot in the church militant. It is the "woman behind the gospel gun" who for centuries upon centuries has borne the greatest brunt of religious strife It is the "woman behind the gospel gun" in the home, in the church, on the street, in the country, in the city and in the foreign missions who has carried the name of Jesus Christ all around the world. It is the "woman behind the gospel gun" who has won the greatest gospel victories for our churches in the past. Therefore the purpose of this sermon is to make a manly plea to the fathers and husbands, brothers and sons, of the families of our churches to take their positions in religious work beside their mothers and wives, sisters and daughters. I want to make the same kind of a manly plea for the men to work for Christ as did Paul when he wrote to the men of his time to "help those women who labored with me in the gospel."

Nearly every man in my audience to-day is a believer in Jesus Christ. It is so with other churches. Infidels and agnostics are still numerous, unhappily, but they are not in our churches, and the voice from the pulpit does not reach their ears. My ministry so far as preaching to infidels and atheists and agnostics is concerned is practically ended. Theodore Cuyler, the grand old man of the Brooklyn pulpit, lately declared that in a ministry of over sixty years he had never yet preached a sermon upon the divine authenticity of the Scriptures. He believed that almost every person with whom his work came in contact was not only a believer in the Bible, but also in the divinity of Jesus Christ. I believe that Dr. Cuyler is right. I believe that every man in church today is not only a believer in Jesus Christ, but that he also expects some day to receive Christ as his Saviour and to be redeemed from sin by the atonement of the cross.

You show the fact involuntarily, almost automatically. I can prove to you in very few words that you are a believer in the saving power of a divine Christ. How do you act? What do you say in a crisis? When we were climbing over the Johnstown ruins a few days after the awful Connemaugh flood, Rev. Dr. Beale told me that during the pandemonium of death a saloon keeper, as he was sweeping by, caught hold of his church's steeple. As he hung there he was heard again and again to beseech God for his life. Mr. Moody said that when he was returning from Europe on the last trip of his life the steamer for a whole day was every moment expected to go to the bottom. Then he heard men everywhere publicly praying to God for help—men who, perhaps, had not publicly or privately prayed to God for years. Their prayers at that time proved conclusively that most men do believe in Jesus Christ; that most men do expect some day to be saved by the atoning power of the cross.

Now, my brother, if you believe in Jesus Christ and hope some day to be saved by him why is it that your belief does not affect your life? Why are you not man enough to go and work in his vineyard? Your slothful, lazy habits, in a spiritual sense, ought to make you despise yourself and have utter contempt for your past actions in reference to your church. You know it is ingrained in every manly man to despise a shirk. If a party of us should go hunting next summer we would naturally expect every member of that party to do his full share of work. If one of the men refused to do it we would never take him out upon another camping trip. We would say to one another: "That man is no good. He is mean and contemptible. He is a lazy, despicable shirk."

You, my brother, believing in Jesus Christ and hoping some day to be eternally saved by his blood, ought in common honesty to fully realize that your actions toward the church are just as despicable and contemptible as the shirking characteristics which you despise in others. You are practically saying to yourself: "I want to some day reach heaven; but in the meantime I want my wife, my mother, my sister, my daughter, to do all my praying and working in the church. When I am in my last sickness I want their minister to come and fix things all up for me in a spiritual sense. And when I am dead I want their minister to state over my casket that I have repented at the eleventh hour and have been saved all right. In other words, I want to win every joy and hope of the religious faith without lifting a hand for Christ, without doing one stroke of work in the Master's service." Oh, my brother, such a statement as that is so mean and despicable I do not believe you have ever fully realized what your gospel shirking has signified. Come, man, and be a true man in the spiritual as well as in the temporal way. Come and take off your coat in holy enthusiasm. Do not compel the women folks of your families to longer bear the brunt of the gospel struggle.

A strong, robust, manly man compels the admiration of other men. There is a popular theory abroad that a manly man can never fascinate the masculine world as a beautiful woman can. But I do not think that that theory is true. I know it is not in my own case. I also know it is not true with many of my gentlemen friends. I believe that the fascination which a strong man has upon me is the same fascination which he has upon all men except those mental weaklings and masculine nonentities who think that the chief purpose for which a man was created was to eat and sleep, to dress and undress, and dress again.

If a manly man is to have such a great influence upon other men, who will be able to do your Christian work unless you are willing to do it? There are persons and spheres which you, and only you, can reach. The women who have labored with Paul in the gospel cannot do it. Your mother, wife, or sister, or daughter cannot do it. You know that there are to-day down in your store some clerks whom no human being can touch for Christ as you, their employer, can touch, if you will.

Would you not like to be a Christain scientist like Henry Drummond? Some people are foolish enough to suppose that his greatest work was in the lectures on natural history, which he first delivered before his classes in the Free Church College of Glasgow. But I tell you that the greatest of all the work Henry Drummond did in his life was done when he stood before the young university men of Edinburgh, gathered Sunday after Sunday within a large hall of Edinburgh, and testified to them of Jesus Christ. At that time he molded men's hearts as well as their brains. He molded them, as I believe no modern Christian minister was ever able to mold them. For there, as an unordained Christian scientist, he stood simply as a manly Christian man, appealing to men. If I had my own way in the world, and had the intellect to do it, I believe I could give my Saviour better service outside of the pulpit than inside.

Oh, man sitting before me to-day, do not cherish the idea that physical courage is the only or the greatest element of manliness. I tell you that the manliest men the world have ever seen have been men who never saw a battle field, who never raised a hand to strike another man. I appeal to you. Are you ready to tell them that the bravest heroes of life are not always those who don the soldier's uniform and, with unblanched cheek, walk up to the cannon's mouth? Are you ready, by the example of your own life, to teach a sinful world that the noblest heroes of every generation are the moral heroes—these heroes who, if necessary, are ready to die for Christ, die for the right, die as Paul died, who urged his yoke fellows to be bold testifiers and workers for the cross?

Every true man knows that his wife is not as useful and active a member of the Christian church when she goes to church alone as she would be if her husband were ready to go by her side and help her in her Christian endeavor to spread the gospel. The martial ties are very sacred. They unify in more ways than one the twain who once stood at the nuptial altar. After a husband and a wife have been living together for many, many years they not only begin to think alike, but also to grow to look alike. I have again and again noticed a similarity of looks which are seen upon the faces of aged husbands and wives who have long lived side by side. They have unconsciously absorbed parts of each other's physical as well as mental personalities. So when a husband is an irreligious man, a nonchurchgoer, a scoffer, a ridiculer, his sneers and shortcomings have a marked evil effect upon the life of the Christian woman who at the marriage altar has pledged to him her love and her life. She may fight against deterioration as she will, but in spite of herself she cannot be as good a woman as if she had married a good Christian man, who has been consecrated to the service of the Lord Jesus Christ from the day that he left his mother's home.

Husbands, in view of this tremendous fact, are you ready to-day to curtail to a greater or less extent the spiritual usefulness of your wife? Are you ready to curtail her spiritual influence over the life of her children because her own spiritual life, on account of your personal indifference and sins, has been depleted? Are you ready for the same sinful marital cause to curtail her influence in the church and in the neighborhood? Because you wish her to be a social queen are you more desirous of seeing her surrender the better part of herself to the service of the world rather than to the service of her Divine Master?

But I take a step further in this thought. Have you thought that you may, perhaps, totally destroy your wife's faith in Jesus Christ? Many and many a husband has done this before, and perhaps you may be doing this now. If you, O man, are indifferent to the gospel message, and shall be eternally destroyed, perhaps your wife may become indifferent about her own salvation.

Oh, sinful husband, glorying in the intensity of your wife's affection for you, have you ever thought of the extremity to which that love may carry her? What if she should so desire to be with you that, rather than be separated from you after death, she should give up Christian usefulness—give up her God and heaven? What will be your remorse if you have to lament not only the loss of your own soul but the eternal woe which love of you has brought upon her? To-day you may not only be deciding not only your own eternal destiny, but you may be destroying your Christian wife's spiritual welfare. Side by side you were at the altar. Side by side you will be in the grave. Side by side you may be in eternal despair.

But I would like to speak a word before I close to the good, moral, Christian man, who believes in God and yet is not a church member. You are ready to confess him in private conversation and yet not willing to publicly confess him as a church member, though in that way you might help the women who are laboring in the gospel.

That church membership is a mighty help to every man in his struggle to lead a truer, purer, nobler Christian life there is no doubt. Every true Christian is a better Christian when he, with a holy purpose, gives his allegiance to some one church and allows his name to be placed upon the church roll. You may still be a Christian and yet not a church member. You may be able by the grace of God to be a good, moral, upright Christian man in spite of never having taken this important step. You may have had a gospel bringing up that has helped you, but what about that young clerk who is watching you? He has not yet publicly confessed faith in God. He has had no sacred childhood. He is looking at you now and saying, "Well, if Mr. So-and-So can be a good moral man and not a church member I guess I can." Dare you, oh, moral man, allow that boy to make such an excuse?

Being able by the grace of God to persuade a good, moral, upright man to publicly profess Jesus Christ in a church aisle was the means, I believe, by which I have accomplished my greatest single work for good in the gospel ministry. That man was one of the leading millionaires of Pittsburg. Every one who knew him was ready to testify that he was square through and through. His word was as good as his bond. He was the soul of honor. Yet year in and year out he went among the business men of the Smoky City as a good, moral man and not as a Christian man. The young man said: "Well, if I can be as straight and true as Mr. So-and-So, that is all I ask. I guess my chance for heaven will be first class." I heard of such remarks made by the young men. I made up my mind I would carry them straight to that millionaire. It was morally the bravest act I ever did. I was at that time merely a boy and therefore it was doubly hard. First I prayed over the matter. I felt that I had a right, and a full right, to go to God and ask him for what was on my heart. Then I started for that rich man's house. I rang the bell and entered the parlor. When he came down I began to plead in the name of my Christ. I said to him: "Mr. So-and-So, I know you are a Christian. Your Christian mother and Christian grandmother, besides your Christian dead wife, were all members of the Old Second church. But what about these young men who are looking up to you as an example? Dare you and will you be responsible for their lives? Dare you refuse to publicly confess Christ and turn these young men's minds toward the cross, which is the source of all your strength?" Tears began to well up out of the great financier's eyes. They rolled down upon his cheek and his beard. He extended his hand and took mine and said, "Mr. Talmage, do you think that the young men are saying that about me?" I answered, "I know they are." Then he said, "I will publicly profess Christ as my Saviour in the church aisle at our next communion."

In all the history of the Second Presbyterian church there never went forth a greater religious influence than on that day. In the bank, over the counter, on the street and in the home hundreds of men were saying. "Have you heard the news? Mr. So-and-So has become a Christian. He joined the church last Sunday." And from that one moral Christian man's action of publicly professing Christ in the church I believe hundreds of young men were brought to kneel at the foot of the cross. Oh, moral Christian man, do not suppose that while you are outside of church fellowship you can really help the women who are laboring in the gospel! Be a Christian church member. Place your name in big black letters upon the muster roll of the church. As a Christian, wearing the gospel armor and fighting under the gospel standard, throw your whole soul and heart into this Christ struggle against sin.

There is a very common sign upon all the board fences to-day, in which Henry George stands with uplifted hand, saying, "I am for men." To-day, as Christ's messenger, I am pleading for men. I want Christian men for gospel visitation. I want Christian men for the prayer meeting and for the church officers. I want the Peters and Lukes and Matthews, Bartholemews, Johns and Pauls and the Timothys of the present generation. In other words, as a Christian pastor, I come to-day and say, Oh, man, in the name of Jesus Christ, we want you to help the women who are now laboring in our midst! Will you come and give to us your gospel help?

Prefers "Perityphlitis."

Sir Frederick Treves, the famous British surgeon, has retired from practice at the age of 50 years. He has established a record in performing 1,000 consecutive operations for appendicitis without a death. He hates the name, which is of American origin, and prefers "perityphlitis." There were 15,000 operations for this malady in Great Britain last year, with 90 per cent. of recoveries, including that of King Edward.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, AUGUST 4, 1903 NO. 79

AN ALTERNATIVE PROPOSAL

Mr. W. F. Maclean Offers One For Parliament's Consideration.

Government Railway From Winnipeg to Port Arthur and Line of Boats to Midland Would Meet the Demand Immediately—People Ought to Own the Road They Build—Running Powers For the Other Railways.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—In the House today the Toronto and Hamilton Railway bill was sent back to the Railway Committee for further consideration. The Premier said that a full opportunity will be afforded the representatives of municipalities interested to state their views.

The Grand Trunk Pacific.

After forty minutes discussion of the ruling of the Deputy Speaker that the principle of the bill could not be discussed in committee, Mr. W. F. Maclean moved that the Deputy Speaker leave the chair and under this motion criticised the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway scheme. Mr. Maclean argued that the transportation problem is not solved by the Government's policy, and that the only true solution lies in the nationalization of a road between Port Arthur and Winnipeg, such road to give equal running rights to the Grand Trunk, the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the I.C.R., the whole four of which would gain immediate access to the West.

Mr. Maclean said that the measure proposed by the Government did not deal with the difficulty in the eight way. What the people of the West wanted was connected with a Government-owned road. The people of Canada say: "If we pay for a railway, if we supply all the money to build it, let the railway be our own. In no way let that railway pass into the hands of private companies." The proposal brought down by the Government, Mr. Maclean declared, gives no immediate relief to the people of the Northwest. That relief, he held, could be given immediately by the application of the principle of Government ownership.

In reply to Mr. Fitzpatrick, Mr. Maclean said he would get from Port Arthur to Midland over the Grand Trunk Railway by a line of boats.

Mr. Maclean said the I.C.R. was not administered according to his idea of Government ownership. If the I.C.R. were taken out of politics, if it were administered by commissioners independent of politics and members of Parliament, it would make a better showing. He would like to see a man like Sir Thomas Shaughnessy or Mr. Hays given control of our railway with instructions to run it in the interests of the people and keep it free from politics altogether. He believed our railways could be nationalized for twenty millions of dollars, but he did not believe one hundred millions would build the road proposed by the Government.

"How could you nationalize the three roads you have named for twenty millions?" asked Sir William Mulock.

Mr. Maclean: "You could nationalize the road from Winnipeg to Port Arthur for twenty millions or less."

"The hon. gentleman proposes to nationalize the G.T.R. from Midland to Montreal, the C.P.R. from Owen Sound to Montreal, the C.A.R. and the C.N.R. from Port Arthur to Winnipeg. Could all that be done for twenty millions?"

"Very largely," answered Mr. Maclean.

"Those four roads?" asked Sir William incredulously.

"It is not very expensive if it is more than twenty million," said Mr. Maclean. "What are we to think of the hon. gentleman's proposition, which he says would only cost thirteen millions running from ocean to ocean? but the proposition submitted to the House I submit involves an expenditure of over a hundred million. We are committing this country to a proposition involving an outlay of a hundred million dollars, and we are not to get anything for our money, but are immediately to give the roadway to the G.T.R. Thus we are not solving the problem, but only building a one-horse railway."

"It will be from Moncton thru the wilds of Quebec," replied Mr. Maclean.

The House in Committee.

The House then in Committee took up various clauses of the bill. Interesting information as to cost was given on clause four.

Mr. McCarthy said the estimated cost of the road was twenty thousand on the prairie section and fifty thousand on the mountain section, with seven thousand a mile added in each case for rolling stock.

Mr. Hagart wanted to know why it had been thought necessary to provide fifteen million for equipment of the western division and five million for the eastern division.

Mr. Fitzpatrick replied that the total mileage of the road was multiplied by seven thousand dollars, giving a result of eighteen millions. This amount of twenty millions was named as the sum to be spent by the Grand Trunk on equipment of the road. The government took a first mortgage on five millions of this equipment to ensure the operation of the eastern division.

Sir Wilfrid said the intention was to have the terminus at Port Simpson.

Over Capitalization.

Mr. Borden argued that, taking the capital stock and bond-issuing power, it amounted to a capitalization of fifty-five thousand per mile, more than double the estimated cost of the greater portion of the road. And the capitalization had a great deal to do with the regulation of freight rates in the future.

Sir Wilfrid explained that the government was guaranteeing 75 per cent. of the cost of the mountain section, 600 miles, not to exceed thirty thousand a mile, a total of eighteen millions, so that the total cost would be about twenty-four millions. The government 75 per cent. guarantee of the 1000 miles of prairie would be thirteen millions in all, so that the total cost of the prairie section would be between sixteen and seventeen millions. Taking the latter figure for the prairie section and twenty-five millions for the mountain section, the company would have to provide forty-two millions for construction, plus twenty millions for rolling stock, a total of sixty-two millions. As the stock could not be sold at par, he thought the stock and authorized bond issue left the company not more than enough leeway to finance upon.

Mr. Borden found that the aggregate cost of the road to the Grand Trunk would be $63,000,000. Forty five millions capital and $52,000,000 total possible bond issue gave the company $97,000,000 or $33,000,000 more than the cost of the road, which he regarded as a little too much leeway.

Mr. Monk wanted to know whether the Grand Trunk Railway Company would put $25,000,000 into the new enterprise, or would get the stock as a gratuity.

Mr. Fitzpatrick replied that it might not be given in cash, but in something equivalent to cash. In this way the Grand Trunk Pacific would get the value of its stock from the Grand Trunk Railway.

Mr. Borden observed that this meant that the Grand Trunk would get the $25,000,000 of common stock for whatever they chose to pay for it.

Mr. Barker declared that the Grand Trunk Pacific could give paid-up stock as consideration for rights, powers and privileges acquired, upon the mere presentation of the claim that these rights, powers and privileges were worth $25,000,000. Who could contradict such a claim? he asked.

Capitalization Clause Adopted.

Mr. Haggart said it was clear that the Grand Trunk did not propose to pay anything like $25,000,000 for the stock. They had not the credit to raise the money. The Grand Trunk, he said, already owes the government of Canada some $30,000,000, and the claim is worthless. He did not regard the proposed capitalization as too large. It must not be forgotten, however, that it would be necessary for the G. T. R. to build a branch to Lake Superior, another branch to North Bay and still another branch to Montreal.

The clause fixing the capitalization at $45,000,000 was adopted.

Mr. Fitzpatrick explained that the director of the company nominated by the government would not be a shareholder of the company. He said the object was to place the director in a position to tell the government what was going on.

The question was then put on Mr. McCarthy's amendment to give the company power to build branch lines from the government's eastern division to North Bay, Nipissing Junction or Gravenhurst, Port Arthur, Fort William and Montreal.

Mr. McCarthy's amendment was adopted.

Amendments were also added to enable the Grand Trunk Pacific to lease the eastern section from the government.

Mr. Fowler moved to add to the bill that all freights originating on the line of the G.T.P. intended for export via the Atlantic shall, unless otherwise ordered, be carried to a Canadian port and the rates to a Canadian port shall not be higher than an American port.

Mr. Fielding could not see any good purpose to be served by the proposal as this same provision was contained in the proposed contract between the government and the G.T.P. Company.

The amendment was defeated and the bill reported, so that it stands for a third reading.

DR. FIFE FOWLER DEAD.

Kingston, Aug. 3.—Dr. Fife Fowler, one of the founders of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, now affiliated with Queen's University, died this afternoon, aged 80 years. The deceased was born at Elgin, Scotland, and was educated at Aberdeen and Edinburgh Universities. He came to Canada in 1854 and settled in Kingston. The deceased was a clever physician. He was president of the Oddfellows' Relief Association for many years. His wife, one son, Henry, barrister, Toronto, and four daughters survive. He was president of the Ontario Medical Council in 1892.

THIRTY PERSONS KILLED.

Train Runs Twenty Miles Down Sharp Grade and Collides.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—A despatch to The Volks Zeitung from Breslau reports a serious disaster on the railway between Sucha and Kalvaria, Austrian Silesia. A train consisting of eleven cars heavily loaded with stone broke their coupling and ran at a terrific speed down a sharp grade for 20 miles until it collided with a passenger train. Thirty persons are said to have been killed and 52 others severely injured.

Attempted Murder.

Winnipeg, Aug 3.—Last night a young man, about 20 years of age, of extremely tough appearance, was arrested for attempted murder. He was raising a racket in the Windsor Hotel. When thrown into the street, he pulled a knife and, running at the bartender, Bert Corley, stabbed him in the abdomen just below the ribs. Altho the wound is a nasty one, the long knife having been thrust in up to the hilt, Corley will probably recover unless complications set in.

Colored Folk Jubilee.

Chatham, Aug. 3.—Emancipation Day was celebrated here to-day by the colored population, who were joined by a contingent from Windsor and Detroit. A procession was organized, and led by the Peninsular Band paraded the thorofares. In the afternoon there were speeches and games at Tecumseh Park, and this evening a grand ball and cake walk was held.

Attacked by a Dog.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The 2-year-old child of Albert Poulin, a butcher, living at Gatineau Point, will probably die as a result of injuries inflicted by a dog. The child was playing with the brute and wanted to take a bone from him. The dog turned on the child and tore his scalp from his skull.

Frisco Had an Earthquake.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—An earthquake lasting nearly 30 seconds was experienced here at 1.50 yesterday afternoon. The quake was of the longest duration in many years. It was not of a violent character.

14 Bushels an Acre.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 3.—Reports received from reliable sources covering the three great hard wheat growing States—Minnesota, North and South Dakota—indicate that the probable average yield of wheat in those states will be 14.05 bushels an acre.

500 Buildings Burned.

Constantinople, Aug. 3.—A conflagration has devastated the town of Armenak, villayet of Adna, Asia Minor. The mosque, the other public buildings four hundred shops and sixty houses were destroyed. The population is in the greatest distress.

January 12, 1903.

Allow me to say a few words as to the merits of the Iron-ox Tablets. I have used them constantly for indigestion and palpitation of the heart, also sour stomach, and I can assure you that I have derived great benefit from them. I wish you continued success with the Iron-ox Tablets, for they are certainly all right. I always keep Iron-ox in the house.

GEO. HANSON FELL 40 FEET

Frank Logan of Thorndale Lies at the Point of Death With a Fractured Skull—He Fell 29 Feet at a Barn Raising—Two Drownings, One at Prescott and the Other at Kingsville, Both Young Men.

St. Mary's, Aug. 3.—George Hanson, a stonemason and contractor, met a horrible death this afternoon about 4.30 o'clock by falling 40 feet from a scaffold on which he was working. The joist on which he was standing gave way, owing to the great weight of stone and mortar which had been piled upon it.

Another workman, James Clyde, also fell and was badly cut and bruised, but will likely recover.

Fractured His Skull.

Ingersoll, Aug. 3.—Frank Logan of Thorndale, lies at the point of death at Edmund Scatcherd's farm in Nissouri, the result of a terrible fall he sustained Friday. Logan was engaged with a number of other men in raising a barn for Mr. Scatcherd, and was at one of the highest portions of the frame, when in some manner he missed his footing, and fell to the ground, a distance of twenty-nine feet. He fell on his head and fractured his skull.

His Foot Amputated.

Took Cramp and Sank.

Prescott, Aug. 3.—A sad drowning accident occurred about 3 o'clock this evening. A young lad named Robert Gaw, about 17 years of age, was in bathing at the derrick east of the C. P.R. station, and while swimming in deep water took a cramp and sank to the bottom. The body was recovered in about 20 minutes. Medical aid was on the spot early, and the doctors worked hard, but were not successful in bringing back life. Robert Gaw was a son of Mr. Thomas Gaw of this place.

Drowned While Bathing.

Kingsville, Aug. 3.—Reginald, son of Fraser Westcott of Molsons Bank, was drowned in the lake while bathing this afternoon.

CANADIANS IN THE WAR.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—(Special.)—Replying this morning to a question by Lieut.-Col. Hughes, Sir Frederick Borden said that Capt. Dixon was sent to South Africa with the first contingent commissioned to write for the government a record of the Canadians in the war. That historical record had not yet been received, but when it came to hand it would be laid on the table of the House if deemed of sufficient importance.

Capt. Dixon is on the reserve of officers, the Minister further said, and has not been in the pay of the government since his arrival in South Africa.

San Domingo's New Rulers.

Santo Domingo City, Aug. 3.—The new government has been installed and is composed as follows: Senor M. J. Galvan, Foreign Minister; Senor Espailat, Minister of War: Senor J. B. Rache, Minister of Finance; Senor J. D. Pichard, Minister of Agriculture; Senor Bido, Minister of Posts and Telegraph: Senor Febles, Minister of the Interior; Senor Despradel, Minister of Justice.

The country is quiet, and business is increasing. The government intends to favor agricultural enterprises.

Building Operations Stop.

Pittsburg, Aug. 3.—As a result of the Builders' League lockout, 18,000 men were out of employment to-day, and the officers of the league say that the number will be increased to 24,000 the total number of men affiliated with the building trades council. Work has been stopped on all the buildings in course of erection in the city, with the exception of the contracts of the George A. Fuller Company and a few other outside contractors.

Pitchforked a Man.

Bradford, Aug. 3.—On Friday afternoon a young man named F. Hanmore, working for William Church of West Gwillimbury, ran a pitchfork into Church's side just below the heart. As fears are now entertained that the wound may prove fatal, a warrant was issued last night for the arrest of Hanmore and he was sent to Barrie this morning for trial. The men were quarrelling about the work being done when the assault took place.

Encountered a Hurricane.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 3.—The Nova Scotia schooner Strathcona, Capt. Gerald, reports having encountered a hurricane of four hours' duration on July 24, while on the way from Barbados to St. John with molasses, and furious winds and monstrous seas struck the vessel while passing along the southern edge of the Gulf Stream, and besides the loss of 40 casks of molasses the schooner's bowsprit and deck moveables were carried away.

Big Riot in Buffalo.

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 3.—A fierce riot broke out in front of the Niagara elevator on Ohio-street to-day, and as a result 45 Italians are under arrest, and detectives are looking for more. Fortunately no one was hurt, altho scores of shots were exchanged. The riot was provoked by an employe of the Niagara elevator, who called "scab" at the Italians as they were passing along Ohio-street.

Harvest Has Commenced.

Plum Coulee, Man., Aug. 3.—John Harder and Abraham Hiebert commenced wheat cutting to-day. Hiebert has over a hundred acres ready to cut.

PASSED TO SECOND READING

Irish Land Bill Discussed in the House of Lords.

Duke in Moving the Second Reading Used the Arguments Previously Uttered in the Commons by Mr. George Wyndham, the Irish Secretary—Bill in the Nature of a Treaty of Peace—Viscount Hampden's Attack.

London, Aug. 3.—The Duke of Devonshire moved the second reading of the Irish land bill in the House of Lords to-day. He urged the same arguments in favor of the necessity for passing the measure as were previously uttered by Mr. George Wyndham, the Irish Secretary, in the House of Commons. The Duke declared that the Government was confident that the expenditure of the $60,000,000 provided in the bill would be fully compensated for by economics in the judicial machinery and the reducing in the police expenses, which the adoption of the measures would render possible. In conclusion the speaker declared that the House of Lords could not substantially alter the bill, as adopted by the House of Commons, without serious risk of losing it altogether. The bill was in the nature of a treaty or instrument of peace, and although it would be rash to predict that it would prove a final settlement of the Irish question serious alteration would release the contracting parties from the obligations that were mutually undertaken. Never before, he said, had the representatives of the various interests concerned asked Parliament to sanction a settlement, the main principles of which they had themselves suggested.

One of its stoutest opponents was Viscount Hampdon, Liberal, who characterized it as thoroughly mischievous and corrupt. He said it would result in a land war more fierce, thus embittered, than any which preceded it. The discussion was concluded soon after midnight, when the bill was passed to a second reading without division.

Sugar and Bounties.

London, Aug. 3.—In the House of Commons to-day, replying to Mr. Lough (Liberal), who asked whether communications had passed between the governments of the United States and Great Britain relative to the possibility of the prohibition of American bounty-aided sugar, if the sugar convention bill passed, Viscount Cranborne, Foreign Under Secretary, said that the decision whether the sugar was aided by bounties lay entirely with the commission dealing with the subject. In the absence of such finding, there was no call for any action on the part of the British government.

LABOR TROUBLES IN SPAIN.

Immediate Cause Is the Demand For the Imprisoned Strikers.

Madrid, Aug. 3.—The threatened general strike commenced to-day in several centres, including Barcelona, Murcia, Cadis, Renda and Alcoy. The general unrest is largely attributed to bad harvests, but the immediate motive for the strike is to reinforce the demand for the release of numerous workmen, who have been thrown into prison for offences in connection with recent strikes. The leaders of the movement are exhorting the members of the trade unions not to return to work until all the imprisoned men have been released.

The government has taken stringent measures to cope with disturbances. The military forces and the civil guards have been reinforced wherever necessary, and the troops have been confined to barracks. The instigators of the strike are threatened with severe penalties.

The residence of the Mayor and a number of private houses at Alcala Province of Cadiz, have been attacked by strikers, who exchanged shots with the gendarmery.

EDISON'S EYESIGHT INJURED.

New York, Aug. 3.—That loss of sight, cancerous disease and even death may come to him who is continuously exposed to or inexperienced in the use of Roentgen rays has been demonstrated in a pitiable manner in the laboratory of Thomas A. Edison at Orange, N.J. Clarence Dally, an assistant to the "Wizard of Menlo Park," has contributed an arm and a hand to this demonstration, while Mr. Edison himself suffers from the distudbed focus of one of his eyes thru experiments with this mysterious light in an endeavor to find for it some commercial utility.

The chief sufferer, Dally, who has a wife and two boys to take care of, is left to depend entirely upon the generosity of Mr. Edison, in whose interest, supplemented by an enthusiastic desire to delve deeper in that mysterious force which brings to view objects concealed in solid matter, he has been incapacitated from taking up the life burdens and duties that usually fall to a man.

SALARIES OF COMMISSIONERS.

Chairman to Get $10,000 a Year and Other Two $8,000 Each.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—(Special.)—The government has decided upon the salaries to be paid the railway commissioners. The chairman is to receive a salary of $10,000 a year and the other two commissioners $8000 each. The salary of the secretary is not to exceed $4000 and the salaries of other members of the staff, as well as the expenses of the commission generally, are to be fixed by the Governor-in-Council. The salaries of the commissioners are to be paid monthly out of the revenues of the country, the other salaries and the expenses are to be voted annually by parliament. These provisions as to salaries and expenses will be added to the bill before its third reading is taken.

STRIKES EPIDEMIC.

Many Cossacks Reported Killed in Conflict With Mob.

London, Aug. 4.—The correspondents of The Times report the continued spread of labor troubles and prolonged suspension of traffic on the Baku-Tiflis Railway, which runs thru the Caucasus, connecting the Black and the Caspian Seas, with the result that the intervening towns between Baku and Tiflis are partially famine-stricken. Many Cossacks are reported to have been killed in encounters with mobs. Strikes are reported epidemic thruout South Russia. Twenty-five thousand men are idle at Odessa. Thus far no serious disorders have occurred at Odessa.

THE SIXTH BALLOT FUTILE.

No Election of a Successor to Leo XIII. Yet.

Rome, Aug. 3.—After three full days of deliberation, during which six ballots have been taken, the members of the conclave still remain shut up in the Vatican without having selected a successor to Leo XIII. This evening the crowd estimated at 18,000 persons watched the smoke from the Sistine Chapel, announcing the futility of the sixth ballot.

To Define U.S. Rights of Free Speech.

Scranton, Aug. 3.—William Law, a wealthy coal operator, to-day engaged attorneys to bring action against Mayor Connell and the City of Scranton for police interference with Carrie Nation when she attempted to speak in Nay Aug Park last week. Mr. Law says he was rudely handled by the police on the occasion of one of Mrs. Nation's four arrests. He says his action is not a personal one, but is solely actuated by the motives of public good. He wants the courts to define the rights of free speech.

Traitorous Servian Officer.

Belgrade, Aug. 3.—A Servian officer has been arrested here on the charge of selling the mobilization to a foreign power. It is believed that he had several accomplices. A rigorous investigation is proceeding.

C.P.R. Traffic Receipts.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—The traffic receipts of the C. P. R. for the week ending July 31 amounted to $1,324,000, as compared with $1,160,000 for the same period last year.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

The people of Manitoba do not seem to be any more enamored of the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme, now that its details have been made public by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, than they were while it was "in the air." The Winnipeg Telegram deals the project some body blows, and from its article we give a few excerpts:

"Sir Wilfrid talked like a schoolboy working up a peroration about the western prairies, the buffalo, the red men, and the coming of the white man. One would think he had just been informed that development had occurred up here. His Government has certainly never acted as if it realized the problems of this country, and it is certainly as far astray now as it ever was, if it thinks the West will consent to the building of a Government line from Winnipeg to Moncton for the special use and benefit of one private company. Schoolboy rhetoric cannot make this palatable.

"As a transportation proposition the scheme is, under circumstances that will prevail for many years, unsound. It is fatally handicapped by not being in a position to take advantage of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence during the greater part of the year. It is an unnecessary and wasteful duplication of the Intercolonial between Quebec and Moncton, where for a saving of only about 100 miles in length it condemns to perpetual unproductiveness a public investment of over $68,000,000. And it does not touch the main sources of return freight for the West, which would have to be collected by the Grand Trunk and handed over by an extension of the North Bay line. By reason of its location the bulk of through freight in both directions would pass over the new line only between Winnipeg and the North Bay branch of the Grand Trunk, by which eastbound freight would be diverted to the Grand Trunk system and from which westbound freight would be received.

"Details of this outrageous scheme will be examined later. For the present, suffice to say that it is quite as bad as the worst fears painted it. No wonder Mr. Blair resigned. The public must awake to the realization of its responsibility to deal with this crisis. Indifference will be a crime. We want more railway facilities, but we can get them on sound and economical lines. It is not a choice between this scheme and nothing, but between this scheme and a dozen better ones. If no private company will act on fairer terms, than we can build and operate the whole line ourselves."

The motions in question have appeared in full in these columns, and have evidently made a favorable impression in the executive council of the leading trade body in the British Empire. Belleville's delegates should feel honored.

Mothers Everywhere in Canada Praise

LACTATED FOOD

When a baby's life is saved the grateful and loving mother is always ready to acknowledge the value of the agent that defeated sickness and death.

Already, this summer, scores of letters have been received from happy and thankful mothers, testifying strongly in favor of Lactated Food, and declaring that it saved their babies from sickness and death.

No other food in Canada has ever been so highly improved and endorsed by mothers and physicians. Lactated Food is now doing a grand work for weakly and ailing little ones. It quickly builds up flesh, bone and muscle, and makes the babies bright and happy. Try Lactated Food for your baby during the month of August. Your druggist sells it.

The new boat pointed higher and sailed faster than Shamrock I. throughout the race, and in the opinion of her friends, gave a wonderful exhibition. Shamrock I. was a mile astern at the finish.

OLD BOYS AT PICTON.

REUNION WAS A HIGHLY ENJOYABLE AFFAIR.

At 1 o'clock to-day the steamer Ella Ross took about four hundred of the Old Boys and their friends down the Bay of Quinte. The summer resorts and Glen Island, Glenora, Hay Bay and other places of interest were visited and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. The Citizens' Band was on board and furnished the music.

Mayor Boulter and other town officials accompanied the excursionists. It is conceded on all sides that this has been the most successful reunion that has yet been held.

OVER A MILLION MEMBERS.

Paterson, N.J., Aug. 3.—The Rev. Dr. W. H. Roberts, State Clerk of the General Assembly, has issued the figures of the Presbyterian Church for 1903. The most striking feature is the falling off in the number of ordinations. The number is 184 this year, 52 less than the ordinations for 1902. The total membership was 975,877 in 1898, and at present is 1,067,477. In finances for home mission the amount given last year was $1,293,321.

The amount for foreign missions was $905,086. There was given to colleges $405,000, and the Los Angeles General Assembly cost $94,400.

Hospital Board Resolution.

At a meeting of the Hospital Board, held July 25th, 1903, the following resolution was carried unanimously: "That the Hospital Board regrets deeply the impertinent allusion and false statements made by the Ontario in a recent issue regarding two of our most highly esteemed and best workers, Mrs. J. J. B. Flint and Mrs. L. W. Yeomans."

Literary Notes

MISTRESS AND MAID.

The vexing question of the relations of mistress and servant is considered by Margaret Hall in the housekeeping columns of The Delineator for September, and a novel suggestion made for its solution, namely, to invoke the aid of the women's clubs, temporarily recognizing them along such lines as stations for establishing a sound intelligence office system, an honest scale of wages, proper reference system, etc. This solution would need to be tried before passing upon its merits.

Everybody will be interested in the views of that radical British Protestant, Mr. W. T. Stead, on the character and career of the late Pope. In an article on Leo XIII. which he contributes to the American Review of Reviews for August, Mr. Stead says:

"He made thinkable once more the possibility of the realization of the great ideal of the early Popes, and he compelled even the most embittered enemies of the Papacy to recognize the immense possibilities for good that lie latent in what might be the central headquarters of the Intelligence Department of the moral sense of mankind. He has disarmed the hostility of his ancient foes, and round his bier Protestant, Freethinker, and Catholic sorrowed as brothers at the tomb of their common father."

EVERYBODY SHOULD TAKE A VACATION.

Whether it be for a few days or a few weeks, the change of occupation, the peaceful quiet rest in the woods, or a trip through the charming lakes and rivers of "the Highlands of Ontario," breathing in the pure air, impregnated with the odor of the balsam and pines, will not only do you and your family good, but will make you of more benefit to your employer. Think of this and call on U. E. Thompson, C. P. & T. A. or T. H. Coppin, station agent, Grand Trunk Railway. j28toa8

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

I could never forgive myself. It is easy to see how, from your father's point of view, your marriage with Ralph should appear very desirable. He seems to be a pleasant young man, and his keenness, good character and steadiness are naturally qualities that appeal to the favor of a man like your father. Besides, he will be quite rich; and the fact of Rolff House being likely to be his inheritance is another thing in his favor. Since you were a little girl, your father has talked of your being one day mistress of Rolff House, and of seeing it restored to its old dignity. Although he never liked Claude, this hope induced him to look favorably upon his attentions to you. Had Claude remained home, and settled down as heir to the estate left him, all would have been well. But his strange departure, and the stranger results that have followed, by which the Saybrooks seem to have become the owners of nearly all his property, have greatly embittered your father's feelings toward him. He seems to regard the idea of your marriage with him as a thing to be prevented at all hazards. For my part, although I had always liked Claude, and believed in his truth and sincerity, I must confess his hurried desire to get away as soon as his aunt was dead, his strange sacrifices to raise money, his unaccountable letter—all have shaken my former faith in him. I trust that every suspicion against him may be untrue; but you know, my dear child, that this is a world of temptation, in which the noblest and best sometimes fall; and we can fully trust no one."

"I know Claude's faults," replied Rosa; "I know that he was ambitious and reckless of the opinions of those he did not care for; but I would stake my life on his truth and goodness."

"I, too, have believed as you, my dear child," said the mother; "but yet we must remember that Claude's very generosity and carelessness of the world's criticism would be the qualities that would expose him to the most temptation when cast upon his own resources out in the world."

Rosa was silent. She could see the soundness of her mother's reasoning. It was but an echo of the fear that had always lain at her own heart. And yet—yet she still clung to her faith in her lover, she knew not why; perhaps, as the drowning man clings to a straw, because it was the only hope left of safety to her perishing dream of happiness. Although it consoled her greatly to have her mother's full confidence once more Rosa could profit nothing by her counsel. She was left still to her own unaided resolution to make the decision so important to her future weal or woe.

On the morning after her conversation with her mother, Rosa, full of anguish and undecision, arrayed herself for a walk in the open air, hoping the clear, bright day, the fresh breeze, the songs of the birds, and the cheerful aspect of Nature, would revive the intense strain of her feelings, and enable her to think and decide more clearly. She bent her steps almost unconsciously down the road and into the lane that led to the old woods, where she had taken leave of Claude. She was suddenly impelled with an irresistible desire to visit the spot where they had parted. She wandered down into the wood, and soon was seated in the place where she had listened to his last words. She remained a long time, giving herself up to sad reflections, and each moment feeling her resolution grow stronger to dare and endure everything before she would break the faith she had here pledged to remain true to him forever.

After awhile, she arose and walked on, following the path that wound in the direction of Rolff House. Suddenly she came on the figure of a man, seated on a rock by the path, and partially concealed by a large tree. She stopped and uttered a little cry, when he turned his head and she saw that it was Carl Crum.

The old fellow arose and greeted her with outstretched palms, in which she placed both her own hands.

"Well-a-day," he exclaimed, "who would have thought to meet you here, rosebud? But I am glad to see you taking the good medicine of air and sunshine, although, judging from your pale cheeks, you do not take enough of it. Ah, I love to see the cheeks of the young rosy, and their eyes bright with happiness. You do not appear happy Rosa."

"I am not happy," replied Rosa, feeling all reserve depart in the presence of the old man's pleasant face and kindly smile; "I am very, very unhappy."

"And no doubt I can guess the reason therefor," replied old Carl, shaking his grizzled head. "I hear it reported that you are to marry Ralph Saybrook. Ah, it grieves me to hear so. I am no judge of human nature if that young man is not as cold and heartless a villain as ever ground the faces of the poor or murdered a woman by slow degrees. No, no, he is no mate for you, rosebud, and I need not ask to know that you can never give him your heart."

"There is no promise—no engagement," replied Rosa, anxious to clear herself from the implied rebuke of the old man's words; "but, alas, my father urges me to accept him, and it is only by a sacrifice of filial duty that I can escape a fate I shudder to think of."

These sad words aroused old Carl's sympathy as well as curiosity, and, determined to fathom what he already conceived to be a plot of his hated enemy, he gradually and skillfully drew from Rosa the whole story of the scheme to force Ralph Saybrook on her favor as a suitor.

"So, so," muttered the old man, after he had learned every detail of the matter, "they would force you to marry young Ralph, and they are to fit up Rolff House as a bridal present, eh! Now, by all the good angels, that scheme should never prosper. Let me advise you, rosebud. I am old enough to be a little wise, and in this matter I feel so deep a sympathy for you that I long to help you, and I think I have a plan in my head that will do it. I can see that you shrink from disobeying your father, although the thought of marriage with Ralph is as repugnant to you as can be. Well, as I understand it, that old fox has caught your father with a promise that he will fit up Rolff House for you and Ralph when you are married. Perhaps he means to, but there may be difficulties in the way that he little dreams of. Ah, he's a crafty villain; but we will be crafty too. Now rosebud, mark me. You go back home and tell your father that you have made up your mind and that you will marry Ralph on one condition. Let that condition be that the wedding shall not take place till Rolff House is repaired and restored to its former grandeur. Now, don't look astonished; trust an old man who would give his life for you, and would rather see you dead than married to Ralph Saybrook. My word for it, they will never go far in the work of repairing and restoring Rolff House. Strange things have happened in the old house; and stranger things may yet come to pass. The popular belief is that it is haunted. Of course, this is silly; yet there is a mystery about the house, and, my word for it, it will never be repaired and restored save by the rightful heir. At least, the plan I propose would give you time, and relieve you for awhile from the strain of anxiety that is undermining your health; and so far it would be good. It will take a long time to fully repair Rolff House, and much may happen in the meantime. I feel assured we can trust the future. The good Lord will help us. He always helps those who put their trust in him. Do as I counsel, rosebud, and if all does not turn out well, we shall at least have time to arrange new plans."

The hearty eagerness with which the old man entered into the subject of her troubles, his kindly sympathy, and ready advice, were very grateful to Rosa. He seemed for the moment a good angel sent to comfort and help her. His advice appeared to her wise and shrewd; but she hesitated to use any deception toward her father. Old Carl, however, used his best endeavors to convince her that some craft was necessary to meet the crafty schemes of the lawyer, and urged his plan so confidently that she was at last fully convinced that if she gave her promise as advised she would most probably never be called upon to fulfill it.

And so, her spirits much restored, and deeply resolving the subject in her mind, she returned home. Her father was sitting in his accustomed chair on the stoop as she entered the yard smoking his pipe. Rosa did not seek to avoid him, as she might have done, had she not had old Carl's plan in her mind. On the contrary, she boldly approached him, and, stopping beside his chair, placed her hand on his shoulder. The old man looked up, and was evidently puzzled a moment by her bright and cheerful look.

"Eh, been walking?" he said, enquiringly. "It has done you good. Where have you been?"

"Down through the woods, and over toward Rolff House, father," was the reply.

"Well, what was there to see there?" he asked, half suspiciously.

Her sudden return to cheerfulness was evidently puzzling to him.

"There was much to be seen," she replied, keeping in mind the carrying out of old Carl's advice. "For one thing, there was Rolff House. I must decide, you know, whether I will like it for my future home."

"Eh?—so, so; to be sure, to be sure," he replied, a surprised smile stealing over his face. "It's very proper you should do so. But you'll be sure to like it when it is all fixed up again. Ah, it was a grand place once, Rosa."

"So you have told me, father," she replied; "and I have made up my mind that if it is fully restored to its ancient dignity I would like to be mistress of it."

These words had a decidedly enlivening effect on the old farmer. He looked at his daughter again, as if he was not quite sure he was not deceived in what he had heard; but the glance seemed to reassure him.

"I am glad to hear you say so," he replied, cheerfully. "I've always said you'd wake up yet and know what is best for you. Why, any girl might be proud to be mistress of Rolff House. When it is fixed up again, Ralph and you can live there like king and queen."

"But there's one thing, father," Rosa made haste to say. "I have never been satisfied that Mr. Saybrook has a good title to the house. It seems so strange that Claude should make it over to him. There may be some deception about it. I hope you will allow me to refuse to marry Ralph till the house is fully repaired and restored, and the title is made perfectly clear."

"To be sure I will," replied the bluff old fellow. "No need to advise me about that. We must have a written agreement, and they must carry everything out to the letter. I'll see to that. Yes, yes, by my dunder, we'll have that all straight. Never shall you leave this house, little girl, till there's a place fit for a queen to put you in."

"I have one more favor to ask, father," said Rosa.

"I do not wish Ralph to be anything more to me than he is now till after Rolff House is fully repaired. Something might happen, you know."

"Of course, of course—that shall be as you wish," answered the old man. "It's always well to be careful. Keep him off; yes, yes—'twill hurry up matters. Ah, you're a shrewd little girl; that's my own Rosa now."

Bending over and imprinting a kiss on his cheek, Rosa turned and went in the house, anxious not to commit herself any further in the implied consent to marry Ralph Saybrook.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Lack of energy was not a characteristic of lawyer Saybrook. Having resolved on carrying out the scheme which involved the repair and restoration of Rolff House, he proceeded about the business with a nervous, restless, fretful energy peculiar to him.

As he had anticipated, he found that there existed a prejudice among the mechanics and workingmen of the place against having anything to do with the old house. Few would confess that they were superstitious or timid enough to be afraid of the ghosts, if any there existed, in broad daylight, yet all seemed to have a convenient excuse for not engaging in the lawyer's employ. It was evident that the mysterious death of Leb. Sackett was not forgotten, and that the popular mind was disposed to take the most superstitious view of that tragic occurrence.

The lawyer's task was not rendered any easier by the action of old Carl Crum. That worthy had of late fallen into one of his freaks of visiting Ronk's bar-room of an evening, where of course the proposed changes at Rolff House formed one of the chief topics of gossip. Over pipe and toddy, many were the wonderful stories revived or invented in regard to the old mansion. Old Carl would sit and listen to these, leaning back in his chair, his head sunk on his chest and half hid by his round, broad shoulders, while his red face and keen blue eyes, framed in by his floating, frowsy white hair and beard, and half seen through the veil of smoke from his short pipe, gave him the appearance of some old magician, whose occult knowledge might well extend to whatever was mysterious and unaccountable. But when appealed to for his opinion on any of the superstitious tales in regard to the old mansion, the old fellow would simply reply with a grave shake of the head, which seemed to indicate that he wasn't disposed to reveal what he knew about the matter. Only once did he open his lips on the subject.

It was late one evening. The bar-room was filled, and among the company were several who had been approached by the lawyer with a view to engage their services in the repairs at Rolff House. Of course, the conversation was directed to that all-important topic.

"Well, for my part," said one of the oracles—a pursy, downright little man, who spent most of his abundant spare time in the bar-room—waving his right hand energetically as he talked, "I wouldn't go near that old house for any money—no, not for all the treasure there is in the great vault, that old Magnus Rolff sold his soul for. No gentlemen—no, sir. And why?"

"Perhaps because you are afraid you might have to do some work," replied the landlord, sarcastically.

There was a titter from a few of the circle.

"No, sir, no, sir," replied the little man, nothing daunted, and growing more serious in his manner; "because, sir, there's no telling when old Magnus Rolff may be let loose from the infernal regions to visit his treasures in the old house. Who wants to meet him? I don't, gentlemen. Leb. Sackett's fate is warning enough for me."

"Pooh!" said a large, red-whiskered, pleasant-faced man, one of the few skeptics in the place in regard to the stories told about Rolff House. "Who believes that story?"

"I do," responded the little man promptly. "There's no doubt about it. He's been seen more than once. It's gospel truth, gentlemen. Here—I'll leave it to old Carl."

The old man was accustomed to these appeals; but of late, as has been said, had replied only with a grave shake of the head, which, however, was more effective than words in confirming the impression as to his knowledge of the alleged mysterious events. On this occasion, however, he chose to speak.

"All I have to say in reply to the question of our friend," he said, "is that if anything couuld rouse old Magnus Rolff from his grave—if he ever had a grave—it would be for that precious rascal, Anthony Saybrook, or any of his agents, to enter Rolff House for the purpose of despoiling it."

Saying this, the old man settled back in his chair again, and resumed his smoking. His words produced an impression, and were quoted about the village next day in an exaggerated form to the effect that old Carl had prophesied that if any attempt was made to enter the old house the spirit of Magnus Rolff would be roused from his grave to resist it.

Spite of all the reluctance he found among those whom he approached on the subject, to engaging in his employ to assist in repairing Rolff House, Anthony Saybrook did not grow discouraged. He well knew the powers of persistency, flattery and ridicule, and he employed them with all his skill. Some he coaxed into acceptance, others he ridiculed so unsparingly for their cowardice that they were fain to give way at last, while a few were not half disposed to believe in the ghost stories, and were ready enough to accept his terms.

So the work of restoring and repairing was begun at Rolff House. A force of laborers was put to work in improving the grounds, while carpenters and masons entered the old house to commence their labors there.

It was Anthony Saybrook's design to materially change the old house, but simply to put it in good repair. The walls and frame were as substantial as ever, and needed but little attention.

It was evident enough that most of the workmen entered the old house with reluctance, and that they were prepared to witness some strange developments. Even had nothing mysterious occurred, some of the more timid or superstitious, under the strain of nervous expectation, would probably have fancied ere long that they heard or saw something out of the usual way.

But something did occur.

The first forenoon's work in Rolff House had not passed by before all present in the house were alert and listening to a mysterious sound that occurred occasionally. It was a low, muffled, peculiar boom, that was heard at regular intervals, and soon began to attract attention and remark. It was not loud, and yet it seemed to penetrate every part of the great building, and to be heard above the sound of the tools in use. Perhaps the senses of the hearers were sharper from a sort of nervous dread and expectation, but certain.

There is nothing equal to Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator for destroying worms. No article of its kind has given such satisfaction.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer Complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

For coughs, colds, bronchitis and all lung and throat troubles, there is no preparation of medicine can compare with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It never fails to afford prompt and permanent relief. It removes all soreness, and heals the diseased parts. It immediately soothes the most troublesome cough, and by promoting expectoration, removes the mucus which stops up the air tubes which causes difficulty in breathing, thereby gives relief to that depressing tightness experienced in the chest. Public speakers and singers will find Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup of inestimable value, as it speedily and effectually allays all irritation, and huskiness in the throat and bronchial tubes, and gives power to the vocal cords, rendering the voice clear and sonorous. If parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves from much anxiety, trouble and expense, let them procure a bottle of "Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup," and whenever a child has taken cold, has a cough or hoarseness, give the Syrup according to directions.

To Those of Sedentary Occupation.—Men who follow sedentary occupations, which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver and kidneys than those who lead active, outdoor lives. The former will find in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills a restorative without question the most efficacious on the market. They are easily procurable, easily taken, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap considering their excellence.

A Sure Cure for Headaches. — Billious headache, to which women are more subject than men, becomes so acute in some subjects that they are utterly prostrated. The stomach refuses food, and there is a constant and distressing effort to free the stomach from bile which has become unduly secreted there. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a speedy alterative, and in neutralizing the effects of the intruding bile relieves the pressure on the nerves which cause the headache. Try them.

UNTOLD MISERY — WHAT A WELL-KNOWN COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER SUFFERED, AND HOW HE WAS CURED.—Gentlemen, About five years ago I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time travelling for Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine and when the third bottle was finished, I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of Dyspepsia.

He Has Tried It.—Mr. John Anderson, Kimloss, writes: "I venture to say few, if any, have received greater benefit from the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, than I have. I have used it regularly for over ten years and have recommended it to all sufferers I knew of, and they also found it of great virtue in cases of severe bronchitis and incipient consumption."

Little Maud Wanted A Chance Too

Maud and Margery worried the life out of their mother by running away. At least once a week she would alarm the neighbors, and a hunt would be started to find the runaways. Usually they had not gone far, but their mother was very much frightened every time she missed the little midgets. She determined to break them of this trick. Calling them to her room one day, she said: "Now, I have never whipped my little daughters, but if they run away again both of them are going to receive a smart whipping. Now, remember that the next time you are tempted to leave the yard."

The two little sisters looked very grave and promised never to run away again. But a few days after they forgot all about their mother's injunction and raced out of the yard and far down the street. Their mother found them talking to a big colored man and grimly brought them home. Then she took them into the house, gave them the switching promised and sat them down hard in two little chairs in the nursery. Maud's screams were terrific, and as her mother heard them from the library downstairs she said to herself, "Well, I guess the punishment has made an impression on those children, and they won't run away again."

Just then there was a momentary lull in Maud's yelling, and her mother heard Margery sob out: "Now, Maud, you just stop crying a minute. I want to have 'em hear me cry!"—New York Times.

Many people to this day have a superstitious dread of wearing opals, because they really believe ill luck is attached to this beautiful stone. Three centuries ago the opal was an exceedingly fashionable gem, and the Italian goldsmiths particularly favored its use for their most exquisite settings.

The opal was at the height of its popularity when the plague broke out in Venice. Some especially observant individual discovered that when a plague stricken sufferer was at the point of death the opal, if he wore one, would grow brighter, and after his death it would grow dull. The reason for this appears to have been that the burning fever warmed the stone and that after death the damp and chill of the body dulled it. But many deduced from this a belief that it was the opal that had brought death and misfortune, and with the spread of this superstition the opal declined in popular favor.

Many persons would on no account whatever even accept one as a gift, much less wear what they foolishly deem the unlucky opal.

A Midnight Balloon Ascension.

A REAL EXPERIENCE.

Aerostation.--M. Etienne Giraud, l'intrepide aeronaute, et M. Georges Hall de San Francisco, partis de Paris dans le Rolla, ont atterri a Cezy, situe a 5 kilometres de Joigny, apres une traversee de dix heures assez mouvementee, quoique sans accident.--"Le Figaro."

WE had agreed, my companion and I, that I should call for him at his house, after dinner, not later than eleven o'clock.

This athletic young Frenchman belongs to a small set of Parisian sportsmen, who have taken up "ballooning" as a pastime.

After having exhausted all the sensations that are to be found in ordinary sports, even those of "automobiling" at a breakneck speed, the members of the "Aero Club" now seek in the air, where they indulge in all kinds of daring feats, the nerve-racking excitement that they have ceased to find on earth.

I might add that these facts were but vaguely known to me before I had been introduced, by a mutual friend, to this new century young sportsman, and had accepted his invitation to accompany him in his next aerial voyage.

When we reached the vacant lot at the huge gas-works of Saint Denis, where our balloon was being inflated, I could not help feeling a bit alarmed at the sight of that little bubble—only a few hundred cubic metres—and the very small basket which were soon to take us up in the air.

All the "eclat," the ceremonial, and the emotional "good-byes" that usually accompany the "let her go!" of a balloon, were totally lacking when the "Rolla" left the earth. The start was effected in a quiet and business-like manner, and the act seemed so natural to the people who were helping us off, that their demeanor on this occasion had a beneficial and soothing effect on my excited nerves.

A few minutes after midnight, when the last little sacks of sand ballast had been hung out over the edge of our wicker-basket, when a final glance had been given to the ropes, the net, the valve, etc.—with a careless "au revoir" from the foreman of the gas-works, and a parting joke from the "cocher" who had driven us there—the dark forms, whose hands were holding us down, silently stepped back, and with a gentle and graceful swing the "Rolla" started off on its sixth ascension.

Had we taken with us another small sack of ballast, our balloon could not have left the earth. In other words, its ascensional force was almost balanced by the weight it was expected to carry. After rising about a hundred yards, and finding a trifle cooler current, which slightly condensed the gas, the "Rolla" ceased to ascend. We were met by a gentle breeze from the northwest, and began to cross Paris, a couple of hundred feet above the city.

It would take the pen of a Carlyle to describe our mysterious flight over Paris at midnight. The impression was so startling that for an hour we never spoke above a whisper.

Owing to the increasing coolness ot the atmosphere, our balloon had a slight, though constant, tendency to descend. But we easily kept our altitude by occasionally throwing overboard a spoonful or two of ballast.

After ascertaining that we would not come in contact with the towers of Notre Dame or the sharp edges of the Eiffel Tower, we decided to keep the same distance, and let the breeze do the rest.

On the right, at the very top of Montmartre, and looming up in the glow that surrounds it, stands the white basilica of the Sacred Heart, with its colossal marble statue of the Redeemer watching over the city.

The great boulevards roll out in every direction like ribbons of fire; we can hear, as we sail over them, the muffled rumbling of a thousand carriages, and we watch them as they dodge each other in their complicated course.

A cry, a call, from time to time, reaches our ears; but the others are lost in the mighty silence above us.

"There is the Opera," whispers the owner, as he points to a square silhouette, bathed in a lake of electric light.

I seem to have no fear, merely the sensation of relief that follows an irrevocable decision; with the feeling that we are tasting a forbidden fruit, breaking some divine and primeval law. All our faculties are concentrated in our eyes, and they feast on this wonderful sight.

"Those dark pits that dot the surface of Paris are gardens," explains the owner, "innumerable private parks; and most Parisians live and die without ever suspecting their existence."

A long and purple fissure that cuts the city in twain marks the Seine, long before we reach it. The "Rolla" feels the cool current that rises above the waters. A few handfuls of sand thrown overboard, and we resume our former position.

Our eyes are now accustomed to these weird and unusual effects, and few details of the picture escape us. In the distance another bright spot, Bullier, the students' ball, in the heart of the Latin quarter. That obscure mass beyond it must be the Luxembourg and its gardens.

Here we leave the dome of the Pantheon on our right. Below us the lights are gradually thinning out; we are passing over the crowded "faubourgs," where thousands of poor and tired human beings are resting in their sleep.

An ocean of darkness and silence opens up before us; we sail into it. The breeze freshens, and the glowing blaze of Paris soon fades away in the distance.

From now on the minutes drag, in the mysterious night that surrounds us, and every moment is heavy with anxiety; not a sound but the awful voice of everlasting silence. Those hours are endless, really hard to live, until at last the gray dawn steps out of the horizon.

Nature begins to awaken, and, with the first gleam of daylight, slowly the world comes back to life.

The first cry of a quail or the call of a pheasant is a delight to our ears. A dog barks and another howls. Lazy and sleepy peasants, leading huge oxen, drag themselves out of their farms, on their way to a hard day's work in the fields. The cocks crow lustily, and, in the distance, from the little town of Nemours, comes the melodious call of a bugle, arousing "Pitou," the French "Tommy Atkins," from his sleep.

The sun drives away the soft gray mist that lingers on the meadows; a few shadows here and there still mark the wooded valleys; but they soon melt away, and a glorious summer morning, in the beautiful land of Burgundy, bursts upon us from every side.

• • • • • •

We are now close to the little hamlet of Uri, and the voice of a cuckoo-clock tells us the hour, as it pipes up in the breeze its five double notes.

"The temperature is very even," remarks the captain, "and there is no danger of it rising or falling unexpectedly, at least for an hour or more. We might as well travel with the guide-rope, and skip along close to the earth."

The guide-rope, though a mere cable, about two hundred feet in length, is a very delicate instrument, and, after the anchor, the most important accessory to a balloon. When in operation, one end of the rope is attached to the basket, and a quarter or a fifth of its length is allowed to drag on the surface of the earth, where it regulates automatically the air-ship's aerostatic equilibrium.

If the balloon has a tendency to fall, an additional portion of the guide-rope drops on the ground. Instantly the "Rolla" is relieved of that much weight, and soon resumes its former altitude.

On the other hand, should the tendency be to rise, the extra amount of rope that it hauls up with it means for the "Rolla" a few pounds more to carry, and it gradually falls back to its original position.

It has also the serious advantage of saving gas, and sand ballast as well.

"That modest young fellow you met at dinner the other night," remarks the captain, "uses the guide-rope with great success as part of the steering-gear of his new 'aeronef,' the 'Santos-Dumont V.' We all expect to hear within a few weeks that Santos-Dumont has solved the great problem of aerial navigation."

The farmers, who cannot understand this new method of locomotion, are all eager to tug at the guide-rope, thinking we have decided to land.

"No, no; leave it alone!" shouts the owner. "We are simply out for a promenade!"

The children, who are playing scarecrow with the ravenous birds in the orchards, scream with astonishment and delight. An old woman folds her hands over her mouth like a megaphone and asks:

"Where the devil are you going like that?"

"To the moon."

"Ha! ha! Bon voyage!"

We glide peacefully over meadows and swamps, clearing hedges and trees, dragging the guide-rope behind us. As we pass over a lake in the park of an ideal country seat, we see the "Rolla" reflected in the clear waters below.

Yesterday's "Herald" predicted a depression within the next twenty-four hours—evidently a storm is creeping up behind us. But the same wind is driving us on, and we hope to keep out of its reach, even if we have to rise up in the heavens above it.

"If our balloon obeys as it should, we will soon have some fun," says the captain, as we reach the first trees of a thick forest.

The "Rolla" is so sensitive that by merely hauling in a few yards of the guide-rope, we gently descend on the tops of the trees, lightly skipping from one to the other; we brush by an elm, a poplar, or an ash, and pick as we pass their fresh green leaves.

This weird performance is fascinating beyond words. I have never heard of a "promenade" on the crest of a forest, and I wonder now and then if I am dreaming.

Such accuracy of movement is only possible with a very small balloon, in the early hours of the day, and with a perfectly even temperature. Of course, it is always dangerous, as the slightest mistake would lead to a hopeless disaster.

Suddenly, while crossing a deep ravine, the coolness of the air drags us down. The rocky banks of the torrent are upon us.

I open my mouth to offer a mild objection, when a hatful of ballast goes overboard; we instantly shoot up in the air, and, before I can realize what has occurred, the barometer marks six and seven thousand feet.

"From on high one appreciates to their full human things, and it is only necessary to have reached lofty altitudes to know the smallness of whatever appears great."—Alf. de Vigny.

I shall never forget this first and sudden leap to such terrifying altitudes. I thought we would never stop rising, and stood breathless as I saw the earth leave us, sink in at the center, and swell out at the horizon like a bowl.

Which of us has not often followed with delighted eyes the majestic flight of the clouds, and longed for their liberty and the freedom of their voyages in the skies?

Rolled in heavy masses by the winds that drive them on, they move peacefully in the sunlight like a fleet of sombre ships with prows of solid gold. Now bunched together in small and graceful groups, thin and sleek like birds of passage, they fly swiftly with the breeze—iridescent and translucent, like huge opals picked from the treasures of heaven, or sparkling with immaculate candor, like the snow the winds harvest on the crest of inaccessible sierras and carry off on their invisible wings.

They have seen, perhaps in a single day, the countries and the homes we love, and cherish in remembrance or in hope. They have passed over spots that have beaten time to our happiest hours; they have looked down upon places that have witnessed our deepest sorrows.

Up to their glittering realm we rise, and, cutting through the impalpable vapor, we reach the upper spheres of everlasting starlight and sunshine where begin the limits of the empyrean, that mysterious zone, visited only by the queen bee, once in her lifetime, on the day of her "nuptial flight."

The varied emotions of our trip above the clouds are simply superhuman, but the owner does not seem to enjoy them:

I know he is longing to play with the trees again; but before I can answer, the valve-rope is jerked, and we drop two or three thousand feet.

Looking up through the open appendix, I can see the interior of the balloon, the valve-rope hanging in the center, and watch the valve open and close at the top.

We are now traveling with the wind at a speed of forty miles an hour, but we feel no motion whatever. The hills, the meadows, the hamlets, rush toward us in a mad race, as if driven by the mighty hand of God.

The world looks like a painted atlas, with every little detail carefully marked. As I compare it with the military map in my hands, I cannot tell which is the better of the two; and, moreover, at this altitude, they seem both the same size.

The captain is throwing out ballast—quite a lot, it seems to me. But the barometer is still falling. Down we go, and in a moment we are close to earth again. Half a dozen peasants are harvesting in the grain-fields.

"Captain! we are dead birds this time!"

"Not yet," replies the owner, "but be sure before we touch ground to swing up on the hoop above you, or the shock might break your legs."

The advice is worth following. No sooner said than done, and the basket, after kicking off the top of a haystack, drops in the midst of the dumbfounded farmers.

Relieved for a second of its weight, the "Rolla" bounds ahead. More ballast flies out, and we are off on another trip to the clouds.

Exposed, as it is, alternately to the burning rays of the sun and the numerous cool currents that we meet on our way, the "Rolla" soon becomes flighty and hard to control. A few minutes later we are not two hundred feet over the meadow.

Another rise, without apparently any cause for it, and soon we are falling again; this time over the ancient city of Sens, with its beautiful cathedral in the center, around which the quaint old houses are huddled, and held close together by a belt of green boulevards.

As I wonder how we would look impaled on that sharp Gothic steeple, a dozen pounds of ballast sends us skyward like a rocket.

It was now ten o'clock. We had traveled, by actual measurement on the map, two hundred and eighty kilometers. The heat was increasing rapidly, and the sensitive bubble over our heads had become more erratic than ever. Down it would drop a few thousand feet, if a cloud happened to darken the sun, and then up three or four thousand, as soon as the cloud had passed on.

This constant "bobbing" up and down at a terrific pace, added to the heat and the lack of sleep, was gradually telling on our nerves. Ten hours in a basket, under such circumstances, is about as much as any ordinary man can stand. Without wasting any time in idle discussion, we decided to atterrir—in other words, to land, as soon as the necessary arrangements for this important operation had been completed.

The "Rolla" was then at nine thousand feet; we had lost the wind on our way up, and below, in the west, the storm was rapidly gaining on us.

We had still four sacks of sand ballast of the nine we had taken up with us. Every knot that held them to the basket was carefully examined—a precaution of vital importance, as we would soon be above the clouds again if any of them escaped us in the varied incidents that might attend our descent. The lunch-basket and our coats were also securely fastened, and the anchor partly unlashed and made ready to be dropped.

I held the barometer, with eyes glued upon its face, ready to call out our future altitudes. My companion, with the valve-rope in his right and the ballast-spoon within reach, was still gazing earnestly at the fields in the distance, where we hoped we might stand alive a few minutes later.

Not a word had been spoken for some time, when the captain said:

"Our landing, I think, will be a hard one—I dislike the way those trees are scattered beyond that narrow valley. We never should have alowed the storm to reach our heels—but it has to go now——" and his hand gives the valve-rope a long and heavy pull.

We can hear the gas sputter as it leaves the creaking silk.

Instantly the barometer drops. We have started on our final descent.

• • • • • •

The captain's fondness for "valving" had set us falling again at an awful speed, and the sand he was throwing out was rising around the "Rolla" in little thin clouds, and dropping like hail on the silk above us.

I looked down. The earth was rising!—rising to meet us, like a fabulous mother eager to receive her children in her outstretched arms.

I stood hypnotized and cold, until called back to my barometer. I saw that the captain's teeth were set, but his eye was clear and serene.

We now realize to its full extent the gravity of the situation.

The needle is jumping in my hands. "Twenty-two hundred metres—twenty-one-fifty—twenty-one——" The storm is not a mile behind us, and the heavy wind that precedes it rolls in graceful waves over the wheat and barley fields.

We are falling at an angle of thirty or forty degrees. Everything below us is moving at lightning speed.

My voice is slightly hoarse, but I call out the numbers as fast as I see them; and they follow each other in rapid succession.

The sudden change of altitude makes us both very deaf; but I can still hear the captain say:

"Haul in the other sack of sand. We must keep up long enough to clear that forest and land in the field beyond, this side of the large clump of trees."

The ballast is doing better work, and we are not falling quite so rapidly; but only half of the treacherous forest has been cleared. There is more and enough of it, that stands threatening below us.

"We shall never sail over it," mutters the owner.

At this moment we swing into a violent gale—forerunner of the storm behind us—the "Rolla" quivers in its net, seems to hesitate for a mere second, and bravely leaps ahead.

"Whatever happens, don't jump!" cries the captain.

Of course, had I done so at any time, he would have shot up in the air ten or fifteen thousand feet.

"Attention! Now is the psychological moment."

Like a hawk swooping down on its prey, and with the same graceful curve, the "Rolla" clears, with ten feet to spare, the crest of the last trees.

We hear the guide-rope dragging in the branches.

As quick as a flash the captain has the anchor overboard.

But the gale is driving us on, and the iron teeth fail to bite the sod.

The shock throws us back into it.

The balloon bounds on several hundred feet, rolling like a huge football. We are dragged, tossed, bumped and bruised. Everything in the basket is smashed to pieces, and the claret on the captain's face looks like blood.

I barely have time to disengage my neck from a couple of slender and wiry net-ropes that are doing their best to strangle me.

The anchor has found a soft spot, suddenly the cable tightens, and our aerial trip is ended.

By this time a few excited villagers have come to the rescue from the neighboring fields.

As we crawl from under the tangled mass of net-work and rigging, a terrorized child falls in a fit at the sight of this unusual performance, rolling in the grass and screaming with fright.

We are both rather pale and a bit weak in the knees; but, oh, the exquisite sensation to feel the good old earth under our feet again!

With every gust of wind he seems to exhale his life.

The plucky little fellow makes another desperate effort to rise up to the spheres he has conquered; but his strength at last betrays him, and he falls back on the green—empty, motionless, dead.—"Argonaut."

Dear Sir:—Through the kindness of a friend supplying me with a bottle of the O.R. Kidney Cure, I am now able to work, the first I have done in four years. I commenced improving before I had taken the first bottle, and before the third was finished I was able to start working. Before taking the O.R. Kidney Cure I tried different preparations without receiving any benefit. I feel much better now, and am sure that I have received a permanent cure.

Wishing you every success, I remain, yours very sincerely,

The Venom of Snakes.

The Carnegie Institute has granted $1,000 to the pathological laboratories of the University of Pennsylvania to aid in the investigation of snake poison which is going on there, says The New York Tribune. Upon lines that Dr. S. Weir Mitchell suggested, Dr. Simon Flexner and Dr. Hideyo Noguchi have been studying at the university for two years the venom of cobras, rattlesnakes and other poisonous reptiles. Highly interesting are the experiments that in the course of their work these two scientists have made. They believe that it is possible in time to discover for each kind of venom an antidote.

The choroforming of a snake and the extraction of its poison while it lies unconscious are an operation frequently performed and interesting to see. The snake is first seized with lasso about the middle. The lasso is a leather loop at the end of a stick like a broomstick, and the tightening of the loop holds the snake securely. After it is caught, its head is pinned down to a table with a notched stick that is pressed upon its neck. A tube one and one-half inches in diameter containing a sponge saturated with chloroform is slipped over the snake's head, as a glove is slipped over a finger, and soon the reptile is unconscious. An assistant then seizes it by the neck, and slips the edge of a saucer under its upper jaw in such a manner as to elevate the two fangs. These fangs now lie, as it were, upon the saucer. The operator takes them one at a time, between the thumb and forefinger of his right hand, and strips them forward—squeezes them, that is to say, from the base to the tip—and thus all their venom is extracted. This venom, yellow, and of the thickness of molasses, runs out upon the saucer, and it is gathered in a vial and sealed up.

In the experiments with live animals that the university carries, it is thought best to inject the venom hypodermically, rather than to allow the snake itself to do the injecting in the ordinary manner with its fangs, because a snake does not always strike effectively. Sometimes it fails to elevate its fangs sufficiently to inject into its victim more than a drop or two of venom. Sometimes it strikes fiercely and its teeth are actually fastened for a moment in the animal's flesh, but the fangs are doubled backward, and not a drop of venom is injected into the wound. Yet, to all appearances, the bite has been a terrible one, and an experimenter, administering to the wounded animal a certain antidote, would decide that this antidote was a marvellously potent one—would hold it to have cured the animal immediately—when, as a matter of fact, there would have been nothing the matter with the animal from the beginning.

On small animals the effect of a small dose of venom is almost immediately fatal. A pigeon, for instance, on receiving an injection of three or four drops, walks a few steps, crouches, gasps, rolls over on its side and in one or two minutes, sometimes in less than one minute, is stone dead.

On a larger animal, such as a dog, the poison does not act so powerfully. A thirty-one pound bull terrier was lowered into a rattlesnake's cage and was bitten on the right leg, near the thigh. The bite was a thorough one. The dog whined a little after it was drawn up, moped a while, and in fifteen minutes was so weak that it had to lie down. At the end of twenty-five minutes it could rise when bidden, though it was growing weaker. At the end of fifty minutes it had lost all power over its hind legs. At the end of eighty minutes its breathing was labored. At the end of three hours it was dead.

A man—one of the attendants—was bitten by a rattler at the university by accident. In a few minutes he became sick at the stomach and very weak. His face paled, a cold sweat broke out on him, his breathing was hurried, and his pulse feeble. This was the first stage of the attack, and in it the wound itself gave no pain. In the second stage—the stage of recovery—the wound was painful. The case of this man was typical. He was pulled through without trouble.

One experiment proves that the mechanism which controls the act of striking in the rattlesnake lies in the spinal cord. A snake's head was cut off, and then the physician's assistant pinched its tail. Instantly the neck darted back like lightning, and struck the man's hand a hard blow. This action has often been credited to the beheaded rattlesnake, but usually with a sceptical sneer. Professor Brewer, of Yale, claimed that years ago he was in California and had his tripod and other surveyor's instruments in the field. Stepping along in the bushes he felt a movement under his feet, and found that he was standing on a four and one-half foot rattlesnake—a large, vicious and fighting fellow. But the snake was so pinioned that he could not strike the thick boot that held him fast. Professor Brewer held that rattlesnake's head down with his tripod and cut it off. Then he cut off his rattles. Stepping aside, he saw the body of the snake, partly coiled, lying very still. Taking out his rule to measure its length, the professor took hold of the serpent to straighten him out.

"Quick as an electric shock," said Professor Brewer, "that headless snake brought the neck over and struck a hard blow upon the back of my hand." He added: "I knew that his head was off and that he could not poison me, but that quick and hard blow of the rattler made my hair stand on end."

Did Not Want to Lend.

The late Henry G. Morse, President of the New York Shipbuilding Company, was one day visited by a man who wished to borrow money wherewith to launch a questionable enterprise. Mr. Morse gave some polite excuse for his unwillingness to lend, and the man declared that he regarded this excuse as somewhat fishy. Thereupon, smiling grimly, Mr. Morse said:—

"Let me tell you a little story. Once upon a time an Arab went to his neighbor and said:—

"'Lend me your rope.'

"'I can't,'" said the neighbor.

"'Why can't you?'

"'Because I want to use the rope myself.'

"'What do you want to do with it?' the borrower asked.

"'I want to tie up five cubic feet of water with it,' was the reply.

"'How on earth,' the other sneered, 'can you tie up water with a rope?'

"'My friend,' said the neighbor, 'Allah is great, and he permits us to do strange things with a rope when we don't want to lend it.'"

Clever Men Are Ugly.

It is a curious subject for reflection that in any collection of clever men the majority are ugly, writes Mr. Henry Furniss in The Windsor Magazine, and supplies a little pen picture gallery of pen portraits to prove the point. "Nature," he says, "gave Edward George Earle Lytton Bulwer Lytton a face as long as the name he bore a name that might serve in point of length for a Spanish hidalgo'" His was certainly not the head of a precocious, brilliant, skilful, successful, aristocratic man of genius. Ireland has produced, for its size, a remarkable number of great men—soldiers, lawyers, scientists, clerics and orators—a number of handsome men, and a remarkable number of ugly ones. Baron Dowse was, perhaps, the ugliest. The day his caricature by Pellegrini appeared in Vanity Fair he ran out of the House of Commons, and left London the same night—to remain away until it was forgotten. But it never can be forgotten, for it was true to the life. Another Irishman, the Most Rev. Dr. William Connor Magee, Bishop of Peterboro', afterwards Archbishop of York, known as the Chrysostom of the House of Lords, was one of the most eloquent preachers of the Victorian era, and a fine debater, and one of the most effective platform speakers of his day. Like the majority of eloquent men, he was ugly. His heavy eyebrows, small eyes, short nose, long upper lip, large mouth, massive jowl, and shaggy side whiskers, when represented in repose, produce the portrait of a gargoylish head.

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard—built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

Cotton Mills Close.

Boston, Aug. 3.—In addition to the mills that have announced a suspension during August, because of the cotton situation, others to-day follow this action in Amesbury, Mass., Middletown andHigganum, Conn.; Nashua, N.H., and Lewiston, Me. The extent of the curtailment in Fall River this week is about 750,000 spindles in the Bufeex, Corney, Stafford, Border City, Davol, Union, C. H. A. Narragansett, Robeson and Weetamoe corporations.

Charged With Embezzlement.

Hamilton, Aug. 3.—(Special.)—Walter E. Spera was placed under arrest this evening by Detective Coulter on the charge of embezzling $700 from Robert Hay & Co., Toronto. The prisoner is a well-dressed man about 37 years of age. The Toronto authorities wired to the local police this afternoon to arrest him. Detective Coulter found him walking up and down the platform at the Stuart-street Station, waiting for the train for Paris. When the officer stepped up to him and read the warrant Spera almost dropped dead with surprise.

Canso, N.S., Aug. 3.—A. N. Whitman & Son's loss on this morning's fire at their warehouse is about $40,000, believed to be well covered by insurance. The fire was over at 6 o'clock. The fire started in the engine-house on Whitman's wharf and had great headway before being discovered. There is little or no fire protection in the town, and in consequence the flames made great havoc and for a time threatened the town with destruction.

INDEPENDENCE OF PARLIAMENT

TORONTO NEWS RECALLS AN INCIDENT IN THE PUBLIC LIFE OF MR. CORBY, AND POINTS A MORAL THEREBY.

Toronto News: The attention of the public has been called recently to the Independence of Parliament Act by more than one case of its technical or suspected breach by a sitting member. Where the breach is of slight importance, so far as money value goes, there may easily arise among the friends of the accused a feeling of impatience at what looks like hypocritical insistence on the letter of the law, or even petty persecution. The law, we are apt to reason, is only intended to prevent a Government from buying the support of Parliament by direct patronage of members; and it is the climax of absurdity to imagine that, in these cases, members elected frankly as partizans are really influenced by accidental purchases of small value from them by a Government Department.

But it ought to be remarked that, once the practice is winked at, it will be difficult to draw the line at transactions which constitute a real peril to the State; and that there are few more important charters of public liberty and safeguards of representative Government than the provision against financial dealings between a Government and the members of Parliament. It is much better to err on the side of strictness than on that of laxity. A member of Parliament should be like Caesar's wife in this matter—absolutely above suspicion.

The precedent set of Mr. Henry Corby, when he was found, much to his surprise, to be guilty of a technical violation of the law, might well be followed. There was so clearly no intention to contravene the act in this case that both Ministers of the Crown and members of the then Opposition combined in advising Mr. Corby to pay no attention to the matter: but Mr. Corby was of too sensitive an honor to rest under the shadow of a most innocent departure from the rule. So he resigned his seat, and stood for re-election before his constituents. This was given him by acclamation, and he went back to Ottawa with a cleaner conscience and a clearer title. This was sound public policy. The people themselves should always be permitted to judge these cases. The cost of a formal nomination and re-election is nothing when compared with the worth of keeping the position of Parliament beyond suspicion.

SENT AS SUCH THROUGH MAILS, OR PENALTY MAY FOLLOW

(Toronto World.)

A warning has been running through the rural press concerning the frequent writing on newspapers which go through the mails, and stating that inspectors were now watching for infractions of the law.

To The World yesterday, Postmaster Patteson said that there was always a certain amount of this sort of correspondence going on among people who sent newspapers to their friends, but who did not send them letters. He said that it was also a very common occurrence to find kid gloves done up in newspapers. At stated times men were detailed in the various offices through the country to open and examine all papers coming through their offices, and where they find either articles enclosed or writing on the papers their instructions are to confiscate the articles and send the newspapers to the dead letter office.

WEARY BRAIN WORKERS.

Fagged out, ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snap's gone! The buoyancy that made work a pleasure—that's gone too. The doctor would tell you that you are run down, not eating enough nor digesting enough. Your stomach needs aid, your digestion needs a bracer too. Your blood requires phosphorus and iron that it may be formed readily. Now Ferrozone is a wonderful nerve bracer and blood maker. It's food for the blood and nerves, it will make you strong quickly and permanently. Sold by all druggists.

In a "Real Live City."

Kingston Whig: The steamer Varuna, on her return from Thousand Island Park, was in port this morning, en route up the Bay of Quinte, and her passengers were given a couple of hours in the city. They were mostly Belleville people, and needless to say they enjoyed seeing a real, live city. After spending their money on buns, peanuts and stick candy, and shying at the guns in the parks, they sorrowfully took their leave.

FISHING AND THE FISH SUPPLY.

Under the above caption the Peterboro Examiner has a long article which contains much good sense. We append a few extracts, which will be found to bear upon local conditions:

"The great problem consists in an adequate and constant supply to meet the great and continuously increasing demand, and consequent draft upon the stock of fish in these waters. The American tourist is a most industrious, not to say, voracious and insatiable fisherman—it is a matter of habit. According to popular ideas, and the so-called comic papers, the average American spends eleven months in the year in fishing for suckers in financial and industrial fish ponds. The remaining month of the year thousands take their holidays here, and do perhaps the hardest "stunt" of the year in capturing our lake fish. They devote themselves to the sport with a concentration of energy which makes it a business of like strenuous character to their ordinary avocations. Sitting in an arm chair under the chaperonage of a guide who knows the best fishing grounds, they will fish from dawn to eve. We do not complain of the assiduous industry of our over-the-line neighbors. They are welcome in a double, or, perhaps, triple, sense; first, because, as a rule, they are good fellows; secondly, it is a pleasure to contribute to the pleasure and enjoyment of our neighbors; and, thirdly, our visitors are a source of profit. During the season, the different waters of the Kawartha Lakes are visited, perhaps, by a thousand American and other tourists. Each leaves in the county from the time of his arrival till his departure from $50 to $100, representing no small addition to the local circulating medium. Then we have the interests of local sportsmen to consult.

"The maintenance of our fish supply is a matter of moment—for on it depends our supply of tourists and resulting benefits—to our railways and steamers in transporting tourists, our hotels in catering to them, our merchants in selling to them. And the fish supply is also important to our local sportsmen and to the people at large who depend upon our local waters for the supply of a delicious and wholesome food article."

Time was when the "American" tourist mentioned by our contemporary used to pay regular visits to Belleville and the Bay of Quinte district. If the fishing could be improved he would, doubtless, be with us again, bringing his greenbacks with him. And the all-important question is how can the fishing be improved? Good judges say it can be done by a prohibition of net fishing, and it is to be hoped, for reasons which can easily be seen, that the prohibition asked for will soon be granted.

THE REVIVAL TALK.

Probably every reader of the Canadian and American newspapers have been impressed with the persistent way in which advertisers of bicycles have been boasting of what they call a "bicycle" revival.

The public, we believe, are inclined to think that the advertiser has been drawing on his imagination, to put it mildly, but in truth a revival has actually come to pass, and the most promising feature of it is the fact that the business has reached a firm and healthy condition, beyond the pale of the fadists.

The cause is not hard to trace, probably the primary one is that the bicycle has been vastly improved upon during the past few years, and secondly that the public have become convinced that there is no better exercise nor any more economical means of transportation than wheeling.

The improvement, however, which did most to aid the revival was the Hygienic Cushion Frame. This invention relieves the wheel of all jar and vibration, and materially aids the rider in making long runs without fatigue. The Cushion frame has been appropriately called the "Pullman of Bicycling."

BANDS AND ORCHESTRAS.

Good music, and plenty of it, is essential to every fair and at the Dominion Exhibition there will be abundance. Bands will be stationed in many parts of the grounds all day long, and concerts will be given in front of the Grand Stand and in several of the buildings. The following well known and popular bands have been engaged:—

Exhibition Band, Q.O.R., 20 men and bandmaster, 162 Adelaide St., West; Governor General Body Guards, Toronto; 28th Regiment Band, Stratford, Ont.; 48th Highlanders, Toronto; Dufferin Rifles, Brantford; 14th P.W.C.A. REDUCTION OF $200,000.

THAT WAS THE AMOUNT LOPPED OFF THE ASSESSMENT BY THE COURTS OF REVISION.

The work of the Judge's Court of Revision re assessment is now completed, and the work of preparing the tax rolls for the year is going on. The reduction made in the assessment by the court and the judge was about $200,000, which is an unusually large amount. An effort will be made to bring down the estimates at the Council meeting on Monday evening next, although it is not certain that it can be accomplished.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. JAMES FULFORD.

Brockville, Ont., Aug. 3.—This evening, while seated at the supper table, James H. Fulford, a prominent citizen of Brockville, fell backward in his chair and expired before medical aid could be secured.

Mr. Fulford had been in poor health for the past few years, but was able to be around, and gave no evidence of this sudden collapse. He was a member of one of the pioneer families of this section, but lived in Belleville, Smith's Falls and other places before returning here about thirty years ago, to reside permanently. During his stay in Belleville he was employed on The Intelligencer, and worked on the case as a compositor with Sir Mackenzie Bowell. He was upwards of 70 years of age, and leaves a widow and one son.

Hon. Senator Fulford, a brother, and another brother, Alderman John H. Fulford, is absent on a trip abroad. Mr. Fulford was a Liberal in politics, and very highly respected.

ED. NOTE.—Mr. James H. Fulford was a son of Mr. Hiram Fulford, one of the early settlers of Belleville and was born in this city, but subsequently moved to Brockville with his parents. In 1847-8 deceased was an apprentice in The Intelligencer office, the year that Sir Mackenzie Bowell became a partner in the business, and was a steady and faithful boy.

DRUGGING WILL NOT CURE CATARRH.

This loathsome disease is caused by germs that invade the air passages of the head, throat and lungs, and can be cured only by inhalation of medicated air. Stomach medicines, atomizers, snuffs are ineffectual, because they fail to reach the cause of the trouble. Catarrhozone is successful, because it is inhaled to every part of the breathing organs, and has power to kill the germ, heals the inflamed tissues and prevents droppings in the throat. Catarrhozone treats more than one thousand square feet of the mucous surfaces with every breath taken through the inhaler and affords instant relief. It perfectly cures catarrh, asthma and bronchitis. Sold by druggists. Two months' treatment, price $1. Small size 25 cents, or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT NEAR TWEED.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Tweed, August 4.—A serious accident, which might easily have proved fatal, occurred yesterday on the farm of James T. Finley, who resides about four miles west of here. His little son, a lad of 9 or 10, was driving a team attached to a mower when the horses took fright and ran away. The little fellow was thrown off after pluckily sticking to his post for a while. When picked up it was found that he had sustained a broken leg and serious internal injuries. It is expected that if no bad effects become apparent he will recover.

SUN AND HASTINGS SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.

The semi-annual meeting of the above company was held in its office, Bridge Street Belleville, on Monday, the 3rd inst.

There were present W. Vandusen, Esq., President; Ambrose Kent, Esq., Vice-President; Geo. F. Davis, Inspector; W. Pemberton Page, Esq., Manager and Secretary; H. Wilberforce Aikins, M.D.; J. F. Gilmore, M.D., of Toronto; W. J. Fawcett, Esq., of Brigden; and Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and Rev. Amos Campbell, of Belleville, Directors; J. P. C. Phillips, Esq., Manager Belleville Branch and Wm. N. Ponton, Esq., Solicitor.

A half-yearly statement of the affairs of the company was read, showing a prosperous and healthy state of affairs

The directors from Toronto visited different parts of the city and inspected the different properties upon which the company has investments, and expressed themselves well pleased with the securities held, after which the Belleville officials of the company gave the visitors and a number of Belleville gentlemen a trip on the Annie Lake down the bay as far as Point Ann, and after inspecting operations at the cement works proceeded up the bay some miles. It is needless to say the visitors were delighted with the trip and the beauties of the Bay of Quinte.

In the evening the party and a number of friends were royally entertained by the local manager of the company, Mr. J. P. C. Phillips, at his residence.

The party left for the west this morning. Let us hope that the officials and directors may find it to the interest of the company to pay more frequent visits to the city than they have done in the past.

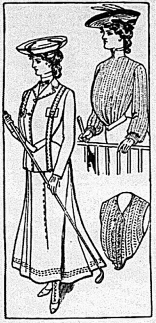
OUTING DRESS.

Yachting and Golf Garments—Dainty Dressing For Launches.

Yachting rain coats with a military cut are quite the smartest to order, made out of rain proof cloth. They are double breasted, and hang in an even line from the shoulders with ease enough below for comfort, but have nothing of a bottom flare, which, of course, is not necessary, as no one would think of being on deck in a rain storm wearing anything but a short skirt. The sleeves of this coat are long and grow into a flare over the hand, with a turnover, straight band cuff. The collar gives the well defined military air, as it is high, close fitting and fastens with a pair of buttons in front. It is really quite becoming. Such a coat is the fit wear for a cruise of some length. Ordinary short cruises, with very little stormy exposure, make no further demand than silk or satin finish rain coats supply. They are smartest in white silk, but red silk has become popular, and browns, blues and dark greens are new and quite to the fore. Dark blue cloths will ever remain popular for yachting suits in serges and in all canvases of a heavy kind. These suits have skirts in some instances that touch the ground, but do not do more than this, while others are ordered to clear the ground. White crash and white cloth are the yachting tailor's favorite contrast for trimming, offset by white silk or satin buttons, gold and silver ones, as well as touches of gold or silver soutache braids—but mere touches, nothing more. Passementerie in white silk with threads of gold is used effectively, and so are the tasseled ornaments, without which nothing is considered ultra smart. The most beautifully lustrous white silk braids in basket weaving are among the very choice tailor trimmings for not only blue but white cloth, serge or canvas.



GOLF SUIT, SWEATER AND WAISTCOAT.

Yachting suit skirt seams are trimmed with narrow white braids, while wider braids cross the skirts in rings or form foot trimmings at different angles. Boleros, coats belted in, blouse bodices and various models in two piece suits all fall into the yachting category for maids, matrons and dowagers. Touches of Persian silks are newly inset under openwork designs of white cloth, applied as a trimming. This is delicately done and charming. White silk cords are used effectively also, in coils, in row after row of curves, and twisted into rope effects. Revers and shoulder capes are always smart in pairs or in triplets. White linen as a trimming upon white canvas and cloth go well together, and the same can be said of red and white linens with blue cloths.

Tailored suits in white and colored linens are the daintiest things imaginable, fitly made up for wear aboard launches, where much entertaining is done. There is less dress formality on board of a launch than in a yacht; consequently a greater simplicity of dress is in better taste. Grass linens and organdies are day wear in midsummer, as well as white plumetis frocks trimmed with wash laces. One has a chance of wearing the daintiest gowns of this forenoon character at luncheons aboard, as there is no moving about to speak of—nothing but smooth sailing—while a fine, big launch, being the pink of elegance in its appointments, is quite as free from hurtful happenings to dress as a drawing room—a charming opportunity to wear white mull and lace hats and to carry gay parasols. Here, too, one may wear her prettiest lace woven hose and smartest Oxford ties. Every detail of dress is under close scrutiny in this sort of pleasuring, and the smarter it is the more fascinating the scene.

The sweater shown is knit in the new stitch called the English, that has already become popular. For chilly days on the links, yachting or coaching one of these sweaters makes just the light protection needed and in comfort, attractiveness and sensibleness is not to be outdone by any other garment.

Very sporty is the golf suit shown, the cloth chosen, a speckled brown, greatly helping a smart appearance. Very much the plan of an English shooting jacket is carried out in the half long coat with its four mannish pockets and wide box plaits.

For golfing the knitted waistcoat will be found comfortable.—Vogue.

THE LIME-KILN CLUB

Brother Gardner Lectures on Spooks, Dreams and Things

"MY fr'en's," said Brother Gardner to the members of the Limekiln club after the windows had been opened to let the smoke out, "I has bin told dat Samuel Shin am not heah tonight bekase he met up wid a spook two eavenin's ago an' de ghost mighty neah broke his back.

"I has also bin told dat Cartwheel Johnson was afeared to leave his house bekase of a dream he had, an' dat Giveadam Jones am keepin' mighty quiet nowadays bekase he has seen a sign in de heavens dat he am not long fur dis world.

BROTHER GARDNER.

"In my time I has had a heap of experience wid sich things, an' I am gwine to say a few words to yo'. In de fust place, am dar sich a thing as a spook? I answer dat dar is. I hev seen as many as fo'teen of dem in de last fo'ty years.

"A spook am a thing all kivered up in a white sheet an' floatin' around in de darkness. A spook allus carries a club an' grits its teeth. If yo' has bin downtown shootin' craps till midnight an' has lost de $2 de old woman wanted fur a pair of shoes keep yo'r eye out fur spooks as yo' open de gate. Look to de right an' de left as yo' tiptoe along. Yo' hope de old woman am in bed an' sound asleep an' dat de spooks hev all gone off to a cake walk, but a surprise party awaits yo'. 'Bout de time yo' put yo'r hand on de knob of de kitchen doah a spook rises up from behind an ash bar'l an' swings a club ag'in de back of yo'r neck, an' de next half hour am all a dream to yo'.

"I don't know what dream Cartwheel Johnson had, but I'ze had some powerful warnin's in my time.

"Once I dreamed of walkin' in de road wid seben brack cats follerin' arter me, an' de next day I got into a dispute wid Deacon Taylor 'bout de garden of Eden an' was laid up in bed fur a week.

"At anodder time I dreamed I was a black hoss chasin' a white cow around, an' it wasn't two days befo' I cum down wid de mumps an' couldn't git my mouf open fur ten days.

"Ag'in I dreamed dat I was a feather bed, an' dat a cull'd pusson had stole me off de fence whar I was takin' a sun bath, an' dat werry night my dawg died in conwulsions an' de roof of de wood shed caved in.

"I has also had experience wid signs.

"One night as I was 'bout startin' out to go up de alley wid a bag on my arm I saw a star fall from de heavens. I should hev turned back an' gone to bed, but I didn't. I kept on after dose chickens, an' 'bout de time I got 'em a policeman got me, an' I went up fur thirty days.

"At anodder time I was gwine along de road an' a hunchback asked me what time it was. It was sich a good sign dat I invested fo' dollars in a lottery ticket an' lost ebery cent of it.

"Oh, yes, my frens, I has had heaps an' heaps to do wid spooks an' dreams an' signs an' ha'nts, an' yo' kin cum to me fur adwice any time. I'll save yo' de trubble, howeber, by givin' yo' some adwice right heah an' now.

"On my way home dis eavenin' I shall drap into Samuel Shin's cabin fur a little chat, an' if I find he hasn't got sense 'nuff in his head to know dat de spook dat fetched him a whack was his old woman, den he won't be a member of dis club ober two days longer. I don't want to gib Mrs. Shin away, but I can't hev de discipline of dis club upsot.

"SEBEN BRACK CATS FOLLERIN' ME."

"When I git frew talkin' wid Brudder Shin I shall drap in on Brudder Johnson an' ax him 'bout dat dream of his dat made him afeared to come out tonight. He may hev dreamed dat he was up in a balloon or down in a coal mine, but I reckon he'll be trottin' up an' down de road at a lively gait widin ten minutes arter I strike his house.

"As fur Brudder Jones, who has seen a sign an' am steppin' around softly, I want to ax him what sort of a sign it was."

"An' did yo' see it at midnight?"

"Yes, sah."

"An' ober yo'r left shoulder?"

"Yes, sah."

"An' did a black cat yeowl out at de same minute?"

"She did, sah."

"Dat's a bad sign, Brudder Jones—a werry bad sign. It's a sign dat de windows of dis hall want washin' an' de stove a coat of blackin' an' dat if yo', as janitor, don't hev de work all done befo' de next meetin' of dis club I'll hev an interview wid yo' in de anteroom dat will make yo'r heart ache for a month.

"An' I'ze gwine to say jest a word or two to de rest of yo'. Dis Limekiln club am supposed to be composed of sensible pussons. It am de representative an' mouthpiece of de 60,000,000 cull'd men in America. Its members am s'posed to hev passed de aige of ghosts an' spooks, dreams an' signs, an' to be lookin' on de serious side of things. We ain't stoppin' de wheels of progress bekase a black cat happens to cross de road in front of us, an' we ain't turnin' into chill'en bekase we hear de bray of a mewl ober our left shoulder.

"I want no mo' nonsense. Yo' want to drap all ghosts an' spooks an' signs down de well, an' yo' want to wake up in de mawnin' an' send all yo'r dreams out of de window. It's either dat or go.

"De next member who sees a spook or dreams a dream will find de doahs locked on him, an' if he hangs around too long I shall make it my duty to leave de cha'r an' go out an' make him see sich signs dat his ears won't git ober feelin' cold fur a year to cum.

"We will now break dis meetin' in two an' go home, but I shall foller clus behind sartin members, an' in case dey see any white crows or red moons loafin' around dey kin look out fur consequences dat will lift deir heels off de airth."

SKIN AND BLOOD PURIFICATION

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent

Cleanse the Skin, Scalp and Blood

Of Torturing, Disfiguring Humours with Loss of Hair

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS

Thousands of the world's best people have found instant relief and speedy cure by the use of Cuticura Resolvent, Ointment and Soap in the most torturing and disfiguring of itching, burning and scaly humours, eczemas, rashes, itchings and inflammations.

Thousands of tired, fretted mothers, of skin-tortured and disfigured babies, of all ages and conditions, have certified to almost miraculous cures by the Cuticura remedies when the best medical skill had failed to relieve, much less cure.

Cuticura Treatment is local and constitutional—complete and perfect, pure, sweet and wholesome. Bathe the affected surfaces with Cuticura Soap and hot water to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle, dry without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and lastly take Cuticura Resolvent to cool and cleanse the blood, and put every function in a state of healthy activity.

More great cures of simple, scrofulous and hereditary humours are daily made by Cuticura remedies than by all other blood and skin remedies combined, a single set being often sufficient to cure the most distressing cases when all else fails.

Cuticura Resolvent, liquid and in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Australia, R. Towns & Co., Sydney; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Sole Proprietors. Send for "Skin and Blood Purification."

Why Solomon Doubted.

The little boy was asked by a Sunday school teacher to write all he knew about Solomon and hand his paper to her the next Sunday. The following Sunday he handed her a slip of paper on which was written:

"King Solomon was a great and wise man. He had 100 wives. After that he did not believe in God."—New York Times.

Incomplete Luxury.

"You can afford to smoke cigars that cost a dollar apiece," said the less successful friend.

"That's true," answered Mr. Cumrox regretfully, "but mother and the girls insist on my sitting out in the park to smoke one of 'em the same as if it were a pipe."—Washington Star.

Settling the Crime.

He stole a kiss, a very little thing,
  And for the crime he sought to make amends
By placing on the grieved one's hand a ring.
  This done, you'd think just restitution ends.
But, law appeased, 'twas made a church affair;
  The two were bound who'd caused this bit of strife.
Though but a kiss he stole, no more I swear,
  The sentence of the rector was, "For life."

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5, 1903 NO. 80

SARTO IS NOW POPE PIUS X.

Predicted For Pope by Leo XIII. Over a Year Ago—As Patriarch of Venice He Was Universally Beloved—Of a Conciliatory Disposition, a Great Preacher, Noted For His Modesty, His Learning and His Energy—His Career.

Rome, Aug. 5.—The conclave, after being in session for four days, elected Guiseppe Sarto, Patriarch of Venice, as Pope to succeed Leo XIII., and he now reigns at the Vatican and over the Catholic world as Pius X. Last night all Rome was illuminated in his honor. His election and the assumption of his holy office were marked by a striking demonstration and impressive ceremonies at the Vatican. To-day the new Pope, clad in all his full Pontificial robes and with all the ritualistic ceremony will receive the members of the diplomatic corps, the cardinals and the bishops, who will then offer official homage, this, notwithstanding the fact that twice yesterday the cardinals and many high officials of the Vatican went through a similar ceremony.

The date upon which the coronation of Pious X. will occur has not yet been officially decided, but the impression prevails that it will take place Aug. 9. Although the election was over at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and was announced to the world 45 minutes later, by the appearance of the new Pope, at the window of St. Peter's, the conclave was not formally dissolved until 5.30 yesterday afternoon. The cardinals then returned to their various apartments in Rome, with the exception of Cardinals Oreglia and Rampolla, who temporarily retain their official suites in the Vatican, and Cardinal Herrero y Espinosa, who is too ill to be moved for several days. It was to the sick cardinal that the new Pope paid his first visit after being formally proclaimed Pontiff. The cardinals will remain in Rome for to-day's ceremonies, and should the coronation be fixed for next Sunday, they are not likely to return to their respective homes until after that ceremony.

Election Unanimous.

The election of the Patriarch of Venice was unanimous. After Monday's ballot, it was a foregone conclusion that he was the only candidate satisfactory to all to secure the necessary two-thirds. One of the cardinals said that he believed Pius X. would follow the broad lines of Leo's policy, although not likely to accentuate it. This voices the general feeling here, which is one of satisfaction.

Venetians who know the new Pope well, say that he will soon be as much beloved as Pontiff as he was yesterday as the beloved patriarch of the poor of the Adriatic. In appearance Pius X. is a very handsome man. He has a fine erect figure, despite his 68 years, his face greatly resembling that of the late Phillips Brooks. When he pronounced his first benediction yesterday at St. Peter's his voice rang out with splendid resonance.

New Pope Accepts.

The election of Cardinal Sarto, once it was consummated, was proclaimed in a loud voice by the cardinals' scrutineers to the sacred college. Cardinal Oreglia, as dean of the cardinal bishops, called Cardinals Nemo and Macchi, the deans respectively of the cardinal priests and cardinal deacons. They approached the newly elected Pontiff, saying in Latin, distinctly, but in a shaking voice:

"Do you accept your election according to the canonical law as Supreme Pontiff?"

The moment was one of extreme tension of feeling. There was a perceptible pause before Cardinal Sarto found and controlled his voice. Then he answered simply:

"Yes."

The cardinals thereupon removed their baldachinos so that that of Sarto was the only one remaining, thus marking him as their supreme head. The passing supremacy of the cardinals was gone, and was now concentrated in one person.

Donned the White Robes.

While Prince Chigi, the master of the conclave, was drawing up the official act of the election and acceptance of the new Pope, the latter, surrounded by his friends, disappeared into a small room near the altar, where he donned the white robes of his office. Pius X. was assisted by his conclavist, who first knelt and kissed his master's hand and thus received the first apostolic blessing given by Pius X.

When he was robed the secretary of the conclave, Monsignor Merry del Val, kneeling, offered him the Papal white cap amidst breathless silence. He did not follow the precedent created by Pope Leo, who declined to give his cap to the master of ceremonies, but with a slight smile Sarto took the white cap, placed it calmly on his head and dropped the red one lightly on the head of Monsignor Merry del Val, amidst a murmur of approval. This is taken as a certain indication that the happy recipient is soon to be raised to the cardinalate.

As the new Pontiff stepped from behind the altar he seated himself on the throne. His back was to the altar and he was enthroned to receive the so-called "first obedience" of the cardinals. They came forward, one by one. All kissed his hand and foot, while he saluted each on the cheek with the kiss of peace. Then all broke into the Te Deum with such effect that scarcely an eye was dry.

Gave Papal Blessing.

Pius X. then rose and, in a voice at first tremulous, but gradually becoming full and firm, administered the Papal blessing to all the members of the Sacred College. It was received with bowed and uncovered heads.

The Fisherman's Ring not yet having been found, a new one, designed by Camerlengo Oreglia, was placed on the Pontiff's finger as a symbol of renewed power and evidence that the Catholic Church has once more a sovereign head.

Sarto bore himself with becoming dignity and gave no outward sign of exultation in this the supreme moment of his life.

Crowds Rushed Madly.

When the great central window of St. Peter's facing the piazza swung slowly open, signifying an election, a loud shout arose and the crowds rushed madly towards the cathedral. At the open window half a dozen Vatican attendants appeared. Suddenly they broke out a gorgeous banner bearing a cardinal's arms.

In a few moments terrific cheers burst from every throat in the Basilica. There with the sun streaming in from the window behind was the new Pope. His rich red papal robes shown resplendent amidst the more sombre colors of those who stood beside him. For a few moments the tall form remained perfectly still—the Pontiff was gazing at the crowd beneath. The deafening roar of cheers showed no signs of diminishing. Then Pius X. raised his hand. In the twinkling of an eye the crowd, mad with excitement but a moment before, became dumb and deathlike silence prevailed throughout the basilica. It was broken only by the clear, strong voice of the new Pope. "A-ju-to-rium nostrum in nomine domini." He chanted, like the keys of a magnificent organ struck by a master hand. The response swelled up from the crowd below.

There was another silence and another response.

Then came the benedictions such as few will ever forget.

Career of Pope Pius X.

Giuseppe Sarto was born in Riesi, diocese of Treviso, on June 2nd, 1835, and was created cardinal by Leo XIII, at the consistory of June 12th, 1893, receiving the title of Saint Bernardo delle Terme. He is also patriarch of Venice since June, 1893, and Bishop of Mantua. He belongs to the ecclesiastical congregations of bishops and regulars, sacred rites, indulgences and sacred relics.

Cardinal Sarto enjoys great popularity in his diocese, and is honored by all for his purity, for the strict uprightness of his life, and for liberal ideas. He is a modest and agreeable man, highly cultivated, very kind-hearted, still strong and robust in spite of his 68 years. He has never taken great part in the political and public life of the church, but divided his time between study and good works. Although most faithful to the Holy See, he was presented to the King and Queen of Italy in Venice. He may be considered among the more liberal members of the Italian Episcopate and Sacred College. He is rather timid in expressing an opinion. It is said that Leo XIII. always thought very highly of him, and sided with him on one occasion when Sarto disapproved of Rampolla's policy.

Predicted by Leo.

Early in April Pope Leo, in a conversation with Father Perosi, the Italian composer, said in speaking of Cardinal Sarto:

"Hold him very dear, Perosi, as in the future he will be able to do much for your. We firmly believe he will be our successor."

He has been known for many years as one of the greatest preachers in the church.

MURDER IN ALBERTA.

Calgary, Alberta, Aug. 5.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of J. R. Belt, who was last seen at his shack in October last, has been cleared up. The jury summoned to pass judgment on a body discovered near Red Deer River last week brought in the following verdict: "In our opinion the deceased came to his death by the hand of one Cashel, now in the Stoney Mountain Penitentiary, between October 27 and November 17, 1902."

From the evidence produced it was shown that Belt's horse and bridle had been left at a ranche by Cashel. The clothes produced in court were taken by Sergt. Evans from a half-breed, who said that they had been given to him by Cashel.

German Officer's Brutality.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—A court-martial was held at Metz on a non-commissioned officer named Lunkel for maltreating private soldiers at Morchingen, Loraine. Five hundred and seventy-six instances of brutality, occurring since last December, were cited, such as compelling a soldier to run at full tilt across a room and ram his head against a wardrobe. The court decided that 366 counts of the indictment had been proven and sentenced Lunkel to two years and a half imprisonment and degradation to the ranks.

Lord Curzon Accepts.

Simla, India, Aug. 5.—Viceroy Curzon informed the council at yesterday's sitting that he had decided to accept the Government's offer of an extension of his term of office, with permission to take a vacation in England in 1904, should he so desire. Lord Curzon said five years was too short a term for a Government which had embarked on wide schemes of reform, and it would be a neglect of duty to abandon his share of the work.

Fell From Hay Rack.

Lucan, Aug. 5.—Thomas Bennett, sr., a well to do farmer living on the Roman line, Biddulph, aged 70 years, fell from the rack of a hay wagon on Monday evening, striking heavily on his left shoulder without any apparent serious injury. During the night his condition became alarming, and he died at an early hour yesterday morning. He leaves a widow and seven grown up sons.

Wireless Conference.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—The first International Congress of wireless telegraphy, convened by the Imperial post-office, began yesterday. Forty-four delegates representing Germany, Russia, France, Italy, Austro-Hungary, Spain and the United States. The Congress was called upon by Germany's invitation with the object of agreeing on international regulations to control the operation of wireless telegraphy systems.

Old Slave Leaves $10,000.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 5.—The will of John Perlett, a former slave, was filed yesterday and shows that he had accumulated an estate valued at $10,000 since he gained his freedom in 1863. Perlett had been a servant in the house of W. W. Willock for the last eighteen years. He was 72 years old at the time of his death. Of the old man's estate $6,391 is in cash.

MR. LOY TO HOLD THE SEAT

Report of the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Mr. Monk Presented a Minority Report to the Committee and in the House Gave Notice of the Same—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Declined to Accede to the Request That the Evidence Be Printed—Intercolonial Conference Report.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—In the House yesterday, Mr. F. B. Wade presented the report of the Committee of Privileges and Elections on the charge of breach of the Independence of Parliament Act made by Mr. Monk against Mr. Geo. M. Loy, the sitting member for Beauharnois.

The Majority Report.

The report, which is a majority one, set forth that the property actually passed from Mr. Loy to Mr. Archambault on Jan. 4th, 1899, and reverted to him on the 15th of June next following; that the charge that Robert Bruce Johnston was not in any sense acting for or on behalf of Mr. Loy in the transaction, but that he represented that he acquired the property for commercial purposes, and that when he parted with the property Mr. Loy believed the statement to be true, and therefore there had been no violation of the act respecting the Senate and the House of Commons. The committee further found that the assessment roll was no definite criterion of the true value of property in Valleyfield, that the price paid did not exceed the real value of the property, that at the time the Crown did not possess any property in Valleyfield available and suitable for the purpose, and, finally, that the sworn statement by Mr. Loy had not been contradicted in any particular, on the contrary, that it had been corroborated by the other witnesses having knowledge of the facts.

Mr. Monk asked that the evidence taken by the committee be printed for the use of the members of the House. He said that there was a majority and a minority report, and their respective merits could not be fairly pronounced upon without the evidence.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier declined to accede to this request on the ground that a recommendation must come from the Committee on Printing.

Mr. Borden characterized the Government's course as most unusual. He had never known such a request to be refused before.

Mr. Monk moved that the question be referred to the Committee on Printing and the motion carried. He also gave notice of the minority report.

The Minority Report.

In the Committee on Privileges and Elections, yesterday morning, Mr. Monk, on behalf of the minority, presented a report, setting forth that since 1898 efforts had been made to induce the Government to purchase Mr. Loy's property for a postoffice, that Mr. Loy when Mayor of the town accompanied civic deputations to Ottawa to urge the purchase of the property, that following the election of Mr. Loy in the autumn of 1900, a vote was placed in the estimates for the purpose of purchasing the site, that Mr. Loy could not have been in ignorance of the fact that Mr. Johnston was the agent of the Government, and that he should not therefore have signed the deed.

The adoption of the report will be moved in the House to-day, the motion having been ruled out yesterday on account of insufficient notice.

Colonial Conference Red Tape.

Mr. Borden asked the Premier if there is any truth in the report that the British Government has asked the various colonial Governments if they would object to the publication of proceedings of the intercolonial conference, which have been regarded as confidential.

Sir Wilfrid replied that he could not make a statement until he had consulted with His Excellency the Governor-General.

Iron and Steel Bounties.

After an energetic debate the resolution granting iron and steel bounties, already published, was carried, and a bill founded on the same was read a first time.

Memo on Fisheries Question.

Hon. Raymond Prefontaine laid on the table of the House a memo on the presentation of the fisheries question. It recites the events leading up to the reference of the question to the Privy Council and refers to the conference which followed the decision of that tribunal. In Ontario the memo states the fisheries were relinquished to the province as a proprietory right. This involves the issue of all fishery licenses in inland waters and the collection of all revenues therefrom, all rights of regulation being reserved. The Dominion may deem it expedient to make some further claim in regard to the waters of the great lakes which form the boundary line between two foreign countries. A final agreement will be reached as soon as possible.

Crops in Manitoba.

In committee on the bill to amend the Manitoba Grain Act, Mr. Sifton said that the indications are for a good crop in the Territories and part of Manitoba, with the rest of Manitoba not so good, and the average hardly up to the yield of the past two years. Since last year there had been an enormous increase in the elevator accommodation.

UNDER THE BRITISH FLAG

Agreement Is Now Assured in a Parliamentary Paper—For the Concessions of the Company the Government Will Loan the Cunard Company Thirteen Millions at 2 3-4 Per Cent.—Cannot Sell 17 Knoters or Over Without Consent.

London, Aug. 5.—The agreement between the Admiralty, the Board of Trade, the Postmaster-General and the Cunard Steamship Company, dated July 30, is assured in a Parliamentary paper last evening. All the company's steamships between Liverpool, New York, Boston, the Mediterannean ports and Havre, including the new steamships, which will have a speed of 20 to 24 knots an hour, will be at the disposal of the Admiralty for hire or purchase in the event of war. The vessels must be maintained under the British flag and managed witout any undue increase in freight charges or undue preference against British subjects. The masters, officers and engineers of all the vessels must always be British subjects and the same condition applies to three-fourths of the crew.

The company is not allowed to sell any vessel whose speed is 17 knots and upwards without the consent of the Government. The company must maintain the gun mountings, etc., ready for use. For these concessions the Government agrees to subsidize the new vessels at $375,000 per year each. The loan of $13,000,000 which will bear interest at 2¾ per cent., and is to be repaid in 20 annual installments, will rank as the first charge in the whole Cunard fleet, and will be secured by debentures. The agreement provides for a reduction in the subsidy for the new steamships in the case of their failure to attain a minimum speed of 23¼ knots.

WILL REPLY IN WRITING.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Will Answer Manitoba Schools Deputation Thursday.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—The interview yesterday between the representatives of the separate school supporters of Winnipeg, Messrs. Russell and Deegan and the Prime Minister and Minister of Justice lasted for over an hour. In that time the entire subject of the grievances of the Roman Catholic minority in regard to the education was threshed out, the delegates receiving a most sympathetic hearing.

Sir Wilfrid deferred giving his answer until Thursday, when he will deliver his reply to the minority's memorial in writing.

What Russia Will Insist Upon.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—The papers published a statement yesterday, which is regarded as semi-official, to the effect that Russia will insist on two conditions as indispensable to the new German commercial treaty with Russia:

1. A heavy reduction in the duties on meats and animals.
2.—To confine the minimum duties on grain to states entering into treaty relations with Germany, to the exclusion of the United States and Argentina.

Quarter of a Million Loss.

Cincinnati, Aug. 5.—The fire, which destroyed the Pittsburg glass plant last night, caused a loss estimated at $250,000. Three persons were injured.

JUDGE PROUDFOOT DEAD.

Passed Away at His Summer Home at Hamilton on Tuesday.

Hamilton, Aug. 5.—Hon. William Proudfoot, former Vice-Chancellor of the Ontario Court of Chancery, died at his summer home here yesterday morning. He had been ill about a week. The funeral will take place today at 3 p.m.

Sketch of His Career.

Hon. William Proudfoot was born near Errol, in Perthshire, Scotland, Nov. 9, 1823, therefore, had he lived until November next he would have completed his eighty years. He came to Canada with his parents in 1832, and was educated in London by his father, the late Rev. William Proudfoot. He turned his attention to law, studied in the office of Messrs. Blake & Morrison, and in 1849 was called to the bar. He practised for a short time in Toronto, and then accepted the appointment of Master and Deputy Registrar of the Court of Chancery in Hamilton. Three years later he resigned and entered into partnership with Messrs. Freeman & Craigie, taking exclusive charge of the equity business of the firm until 1862, when he withdrew, and devoted himself entirely to equity.

The Ontario Government created him a Q.C. in 1872, but he declined a confirmation of the appointment by the Dominion Government. In May, 1874, he was appointed Vice-Chancellor of the Court of Chancery, which office he held until he retired from the bench in May, 1890. Mr. Proudfoot was twice married.

TO CARRY THE GLAD TIDINGS.

Chas. M. Hays Will Tell of His Bargain With the Government.

Montreal, Aug. 5. — Charles M. Hays, 2nd vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, will sail from New York to-day for London, to lay before the directors and shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railway the terms of the agreement between the Government and the Grand Trunk Pacific promoters. Mr. Cox notified Mr. Hays yesterday that he would be unable to accept the Presidency owing to his numerous duties, and Mr. Hays will now accept the Presidency.

Senator Cox Declines.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—It is announced last night that Hon. Geo. A. Cox has declined the presidency of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company. A gentleman who is well informed concerning this enterprise states that while Senator Cox may not become president of the company, he has the largest single interest of any of its promoters.

SHOT A GALICIAN.

Timekeeper on Canadian Northern Drew and Fired in Self Defence.

Erwood, N.W.T., Aug. 5.—A timekeeper named Van Alystyne, employed in a Canadian Northern construction camp, 60 miles west of here, shot and killed a Galician laborer last Friday evening. The Galicians wanted their time checks, which were refused by Van Alystyne. They assumed a threatening attitude, and Van Alystyne, becoming alarmed for his safety, drew a revolver and in self-defence fired into the crowd, the bullet entering one of the men, who died from the effects of the shot four hours after. Van Alystyne has left the camp, and the police have not been able to apprehend him.

Seized With Fainting Spell.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—Mr. D. B. Meigs, member for Missiquoi, was seized with a fainting spell in the smoking room of the Commons last evening and was at once removed to his lodgings in an unconscious condition.

Killed by Lightning.

Nothing Dangerous About It.

A gentleman complained to his coachman of the grooms' scarcity of attendance at church. He thought they might go at least once in a day.

"Yes, sir," replied the coachman, "that's what I tell 'em. I say: 'Look at me. I go twice every Sunday, and what harm does it do me?'"—Stray Stories.

The Parrot's Nose.

A small child, having been pecked on the finger while trying to stroke a parrot exclaimed: "Oh, dear; oh, dear! I thought it was going to be a nose, and it's a tooth!"

All the Essentials.

"Was she happily married?"

"Very! Why, her trousseau alone cost over $6,000!"—Judge.

Prosperity leads often to ambition, and ambition to disappointment.

THE HURLEY INVESTIGATION.

In this issue we commence the publication of the official report of the examination of Mr. Hurley, Fishery Inspector, and Census Commissioner. It will furnish interesting reading to those who take an interest in public affairs.

They will learn what Mr. Hurley's duties are as Fishery Inspector, and how he makes out accounts which are to be paid out of public funds.

Who would have thought it the Dominion Government's duty to appoint an officer, at $1200 a year and travelling expenses, to look after and see that the Ontario fisheries officials do their duty! Yet, Mr. Hurley told the Committee that that was a part of his instructions. What the balance of his duty was must be left to the imagination of the reader, for Mr. Hurley failed to point it out.

It would appear from Mr. Hurley's evidence that the office of Fishery Overseer was forced upon him, innocent soul that he was! He had doubts, and "did not accept it," but took the salary from the 1st of February notwithstanding, as he says he did not then accept the position.

Who, it would be interesting to know, impressed upon the Government the necessity of Mr. Hurley's appointment as Fishery Inspector, and who gave the information as to his superior knowledge of the work, and preservation of fish?

One thing the reader will learn from reading this evidence, is that Mr. Hurley is an adept at knowing how not to answer questions.

Mayor Graham has received the following letter:

Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 1st, 1903.

R. J. Graham, Mayor of Belleville,
Belleville, Canada.

My Dear Sir,—The Canadian Association of Rochester, N.Y., which is an organization of Canadians from all parts of Canada, has learned of Belleville's intention of holding a "Home-Comers' Festival" in 1904.

At our meeting last evening we adopted a resolution naming Belleville as our objective point of home-going next year, and the Belleville old boys here are working hard to perfect plans to go in such numbers to Belleville as will eclipse our showing in Toronto this year, which, you are doubtless aware, was very creditable.

Will you kindly place this matter before the Belleville Home-Comers' Committee at once, and I would be pleased to have a communication from the committee to read at our Association meeting, Friday evening, August 7th, outlining your plans, dates, &c.

Very truly yours,
J. S. CAMPBELL, M.D.,
Vice-President,
Canadian Assn., Roch., N.Y.

It will easily be seen that Belleville's chance for a big celebration next year is a royal one. Ald. Sinclair, we believe, will write Dr. Campbell, promising that Bellevillians one and all will do everything in their power to push the thing along.

Not to be behind hand, Corbett is being rubbed down with coarse sand paper and wipes the perspiration from his brow with broken glass.

"Much comment has been made by the American papers upon the discourtesy which was shown to the American flag on the steamer Varuna at Trenton lately. At the bow of the boat the flag gave so much offence to one young Britisher that he fired upon it, and to save the boat from injury the flag was removed.

"The Buffalo Courier finds the cause for the attack, in the fact that 'the American flag floated high above the emblem of perfidious Albion.' The Watertown paper says the boat was an American bottom, and that the skipper had a right to fly the American flag as he pleased. This is a mistake. The Varuna is a Canadian boat, and she had the British flag, very properly, in the place of honour at the stern.

"The attack on the American flag was unprovoked. It was simply the result of a feeling which is seldom displayed in Canada. In this country there is generally a great respect for the American flag, and it is sometimes given a preference out of regard to that international comity which all people do not appraise alike. It is in great contrast with the anti-British feeling which is exhibited in the border towns of the United States.

"If all who become offensive on the flag question should be locked up, as fools or fanatics, there would be a great many persons across the line without their freedom."

The evil-smelling moth ball, like its gay and festive contemporary, the high ball, seems to be a delusion and a snare. A medical journal in Chicago asserts that the belief that the moth ball will protect woollen clothing from the ravages of moths has no foundation whatever, "except the lunacy that a stench drives away parasites of all kinds." Following that is the statement that moths have been luxuriating in woollen rags that lay in a trunk beside half a dozen moth balls. The authority quoted says, further: "Every innocent-looking moth ball carries with it wherever it goes an aroma bigger than a cathedral, more pervasive than cigarette smoke, and lingers on everything it touches with the tenacity of malaria. The man who first invented them was a fool. The man who is selling them is fooling. The woman who buys them is fooled."

POPULAR YOUNG LADY WEDDED THIS AFTERNOON

NUPTIALS OF MR. JOHN MACDONALD, OF TORONTO, AND MISS CLAIRE HUNGERFORD, AT ST. THOMAS' CHURCH.

A quiet wedding took place at St. Thomas' Church at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The bride was Miss Claire Hungerford, daughter of Mr. W. A. Hungerford, of this city, and the groom Mr. John Macdonald, wholesale merchant, of Toronto. Rev. G. R. Beamish, Rector, was the officiating clergyman, and Mr. Walter Hungerford, brother of the bride, played the wedding march. The couple were unattended. At the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald left on the International express for the west.

KIDNEY TROUBLE.

CURED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

From the Sun, Seaforth, Ont.

The kidneys are the most important organ. They must filter every drop of blood in the body. If the blood is weak the kidneys cannot do their work, so the blood is left unfiltered and foul, and the kidneys are left clogged with poisonous impurities. Then come the backaches that mean fatal kidney disease. Don't neglect that backache for a moment. Strike at the root of the very first symptoms of kidney trouble by enriching the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—the only medicine that makes the blood rich, red and health-giving.

Mr. William Holland, of Seaforth, Ont., has proved that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure the most obstinate cases of kidney trouble. To a reporter of the Sun he freely gave the particulars of his case: "I have suffered from kidney trouble for about two years," said Mr. Holland. "Sometimes the backache which accompanied the trouble would be so severe that I would be unable to work; and I have often suffered severely for weeks at a time. I tried a number of medicines said to be a cure for kidney trouble, but I found nothing to help me until on the advice of a friend I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills soon began to make their good work felt, and after using them for about a month every prestige of the trouble had disappeared and I have not since had a single symptom of the disease. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved a great blessing to me and I am always glad to say a good word in their favor."

As a curative medicine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have never yet been equalled. They build up the blood and nerves, give new strength and enable the body to resist disease. Among the complaints cured by these pills are rheumatism, nervous disorder, paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, indigestion, anaemia, lung troubles, and the troubles that make the lives of so many women miserable. Sold by all medicine dealers, or sent post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by writing direct to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Don't take a substitute at any price—only the genuine pills can cure.

Women's Institute at Read.

Read, August 3.—A meeting of the Women's Institute was held in Hanley's Hall on July 22nd; there was a large attendance, and about thirty new members were enrolled. A musical programme was given in the evening in connection with the Institute work.

Rev. Mr. McArthur, Melrose, ably filled the chair. Miss Smith, of Hamilton, one of the delegates, spoke on domestic science, which was well received by the audience. After a long programme the evening closed by all joining in and singing God Save the King.

Rev. Father McCarthy, who was spending his vacation in Pittsburg, returned on Monday last, accompanied by his friend, Rev. Father Shannahan. Rev. Father Mills returned to Ottawa on Tuesday.

Miss Hayes, of Lonsdale, and her cousin, Miss Lally, of Belleville, were in Read on Sunday.

C. N. Dafoe, of Detroit, Mich., spent a couple of days with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan O'Hara, Miss Bella and Mr. James O'Hara, of Kingsford, spent Sunday at P. Culhane's.

Mrs. John Gillick and children, of Rochester, N.Y., who has spent the past month with her father here, has returned to her home.

The annual picnic in Hanley's Grove, Read, will be held August 19th. Everything promises to make this picnic as successful as in past years. All are cordially invited to come and enjoy themselves.

DRUGGING WILL NOT CURE CATARRH.

This loathsome disease is caused by germs that invade the air passages of the head, throat and lungs, and can be cured only by inhalation of medicated air. Stomach medicines, atomizers, snuffs are ineffectual, because they fail to reach the cause of the trouble. Catarrhozone is successful, because it is inhaled to every part of the breathing organs, and has power to kill the germ, heals the inflamed tissues and prevents droppings in the throat. Catarrhozone treats more than one thousand square feet of the mucous surfaces with every breath taken through the inhaler and affords instant relief. It perfectly cures catarrh, asthma and bronchitis. Sold by druggists. Two months' treatment, price $1. Small size 25 cents, or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

tain it is that everybody was soon aware that they could not distract their attention from the strange sound. All day long, at regular intervals of two or three minutes, it was heard. It did not seem to be in any particular part of the house, but this might have been more apparent than real, owing to the nervousness of the listeners.

Everybody knows the power of a low, regular, unusual sound, occurring in the night, to work on the sensibilities of a nervous or timid person. Much the same effect was produced on the less courageous of the workmen by the mysterious sound. All day long it did not vary in intensity or in the regular monotony of its occurrence, but, to the sensitive nerves of those who attributed it to some supernatural cause, it gradually, as the close of the day drew on, seemed to assume a deeper and more solemn if not menacing tone.

That night the strange sound that had been heard in Rolff House was the talk of the village, and the more timid workmen had their fears wrought on by the warnings and prognostications of evil they heard on every hand.

The next day not half of the workmen appeared to resume their labors at Rolff House. A number of them, however, made their appearance, quite resolved not to be easily frightened.

They went to work, and the mysterious sound was heard as before. By noon, the panic had been communicated to others, and they did not return, and before night still others had left their posts. The next day, the building was practically deserted.

CHAPTER XXV.

This interruption of his plans was extremely annoying to the lawyer, who had been sent for when matters reached the crisis previously narrated. The workmen were gathered at a safe distance from the old mansion. It was in vain that he interceded with them. All were inclined to attribute it to some supernatural means, save one man—the red-bearded, jovial fellow, who had sneered at the superstitious tales about the old house in the bar-room of Ronk's tavern a few evenings before. He was a carpenter—a burly, good-natured, sceptical, fearless man; and now, having recovered his presence of mind, he was disposed to ridicule the fears of his fellow workmen.

"Soho," he exclaimed, "we are to be frightened from our work by spooks, are we? For my part, I believe some chap is down there in the cellar trying to make fools of us, and if any man dare go with me, we will go down and rout him out."

Not a man ventured to accept this offer, spite of his taunts of cowardice; and at length he said:

"Well, if no one will go with me, I will go alone. Pah! you're all babies to be frightened by ghost stories. There's some rascal in that house has been playing tricks on us. But I'll show him he can't frighten me. If he's in there yet, I'll find him out."

So saying he boldly entered the hall again, seized a candle that had been left burning, and started down to search the lower rooms, while his companions waited outside in consternation at his daring actions.

He had not been gone over five minutes, however, when he appeared again. Rushing out of the house, with white countenance and evidently in mortal terror, he paused on reaching the group of his comrades, who gathered around him and eagerly besought him to tell what he had seen. It was some seconds before he could regain control enough of himself to speak. At last he said:

"What a fool and coward I am! But, upon my soul, I couldn't help it. They tell no lies about that house. As I am a living man, when I got down in that gloomy old basement I saw somebody who must be the spirit of old Magnus Rolff or else the very Devil himself. I wasn't mistaken. It was no human being. For my part, I won't go in that house again except in the daylight to get my tools. I've had enough of it."

This confirmation of all their fears by one who had been so bold to deny and investigate, increased the consternation of the workmen, and all resolved to abandon their work at once, and not to resume it. Their return to the village, and the strange stories they had to tell, of course caused a great sensation. It was the only topic of gossip that evening, and the excitement and interest grew as the news spread.

This sudden breaking up of his plans in regard to Rolff House caused the lawyer to set all his wits to work. He was shrewd enough to see at once that unless the public delusion could be counteracted, and either the true cause of the mysterious occurrences at Rolff House discovered, or the matter plausibly explained, his plans for the repair of the old house would be completely balked. He was of too cold, skeptical a nature to put any faith in the stories of a supernatural origin to the occurrences. He had his suspicions as to the true cause, and he confided them to Ralph.

"I more than half believe," he said, in discussing the subject, "that old Carl Crum is at the bottom of the whole matter. I have had my eye on him for some time for fear he would do some mischief, and I know he has been lurking around Rolff House a good deal. I have heard that he took pains to create the impression that there would be trouble in the house if anybody dared to enter it to carry out my objects; and the inference is very plain that he has engineered this whole ghost business. I do not know but that he may have an object—a serious object, too; for I have always been more than half suspicious that he was a party in some way to the old lady's secret instructions to Claude. My inference is that he is a sort of private guardian of the old vault, perhaps with secret instructions, and that is one reason why I have hesitated to have anything to do with it. At any rate, we must unravel this mystery. It is delaying our plans, and threatens to defeat them. I am excessively annoyed, Ralph. After all our good luck, it seems shameful that we should be delayed and bothered in this ridiculous way. I wish I had a good man to employ in this matter, but there is none; and we must trust in ourselves. Now what is the first step to pursue?"

"I hardly feel capable of advising," replied Ralph. "Our own experience in the house hasn't been such as to encourage us to attempt a new investigation."

"That is the way I feel," replied the elder plotter; "but still something must be done and it seems as if there was no means but for us to attempt it ourselves. Let us be practical, Ralph. Of course, there are no ghosts in that old house. Somebody is causing these disturbances. They will probably not remain in the house now that the work has been stopped. We can go over, well provided with lights, and armed, if necessary, and make an investigation that will probably result in discovering some clue to the means by which the noises and other ghostly tricks have been produced. We must go. Our success depends upon it. What do you say?"

"Well, if we must, we must," replied Ralph; "but I had rather it were somebody beside me."

"Of course, of course," replied the father, "and so would I. But go we must. Perhaps we can get some hardy fellow to accompany us. I'll see in the morning. But to-morrow afternoon I propose to make an investigation that will unravel this mystery."

CHAPTER XXVI.

Although, in the war that had ensued between the British government and the young American republic, the British naval commanders had promptly declared a blockade of the entire American coast, and great fleets had been sent to enforce the blockade, yet, such was the adventurous and hardy character of our seamen of the day, that the efforts to shut up our ports were very far from successful. Not only did the vessels of our infant navy put to sea, and, under daring and skillful commanders, gain a series of brilliant victories, that compensated largely for the early military disasters on land, but within a few weeks after the declaration of war, the seas were fairly swarming with American privateers. The most prominent and wealthy merchants of the country engaged in this sort of business venture, and light, swift schooners, heavily armed, and capable of outsailing any other vessels then known, were sent to sea by the hundreds from every port almost, and inflicted immense damage on the enemy's commerce. The furthest seas that were whitened by Britain's commercial fleets were not safe from the depredations of these daring cruisers. They even invaded the British channel, and watched like hawks about the English coasts, while it is related that one daring privateer commander, while cruising off the mouth of the Thames, sent a cartel to London proclaiming a blockade of the entire British islands, in ridicule of the blockade of the American coast so loftily proclaimed by the British naval commanders.

The Chesapeake Bay became the great rendezvous of these privateering craft, owing to the difficulty of blockading it, and the city of Baltimore gained its early commercial supremacy and laid the foundation of its future prosperity by the ventures of its merchants in this sort of speculation.

Early in December, 1812, the privateer schooner Harpy, one dark and stormy night, ran into the harbor of Baltimore, having successfully avoided the blockading vessels. She had been gone on a six months' cruise, having sailed from the port of New York; but, on her return, finding it closely blockaded she had sought the safer waters of the Chesapeake to make port.

While on her homeward voyage, the Harpy, during a heavy fog, had got into close proximity to an enemy's brig, without being aware of it. The fog suddenly lifting, she had found herself lying directly under the guns of a ship carrying double her weight of metal, flying the British flag. Her own character was well enough told in her tall masts and low, sharp lines; and the enemy had at once opened on her with a broadside. The wind favoring, the commander of the Harpy resolved on a daring manoeuvre to escape capture or destruction. Bearing directly down on the enemy, he exchanged broadsides, then turning away, got considerably to the windward before the latter could tack and again bring her guns to bear. The Harpy, being very swift, had now no difficulty in drawing away from the pursuing enemy, annoying her in the meantime as much as possible with her long swivel gun.

In this little affair, two of the Harpy's crew had been killed and several wounded; and the first duty of the commander, after casting anchor, was to get the latter ashore.

Among the wounded crew, was a handsome young man, who could scarcely have much passed the period that marks the arrival of manhood, and who seemed of more gentle birth and rearing than his sailor's garb would warrant.

Placed in the hospital with the rest of the wounded sailors, he became an object of special interest to the surgeon in charge. During the conflict with the enemy's brig, while helping to man one of the guns, he had been struck in the side by a flying bolt from the gun-carriage of the gun he was helping to work, which had been hit by one of the enemy's shot, and, besides the breaking of three or four ribs, had received severe internal injuries.

He was not yet out of danger—indeed, the shock to his system from effects of his removal to the hospital had aggravated his symptoms, and caused the surgeon considerable anxiety. His first words on reaching the hospital had been the inquiry:

"Doctor, how soon can I get out of this?"

The surgeon did not reply, but proceeded to examine into his injuries, and then to recommend to his assistant such measures as he thought necessary to better his condition. But ere the surgeon drew away, the young patient repeated his question:

"Doctor, won't you tell me how soon I can get out of this?"

"Why, my dear sir," replied the kind surgeon, "judging from your present condition, you may have to remain with us several months."

"Oh, no, no, no," almost moaned the young man; "it cannot be. Don't deceive me, doctor. Can't you put me on my feet in a week?"

"Nonsense," replied the surgeon. "If you are out in eight weeks, you may consider yourself lucky. Now, no more talking. The less you talk and worry the sooner you will get well."

"But I must have the assurance that I can leave this place soon—very soon," continued the young man. "You do not know what depends upon it, doctor. I had rather die than stay here a month. You must do your best for me, doctor."

The surgeon glanced again at the white, sunken face, that showed plainly the traces of deep suffering, and the large, brilliant eyes, and replied, with a grave shake of the head:

"I can make no promises, my dear young sir. You are very badly hurt, and it will need a good long rest and plenty of care to cure you. Of course, I will do my best for you; but you must not worry or fret. It will only delay your cure. If you have friends you wish to inform the attendants will write for you. But now, no more words. I strictly forbid you saying anything more."

The young man turned his head away with an expression of pain and despair, and the surgeon passed on in his rounds of the hospital.

A week passed by, and every day the "interesting young patient," as the surgeon termed the wounded young sailor from the Harpy, renewed his pleadings with the surgeon to secure an early discharge from the hospital. With good care, rest and nourishing food, he was slowly gaining strength, and asserted that he felt well enough to leave; but the surgeon was afraid that the internal injuries were of too grave a character to warrant an early discharge from his care, and denied every appeal allowed to leave.

One morning, on his rounds of the hospital, the surgeon came to the ward that contained the wounded sailors—most of whom were now convalescent. On approaching the cot that had contained the young man, he was greatly surprised to find it vacant. He had just been considering, as he came along, the advisability of informing his very anxious patient that he could be discharged in a week or two. But he was gone. Inquiry gave no clue to the secret of his departure, nor were any of the hospital attendants aware of it. He had evidently got wearied of waiting a cure, and, securing the help probably of some of his sailor comrades, had been assisted to dress and make his way from the hospital without attracting the attention of anybody.

The surgeon was very much chagrined and indignant. He berated his assistants roundly for their want of watchfulness.

"It's a pity," he said, as he moved on. "That boy will probably sacrifice his life to his zeal to return to his friends. In a couple of weeks he might have gone safely, too. It's a shame. If I find out he was allowed to go with the connivance of anybody here, it will go hard with him."

For many weeks, the disappearance of the young sailor was the subject of curiosity and speculation in the hospital.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Spite of his skepticism as to the nature of the mysterious occurrences at Rolff House, and his suspicions that Carl Crum was at the bottom of the whole business, Anthony Saybrook felt nervous and uneasy in regard to the proposed visit of himself and Ralph to the house to investigate the matter. The truth was, that the lawyer, like many men who are intellectually very daring, was physically a coward, and, though he was no believer whatever in ghosts, he had an undefinable dread of again entering the old mansion while in its present state. He could not forget the strange and terrible death of Leb. Sackett, nor the fright he had had at the time of the discovery of the corpse of the would-be robber of the strong vault built by Magnus Rolff.

While inwardly sneering at his own cowardice, he made an effort to secure the services of some resolute man to accompany him on the proposed investigation; but without success. There were but few men in the little community whom he would have trusted for such a purpose, and, not much to his surprise, all whom he approached on the subject had business on hand that prevented their acceptance of his offers, or else they honestly confessed that they had no wish to enter the old house after all the strange occurrences there.

"It is just as I feared, Ralph," said the lawyer to his son, after returning from his unsuccessful mission. "This infernal trickery has so imposed upon the community that it is practically impossible to get anybody to go within gunshot of the old house. There is no other way for it—we must go alone. And why shouldn't we? I confess I feel somewhat nervous; but; pshaw! what is there to be afraid of? Suppose we should run across old Crum or some other mischievous fellow there? We shall go well armed and prepared, and have really nothing to fear. Get your pistols ready, and I will see to mine, and to having the lanterns prepared; and, after a good dinner, and a bottle of wine to warm our courage, I think we will be ready for the trip."

"Well, I am not disposed to back out," said Ralph. "My pistols are good ones; and if, as you say, we should meet any fellow there, we ought to be able to give a good account of ourselves. But I have no idea we shall meet anybody; and, of course, the idea of our encountering ghosts is preposterous."

"Exactly, Ralph—perfectly silly."

"Strange people should be so superstitious," remarked Ralph, with an air intended to indicate his own entire superiority to such a feeling.

"Well, I don't know," was the reply, "considering the popular ignorance. There are very few who have any real

There is nothing equal to Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator for destroying worms. No article of its kind has given such satisfaction.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer Complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

For coughs, colds, bronchitis and all lung and throat troubles, there is no preparation of medicine can compare with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It never fails to afford prompt and permanent relief. It removes all soreness, and heals the diseased parts. It immediately soothes the most troublesome cough, and by promoting expectoration, removes the mucus which stops up the air tubes which causes difficulty in breathing, thereby gives relief to that depressing tightness experienced in the chest. Public speakers and singers will find Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup of inestimable value, as it speedily and effectually allays all irritation, and huskiness in the throat and bronchial tubes, and gives power to the vocal cords, rendering the voice clear and sonorous. If parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves from much anxiety, trouble and expense, let them procure a bottle of "Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup," and whenever a child has taken cold, has a cough or hoarseness, give the Syrup according to directions.

Much talk, many lies.

To Those of Sedentary Occupation. —Men who follow sedentary occupations, which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver and kidneys than those who lead active, outdoor lives. The former will find in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills a restorative without question the most efficacious on the market. They are easily procurable, easily taken, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap considering their excellence.

A Sure Cure for Headaches. — Bilious headache, to which women are more subject than men, becomes so acute in some subjects that they are utterly prostrated. The stomach refuses food, and there is a constant and distressing effort to free the stomach from bile which has become unduly secreted there. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a speedy alternative, and in neutralizing the effects of the intruding bile relieves the pressure on the nerves which cause the headache. Try them.

All trails are long to the lazy.

Will be Found an Excellent Remedy for sick headache. Carter's Little Liver Pills. Thousands of letters from people who have used them prove this fact. Try them.

The Well Known Strengthening Properties of IRON, combined with other tonics and a most perfect nervine, are found in Carter's Iron Pills, which strengthen the nerves and body, and improve the blood and complexion.

UNTOLD MISERY — WHAT A WELL-KNOWN COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER SUFFERED, AND HOW HE WAS CURED.—Gentlemen, About five years ago I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time travelling for Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine and when the third bottle was finished, I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of Dyspepsia.

He Has Tried It.—Mr. John Anderson, Kimloss, writes: "I venture to say few, if any, have received greater benefit from the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, than I have. I have used it regularly for over ten years and have recommended it to all sufferers I knew of, and they also found it of great virtue in cases of severe bronchitis and incipient consumption."

Boys' School Suits

DO YOU HEAR THEM BELLS A-RINGING?

If you don't now, you will very soon—that boy of yours must start for school. How about his clothes? Have you got him provided with a good suit? Just a word in your ear. If you want the best

School Clothes

In Belleville, come in and talk to us for about five minutes. See what we have to offer. Your boy can learn one thing here he can't learn at school—clothes economy. That is, that the best is really the cheapest. Maybe you can get some pointers in that direction yourself. Pay you to come and see anyway.

Don't let your neighbors show you the bargains they got here—and feel sorry that you did not come also, but come yourself.

SMART EFFECTS.

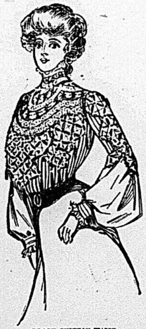
Utility hats of ecru straw tilt up in front and are simply trimmed by the addition of a veil of lace or brown chiffon.

Stamped nets of which the ground is white and the pattern of some delicate color make ideal dancing frocks for summer wear and even for simple occasions in winter.

The gown of black point d'esprit will always be worn by the well dressed woman. It is inexpensive and gives the airy effect of a far more expensive creation. A gown of black point d'esprit banded with chantilly lace—and it need not be expensive lace either—makes an ideal frock worn over a lining of soft, lustrous silk.



BLACK CHIFFON WAIST.

Blouses of black chiffon and black antique lace are very smart. The neck and sometimes the upper halves of the sleeves are made transparent, and a waist of this sort worn with a crepe de chine skirt makes a smart demitoilet.

The picture represents a blouse of the above description made of chiffon and embroidered antique lace.

A Roman Catholic congregation in a town not far from Belleville took a unique way to lift the debt from its church. Certain members of the congregation three years ago pledged themselves to each give a calf to the church, the calves to be kept by the donors, and sold when they became three years old. The sale takes place in the near future, when 105 cattle are to be sold, and the congregation in question should have ample money to cover all their indebtedness.

A wireless message from the Chief says he has arrived at Glasgow and is greatly disappointed to see that all the men don't wear kilts. He has heard several bagpipe players since he landed, but not one of them could touch Piper McIntosh, of Belleville. The Chief doesn't expect to stay long in Glasgow. He intends, if possible, to take a trip into the Highlands to see some of the famous mountain dew, which, when rubbed on the head is said to keep the hair from falling out.

MAY BE MURDER.

Fred Hanmore Stabs His Employer With a Pitchfork.

Barrie, Aug. 5.—Fred Hanmore, alias Stratton, was brought to the county jail from Bradford Monday night, and over him hangs a charge of stabbing, which may yet be one of murder.

He was employed by a farmer named William Church, who lives six miles from Bradford. While at work in a mow on Friday a quarrel arose, and Hanmore stabbed his employer through the lungs with a pitch fork. At last reports Church was bleeding profusely from the mouth and lungs, and was in a critical condition. Hanmore acknowledges the stabbing.

Almost a Murder in Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 5.—Several young men made insulting remarks about two young ladies Walter Welch and his brother were walking with in Queen's Park last night, and in a fight which occurred Welch was stabbed three times. It was at first feared that his injury was fatal, but this morning the doctors hold out hope for his recovery. His brother was badly kicked. No arrests have been made yet.

Do Your Feet
Get Sour

Sour, sweaty, ill-smelling feet cause many people a great deal of discomfort, annoyance and shame. Wash your feet as you may, the bad odor still persists. You can easily get rid of it, though, and have your feet sweet and dry by the use of FOOT ELM.

It destroys the disagreeable, sweaty odors, whether of armpits, feet or any part of the body. Prevents and cures scalding and chafing, relieves sore, hot, tired, burning feet, and gives you comfort with your feet you never knew before. Foot Elm is 25 cents a box of 18 powders, at druggists or by mail. B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

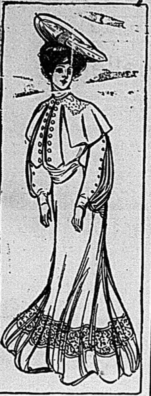
REVIVAL OF OLD STYLES.

The Long Shoulder—Modes of 1830 Improved.

The fashions of this year are many of them revivals of past modes. Witness, for instance, the empire frocks and the pompadour designs in silk and muslin. The majority, however, are improved copies of the gowns worn a hundred years or so ago.

The development of the long shoulder is now a permanent fashion note. The people who most loudly protested against it are now most in favor of it. With the full skirt and the return to panniers, gaugings and plaits of all kinds the long shoulder, always suggestive of the 1830 period, naturally follows.



LINEN GOWN.

These 1830 fashions are admirably adapted to evening wear. Nothing is more becoming to young people than the fichu and the bertha. All angles can be softened by the skillful manipulation of a fichu in chiffon, muslin or lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR USEFUL WEAR.

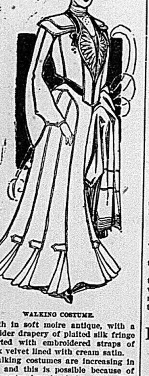
There is something very chic about a black and white wrap. Fringes play an important part in the trimming of all such fancy coats.

A mantle recently designed for an elderly woman was three-quarter length in soft moire antique, with a shoulder drapery of plaited silk fringe inserted with embroidered straps of black velvet lined with cream satin.



WALKING COSTUME.

Walking costumes are increasing in chic, and this is possible because of the greater length of the skirt. The little coats now boast of application, fancy lapels and, in a word, all the ornamentation of a dressy tailor made.

The long tailor made, by the way, exists only in a modified form for semidressy occasions.

The extreme fickleness of the weather this season has been exceedingly trying. The result is that modistes are striving to hit the happy medium in frocks for smart functions. Transparent necks have been softly lined, and a thin gown is provided with something substantial in the fashion of a stole, which can be worn on cool days without spoiling the effect of the toilet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Love. In Lapland.

In Lapland the crime which, after murder, is punished with the greatest severity is that of marrying a girl against the wishes of her parents. When a suitor makes his appearance he says nothing to the maiden, who often does not know who he is, but her parents inform her that she is sought in marriage. Shortly afterward, on a day appointed, the girl, her parents, friends and suitor all meet together at a feast, and the young man and maiden are placed opposite, so that they can look at each other freely and can talk with comfort. After the meal is over the company repair to an open space, where "the race for a wife" is run. The usual distance is about a quarter of a mile, and the girl is placed a third of the distance from the starting point. If she be fleet of foot she can easily reach the goal before her suitor, and in that case he may never trouble her again. If, however, he has found favor in her eyes, all she has to do is to lag somewhat in her flight, so that he may overtake her. If she desires to intimate to him that his love for her is returned she may run a little way and then turn with open arms to accept him.

English For French Tongues.

Persons who have worried through a "French Manual" may get some satisfaction from the thought that with their own language they are revenged upon the Parisian. "Methods Avec Prononciation" is a little book which makes straight the way of the English language for French tongues. Does one wish to say, "How is it, miss; one so charming and pretty walking alone?" (which, of course, would be one of the first remarks a French traveler would have occasion to make) it is only necessary to consult the "Nouvelles Methods:" "Aou isite. miss; oueune so tcharminngue annd pretti ouakinngue alaune?" If the traveler goes to the theater the man at the box office may say, "Oui have ou orchestre stalls laifte, beute allow me tou rimarque sat se are se best sitce for sinngeule dgeentlemene." Evidently "th" is given up as a bad job, and "j" is as difficult for the Frenchman as for the German, though a German manual gives John Bull as "Dschonn Bool."

Great Mushroom Garden In France.

The strangest of the underground worlds in France which I visited was one devoted to the raising of mushrooms. Its limits seemed unbounded, as indeed they were, for it pierced the hillsides in every direction. We entered through an opening under an orchard of cherry trees. During "harvest time" a crop is gathered every twenty-four hours. Three men, with their great baskets, make the rounds of this underground farm every morning, and every day in the year can count on an immense crop, which they ship to the large cities near by and even several miles away. The discolored and inferior mushrooms are sent to the canneries, but for his best growth the producer receives only 20 cents a pound.—Scribner's Magazine.

Flamingoes' Tongues.

The beastly Vitellius, as Gibbon calls him, spent at least six millions of money on table in as many months. He invented, or his cook invented for him, a dish which he designated "the Shield of Minerva." One of its principal ingredients was flamingoes' tongues, of which both Pliny and Martial speak in encomiastic terms. Dampier says that the flamingoes have "large tongues, and near the root is a piece of fat which is accounted a great dainty." When Captain Owen was surveying the east coast of Africa his sailors shot down hundreds of these beautiful birds in order, with an extravagance worthy of Vitellius, to make a dish of the tongues alone.

A Martyr to Etiquette.

In the antebellum days a charming Virginia hostess "rather than disturb her company" sat still through the long dinner in silent torture. A hornet got caught under her cape and traveled about searching for an outlet, stinging as it went. When coffee was served in the drawing room she had to "retire." Fever came on, and she was really ill, but the force of etiquette and hospitality combined had made it an occasion to die at one's post.—Good Housekeeping.

Nature's Kindness.

"There's wan lucky thing about work," said Mr. Dolan.

"What's that?" inquired Mr. Rafferty.

"The fact that it's a gred deal easier to l'ave off than it wor to begin. If it worn't fur that beautiful provision in nature we'd all be dead wid industhry."

Paralysis and Locomotor Ataxia

Sleeplessness, indigestion, headache and neuralgic pains, twitching of the nerves, weak or irregular heart action, inability to concentrate the mind, discouragement and despondency are among the symptoms which warn you of approaching prostration and paralysis. By forming new, rich blood and creating new nerve force Dr. Chase's Nerve Food prevents and cures the terrible nervous diseases which lead to so much suffering and helplessness. Being composed of nature's most powerful nerve restoratives, it is certain to do you good. Fifty cents a box at all dealers. 2

THE THINGS WE LEAVE UNDONE.

It isn't the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you a bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
The letter you did not write,
The flower you might have sent, dear,
Are your haunting ghosts to-night.

The stone you might have lifted
Out of a brother's way,
The bit of heartsome counsel
You were hurried too much to say,
The loving touch of the hand, dear,
The gentle and winsome tone
That you had no time or thought for
With troubles enough of your own.

These little acts of kindness
So easily out of mind,
These chances to be angels
Which even mortals find,
They come in night and silence,
Each chill, reproachful wraith,
When hope is faint and flagging
And a blight has dropped on faith.

For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great
To suffer our slow compassion
That tarries until too late;
And it's not the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone
Which gives you the bitter heartache
At the setting of the sun.

Sawdust and Fish Life.

"Sawdust and Fish Life" is the title of a brochure recently issued. A reprint from the Transactions of the Canadian Institute, it is the record of a series of experiments made by Professor A. P. Knight, of Queen's University. An ancient feud subsists between the angler and the sawmill owners, and Professor Knight's investigations will be watched with great interest by the parties thereto. His conclusions go to show that there are two sides to the question, and also that there is need of further investigation. Undoubtedly, strong solutions of sawdust are deadly to fish life. But the weakest of the solutions which he used was thirty or forty times as strong in sawdust extracts as the water immediately below a specimen mill on the Bonnechere River, and in this water chub and brook trout were found. "No stream," he says, "can be pronounced off hand as poisoned by sawdust. Each stream must be studied by itself, and the varying conditions must be thoroughly understood before a judgment can be pronounced. The chief things to be considered are (1) the quantity of sawdust, and (2) the volume of water into which the sawdust is discharged. Subordinate conditions are the rapidity or sluggishness of the stream, the amount of sunlight or shade, and the character of the water, whether from agricultural lands or from primitive forests.

"What is the Press?"

The Levis Quotidien has discovered the answer to the question, "What is the Press?" As it is calculated to give a new sense of dignity and superiority to even the junior reporter, we reproduce it herewith, somewhat damaged in translation, says The Toronto News: "The Press is one or more men who pass their lives, like hermits, in a solitary chamber, thinking and writing in the interests of the fellows, who, more fortunate than themselves, are frequenting concerts, theatres and so on in the sole intent of procuring their own delight. The journalist, too, goes to the theatre, to the concert, the circus, the public festival; but he goes in a frame of mind quite different from that of the ordinary spectator. He goes in duty bound, to see that which is reprehensible, is evil, is calculated in a word to compromise the honor, the dignity, the morality of man. He takes his notes and returns to the office, not to surrender to delicious reflection on the beauty his eyes have seen and the charm his ears have heard, but to set forth and put down on paper what there has been of good and of evil, to the end of warning and instructing the public, of keeping it so far as may be in the right way. In one word, he preaches in his newspaper a lay sermon."

Canada Outstrips the States.

Most of us to the southward of the border have been so occupied with our own individual and national affairs that we have failed to note what has been done by our Canadian neighbors, says the New York Sun. In energy the Canadians are now our rivals; in achievement they have perhaps outstripped us. If the foreign commerce of the United States, per capita of total population, corresponded with that of Canada, our exports and imports would aggregate six billions of dollars per year instead of their present two and one-fourth billions. In other words, the total foreign commerce of the United States approximates $30 per capita, whereas that of Canada approximates $80. Her railway activity, in its proportion to population, within recent years has outstripped our own. Vast areas which a few years ago were known only to Indians and trappers are now covered with towns, villages and thrifty farms. A generation has seen her railway mileage and her freight traffic multiplied by twenty and her railway equipment and her passenger traffic multiplied by ten.

Canada's Holiday Resorts.

Besides being a great country to work in, Canada is a very beautiful place in which to holiday. Down South they have long admitted the truth of the latter statement, as the yearly increasing throng of visitors testifies. Nor have we ourselves been blind to the fact, though as a nation we have done little to advertise our sylvan wares. Year by year, however, the fame of Canada's summer glories is spreading. Quiet nooks where we used to sprawl in lazy enjoyment are taking on the hectic appearance of fashionable resorts. Where once the picturesque canoe alone was seen, steam launches and luxurious yachts now cruise. The old farmhouse, where people could get board for about $2 a week, has been transformed into a fashionable hotel.

His marriage was a failure, wasn't it?"

MILLINERY NOTES.

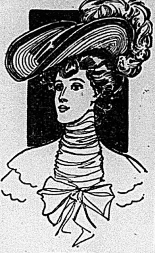
Some very picturesque 1830 hats are being introduced in chip and chiffon, and indeed several are composed entirely of lace. They are very large, with strings, and therefore very closely resemble the picture hat finished with a single feather and a rose.

The best hats are still of the Gainsborough type in fine chip, in black, white and pale shades. Some are simply trimmed with wonderful choux of ribbon and an equally wonderful rosette, while the others have a long, sweeping feather. These hats are very distinctive, but not to be ranked among economical head gear.



WHITE CHIP HAT.

An all black hat is a necessity with the up to date woman, but she can relieve the somberness of this if she chooses by applications of ecru lace.

French sailor hats of rough straw are worn with pale tinted veils of chiffon, a delicate blue and lavender being the newest thing.

An exquisite robe is of plisse crepe de chine in a creamy tint, and over this falls a tunic of black chantilly lace, applique with lozenge shaped motifs of ivory d'alencon lace. The bolero—of the black lace—is heavily incrusted with ivory lace, and the neck is cut low to show a transparent yoke of ivory lace, fastened with straps of narrow green velvet and diamond buttons. A broad belt of the velvet shows beneath the short bolero. Several gowns of nut brown crape and chiffon have been seen, one of which had a pronounced admixture of apricot yellow, while another was liberally applied with champagne tinted lace and had slight touches of orchid pink panne.

VERY REMARKABLE CURE OF DIARRHOEA.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who was cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists

Women Who Drink Whiskey.

That physicians are responsible for a good deal of inebriety among women is charged by a writer in the "Hospital" (London). Of 679 cases treated during the past nineteen years in an English home for inebriate women, only eleven were beer-drinkers, and thirty-six habitually drank wine. The rest became drunkards through taking spirits, and especially whiskey. The fact that so many of these women were whiskey-drinkers is ascribed by the writer to the frequent prescription of this liquor by doctors. He says:

"While of late years doctors have very largely avoided recommending alcohol to their patients at all, when they do prescribe any it is whiskey. If a man or woman of middle age feels twinges of gout or rheumatism, the medical attendant very often advises the giving up of the glass of sherry or claret which the patient has been in the habit of taking, and substituting a little whiskey and soda-water. From the profession the public have learned to believe that whiskey is the 'safest' of all spirits, with results very advantageous to distillers. These figures, which tell the temptation to which six hundred inebriate women succumbed, make one doubt if the advice is equally good for the public. It is true that the doctors recommend only 'a little' stimulant, and may even specify the quantity, but they have no guarantee that their limitations are adhered to. The warmth of the spirit not merely induces a pleasant sense of well-being, but may even give a temporary relief from pain. This tempts the patient to return to it when the pain comes back. The doctor is not told of this extra indulgence, and the patient consoles herself with the notion that whiskey is 'so safe.' . . . Neither wine nor beer gives the temporary alleviation sought, but spirits do, and the notion that whiskey is not conducive to the development of any disease is a temptation to take it. This is a point which medical men might do well to consider. They may save their patients from falling if they can assure them that whiskey-drinking will cause some disease. But it is of no use to warn them of the risk of acquiring the habit of inebriety. That only gives offence, and does little good, for no one realizes their susceptibility to that temptation until, unhappily, it is too late."

A good story is told in Mr. C. E Black's "Life of Lord Dufferin," which perhaps illustrates the difficulties some servants find in distinguishing between "at home" and "not at home." One day when Lord Dufferin was Governor-General of Canada the Countess was to be "at home" to receive visitors. She and Lady Harriet Fletcher sat in state; but nobody came! At 5 o'clock Lord Dufferin came home, and his wife remarked that not a single soul had called to see them The servant was duly questioned, and it turned out he had replied "not at home" to every caller. The visitors' book revealed the fact that the callers were 104 in number, so Lady Dufferin promptly sat down and wrote 104 letters of explanation and apology.

Dr. Muhlenberg, the well-known hymn writer, made his home in later years at St. Luke's Hospital, New York, of which he was the founder. Once when he was carrying a tray of dishes down to the hospital kitchen, someone protested against that menial service. "Why not?" asked he. "What am I but a waiter here in the Lord's hotel?" One of the last moments of his life showed his bluff frankness as well as his acquiescence in the divine will. The chaplain of the hospital was praying at his bedside for his recovery. "Let us have an understanding about this," said Dr. Muhlenberg "You are asking God to restore me, and I am asking God to take me home. There must not be any contradiction in our prayers, for it is evident He can't answer them both."

A lawyer, who spent the briefless days of his career in New York City and is now a successful practitioner in the West, tells in the New York "Mail and Express" how a master of the telling phrase taught him to curb the thunderous voice with which nature endowed him. In those days he was "a vociferous cub," in his own phrase, until Justice P Henry Dugro lifted him into the seventh heaven of judicial approbation—and suddenly let him down again. He had been assaulting the ear-drums of the court for ten minutes, and he concluded by saying "I am sure my argument must be convincing, your honor." "It is overwhelming," returned Justice Dugro, courteously. The young lawyer's chest expanded "Indeed, my ears are still buzzing," added the justice. "I deny your motion."

At the Franklin Inn Club of Philadelphia a poet told the other day of a young man who once called on William Dean Howells without so much as a letter of introduction. This young man thought himself a sonneteer. He had two sonnets with him, and he said he would read them both and then he would ask Mr. Howells to tell him which of them was the better. Mr. Howells is always gracious, and always particularly gracious to young men who love letters Therefore he listened patiently to the first sonnet. It was execrable. The writer of such doggerel could not but be hopeless. "The second sonnet is the better of the two," Mr. Howells said firmly, and he refused to listen to it Pleading an engagement, he asked the young man to excuse him. "The second sonnet is the better, I assure you," he repeated.

Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady was talking about the itinerant preachers of the past. "These men," he said, "were rugged and sincere. Their minds, if they were coarse, were also strong. Their eloquence was sometimes powerful; sometimes it was amazing. There was a notable itinerant who once preached on the 'Glory of the Saints,' and the description of a saint's glory that he gave in this sermon deserves, I think, to be perpetuated This is it, word for word: 'Who, my brethren, can describe the glory of a saint? Why, nothing on earth can liken it. If you drill a hole through the sun and put it on your head for a crown, and split the moon in sunder and put the pieces on your shoulders for epaulets; if you tear down the starry curtain of the skies and wrap it round your body for a robe, and ride to heaven on the lightning wings of the tempest, this would be nothing to the glory of the saints.'"

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard--built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

DEATH OF MR. BEN. WEESE.

WAS A WIDELY KNOWN AND HIGHLY RESPECTED YEOMAN.

In the death of Mr. Benjamin Weese, which occurred in Ameliasburg Township yesterday afternoon, a widely known and respected yeoman passed away. Deceased was born in that township in the year 1837, and had resided there all his life. On the 1st of March last Mr. Weese was the victim of an accident, from which he never fully recovered. A complication of diseases finally set in, causing death.

Deceased was a member of a family who have occupied prominent positions in Ameliasburg and the County of Prince Edward, a brother being ex-Warden, whilst another had been Reeve of the township. Mr. Weese had been for many years identified with the Orange Order, occupying offices in the local lodge, to which he was attached, also offices in the County Lodge. He was a member of the Anglican Church and in politics a Conservative. A widow and a family of five daughters survive. The latter are: Mrs. Heagle, of Trenton; Mrs. Sager and Mrs. Jeffrey, of Ameliasburg; Miss Emma, of Newcastle, and Miss Maud at home. The funeral on Thursday afternoon will be under the auspices of the Orange Order.

VALUABLE TIME SAVED.

Slight injuries often disable a man and cause several days' loss of time and, when blood poison develops, sometimes result in the loss of a hand or limb. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment. When applied to cure bruises and burns it causes them to heal quickly and without maturation, and prevents any danger of blood poison. For sale by all druggists.

Repairs to St. George's.

Quite extensive repairs are being made to St. George's Church, on Station road, which is in connection with Christ Church. A new roof is being put on, the exterior of the building is being repaired, whilst the interior is not being neglected. When completed the church will be much improved in appearance.

are equally influenced by the almost magical pain-subduing power of Polson's Nerviline, equal in medicinal value to five times the quantity of any other rheumatic remedy. Nerviline cures because it reaches the source of the disease and drives it out of the system. Nerviline is an unusually good rheumatic cure, and makes many unusual cures. Just rub it in the next time you have an attack. The immediate result will surprise you. 25 cents.

WEARY BRAIN WORKERS.

Fagged out, ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snap's gone! The buoyancy that made work a pleasure—that's gone too. The doctor would tell you that you are run down, not eating enough nor digesting enough. Your stomach needs aid, your digestion needs a bracer too. Your blood requires phosphorus and iron that it may be formed readily. Now Ferrozone is a wonderful nerve bracer and blood maker. It's food for the blood and nerves, it will make you strong quickly and permanently. Sold by all druggists.

TAKEN BY THE OFFICIAL REPORTER — HOW CENSUS ACCOUNTS WERE MADE UP.

Committee Room 34,
House of Commons,
Wednesday July 22, 1903

The Select Standing Committee on Public Accounts met here this day at 11 o'clock, Mr. D. C. Fraser, Chairman, presiding.

Mr. J. M. Hurley was called, sworn and examined.

By Mr. Northrup.

Q.—You were the Census Commissioner in East Hastings, I believe, at the last census? A.—Yes.

Q.—What were your duties as such Commissioner? A.—To instruct the enumerators in the first place—there was one for each polling place in the Riding: to instruct them with the schedules that we got from the Department how to take the census and start them out to work; to look after them during the work and see that they did it right and when they brought back the books to revise them; to revise their time and their expenses and send them to the Department, send the schedules all to the Department when they were finally revised by me, and wind up the matter in that way, by sending in all the accounts.

Q.—I see. During the time that you were so acting as Census Commissioner did you fill any other Government position? A.—No, not for some months after.

Q.—You were not appointed to a Government position until after you finished the census returns, is that it? A.—I cannot say that. I got notice about the census along about the holidays and I think I commenced about the first week in January to act for the census as Census Commissioner.

Q.—But at that time were you not an official of the Government. A.—No.

Q.—When were you appointed to your present position? A.—Well, some time in February I got a notice notifying me that I was appointed.

Q.—In February, 1901.? A.—1901, yes.

Q.—February, 1901, you were appointed to your present position in the Fisheries? A.—Yes. I got notice, but I did not accept it just then.

Q.—From when did your salary begin to run as an officer of the Fisheries Department? A.—Well it began—I got notice of the appointment some time in February and I think it stated it would begin last February.

Q.—First of February? A.—Yes, and I did not accept it. I was considering it and asking some friends about it and did not just really want to take it, and it ran on in that way. I did not accept it, but some time through February Sir Louis Davies, who was Minister then, asked me to do some matters with respect to some investigation about a light-house keeper; he wanted me to look into other matters and I did.

Q.—Then did your salary begin from that time? A.—Well, I was going to explain that after I had looked into these other matters for him that I sent down a small account with respect to what my expenses were doing that, and then it got to be along perhaps the first of March or the 20th March or along there somewhere, and I sent in the accounts of a little expense that I had with respect to the light-house and one thing or another and when they sent that to me they sent the salary for the month.

Q.—The month of February. A.—Yes.

Q.—So that, to come back to the original question, your salary in the Fisheries Department commenced on the 1st February, 1901? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you have drawn it ever since? A.—Yes. The salary commenced on the 1st February.

Q.—So that in February, 1901, you were in the service of the Fisheries Department? What were your duties there? A.—Well, I got instructions from the Department to go and look after matters regarding — the change from the Dominion to the Province left a lot of unsettled business amongst overseers and one thing and another. I had been sent—

Q.—Just tell us what your business was. Do not bother telling us what the difficulties were. A.—I went to Collins' Bay to settle matters and went to Rice Lake and went to different places.

Q.—But what were your duties? What were you appointed for? This, that, or the other thing? You were appointed to an office and it must have been to discharge some duties. What were those duties? A.—To do whatever the Department would ask me about certain lakes and rivers and dams and see that there were fish ways in them.

Q.—Doing whatever the Department would ask you about certain lakes and rivers and dams and seeing if there were fisheries in them? A.—No, fish ways for the fish to pass. To report upon what kind of fish were in certain places and what would be advisable to breed—to put any other fish they were breeding in such lake and—

Sad Fatality at The Y.M.C.A. Camp.

YOUNG PORT HOPE MAN, 21 YEARS OF AGE, DROWNED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

A sad drowing accident occurred yesterday afternoon near "Quinte Camp," which is the one where the local Y.M.C.A. men are staying. The camp is situated on what is known as "The Reach," between the towns of Deseronto and Picton. The junior camp has broken up, and the senior members are now enjoying a few days' outing. Amongst the campers was Mr. Fred J. Greenaway, of Port Hope, whose life was sacrificed.

It appears that a party left the camp in a sail boat belonging to Mr. J. A. Marsh, of this city, who had H. McGuire, R. Chown, the unfortunate victim and others on board with him. When near the entrance to Bay Bay the craft was struck by a squall and capsized. All were thrown into the water. Greenaway struck out for shore, which was not a great distance away, but he had not proceeded far when he sank to rise no more.

It is supposed that he was seized with cramps. The other occupants of the boat were rescued and safely landed.

Mr. H. McGuire, when the boat upset, was tangled up in the sails, but managed to extricate himself.

Greenaway is said to have been an excellent swimmer. He was an exemplary young man, about 21 years of age. The body was recovered about an hour after the unfortunate affair. The accident is universally regretted by all who were in attendance at the camp. Last evening Mr. Wilkie, sr., left for Port Hope to break the sad news to young Greenaway's parents. The body, after being prepared for burial, was sent to Port Hope to-day.

A GOOD BLACK SUIT.

It does not pay to invest money in a poor, cheap, black suit. Pay a respectable price, buy from a good firm and get something that will always please you. When you buy, look well to the trimmings and general interior finish. The Oak Hall will sell you a suit for $10, better than you can get in any other store in Belleville for $12, and we are willing that you should look and compare before you buy.

JUDGE MADE CHANGES.

IN SOME OF THE FINDINGS OF THE COURT OF REVISION — BAY BRIDGE ASSESSMENT NEARLY WIPED OUT.

The appeals from the Court of Revision to Judge Lazier have all been heard and His Honor has given his decisions. It will be seen that considerable reductions were made in the following appeals, which were adjudicated upon:

Mr. S. Burrows' income assessment of $3,000 reduced to $1,500.

S. R. Gorman's personal property assessment of $3,000 was struck out.

An income assessment of $1,000 against Mr. E. Donald was struck out, he being a non-resident of the city; also an income assessment of $4,000 against Mr. W. D. Robb on the same ground.

Mr. J. Doyle's assessment of $3,000 on residence was reduced to $2,200 by the Court of Revision and the judge raised it to $2,500.

The Commission fixed the assessment of the Bay Bridge at $35,000. The Court of Revision reduced it to $15,000 and the judge reduced it to $1,500.

Mr. J. W. Johnson's assessment of $4,000 on residence was reduced to $3,500.

The Court of Revision reduced Mayor Graham's assessment from $20,430 to $11,360. The judge decided that the assessment should stand at the figures fixed by the Commission.

The Court of Revision made a reduction on the Robertson Block of from $73,800 to $67,890. The judge made a further reduction of $2,350.

A number of other appeals were dismissed.

THE CAT SHOW.

One of the most interesting and unique features of the Dominion Exhibition at Toronto will be a cat show, that will be held on an exceptionally large scale on September 2nd, 3rd and 4th. In many of the large cities of the United States, notably Boston, Philadelphia and New York, and at several fashionable watering places cat shows have taken rank with the leading social functions, and so encourage the breeding, care and exhibition of a better class of cats than the ordinary garden wall climber. The directors, in deciding upon holding the present show, are confident that it will prove a centre of attraction, especially for the ladies. An enticing and liberal prize list has brought promises of entries from many places in Canada and from the leading catteries in the United States. There will be on view cats of all kinds, color and description—long haired from Persia and other eastern countries, tailless from the Isle of Man, the beautiful marked tortoise shell, the sleek Maltese, and the graceful purring pride of the domestic hearth. Entries close with A. W. Bell, 70 King street east, Toronto, Aug. 22.

FIRE FIGHTERS MET IN TRENTON YESTERDAY

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN'S ASSOCIATION OPENS CONVENTION.

Trenton, Ont., Aug. 4.—The fourth annual convention of the Volunteer Firemen's Association opened here today. The town was profusely decorated with bunting, streamers and evergreens, and beautifully illuminated at night. The elements were somewhat unsettled, as showers fell throughout the day.

At six o'clock in the morning the western train on the Grand Trunk Railway arrived with the first delegates of firemen from the west. They were welcomed by the local brigade on arrival, amid the clang of the fire bell, which aroused the townspeople, many of whom were alarmed.

The association were welcomed at the Town Hall and given the freedom of the town by Mayor Funnell. They were also welcomed by Dr. Jacques, president of the Board of Trade, and other representative citizens, such as A. R. Weddell, general manager of Gilmour and Company; Mr. Campbell, manager Molson's Bank; also Aldermen Dickie and O'Rourke.

In the afternoon the delegates proceeded to business. Two important measures were taken up, one of these was the permitting of American companies to compete in sports on payment of $5.00 fees. The other was a proposal that the association aggressively continue until it succeeds in having the Provincial Legislature tax the insurance companies doing business a small fee in favor of volunteer firemen.

To-morrow, the second day, new officials of the association will be appointed, also the place where next year's tournament will take place. The following are the retiring officials:—President, Walter Smith, Trenton; 1st Vice-President, J. A. Vendersleeys, Niagara Falls; 2nd Vice-President, Mr. Moffatt, Merritton; Secretary, W. J. Armstrong, Milton; Treasurer, J. Miller, Smith's Falls; Executive, E. A. Earl, Milton; R. Clarke, Merritton; J. A. Thomas, Niagara Falls; Angus McDonald, Mitchell; T. A. Skinner, Niagara Falls South.

Delegates from most of the towns in Ontario are in attendance and they bespeak a good turnout of their respecttive companies taking part in the events on the programme, which is a good one.

To-morrow the delegates will visit Gilmour and Company's establishment.

In the Justice Shop.

Maintaining a Nuisance.

Donald Graham was charged with maintaining a nuisance. The charge arose out of the odor caused by storing hides, etc., in a building on the lower part of Front street. The defendant was fined and had to pay costs amounting to $2.50.

Broke a Door.

A lad named Stanley McConnell was charged with and found guilty of breaking a door in Mr. Leavens' ice house. He was allowed to go after a reprimand.

Abusive Language.

Mary Seams was accused of using abusive language towards Mrs. Breau. After considerable evidence had been taken the case was dismissed.

EVERYBODY SHOULD TAKE A VACATION.

Whether it be for a few days or a few weeks, the change of occupation, the peaceful quiet rest in the woods, or a trip through the charming lakes and rivers of "the Highlands of Ontario," breathing in the pure air, impregnated with the odor of the balsam and pines, will not only do you and your family good, but will make you of more benefit to your employer. Think of this and call on U. E. Thompson, C. P. & T. A. or T. H. Coppin, station agent, Grand Trunk Railway. j28toa8

SEEK THEIR RELEASE.

FIRST ACQUITTED THEN CONVICTED ON THE SAME CHARGE.

Toronto, August 4.—The court today granted the first of three orders necessary to set aside the conviction and sentence of James Fox, of Belleville district, to six months, and of John N. Moore, to four months, for theft. It is claimed they had been acquitted by the magistrate at Madoc of the same charge.

IT IS A PERPLEXING THING.

For the reader of newspaper advertisements to determine what is what. We do not use as large type as some, but we are sure that what we have to say is not the less important to any one who is interested in the subject of clothing at this time. Our summer suits are ready to speak for themselves, if you will but take time to inspect them, and we think you will find no fault with the prices. We are making an immense display of hot weather clothing and furnishings.—Quick & Robertson.

A DELIGHTFUL DAY'S TRIP.

Every Wednesday during August, the Grand Trunk Railway System, in connection with the Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte Nav. Co., will afford the public the opportunity of a day's trip through the 1000 Islands via Kingston at very low rates. This is one of the most delightful trips imaginable. Train leaves Belleville 7 a.m., Napanee 7.43 a.m. Seven hours' sail through the beautiful 1000 Islands of the St. Lawrence to Alexandria Bay and return. Round trip from Belleville $1.58. Napanee $1.35. a1tosl

TWEED.

The Rev. Dr. Potts, of Toronto, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Church here at both services last Sunday, preaching in the interests of the Educational Society of the Methodist Church. He also addressed a mass meeting of Sabbath School goers in the afternoon.

The R. C. congregation of St. Carthagh's Church here intend holding a monster picnic on Wednesday, August 19th, on the grounds of the Hungerford Park Association. One unique feature of the day will be the sale, by auction, of 105 three-year-old steers, contributed by members of the congregation, the proceeds of sale to be applied on church debt.

Work has commenced on the new buildings of the electric light plant of Steinhoff and Gordon, which was destroyed by fire last January.

Dr. A. Robertson and family, of Norwood, are camping at Stony Point, on the shores of our beautiful lake.

There are a great many new dwelling houses in course of erection here at present, but the supply of tenement houses seems to fall far short of the demand.

The Hungerford fall fair will be held on the exhibition grounds here on Friday, October 2nd.

McINTOSH BROS.

The GRAND PROMOTER

His Laundress Calls and Makes a Collection.

MAJOR CROFOOT, grand promoter of all sorts and conditions of schemes and enterprises to better his financial condition, entered his office the other morning, leaving the door open behind him. He had scarcely hung up his hat when a woman stood before him. Like a flash of lightning he recognized his old time laundress—the old time when she used to do up his shirts and trust him for pay—and he realized that she had hunted him down at last and meant to collect a bill of about $5. One thrill shot through him, and then he was as cool as ice.

"Madam, were you looking for the photographer or the corset maker?" he queried.

"No, sir," she replied; "I am looking for Major Crofoot, and I have found him at last. Don't you remember me?"

"Really, now—why, really"—

"Don't you remember me?"

"Is it—can it be—is it possible that you are Mrs. Stubbins?"

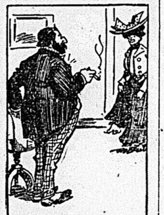
"I am Mrs. Stubbins. I am the woman you beat out of $4.80 for doing your laundry. I have been on your trail over a year, and I have run you to earth at last. I want my money."

"Well, well, well!" exclaimed the major as he held out his hand for a shake. "Mrs. Stubbins, I am thrice glad to see you. Only yesterday I sent out to Dakota to try to find where you were located. You don't know how often I have thought of you and your kindness to me. For months and months you were like a mother to me. And have you just come on from the west?"

"Blarney!" she answered as she drew herself up and pointed a finger at him. "I am no longer a trusting, confiding laundress, but I have gone on the stage and got my eyes opened. I am no longer Mrs. Nancy Stubbins, but Miss Rosalie Cathcart. Caitiff, come down with the shekels or I will make it torrid for thee."

"And so you have gone on the stage? By George, what a coincidence—what a coincidence! I have a three act play right here in my desk and was wondering where I could find a woman to take the leading part. You have just the right figure—you look the part—your fortune is made. Right here, without going any further, I offer you $100 per week to take the role. As I remarked before, what a coincidence!"

"Mercurio, thinkest not to deceive me with honeyed speech," artfully replied Mrs. Stubbins as she balanced on one foot. "I am here for the oof. Produce or get ready for a dull thud."



"I AM LOOKING FOR MAJOR CROFOOT."

"By George, but what talent—what acting!" whispered the major as he gazed in admiration. "Sarah Bernhardt isn't within forty rods of you. I've got $20,000 ready to put my play on the road and make you the brightest star in America. If you'll come in this afternoon I'll have a contract ready for you to sign. You'll carry the country by storm."

"Mercurio, hast thou the rhino—my little $4.80? I call upon thee to hand it over, and if thou dost not then may the consequences be upon thine own head."

"You mean that little balance? Yes, I'll pay, of course, but that will come later.. I think I can make your salary $125 per week, and I'd like to begin the rehearsals at once. I'm also willing to advance you $500 for any stage wardrobe you may need. Can you come in at 2 o'clock?"

"At 2 of the clock Mercurio wouldst engage me," mused Mrs. Stubbins, with her finger on her nose, "but I know the artfulness of man and cannot be bamboozled. Let him stand forth like a man and pay me that which he owest, and later on I will answer him."

"Perhaps I could make it $150 per week," said the major as he toyed with his watch chain. "You grow better and better. I don't want to make you egotistical, but Mary Anderson couldn't hold a candle to you. I'll have your name from Kalamazoo to Kandy within a year. Your role is tragedy, and you want to stick to it. Shall we say 2 o'clock? I want to get the contract signed and hire a hall."

"My answer to thee, Mercurio, is this!" hoarsely whispered Rosalia as she reached out and seized the major's coat collar and almost broke his neck as she gave a sudden yank.

"Here—hold on! You are becoming a little too strenuous. As I said before, the trifling balance between us will be paid, but let us"—

"Mercurio, thou must cough up now and here. Canst thou not realize—dost thou not see—that I am no longer the humble laundress of the washboard and the flatiron, but an actress who has traveled and met up with the Artful Dodger? With one hand I grasp thy coat collar and with the other thy luxuriant locks, and prithee, Mercurio"—

"And what do you want?"

"My oof, thou man of tricks."

"You shall have it this afternoon."

"Talk not to me of time, Mercurio, but place the ducats in my hand without delay."

"And you'd sacrifice an engagement at $150 per to get $4.80?" he indignantly demanded as Mrs. Stubbins held him with an iron grip.

"I wouldst, Mercurio, and therefore let us waste no more time. Shouldst I clutch my other hand in thy locks thou mayst be numbered with the baldheads."

The major paid. It took the last cent he had, but he handed it over and heaved a sigh of relief as Mrs. Stubbins loosened her clutch.

"'Tis well," she said as she counted the sum. "'Tis well, Mercurio, and now I go hence to my playfellows and tell them that the Artful Dodger is happy no more. Farewell—again farewell."

The major stood and looked after her with rueful countenance. When the echo of her footsteps had died away he said to himself:

"Mercurio was a blamed fool, and I am ditto."

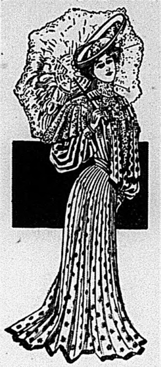
MIDSUMMER MODES.

GOWNS OF LATEST CUT AND COLOR AND SMARTEST ACCESSORIES.

Delicate Tints In the Lead—A Paris Model Veiling Gown—Stunning Boas of Chiffon, Black Velvet and Lace. Splendid Feather Wraps.

The pale hued garments that once daunted the soul of the ordinarily economical woman appear to have lost their terrors, and white, delicate grays, ivory and biscuit tones were never more popular than this season, which should certainly be a fortunate one for the dry cleaners.

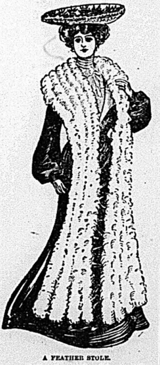
The black and white note, also a prominent one, is prettily sounded in connection with a sun ray plaited skirt in the French model here shown. This is a costume of ivory voile strewn with applique medallions of black voile framed in an embroidery edging. The hem of the skirt is sharply defined by an inch wide band of black velvet. The bodice—sun ray plaited, like the skirt—has a vest of ivory accordion chiffon and strapping of black velvet.



IVORY VEILING GOWN.

Stunning, indeed, are the new chiffon boas and feather boas. The chiffons come all white, in pongee and mauve, or they may be marvelous confections of any of these tints mingled with rose, pale green or blue and narrow black velvet ribbon and lace.

Still more luxurious are the feather wraps and boas, for whose soft beauty becoming is altogether too mild an adjective. These are dreams of loveliness. They are warmer than the chiffon, yet so light that they form a perfect summer wrap for the shoulders of a thin dress on breezy days. There are pelerine boas of white marabou pointed with white ostrich tips and stoles of straight, unshaped marabou. There are collarettes with stole front ends and a stole wrap, as shown, slightly cape shaped. White, black, pale neutral tints and even a soft, deep brown represent some of the colors in feather stoles.



A FEATHER STOLE.

Linen gowns are an important item of the season, with the white coarse woven materials in the lead. There are some pretty tints also in Irish linens, as pink and blue shot with white. Plaited skirts and a sack coat furnish a fashionable model.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 6, 1903 NO. 81

NEWDOMINANT NOTE AT ROME

His Holiness Pope Pius X. Receives the American Deputation Which Went to See the Late Leo XIII.—Graciously Exchanged His Zucchetto For White One Presented by the Pilgrims, in Whose Prayers He Asked to Be Remembered.

Rome, Aug. 6.—The spirit of "The King is dead; long live the King" was the dominant note yesterday at the Vatican among those gathered there not to acknowledge an earthly sovereign, but to accept without reserve Pope Pius X as their spiritual king.

The American pilgrimage conducted by John J. McGrane of New York and Father Lynch of the Niagara University, Suspension Bridge, N.Y., which came to Rome to receive the blessing of Leo XIII, arrived while the conclave was sitting. They were to leave for home yesterday and were disappointed in the possibility of not seeing the new Pope.

Cardinal Gibbons, however, secured the consent of the Pope, and at 5.45 yesterday afternoon the Americans were at the bronze doors of the Vatican. They were met by Monsignor Kennedy, rector of the American College. All trooped up the high stairway and were taken to the unique hall of inscriptions.

Exchanged Zucchettos.

The kneeling women were dressed in black, while the men wore dress suits and the priests black gowns. Pope Pius X appeared to be very much interested when Father Lynch presented to him a box containing a white zucchetto, saying: "We would be extremely gratified if Your Holiness would accept this gift in exchange for the one you wear."

"I will cheerfully do so," the Pope replied immediately. Thereupon Monsignor Bisleti lifted the zucchetto which the Pope wore from his head and replaced it with the one which had been presented by Father Lynch. Mr. McGrane handed to Pius X the offerings which the pilgrims had hastily put together yesterday after lunch. To Father Burke, who represented Archbishop Farley of New York, the Pope gave a special benediction for the colored people. Occasionally, as the Pope passed along, he laid his hand upon the head of one of the pilgrims. When he reached the last person in the line he turned and while all the pilgrims knelt he gave the apostolic blessing, ending with them: "I recommend myself to your pious prayers."

Italian Government Order.

Premier Zanardelli has sent out a circular ordering all Government officials to abstain from participating in the festivities over the election of the new Pope, as Pius X had not notified the Government of his election.

The Pope has confirmed Monsignor Constantini as Secret Almoner, and has appointed his gentleman-in-waiting Cavazzi, private carver. The Pope again yesterday visited Cardinal Herraro y Espinosa, who is improving.

After the many receptions yesterday Pius announced that he must have absolute rest. The attendants turned as if to show him to his apartments, but he stopped them, crying: "No, I am going for a walk in the gardens."

Pope an Early Riser.

Pope Pius X. rose at 5.30 yesterday morning, saying that he did not wish to change his habits. He slept in the apartment occupied by Cardinal Oreglia during the interregnum, located on the first floor of the Vatican. No decision has yet been taken concerning the Pontiff's ultimate quarters, but it is said that he desires them to be extremely modest.

At 7.15 the Pope said mass, assisted only by Monsignor Bressau, his conclavist. He afterwards took breakfast, which consisted of coffee, milk and a roll. Then as he stood against the window, from which he caught a glimpse of the gardens of the Vatican, the Pontiff exclaimed:

"My first pleasure when I can spare a moment will be to explore the gardens which now confine my little world. Heigho! How shall I get on without my long country tramps? How I shall miss them, and my sea."

Congratulatory Telegrams.

Pope Pius wished to see personally most of the innumerable telegrams of congratulation received, giving instructions for the answers to those for which he cared most, and looked at the copies, changing here and there a word. Then he prepared for the morning's state reception of the cardinals in the Sistine Chapel, which during the night had been cleared of its temporary furniture used for the ballots, and was assuming its normal aspect.

The third and last obedience of the Sacred College was consummated yesterday morning with the same ceremonial as before in the Sistine Chapel, the Pope being in his full pontifical robes and palpably restored in mind and nerves by a night's rest. The cardinals filed before him and kissed his hand and foot, all smiling and apparently in a perfectly contented frame of mind.

Embraced by Pius X.

They then in turn received a hearty embrace from Pius X.

The music was directed by Abbe Perosiat, who was the Pontiff's protege. Every available corner of the small chapel was filled yesterday morning, and those present seemed to forget Pius X. in their pleasure in the magnificent harmony of the voices of the choir and the feast of color as they rested their eyes on the picture before them. The ceremony ended about noon.

Both going to and coming from the Sistine Chapel, when he passed through the Raphael Loggia and the Ducal Hall, the Pope refused to be carried in the sedia gestatoria, which, however, followed him. After taking a few steps, he turned to Mgr. Bisleti and said: "I shall never voluntarily get into that box."

Te Deum Sung.

A Te Deum was sung in the Sistine Chapel in honor of the election of the new Pope. All the cardinals were present except Herrero, who is still in his cell, although somewhat better than Tuesday.

Yesterday morning the Pope confirmed in their posts as secret chamberlains Monsignors Zichy, Scapinelli, Misciatolli and Sanz De Sampere, and confirmed the Marquis of Serlupi, as master of the horse and Monsignor Silli as dean of the grooms. He appointed Mgr. Galli secretary of Latin letters, to replace Mgr. Tarozzi, who is ill, and also Mgr. Sardi as secretary for briefs to the princes, to replace Mgr. Volpini, who recently died.

The Coronation.

The Pope, yielding to the pressure exercised by the foreign cardinals, who are desirous of returning to their respective countries as soon as possible, has decided that his coronation shall take place next Sunday.

LADIES' NEW FALL JACKETS.

We are getting ready for the Fall season and every day marks the arrival of some of the New Fall Goods. This week we place in stock our first shipment of German Made Fall Jackets.

The new styles for the coming season are decidedly marked when contrasted with your last season's coat. The plain cloths have given place to the Camel's Hair Effects and these are so designed as to make the fashionable coats for the coming season not only attractive but also most comfortable for Fall and Winter wear.

These cuts represent some of the new styles, which with many others, may be seen in our window.

Ladies' Fall Suitings.

Here also the Camel's Hair Effects are very strong, and we already show some very handsome Cloths suitable for Ladies' Fall Wear.

WE MOST CORDIALLY INVITE YOUR INSPECTION OF THESE NEW GOODS.

OFFICE BOY STOLE $8,396.

Work Was Done After the Fashion of an Experienced Crook, and Was Very Thoroughly Done—Arrested on Showing Signs of Alarm—The Money and Valuables Secured—Were Hidden Under Floor of Boarding House.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—Through a skylight to the vault of Macdonald, Shepley & Middleton, the law firm at 28 Toronto Street, Sydney White, a 16-year-old office boy, gained admittance and secured $8,396.12. It was one of the most daringly planned and executed robberies that has been committed in Toronto for a long while. On Friday night some time after 8 o'clock young White approached the offices from the rear, going by the Rice Lewis warehouse and the Victoria Hotel. A ladder used in cleaning the windows at the rear was put up to the low roof that runs back from the building in which the law firm are situated. The thief by this means gained entrance and having in his possession the keys of the outer doors of the vault and a knowledge of the whereabouts of those for the inner, was soon in possession of the big pile. He had, however, to break open the door of one of the compartments to get at a number of gold coins.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon he showed such signs of alarm that he was arrested.

Hidden Under the Floor.

A search of where White slept was then instituted. Nothing was found. Then a search was made of the house where he takes his meals. Under the floor of a front room on the first floor, the detective discovered a metal cash box containing the plunder. Upon examination it was found to contain all the money and securities missed. There was $330 in bank bills, $1,185 in gold, a marked cheque for $4,250, and other securities, including bonds, stock certificates and notes, amounting to $3,653.52.

The young burglar had things well planned. He purposely disturbed the papers and put the office in a state of confusion that he might better throw everyone off the right trail. White had told his uncle's family and the people at the place he took his meals that he intended shortly leaving Toronto for England, where he intended joining one of His Majesty's battleships. But he demonstrated the greatest nerve by continuing his employment after the burglary. Even the police were nonplussed by the way in which the youthful crook conducted himself.

Wanted to Be a Sailor.

After his arrest, however, he broke down completely. He told how he had come from Norwood, Ont., last February to engage with Macdonald, Shepley and Middleton as office boy, and that he had never done anything wrong before, but wanted the money to go to England. He was anxious to become a sailor.

When his employers were apprised of the culprit, they would hardly believe it. To-day White will be formally charged with the robbery.

New York, Aug. 6.—Captain Wringe of Shamrock III. and Captain Bevis of Shamrock I. had a narrow escape last night through the collapsing of a pier on the Shrewsbury River at the Highlands. With twenty other persons, including several of the crew of the challenger, the two sailing masters were precipitated into the water, but were not hurt.

MENACE TO BULGARIA.

Porte Abandons Idea of Withdrawing Troops From Bulgaria.

Constantinople, Aug. 6.—The Porte has abandoned all idea of withdrawing troops from Macedonia, and is now making vigorous preparations to draft troops for the disturbed districts.

A circular note has been sent out warning the powers of the intention of the Turkish Government. The note states that the situation is very serious and although it does not mention Bulgaria, the document is regarded as a menace to the Bulgarian Government.

Revolution Proclaimed.

Sofia, Aug. 6.—The Macedonia Committee announced that a revolution was proclaimed at the Villayet of Monastir last Sunday in conformance with the decision of the Central Revolutionary Committee. The committee state that all the revolutionary forces in the districts of Monastir, Rezen, Ochrida, Debro, Kentchero, Porstchka, Kranchero, Porlin, Serin, Kaylari and Demirhissar simultaneously commenced hostilities. All telegraphic communication has been cut in the districts mentioned. The announcement has not been confirmed, owing to lack of communication.

GORDON FORBES DROWNED.

Playmates Waited in Vain For Body to Come Up.

Hamilton, Aug. 6.—Yesterday afternoon Gordon Forbes, a little son of George Forbes, one of Hendrie Company's teamsters, who lives at 39 Railway street, was drowned at the foot of Macnab street. He was between five and six years of age. In company with an older brother and two boys named Walton, from the same street, he was playing on what is known as Doyle's slip. His playmates say that he tripped and fell into the water. They waited for him to come up, but his body was held by the weeds, and it was about 8.30 before it was taken out. The youngsters were so frightened that they were afraid to tell anybody what had happened for some little time.

HOW THE WIND BLOWS.

Ontario Government Will Join Its Line With Grand Trunk Pacific.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—The Ontario Government has determined that as soon as the rails of the proposed Grand Trunk Pacific Railway cross Ontario, the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway shall be ready to connect with the new transcontinental road, and to do business for this Province. With this object in view the route from New Liskeard northerly will be at once surveyed, and the location of the road decided upon. Immediately the point at which the Grand Trunk Pacific will cross the proposed northern extension is decided upon, the Temiskaming & Northern rails will be laid to that spot, and a junction made with the transcontinental.

STORM STRUCK WORLD'S FAIR.

One Man, Struck by a Flying Plank, Is Dead.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 6.—One of the heaviest storms of the year, but of brief duration, swept over St. Louis yesterday. A furious wind tore through the World's Fair grounds, killing one man, probably fatally injuring another, and seriously injuring seven others, besides causing $10,000 property damage.

The agricultural building was struck by the gale and six laborers working on the scaffolding were hurled to the ground. Theodore Richter, a florist, from Kirkwood, was on the ground running to shelter when a flying plank struck and killed him.

ROYAL LIST OF HONORS.

Favors Conferred by King Edward After His Irish Tour.

London, Aug. 6.—A long list of honors conferred by the King in connection with the royal visit to Ireland was published last night. Sir Charles Ready Colomb, M. P., and Thomas Andrews, chairman of the County Down Council, have been made privy councillors, and Sir Daniel Dixon, Lord Mayor of Belfast, and Edward Fitzgerald, Lord Mayor of Cork, have been created baronets.

Other honors are distributed to the officials of the principal towns visited during the royal tour.

NITRO-GLYCERINE EXPLOSION.

Three Employes at Bluffton, Ind., Were Blown to Pieces.

Bluffton, Ind., Aug. 6.—The Empire Nitro-Glycerine Company's magazine, three miles northwest of Bluffton, exploded yesterday. Three employes were blown to pieces. It is also believed that a stranger who entered the plant just before the explosion, was killed.

Eleven hundred quarts of the explosive was destroyed. It is supposed the explosion was caused by a driver dropping a can.

Were Blown to Bits.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 6.—Two men, believed to be Harry Caldwell, a surveyor, and his son, went to a small island about two miles from Victoria, and off Macaulay Point, Tuesday, to dynamite fish. Their dynamite exploded, and the bodies of both were torn to small pieces and scattered over the rocks.

LOY CONFIRMED IN HIS SEAT

The Vote Was 105 to 40 in Favor of the Majority Report.

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Bill Up For Discussion — One Amendment Sought to Make Grand Trunk Pay Par Value For G.T.P. Stock, But It Was Lost After Debate—The Salaries of the Judges of Canada.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—When the House opened at three o'clock yesterday, Mr. Wade of Annapolis moved that the report of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, exonerating Mr. George Loy, M. P. for Beauharnois, be confirmed by the House.

Mr. Monk moved in amendment that the minority report, holding the charge proved, receive the endorsation of the House.

At 10 o'clock a vote was taken on Mr. Monk's amendment. The amendment was lost on a vote of 105 to 40.

As soon as the result of the division was announced, Mr. Loy entered the House and took his seat, amid tumultous Liberal applause.

The Grand Trunk Pacific.

The private bill, through which the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway seeks incorporation, was taken up in committee.

Mr. Fowler of Kings moved that the Grand Trunk be required to pay in cash, par value, for the twenty-five millions of stock which it undertakes to acquire from the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

Mr. Sam Hughes moved to exclude the company from Gravenhurst. This was also voted down.

Majority British Subjects.

Mr. Kemp moved in amendment to Section 8 that a majority of the directors on the Grand Trunk Pacific should be British subjects.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier accepted the amendment, but he asked that it be moved in connection with the resolutions. This proposal Mr. Kemp accepted.

Mr. Geo. Fowler of Kings moved an amendment providing for the construction of a branch line direct from Fredericton to St. John. He was defending his proposal when the hour for private bills expired.

Judges Not Well Paid.

The resolutions of the Minister of Justice to provide larger retiring allowances for judges were taken up. Mr. Fitzpatrick said he thought men who had served their country for thirty years were entitled to generous consideration, especially in view of the small salaries paid to Canadian judges.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said it was a painful spectacle to find sometimes judges compelled to remain on the bench though disabled by age or infirmity because of their financial position.

Mr. Jabel Robinson thought it was a mistake to fix an age limit for retirement. Many judges at 75 were well able to perform their judicial duties.

Not Impartial Justice.

Mr. Osler said that the salaries paid judges are too small. Many judges in Ontario, therefore, find it necessary to interest themselves in commercial enterprises, and the result was not an impartial administration of justice.

Mr. Gourlay advocated the payment of equal salaries to judges exercising the same jurisdiction regardless of the size or population of the province in which they act.

Mr. Bennet urged that politicians should not be appointed to the bench while their political prejudices are still keen. He declared that there were too many judges in Ontario.

The County Judges.

Mr. Gus Porter made a plea for larger salaries for County Court judges.

Mr. Fowler, M.P. for King's, expressed similar views.

Mr. Fitzpatrick agreed that High Court and County Court judges are underpaid. This was only his personal view.

January 12, 1903.

Allow me to say a few words as to the merits of the Iron-ox Tablets. I have used them constantly for indigestion and palpitation of the heart, also sour stomach, and I can assure you that I have derived great benefit from them. NOTHING GOES RIGHT.

Nothing goes right while the stomach and bowels are wrong. Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is the ideal remedy for all forms of stomach and bowel disorders. It aids digestion, improves nutrition, creates rich, red blood, firm flesh, and makes life well worth living. Pleasant to take.

Mr. Lancaster also argued in favor of more generous retirement of county judges.

The committee rose and reported progress.

The County Court judges in Ontario affected will be: Judge Elliott, 80 years of age, served 34 years on the bench; Judge Hughes, 80 years, served 48 years on the bench; Judge Deacon, 79 years, served 35 years; Judge Lazier, 79 years, served 21½ years; Judge Ketchum, 75 years, served 14½ years; Judge Woods, 84 years.

ASHORE AT PORT RICH.

French Cruisers Fail to Pull Steamer Holmlea Off Rocks.

Quebec, Aug. 6.—The steamship Holmlea is reported ashore at Point Rich, Strait of Belle Isle. Up to the present nothing definite is known of her position. According to a report from Point Amour, it is learned that two French cruisers tried to haul the vessel off but failed. The Holmlea left Montreal on Tuesday of last week loaded with lumber, and was bound for Fleetwood, England.

Out on Bail of $250,000.

London, Aug. 6.—Whittaker Wright was arraigned at the Guildhall Police Court yesterday afternoon, and remanded after formal evidence had been taken. He was released on bail of $250,000, himself providing $125,000, and three sureties guaranteeing the remaining $125,000.

Artist Phil May Dead.

London, Aug. 6.—Phil May, the artist and illustrator of Punch, The Graphic, and other periodicals, is dead.

CARNEGIE'S PRINCELY GIFT.

London, Aug. 6.—Andrew Carnegie has made known his intention to donate $2,500,000 in United States Steel Corporation bonds to Dunfermline, Scotland, his birthplace. He stipulates that the gift shall be employed in keeping up the estate of Pittencrieff, which contains the tower in which Malcom Cranbrone married Princess Margaret, and which he recently purchased as a pleasure ground. The gift is also to be used for the maintenance of a theatre, the encouragment of agriculture among the working classes and advancement of the moral and material interests of the town.

BLOODLESS WAR.

British Naval Manoeuvres Commence With 26 Battleships and 43 Cruisers.

London, Aug. 6.—War was declared yesterday between the home fleet, under the command of Admiral Wilson, and the Mediterranean fleet, commanded by Admiral Domville. The annual British naval manoeuvres thus commenced, are regarded as the most interesting yet devised by the Admiralty.

Altogether 26 battleships and 43 cruisers will be engaged in a presumed contest for the command of the sea between the maritime countries.

SIR ED. H. CARSON.

Solicitor-General For England Succeeds Mr. Blake on Alaska Commission.

Ottawa, July 6.—Sir Ed. H. Carson, Solicitor-General for England, has been appointed senior counsel for Canada on the Alaska tribunal, in place of Hon. Edward Blake, who has been obliged to retire owing to illness.

Bad News Is Confirmed.

Berlin, Aug. 6.—A despatch received here confirms previous reports that 700 persons were drowned in the disastrous floods which occurred at Che Foo, China, July 27. Two thousand of the inhabitants are left without means of subsistance.

Will Sit Sept. 3.

London, Aug. 6.—The first sitting of the Alaska Boundary Commission will take place on Sept. 3. It will probably take place at Burlington House.

No Christian Science For Minors.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—The conclusion of the Frazee inquest came last night. The jury found that "Hulda Frazee came to her death in the City of Toronto on or about June 9 from scarlet fever, and that from evidence adduced for our consideration no one showed any negligence in connection therewith. We would, however, strongly recommend that the law be so changed as to make it a criminal offence for any Christian Scientist to administer their treatment to any person who is not legally of age."

Aurora Burglar Got Three Years.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—Thomas Hall, the Aurora burglar, was sentenced yesterday morning by Judge Morson to three years in Kingston Penitentiary. He was charged with two burglaries, the last at William Warre's grocery store. It was at this place that Hall received several bullet wounds about the head. His head is still swathed in bandages.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

The Grit journals which support the Government, no matter what is done or proposed, hesitate not to assert that there is no Liberal objection to the Laurier transcontinental railway project. Let us look at the record, and see if the above assertion is truthful. There are on record against the various features of the scheme the St. John Telegraph, the Chatham (N. B.) Advance, and the Lambton Free Press, the latter belonging to Mr. Pettypiece, M. L. A. The Ottawa Journal also, which, if not Liberal, is friendly to the Laurier Government, strongly objects to the proposition in some of its phases. And the returns are not all in yet.

The St. John Star opposes the scheme and points out that there "is "already besides the Intercolonial "an all-Canadian road between Quebec and the Canadian winter ports. "As a matter of fact the distance "between Quebec and St. John by "The Temiscouata and Canadian Pacific (the old New Brunswick), is "less than it will be by any line "which the Grand Trunk Pacific and "the Government can run through "central New Brunswick. By the "existing route it is not more than "450 miles from St. John to Quebec. "while 500 miles will be the least "possible distance between the same "points by the route proposed."

The roads to which the above refers have been largely subsidized both by the federal and provincial Governments. From Levis to St. John the route described by the Star is as follows:

	Miles
Intercolonial—Levis to River du Loup	114
Temiscouata—River du Loup to Edmunston	81
New Brunswick—Edmonton to St. John	223
Total	428

This route has the advantage over that of the Government in that it ends at a seaport, already provided through enormous expenditures by the Dominion Government, with facilities for doing an ocean shipping business. Moncton is not and cannot be made a seaport for modern steamships.

A branch from somewhere on the projected road to St. John would be necessary if any through traffic was to be carried over it.

The route as it exists does no through business, nor would the Laurier road. There are shorter ways of reaching a sea port at St. John from the great traffic producing points.

Why is it not selected? Simply because such a route, though in the interests of the carrying trade of the Dominion, would not command the votes of the party in the maritime provinces. Such are Grit politics!

TIMELY TOPICS.

The Peterboro Review wants to know if the Belleville Lacrosse Team are going to get their photos taken, like the hockey team did. They may when they all come back from the woods.

* * *

There will be bye-elections in Algoma just so soon as the Ross Government issue the Writs. Stratton and Vance have gone up. Where are the Sullivans? Stratton, Frank Sullivan, Vance and the Cap are a quartette unequalled in Canadian politics. The Sullivans can tell the story, except what Stratton suggests they should forget.

* * *

A cable from London of August 4th inst., says the Hon. Edward Blake hes resigned as Canadian Counsel on the Alaskan Boundary Commission. This is to be regretted, as Mr. Blake's position at the Bar justified the belief that Canada's interests were safe in his hands. It is announced that failing health is the reason which led him to resign.

"One Interested" writes: "I see by my Peterboro paper that instructions have been given in that town to keep the post office wicket open till 8 o'clock at night. It strikes me that would be a very good thing for this city. Then again, I think it would be well if the clerks who attend at the wicket were allowed to sell stamps between 7.30 and 8 o'clock in the morning. The stamp counter is not opened till 8 o'clock, and quite often people go earlier than that to the office to post letters and are compelled to wait considerable time before they can purchase the necessary stamps. The suggestion I take the liberty of making would I believe, if adopted, be appreciated by the public of this city."

According to his evidence published to-day, it took Mr. Hurley and his fellow-Census Commissioners three days to digest their instructions at Smith's Falls, and, says Mr. Hurley, "it might have taken three days more, I guess, before we all understood it very well." As Mr. Hurley, according to his own evidence, only half understood his own duties, he was a bright specimen of an official who was supposed to be able to instruct other people!

The idea of a Home-Comers' celebration in this city next year seems to be very popular with our people. It would be a great occasion and a splendid thing for the city. The various societies should take it up and co-operate with the Council and Board of Trade in the matter. It is none too soon to already begin talking the matter up, and committees should be appointed before long to deal with the different features. Belleville's Home-Comers' celebration of 1904 should be the biggest thing in its history.

ONE GOOD HOLIDAY,

I.O.O.F. excursion to Ottawa on Wednesday, August 12th. 8 1-2 hours in Ottawa. Special G.T.R. and C.P.R. trains both ways. Fare from Belleville only $2.60. Children under 12 years half fare. Train leaves Belleville 6.30 a.m. Tickets to be had at G.T.R. ticket offices and good to return on any regular train on the 13th. 2t

BIG EXCURSION YESTERDAY.

OVER SEVEN HUNDRED PEOPLE CAME FROM LINDSAY AND SURROUNDING DISTRICTS.

The largest excursion so far this season was the one from Lindsay which reached here at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was in charge of Mr. R. W. Clarke, of Millbrook, and was organized by the Methodist Sunday School there, of which he is the superintendent. To charter a special train from Lindsay to Port Hope and then a steamer from Port Hope to Belleville, also a brass band, is enterprise worthy of commendation. T. Dixon Craig, Esq., ex-M.P., Port Hope; Rev. H. Bruce Kenny, Millbrook, and Rev. S. C. Moore, Canton, were amongst the passengers.

On arriving here many of the Millbrook people went to the Agricultural Park to see the lacrosse match, referred to in our sporting column. A great many accepted the invitation of the Bridge St. Church to get a bird's eye view of Belleville from the tower of their church, while the majority preferred to look into the store windows and admire the wares always so deftly arranged there, or to stroll up and down our magnificent avenues of maples.

They were a polite, good-natured crowd, notwithstanding that many of them suffered from sea sickness coming down the lake. The only fault they found was that instead of having three hours here, they were only allowed an hour and a half.

DIED AFTER THREE WEEKS' ILLNESS.

MRS. L. McNELLIS, OF TORONTO, DIED IN THIS CITY THIS AFTERNOON.

There died at the residence of Mr. J. J. Nicholson, Victoria avenue, this afternoon, a lady well-known and much respected in this city. Deceased was Mrs. L. McNellis, daughter of the late J. J. Nicholson, of Thurlow, and was born in that Township 61 years ago. She had been ill for some three weeks. The late Mrs. McNellis is survived by a husband, who resides in Toronto, but leaves no children. Several brothers and sisters are left to mourn her loss, among them being Mr. Charles Nicholson, a former newspaper man of this city.

TOURING CANADA IN AN AUTOMOBILE.

FORMER TRENTONIAN, NOW OF UNCLE SAM'S DOMAIN, ENJOYING HIMSELF IN HIS NATIVE LAND

Accompanied by his wife and family, Mr. C. R. Dench, of Erie, Pa., is touring Ontario in an automobile. Mr. Dench is a son of the late Capt. Dench of Trenton, and a brother of Mr. J. S. Dench, the well-known County Councillor. While in Belleville, where he arrived this morning, Mr. Dench will be the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. W. A. Carson. From this city the party will proceed to Kingston and the Thousand Islands, where they will spend a few days touring the district. If everything is favorable the tour will be extended to Montreal, and, after crossing the St. Lawrence, south to the Adirondack country. From the Hudson river, at Albany, the party will turn homewards, and will reach Erie about September 1. This will make a trip of about 1,500 miles, and surely a most enjoyable one. Mr. Dench's machine is of the gasolene type, and many admiring glances were thrown at it while on our streets to-day.

Desert Gems.

In 1880 a hunter in the northwest of New South Wales wounded a kangaroo. The animal went off through the mulga and the salt bush at a pace too fast for the hunter to follow and was soon out of sight. The hunter was a bushman and did not despair. He followed the blood trail, hopeful of a short search and a speedy bag. At one point of the pursuit it may be that the trail grew faint and necessitated a closer inspection. Anyway the hunter stooped and picked up a piece of stone. This he examined. The red spot was not on it. It was in it. It was not blood that he saw; it was opal. Such was the beginning of the White Cliffs opal fields.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

knowledge of philosophy and science, and it is perfectly natural that the uneducated mind should refer the phenomena of Nature, and even the most simple occurrences out of the usual order, to supernatural causes. It is only the highly intelligent, Ralph, who are superior to the weakness of superstition. Had your own education been different, you might have been more suceptible to ordinary delusions. But I flatter myself that I have pursued such a system and afforded such an example in your education that you are far above any such unmanly weakness as a belief in ghosts."

Thus delivering himself, Anthony Saybrook drew himself up with an air that would certainly have been crushing to any simple-minded believer in ghosts had he been present.

Ralph nodded his concurrence in the sentiment expressed; and thus they mutually encouraged each other for the expedition on hand.

Dinner-hour arrive and the meal was dispatched, although neither could enjoy it with his usual appetite, spite of an apparent effort to appear unconcerned and cheerful. But each made up for want of appetite by indulging rather freely in the after-dinner potations, until their spirits were thoroughly fortified, and they felt almost courageous enough to meet a veritable ghost.

After securing their arms and lanterns, they set out for the old house. On arriving, they found the door locked, the workmen having been there, taken away their tools, and closed the house. They consulted together a few moments in whispers. Then they got their arms ready, lighted the lanterns, and Anthony Saybrook applied the key, opened the door, and the two adventurous investigators stepped into the old hall.

For a moment all was dark and gloomy, and they peered cautiously and suspiciously about. Not a sound was to be heard. The feeble light of the lanterns scarcely sufficed to dispel the shadows that hung about the dusky old hall. The long perspective faded into darkness; the doors leading off to adjoining rooms seemed to glower blackly at them; the tall climbing staircase, with its heavy balustrades, showed spectral and ghostlike; in short, there was an air of gloomy mysteriousness about the dusky surroundings that greeted the two adventurous investigators of the mystery that had so long been the subject of legend and unquestioned faith.

"Ugh! Ralph," said the elder Saybrook, "this old, gloomy hall strikes a chill to my veins. I don't wonder that people get ghast-frightened on coming in here. It is high time the old house was put in order, and the light and air allowed to enter and banish this ghostly gloom. One's voice sounds unearthly in here. Ah, here is where the masons have been at work. Pity they couldn't have kept at it. A coat of good white over this old brown wall would have lightened this gloomy aspect and afforded us a more cheerful reception. Now, which way shall we turn—upstairs or down? I suppose the proper place to investigate is down in the basement and cellars; but, before doing so, suppose we take a turn about up here and view our future domicile.

Acting on this suggestion, they proceeded up the stairs, and, passing from room to room, chatted cheerfully on the subject of the peculiarities of the rooms and the improvements that could be made in them. But there was little to attract them long in the bare, unfurnished floors, and they proceeded down stairs again and wandered through the rooms leading off from the old hall. Here there was much to interest them in the quaint and massive furniture, the once rich but faded decorations, and the many evidences of former grandeur and taste surrounding them. Ere long they found themselves in the room that had been occupied by the late mistress of Rolff House, and in which she had died. While examining this room, the keen glance of Anthony Saybrook detected a small door that was set in the dark wainscoting, and which appeared as if it might be a closet. Opening it casually, he was surprised to discover a staircase, which evidently led down to the basement.

"Ah, Ralph," he said, "here is a discovery. This seems to be a secret staircase, and perhaps it is just the clue we want. It leads down stairs, and, as we are about ready to go below, suppose we see where this will take us to."

By this time, the two men had recovered from any feelings of nervousness felt on first entering the house. The dead silence reigning everywhere had convinced them that there was nobody in the house, and the trip up stairs had been taken by the shrewd but not over-courageous lawyer to give ample time to any individual, if he were secreted in the house, to get out of the way. But they had ceased to have any expectations of meeting anybody, and the discovery of the secret stairway had simply awakened curiosity.

Nevertheless, before entering it, they trimmed their lanterns, and looked again to their arms. Anthony Saybrook then proceeded ahead, carefully holding his lantern so as to throw its beams forward as he slowly picked his way down the narrow stairs.

Arriving at the bottom, they found that the stairs led into a long, narrow, dark hallway. They stopped and peered carefully ahead, and the quick eye of Anthony Saybrook discerned what seemed to him the faint, struggling gleam of a ray of light piercing the darkness from the key-hole of some door.

He stopped, and whispered to Ralph his suspicion. They closed the slides of their lanterns, leaving the hallway in darkness; and then the surmise of the lawyer became a reality. There was certainly a door-way ahead, and rays of light gleamed from within.

"It may be sunlight," whispered the lawyer, "which finds its way in through some chink or window. We must examine into it, Ralph. Keep close up to me, and have your pistols ready."

Thus prepared, they proceeded cautiously forward toward the door. The lawyer placed his hand on the latch, lifted it, and pushed the door open before him. A sight was presented that caused the two intruders to start back in consternation.

The door opened into a large room. The bare stone-walls were unplastered; the beams overhead were unlathed, and hung with cobwebs. The floor was of rough boards; and no window admitted a single ray of sunlight. At a tall, old-fashioned secretary in one corner of the room there sat the figure of a tall man, clothed in a dark robe that entirely covered his figure. Two candles burned on the secretary, and from these proceeded the rays of light that had shown through the door. The desk of the secretary was covered with papers.

The door had scarcely ceased creaking on its rusty hinges, and a single glance shown this picture to the two astonished gazers, when the figure at the secretary arose. It was the sudden spectacle of his strange appearance that caused the intruders to start back in horror.

The figure was that of a tall, very venerable man. He was shrouded from shoulders to feet in a long black robe. A small, close-fitting black cap was upon his head, from underneath which escaped snowy white locks. His face was smooth-shaven, and large, piercing eyes looked out from underneath shaggy white eyebrows. The expression of his countenance was dignified and majestic as he gazed sternly at the intruders.

For a moment, the two men stood huddled together in the narrow hallway, in the full light issuing through the door. Sudden surprise had deprived them of all power to act in so unexpected an emergency. They could only gaze as if petrified at the majestic and apparently unearthly figure before them.

Raising an arm, and pointing a long, skinny finger at them, the strange personage spoke:

"Who are you that intrude uninvited on my sacred privacy? Begone, ere it prove the worse for you."

Anthony Saybrook strove to speak, but no words came from his chattering teeth. The gloomy, strange surroundings, and the sudden aspect of this strange figure, had deprived him suddenly of all courage whatever. He felt frozen with fear, as if in the presence of a spirit from the nether world.

Again the figure warned them away with a majestic and almost threatening gesture.

Neither of the men could resist the inclination to flee. They hurried through the hall and up the stairs, nor did they pause till, pale and panting, they were a half-a-dozen rods from the house.

"Don't ask me," replied Ralph.

"It's a mystery beyond my fathoming," said the lawyer.

"I expected to be annihilated on the spot," exclaimed Ralph.

"I, too," responded the father. "It's a most incomprehensible mystery. What shall we do?"

"Go home," responded Ralph.

"And Rolff House?"

"Leave it to the devil and old Rolff's ghost," replied Ralph; "I've had enough of it."

"Ralph, a suggestion strikes me," said the lawyer.

"What is it."

"I will tell you when we get home. I must have time to collect my thoughts."

"I need light," said Ralph. "The whole thing is an impenetrable mystery to me. If that was not old Rolff's ghost who was it?"

"Ah, there's the point, Ralph. It was no ghost. I'd rather it were. There's work for our wits now, and all that we will want. Let us go home."

They made all haste to reach their domicile.

No sooner did they enter the house than Anthony Saybrook proceeded to a closet and brought out bottle and glasses.

"I must have something to steady my nerves, Ralph," he said. "This day's bad luck has upset me completely. Curse all the blundering fates that have conspired to create this snarl in our plans. Oh, it's too bad, too bad, when all was going forward so nicely. Here, Ralph, take a glass. You need it."

Ralph did not decline the invitation. He felt the want of a stimulant.

Ralph waited awhile, and then spoke: "You said you had a suggestion?"

"Yes," was the reply. "I have been comparing probabilities in my mind. This is a deep riddle, Ralph. There is more in it than I like to think. That strange old man in Rolff House—who can it be? The ghost of Magnus Rolff? That's too weak—too silly. Who then? Why not old Magnus Rolff himself. He never died that anybody knows. He simply disappeared. That is the only explanation I can think of to meet this mystery. It seems incredible, too; but what else are we to think? Where could he have been all these years? Is it he that has been creating all these strange doings at Rolff House? What can his object be? The whole subject grows more complicated and strange as one thinks of it. I am puzzled beyond expression; but many little things occur to me that seem to fit this theory. If it is not Magnus Rolff, then the strange old man we met must be a madman or a thief. But it is—it must be him. He may be mad, also—an eccentric, at least—or why this strange reappearance?"

"Supposing all this is true, what then?" inquired Ralph, eagerly.

"Aye, what then?" answered the lawyer. "Who knows? It will depend on circumstances to which we can obtain no clue. Of course, no one would believe in his identity, if he should show himself and endeavor to establish it. But he might be able to prove it legally. Still, the property has passed out of his hands—in a legal point of view, he is as a dead man to us. But that is what makes the whole matter the more inexplicable. I am not worried yet as to our legal safety and standing as regards the property; but rather at the strangeness of this whole matter, and the check it gives to our plans because of possible developments against which we can make no calculation. We will have to wait awhile and watch events. Our present plans with regard to Rolff House are completely blocked. One thing, Claude is safely out of our way. He can hardly find a way to get back now, when nothing but ships of war and privateers can keep the sea; and, besides, I doubt if he would come if he had the chance while his money lasts. Perhaps this bugaboo of an old fellow at Rolff House will disappear as strangely as he came. All we can do is to wait and hope for the best."

There came a knock at the door.

Ralph stepped to it, and opened it. There entered a young man, in sailor's garb, and with a countenance as pale as one from the tomb.

Ralph staggered back in consternation.

"You?" he exclaimed.

"Yes, it is I," replied the young man. "I am glad you recognize me. I hardly thought any one would know me. I presume my visit is unexpected."

As the young man thus spoke, he turned his eyes on Anthony Saybrook.

That individual still sat on his chair, but he had leaned forward; his small, sharp eyes were fixed on the face of the young man; a waxy, sickly pallor had overspread his face; and his hands grasped the arms of his chair convulsively.

There was good reason for his surprise.

The face and form of the young man in sailor attire were those of Claude Rolff.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

An embarrassing silence followed Claude Rolff's abrupt and unexpected appearance in lawyer Saybrook's office

Claude was the first to break the spell that his presence seemed to have produced.

With your permission, I will take a chair," he said. "I have travelled far, and am not well."

Claude sat down in a chair near the door.

Ralph meanwhile was beating a tatoo with his fingers on the desk near which he had taken his seat, while he eyed Claude with a scowling and rather rueful countenance.

The lawyer had apparently sank back into the stupor of surprise which Claude's first entrance had caused him; but, in fact, all his wits were at work in considering how to meet this unexpected emergency.

Claude saw that is was necessary for him to open the conversation.

"An opportunity being offered me to return home on a privateer," he said, "I thought it well to embrace it as I felt keenly the sting of being separated from my native land in the hour of her peril. I was hurt in an engagement with an enemy's vessel on our return voyage, and am probably in no condition to transact much business—still, there are some matters which I deem it important to seek the earliest possible explanation of."

"Oh, of course," replied the lawyer, smiling from habit, but still speaking in rather an embarrassed way. "M-m-m—yes—happy to explain anything. Very agreeable surprise, my dear sir; wasn't expecting your return. I—m-m-m—I—in fact, I'm very agreeably surprised. I—I—by the way, won't you allow me, my dear young sir, under the happy circumstances, to set out a little wine, and drink to your safe return before proceeding to any business."

The lawyer arose, and bustled with a hospitable air that enabled him to conceal his embarrassment.

"No, no, I thank you," responded Claude, to his invitation. "I shall be obliged to decline, as I am disposed to be a little feverish, and I am afraid any stimulant would be bad for me. Pray don't trouble yourself, Mr. Saybrook."

But the lawyer, nevertheless, brought out bottle, and glasses, and poured out three bumpers, offering Claude one which he again declined. The father and son tossed their glasses off, however, and the former resumed his seat, having recovered in a measure his usual collected and wary demeanor.

Claude, after waiting a moment, said, "I will state at once, frankly, Mr. Saybrook, that I do not come in a very friendly mood. Some very strange rumors have come to my ears, which hardly seem credible, it is true, but which certainly justify me in demanding an explanation. If true, they brand you with treachery and fraud in the conduct of my business. Of course, I have held my own judgment on the matter in suspense until giving you an opportunity to explain. I trust you will be able to clear up all my doubts satisfactorily."

"To what do you refer?" inquired the lawyer, in bland tones that indicated that he had entirely regained his self-possession.

"I refer," responded Claude, "to the statements current here in this village that you have taken possession of Rolff House and a portion of the adjoining property under authority of deeds purporting to be given by me. I need not remind you that I gave no such deeds, and that there is no possible chance for there to be any misunderstanding on the point that it was my wish, most distinctly expressed, to place no incumbrance whatever on Rolff House, or any of the homestead property, or to imperil my possession of it in any way. You probably can inform me whether the rumors I have heard are true."

"Well, really, my dear sir," replied the lawyer, rubbing his hands and smiling as pleasantly as possible, "I do not exactly comprehend your meaning. You are aware, of course, that a number of papers were drawn and signed by you, intended to secure me for moneys loaned you, some of which moneys I was forced to borrow. Among these securities, were certainly two deeds, which received your signature in due form, and are properly witnessed, and which I have doubtless treated somewhat differently from what you expected, owing to the fact that I supposed circumstances had rendered your return home for a series of years exceedingly problematical. These deeds were intended, of course, only as collateral

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer Complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

For coughs, colds, bronchitis and all lung and throat troubles, there is no preparation of medicine can compare with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It never fails to afford prompt and permanent relief. It removes all soreness, and heals the diseased parts. It immediately soothes the most troublesome cough, and by promoting expectoration, removes the mucus which stops up the air tubes which causes difficulty in breathing, thereby gives relief to that depressing tightness experienced in the chest. Public speakers and singers will find Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup of inestimable value, as it speedily and effectually allays all irritation, and huskiness in the throat and bronchial tubes, and gives power to the vocal cords, rendering the voice clear and sonorous. If parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves from much anxiety, trouble and expense, let them procure a bottle of "Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup," and whenever a child has taken cold, has a cough or hoarseness, give the Syrup according to directions.

To Those of Sedentary Occupation. —Men who follow sedentary occupations, which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver and kidneys than those who lead active, outdoor lives. The former will find in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills a restorative without question the most efficacious on the market. They are easily procurable, easily taken, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap considering their excellence.

UNTOLD MISERY — WHAT A WELL-KNOWN COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER SUFFERED, AND HOW HE WAS CURED.—Gentlemen, About five years ago I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time travelling for Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine and when the third bottle was finished, I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of Dyspepsia.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Valuable Special Knowledge.

The unique botanical knowledge of Sir George Birdwood, one of the most erudite men in the India service, once enabled him to perform almost unconsciously a neat bit of detective work.

He was in Bombay when he was asked to investigate the case of a young nobleman who in applying to the governor for an appointment represented that he was just out from England and that his letters of introduction had been lost on the voyage.

A few days after Dr. Birdwood, as he then was, had undertaken the investigation he met the young nobleman at dinner at the governor's house. The table decorations of orchids suggested a conversational opening, and Dr. Birdwood's praise drew from the young nobleman standing opposite:

It was a fatal remark.

"You come from Rangoon, then!" instantly exclaimed Dr. Birdwood.

The pale face, the silence that could be felt, the request of the young man that he might leave the table, all prepared the governor and the company for the subsequent discovery that he had absconded from Rangoon with some public funds.

How Roses Came to Be Red.

More than with any other flower does the color of the rose have special significance. Red is love, white is silence, yellow speaks jealousy, says N. Hudson Moore in the Delineator. One of the legends connected with the rose tells that it became white through being bathed with the tears of mourners who sought the sweetest flower to lay in the hands of their dead. A prettier conceit declares that all roses were white until one day young Cupid, dancing among them, upset in his merry sport a glass of wine, which dyed the roses upon which it fell red, its own color. Another legend tells the story of a holy little maid of Bethlehem who was doomed to death. When the stakes were heaped around her the fire would not burn, but the brands which had been flaming turned to red roses and those which had not caught to white. From this time forth roses, red and white, were martyrs' flowers. The Turks say that red roses sprang from the blood of Mohammed.

Natives of Central America are inveterate users of pimento tobacco, which they make from dried pimento berries, or allspice. It invariably gives the smoker a sore throat and often causes cancer of the tongue. The natives of South Africa are affected in a peculiar manner by the smoke from the dried leaves of the camphor plant. The smoker trembles with fright at nothing, weeps bitterly and uses all sorts of words which do not in the least express his meaning. The wild dagga, another South African plant, poisons slowly those who use it.

The New York Sun objects to the habit, prevalent nowadays, of calling people "aged" when they have seen threescore years or so. If people, the Sun says, would learn the fifth chapter of Genesis by heart they would get a correct notion of age. "Here are a few men, who, in their last years might without offence have been called 'aged': Adam, 912; Seth, 930; Enos, 905; Cainan, 910; Jared, 962; Methuselah, 969;. We exclude middle aged persons like Mahalaleel, who was cut off in his 869th year, and adolescents like Lamech who lasted only 777 years. Indeed, Methuselah is the only man in the list to whom we should grant a patent to be called 'aged,' but the standard must not be put too high at first." After that, people should be careful how they talk of "aged" people.

Largest Hanging Bell.

What is perhaps the largest hanging bell in the world is to be seen in Mandalay. This is the Mingun bell, on the right bank of the Irawadi, almost opposite the city of Mandalay. This immense bell measures as follows: Height to crown, 12 feet; diameter at the lip, 16 feet 3 inches; thickness of metal, from 6 to 12 inches. It weighs about eighty tons and is suspended on three massive round beams of teak placed horizontally the one over the other, their ends resting on two pillars of enormous size, composed of masonry and large upright teak posts. This bell was cast at the end of the eighteenth century under the superintendence of the reigning king.

The Eel River Conspiracy

By Jas. A. Tucker.

FERNCROFT had hurried north by the first train, in response to a telegram from Mahaffy asking him to come to the mills at once. One of the company's tugs would be waiting at the lake end of the railway to convey him to the North Shore. Ferncroft wondered why Mahaffy and not Brigsdall had wired, for Mahaffy was only assistant bookkeeper and Brigsdall was supposed to take charge whenever Ferncroft had to "go out" to Ontario on business.

Ferncroft was manager for the Eel River Lumber and Construction Company (Limited), with two large mills up north. He was an ambitious fellow, who had spared himself little leisure in many years, and it was most annoying to have his first visit to his mother in Old Ontario, since he had cast his lot with the Eel River Company six years before, thus cut short five days early by a recall. But Brigsdall was a "business is business" man, and two hours after the yellow paper came to hand he was on the cars, leaving a little white-haired woman waving a kerchief and biting back her tears of disappointment as the train puffed away after its momentary stop at the flag-station.

When Ferncroft got off the train he went straight to the wharf, but the wharfinger's office was locked up and the little harbor deserted, no lights either of tug or other craft showing along the pier-side. Only the red eye of the lighthouse peered into the night from the little bowldery point beyond.

The manager was disappointed, exasperated, yet believed there was doubtless some good reason for the tug's not being on time. A man accustomed to keeping engagements punctually and to insisting upon a like promptitude in every department of the big business under him, the captain of neither the "Heron" nor the "Hare" would have dared to keep Daysley Ferncroft waiting overnight without reason.

The only thing to be done was to go up town to one of the hotels and await developments. The Shannon House was the nearest to the wharf, and at that Ferncroft chose to bide his time.

It lacked but a few minutes of ten when he reached the Shannon, and, having shaken hands with the proprietor, an old friend, he settled himself in an armchair in the common room, for a smoke. There was still a goodly company of local beaux esprits sitting about, smoking and chewing, and discussing current topics in their own provincial way. The advent of a substantial appearing stranger held the assemblage together rather later than usual, on the chance that he might be drawn into friendly discourse and ensnared into "setting up the drinks." But Ferncroft busied himself only with his pipe and the daily paper, and one by one the local "sponges" detached themselves and floated away. The mill-manager paid so little heed to what was going on that he was not aware for five or six minutes after the room had become perfectly quiet, that there still lingered one individual, apparently asleep in an armchair in a corner, but really eyeing Ferncroft attentively from under the brim of his pulled-down plug hat.

A loud yawn from the foxing gentleman drew Ferncroft's attention to his presence. The stranger stretched his arms, pushed his plug hat up over his brows and made a remark about the dullness of waiting over in such a place. Ferncroft was not an uncompanionable fellow, and met halfway the stranger's effort to start a conversation. He learned that the man with the plug hat—a most unusual article of attire up north—was an "American," and wanted to reach Little Rapids to inspect a limit. This being his first visit to Canada, he had been misinformed as to routes, and now found himself at the end of the rails, with seventy miles of water between himself and his destination, waiting for a chance coaster or lumbering tug to take him to Little Rapids.

"Lucky you spoke," said Ferncroft. "Here's my card. I'm on the way to Eel River and expect one of our tugs in to-night to take me over. Little Rapids is just thirty miles further up the lake. You can come along with me. Once at the Eel, you'll not find much trouble in getting an Indian or a fisherman to take you to the Rapids."

The "American" seemed delighted with his good fortune, and before going to bed insisted on Ferncroft having a drink with him. "This Canadian whiskey's all right," said he, "and I must say I have found Canadians all right, too, 's far's I've tried 'em. Now, if that there tug gets in during the night, you'll be sure to call me, won't you?"

Ferncroft sat up in his room long after the rest of the house was dark, waiting for the whistle of the "Hare" or the "Heron." But two o'clock struck without any sound coming from the harbor, so the manager reluctantly "turned in," not a little troubled to know why he had been sent for at all, why Mahaffy had signed the message, and why no tug had met him though the telegram had promised one at the wharf when he stepped off the train.

It was broad daylight before he awoke. As he went downstairs for breakfast, Spielman, the "American," came racing up, three steps at a time.

"Oh, I say, that there tug of yours hasn't ever got in yet, but there's a little steam yacht—the 'Honest Dollar'—down at the wharf. Ran in about six o'clock. Owned by a Green Bay, Wis., man, who's on board with two friends and the crew. They're goin' to cruise up Little Rapids way and leave here 's soon as they provision and coal up. That'll be about another hour. They're goin' to take me over there, and will bring you along, too, and drop you off at Eel River, if your boat don't happen along in the meantime."

The offer was a good one. Ferncroft was anxious to get to the mills. The confounded tug still failed to make her long-delayed appearance, and at the last moment Ferncroft put his grips on the "Honest Dollar" and stepped aboard, leaving word with the wharfinger for the "Hare" or the "Heron," if either of those craft should report later.

The run across the lake had been both quick and pleasant. The "Honest Dollar" was a speedy, though rather old and shabby, vessel. The company was decidedly congenial. Mr. Antrobus of Green Bay and his two friends, Misener and Flood of Chicago, were good fellows, who smoked only the best cigars and knew how to entertain a stranger. They had placed both their compatriot, Spielman, and the Canadian mill-manager under a lasting obligation by their generosity and hospitality.

The two great stacks of the Eel River mills and the top of the big sawdust consumer had been looming up in the distance for some time, when Ferncroft went down into the little saloon of the "Honest Dollar" to get a newspaper from his overcoat, that he might show the "American" gentlemen a certain editorial on an international dispute then at a critical stage.

To his consternation the door was slammed behind him with great violence, and the key was instantly turned in the lock and withdrawn. At first he suspected some practical joke, but no heed was paid to his calls. He saw from one of the portholes that the yacht was changing her course. Then he became angry and threw his weight repeatedly against the door, hoping he could burst it open. But it was a mortised lock—he could make no impression.

He sat down and tried to think out what it could all mean. He was confused. So many odd things had happened, crowned by this strangest and most alarming occurrence, that he lost for a time his sense of reality and seriously pondered as to whether he was dreaming—whether he was himself, Daysley Ferncroft. Of course he was not dreaming. Certainly he was himself.

Step by step he reviewed what had occurred:

First, Mahaffy's telegram. Why Mahaffy and not Brigsdall?

Second, the disappointment as to the tug. Why had either the "Hare" or the "Heron" failed to meet him, after being explicitly promised?

Third, his chance meeting with Spielman and the curious circumstance that the dressy stranger was also waiting to take passage across the lake. Who was Spielman? What did he, Daysley Ferncroft, know of him except what he had received from the glib tongue of the stranger himself?

Fourth, the coincidence of an "American" steam yacht coming along at the right moment to take both Spielman and himself to their destinations. Might not Spielman and the other Yankees be confederates in a conspiracy?

In the light of the fact that he was now unquestionably a prisoner, these circumstances, singly and connectedly, had a sinister significance, and Ferncroft cursed himself for a putty-headed chump for not having been more astute.

But why should there be any conspiracy, and if there was one, how had the conspirators managed to enlist the services of Mahaffy, the assistant bookkeeper? These were problems the mill-manager was trying to figure out when Spielman's voice sounded loud outside the door.

"Look-a-here, you! We don't mean any harm by you if you only take things cool and act sensible. We're goin' for a little trip along the shore. It'll only last a day or two, but you've got to stay with us. Why, you'll know later on. Now, us fellows want to act decent and let you have the run of the ship, so the door'll be unlocked providin' you promise to take things cool and not make any trouble."

The cheek of the fellow was amusing, even to one in Ferncroft's predicament.

"But supposing I won't come to terms?" said Ferncroft. "By heavens, I think I can make it interesting for you scoundrels if I try!"

"Oh, that's easy enough said," was the rejoinder. "Better be sensible, old man. Remember, we're seven to one."

That sounded decidedly like a threat. Ferncroft felt his gorge rising. "Well, I'll be damned if I'll promise anything to a gang of traitors," he shouted back.

"Very well, Mr. Ferncroft," said Spielman. "We'll be under the painful necessity of seein' that you're not left in a position to make trouble."

That sounded even more ominous. Would the fellows be guilty of murder? Or did they only mean to keep him in confinement? If the latter, they must exclude themselves from the cabin, and where else in the boat could they find decent shelter from wind and weather? Ferncroft would have given anything for a shooting-iron of some sort. Perhaps there was one left by mistake in the saloon by some one of the gang. The manager searched high and low, but found nothing of the sort. Even the cutlery had been removed.

Just as he had given up the quest for something with which to defend himself in case of need, he heard the key turn suddenly in the lock and the door flew open, while in rushed three of the conspirators, Spielman, Misener and Flood. Ferncroft was on the far side of the little dining-table from the door. At the first sound of the lock he had instinctively seized one of the heavy oak dining-chairs, and as the door burst open he rushed forward and swung it upwards in self-defence. He would have struck down the first man who had dared to lay a finger upon him, even if it had later cost him his life. But the cabin was cramped both as to height and beam. The chair caught against the ceiling, and the intended blow was arrested. Ere Ferncroft could recover his balance the three men sprang at him and dragged him down as a pack of wolves might pull a stag to earth. There was a brief futile struggle on the floor. Ferncroft had the satisfaction of bringing Spielman a stunning smash in the face with the heel of his boot. But in a minute or two he found himself prone and pinioned on the floor, guarded by the two rascals who were supposed to be Chicago business men, while Spielman rushed on deck to get assistance for his injuries, leaving a trail of gore behind him on carpets and woodwork.

After a time the mill-manager was carried to the small, ill-ventilated cubby-hole, dignified with the name of "fo'cas'le," and which in ordinary circumstances would be the quarters of the crew. Here he was tossed on a bunk and left to his thoughts and the creeping things that flourish in darkness and dirt. The only sounds were the throbbing of the engine and the riffle of the water against the yacht's bows. These seemed to soothe the nonplussed prisoner, and though he could not sleep, he was wafted into a state of reverie, in which, as not infrequently happens, the perceptive faculties were more keenly alive and intuition became more penetrating than could be possible in the course of normal mental processes.

This was the 9th of August. Ferncroft was to have returned to the mills on the 14th. And why had the latter date been fixed upon? Because on the 15th some thirteen thousand and odd dollars were to be paid out to the Eel River Lumber Company's men—sawyers, mill-hands, teamsters, lumbermen, raftsmen, tugmen and other employees—representing the earnings of many months. Twice a year the money came from the head office in Ottawa by express messenger over the Canadian Pacific, and, leaving the railway twenty miles north of Eel River Mills, was brought down stream in a canoe or through the bush by trail. As a precaution, the semi-yearly pay-days were never allowed to fall on precisely the same dates in successive years, and only two persons at the mills, in addition to Ferncroft, were aware when the cash envelopes would reach Eel River this summer. Those two were Brigsdall and Mahaffy. Both were absolutely trustworthy men, but in some way the secret had leaked out. As it were in a vision, Ferncroft beheld Spielman forging Mahaffy's name to his telegram. Spielman, he divined, was the head and front of the conspiracy. Other means, he intuitively felt, would be resorted to to get Mahaffy and Brigsdall out of the way at the last moment. Then the coast would be clear to make the projected haul. Fourteen thousand dollars amongst seven men was a sum not to be sneezed at.

The yacht steamed ahead for ages, as it seemed to Ferncroft. But when they came and took him out of the fo'cas'le and carried him ashore at a little deserted fisherman's cabin on a wild, rugged part of the coast that he could not remember having ever seen before, the sun was still above the horizon. Ferncroft knew not whether it was the mainland or a large island on which he was being landed, nor could he decide which would be preferable—to be set free in such an inhospitable region, without means of succor, or to be longer a prisoner in the hands of men who might not hesitate to add murder to their other crimes. Nor was his mind soon set at rest as to their ultimate intentions. A quantity of provisions was landed, and Misener and Flood being left behind to guard the prisoner, the yacht steamed away again as night was falling.

The mill-manager was kept under the closest surveillance all that night and next day—the 10th of August—but was otherwise not ill-handled. At dusk the "Honest Dollar" once more came back, and, taking the two guards on board, steamed off, leaving Ferncroft with several days' provisions, but sans the slightest idea as to the part of country to which so strange a misfortune had banished him. To attempt to discover whether he was on an island or the mainland, and, in the latter event, to seek a way to some habitation, would be hopeless until another day should dawn. Ferncroft knew the chances of his getting out in time to block the contemplated robbery must be slim indeed, since it stood to reason that the conspirators, with four days still to elapse before the receipt of the money at Eel River, would have scarcely placed him where he could get in touch with civilization in the interval.

Thinking it wise, however, to husband his resources for a supreme effort, he resolved to spend the long night as comfortably as possible in the deserted cabin, and to be up bright and early the following morning. When day dawned, his first task, after breaking fast, was to seek an elevation from which he might discover something of local topography, for his whole subsequent course must be governed accordingly.

The land was not heavily wooded, but rough, bowlder-strewn, and shouldering abruptly out of the water. Making his way with difficulty from the cabin around the circling coast-line, Ferncroft sought some stream whose course he might follow back into the interior without fear of losing his bearings and getting cut off from his base. At length he found a tiny rivulet, and paralleling its rugged bed, he ascended till he reached an open space, whence he could see water on every side, and, some miles distant, other islands and the high, hazy outline of the mainland.

This was a disappointment, but it was at least well to know the truth at once.

Descending again to the cabin, Ferncroft refreshed himself and resolved, if possible, to make a circuit of the island, which could not be above four or five miles in circumference. "Perhaps," thought he, "I may discover something that will assist me in some unlooked-for way."

So he set out, and, after proceeding a couple of miles, was rejoiced about noon to find a small raft that had drifted ashore in a little cove. Without anything that might serve as an oar, it would have been impossible for him to have navigated the rude craft back to the cabin.

He therefore returned to the latter on foot, and, having dose up his provisions in a bundle in the lining ripped from his coat, he knocked a board from the shanty with the help of a large stone, and, taking both bundle and board, started off again for the cove. Reaching there, he set upon a rock, and with his jackknife whittled at the plank till he had produced something that bore a rude semblance to an oar. Then this modern Robinson Crusoe lay down and slept resolved if the morrow were fine to beard Fate in the attempt to reach, if not the mainland, an island closer thereto.

And Fate seemed propitious. For the next day—the 12th of August—was wonderfully clear and calm. But the navigation of a raft composed of railway ties and three-inch planks is at best a slow and toilsome process. Had a wind sprung up off shore, Ferncroft would certainly have been driven out to sea and indeed the slightest measure of wind from any direction would soon have brought discomfiture, for the slightest waves would have washed the deck of his low-set, waterlogged craft, destroying his small stock of food, which might yet be so necessary, and adding discomfort to peril by drenching his garments.

The sun beat down from a cloudless sky and back again from the mirror-like surface of the lake. After five hours of hard, unremitting toil, Ferncroft had made scarce so many miles. He was commencing to give up heart, when the red sails of a Mackinaw boat, flapping idly off the shore of the nearest island, caused his heart to leap within him.

The sailboat was at a distance of about two miles. Redoubling his efforts, Ferncroft soon came within hailing distance of the craft. The latter, becalmed as she was, could not move by a boat-length to come to his aid, but at last he pulled up alongside and was taken on board. The men on the smack—five in all—were pleasure-seekers out for a cruise from one of the south shore ports. Briefly Ferncroft related to them his astonishing adventures, which, though at first disinclined to credit, they were finally persuaded to believe.

The very thing that had so far aided the mill-manager in his desperate effort to get back to civilization now put a stopper on all further progress. For the calm continued persistently, and notwithstanding that a liberal reward was promised if a telegraph line were reached inside of twenty-four hours, the sailing smack lay helpless and idle off shore all that day. At midnight, however, the calm burst in a great thunderstorm, and the 13th of August broke with a clear sky and a gently-blowing breeze from the southeast, which, though a contrary air, was better than none at all.

It was forty miles from Milksnake Island to the nearest telegraph. Tacking against the wind, sixteen hours were consumed in covering the distance, and the 14th of August had come into being ere Daysley Ferncroft could get a telegram through to Ottawa, informing the head office of what was occurring and asking that the message be repeated instantly to Eel River.

Had another day elapsed the conspiracy would have been successful. For the pay-money was even then en route from Ottawa, and on the morrow would have been brought down from the railway line to the mills by canoe. A forged telegram from Ottawa had already imperatively ordered Brigsdall to a point several hundreds of miles west on supposed business for the company. By some other means, it is assumed, Mahaffy would also have been gotten out of the way, and with the three head men of the mills absent from their posts, Spielman and his gang could have completed their job without anyone being aware of the fact until long after they had got away on the yacht to some United States port, and, deserting the craft, become lost to justice in the multitudes or the solitudes of the great Republic.

The "Honest Dollar," it turned out, was but a rented vessel, engaged from a Cleveland dockyard ostensibly for a two weeks' cruise. How Spielman and his confederates became possessed of their information about the money was not suspected till it was recalled that a mail-bag had beep stolen from the Eel River post-office about six weeks prior to the date of the projected robbery. Amongst the letters in that bag was one in which reference was made to the approaching pay-day.

As the result of his pluck, Ferncroft had the satisfaction of thwarting the further plans of the robbers. They, however, made good their escape, jumped their boat at the "American Soo," ere the slow-going authorities had got the chase well under way, and disappeared as completely as if the Great Lakes had swallowed them up.

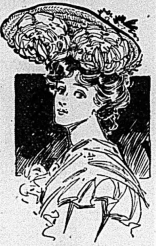
WHAT WOMEN ARE WEARING

Hats For Demitoilets—Useful Black Hats—White Silk Coats.

There is always a certain amount of difficulty about choosing a hat to wear with a demitoilet. When in doubt it is ever safe to adhere to the all black or white picture hat, with its ostrich plume or simple lace curtain.

A really good black straw hat looks well on many occasions. The shade to the face is nearly always becoming, and such head gear never seems to become rumpled or soiled. Feathers are not a necessity, but good feathers pay, as they keep in curl longer and with a little skill can soon be restored to their original beauty.



WHITE STRAW HAT.

The pelerine wrap is an important feature of the demitoilet, and we certainly need a wrap of some kind. In Paris cream silk coats with shawl-like draperies of black chantilly lace lined with accordion plaited chiffon are much in vogue.

A beautiful race gown of palest pink crepe de chine, powdered with black chantilly medallions, having a broad insertion of the connected motifs, has pink panne drawn in and out and fastened with little tassels of black passementerie. Another lovely gown of pastel blue chiffon has a foamlike edge made of many tiny gathered frills, over which wander little sprays and medallions of fine lawn and ecru lace.

Many white gowns will be worn during the summer. Embroidered lawn has its votaries, and when combined with handsome lace makes the smartest of summer frocks. Gowns entirely composed of lace have deep plaitings of chiffon, or flat frills of chine silk are inlet between tucks.

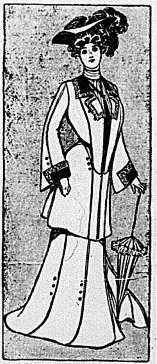
The cut shows a hat of white fancy straw trimmed with huge rosettes of liberty silk. JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE SEASON'S FASHIONS.

Many White Wool Gowns—Dressy Materials For Best Frocks.

There is no doubt that we are following the fashion set by Paris by making this a white season.

There has been a practical reason for the wearing of so much white this year. In the cold weather from which we suffered in the early summer white wool fabrics gave a suggestion of spring and yet were as warm as the darker tones. Hopsacks, serges, cloths and a hundred and one new canvas materials in cream and white have been much in vogue during the past month or so.



A DAINTY TAILOR MADE.

The dressy summer gown is made of very gorgeous materials, such as crepe de chine, oriental satin, mousseline de soie and linon de soie, and the majority of these are white or cream color. There is, however, a growing fad for rose pink and pale green, especially for young girls' dresses.

The glorified tailor made is very useful for many occasions when it would be impossible to wear a more elaborate and perishable costume.

STOCK REDUCING PRICES.

Bargain giving is at its height in every department of our big store.

To accommodate such, stock reductions will be neccessary everywhere—goods must go.

A visit will convince you that we are putting forth our best effort to have our shelving as clear as possible.

If low prices are a factor in selling, desirable goods such as we now offer—many at 50 per cent. discount—should leave us quickly.

Dont think because your present wants are supplied that you will not be interested.

Much of our wash goods offered at half price is of staple design — as good next season as this.

The neccessity for room making this great reduction, even in such desireable goods.

A few moments spent here will reveal the bargains to you, if you are not convinced as to there economical advantages—do not buy.

MEN'S FURNISHING NOTES.

To the man or boy with a summer outing in view the many little vacation helps our furnishings department has to offer, at reasonable prices, should be appreciated.

Our object in this department—as all others—is obtaining and selling satisfying goods at satisfying prices.

The rapid increase of sales convince us that our efforts are appreciated.

Here are a few of the vacation "helps."

BATHING SUITS.

A vacation without some time spent on or near the water is hardly a vacation in the truest sense of the word.

You will likely need a bathing suit of some kind.

Best get it now while you think as in the hurry of your departure you are likely to forget about it.

Every desirable style and quality awaits your choosing.

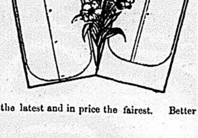
CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE



Quick & Robertson's for Fine Clothes

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard--built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

MEN'S SUMMER FURNISHINGS

. . . . AND . . .

STRAW HATS

The Largest Variety assures the Easiest Choosing.

That's just what's bringing more men to this store every day—they are getting into the fact that the selections Quick & Robertson shows in every line are the largest and most liberal in town—right in every way; in quality the highest, in style the latest and in price the fairest. Better choose now while the choosing is good.

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Our Plumbers and Tinsmiths are reliable men who understand their trades in every detail and if you are contemplating having any work in our line done soon you will make a mistake if you do not have our men to do your work, as their work will be done neatly and quickly and our charges will be reasonable.

The W. W. CHOWN Company. Limited

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

IT IS A PERPLEXING THING.

For the reader of newspaper advertisements to determine what is what. We do not use as large type as some, but we are sure that what we have to say is not the less important to any one who is interested in the subject of clothing at this time. Our summer suits are ready to speak for themselves, if you will but take time to inspect them, and we think you will find no fault with the prices. We are making an immense display of hot weather clothing and furnishings.—Quick & Robertson.

Excursion From Madoc.

Ten coaches well laden with passengers came down over the Grand Junction Railway this morning from Madoc. They passed through the city to the wharf where they embarked upon the steamer Aletha for Twelve o'Clock Point. A number remained in the city for the day.

DRUGGING WILL NOT CURE CATARRH.

This loathsome disease is caused by germs that invade the air passages of the head, throat and lungs, and can be cured only by inhalation of medicated air. Stomach medicines, atomizers, snuffs are ineffectual, because they fail to reach the cause of the trouble. Catarrhozone is successful, because it is inhaled to every part of the breathing organs, and has power to kill the germ, heals the inflamed tissues and prevents droppings in the throat. Catarrhozone treats more than one thousand square feet of the mucous surfaces with every breath taken through the inhaler and affords instant relief. It perfectly cures catarrh, asthma and bronchitis. Sold by druggists. Two months' treatment, price $1. Small size 25 cents, or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

The Firemen's Tournament.

A number from the city were in Trenton to-day, attending the Firemen's Tournament which is being held in that town. This annual event is becoming more and more popular, judging from the representative fire companies from various places which are competing for the valuable prizes offered. Chief Campbell, of this city, was one of the judges in the events.

Municipal Services at Fort William.

The Municipal telephone plant at Fort William does not appear to have been the success that has been claimed of it, judging from the following statement in the "Times-Journal" of 23rd July, of that town, over the signature of Mr. A. F. Woodhead, a prominent citizen:

"The public (electric light and telephone) services have been administered with inefficiency and inaptitude culminating in the destruction of the Town Hall, with its valuable records, a costly law-suit in which the town has been signally worsted, and to-day we have another breakdown in the electric light plant, simply through sheer mismanagement, which will cost a large sum and deprive the citizens of light for probably some weeks. The municipal telephone service is so bad that every user of it is disgusted and supporters of legitimate public ownership are chagrined and disappointed."

The tendency of cow's milk to become acid is due to a fermentation induced by certain bacteria. Cow's milk often carries disease germs, the principal ones being those of tuberculosis, scarlet fever and typhoid fever. Sensible mothers are aware of these facts, and regularly use wholesome and life-building Lactated Food for their infants and young children. The composition of this food renders it safe and satisfying at all seasons of the year. It is the only food that can protect the little ones from the deadly ills and complaints of summer; it establishes perfect digestive vigor, enabling weak babies to grow fat and plump.

Every physician in Canada who has given Lactated Food a trial in his own family or prescribed it for the little ones in need of such a food is loud in its praise. The mothers who have used it regularly, extol its virtues and recommend it to others. Lactated Food is a blessing in every home where there is a baby.

Committee Room 34,
House of Commons,
Wednesday July 22, 1903

Q.—Then were you over any staff that you would go to see at these places or were you just going cursorily? A.—No, I was not over any I was to see that the Provincial overseers were doing their duty and carrying out the law.

Q.—You were appointed by the Dominion to see that the Provincial officials did their duty? A.—Yes.

Q.—While you filled that position you were going through the census matters? A.—Well, I expected that the census would have been wound up about the time I accepted.

Q.—It was not, apparently? A.—No.

Q.—Well, then when you commenced your duties as Census Commissioner about the first thing you had to do was to go to Smith's Falls and get instructions? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who gave the instructions there? A.—Mr. Davis, Mr. S. J. Davis I think his name is.

Q.—And how long were you there receiving instructions? A.—Two or three days; I have got the account of the time.

Q.—Yes, I have got the account here. I see you were three days receiving instructions. What would be the nature of the instructions? Did you receive them personally or were there a number of Commissioners? A.—All the Commissioners for the eastern division were there.

Q.—And did it take three days to give them instructions as to the time they worked? A.—Yes.

Q.—Three whole days? A.—Yes, it did, and it might have taken three days more, I guess, before we all understood it very well.

Q.—You say it took three days to get the instructions through your heads? Working how many hours a day? A.—It took us one to get to Smith's Falls.

Q.—Not according to your account. There is a charge for that. The account says three days and a half at Smith's Falls. That is the time, I understand from your account, you were there receiving instructions. A.—Well, we left home one day, we got to Smith's Falls and that evening—had a meeting, and then adjourned till next morning. We met early, spent that day, I remember, and the next day towards evening. I don't just remember how long, but I know we were two or three days there, and I have got the account with me.

Q.—Have you anything to show you were three and a half days? Your bill says three and a half days and your hotel expenses were charged for those three days. It seems to me extraordinarily long time for the Commissioners to get instructions? A.—Well, there were a great many schedules to be instructed in and a great many parts of the schedules which wanted explanation.

Q.—All you had to do was to ask questions and fill up the schedules sent out? You were getting blanks, were you not? A.—Well we had sample blanks, as it were, but we did not get our real blanks until after we got home.

Q.—These sample blanks were identical with the good ones? A.—Yes.

Q.—And they were filled up in answers to questions? A.—Yes.

Q.—And all that you had to do was to ask the question called for by these blanks and get the answer? A. Yes, some would ask a question and we were all supposed to listen and take the meaning out of it, but there were hundreds of questions.

Q.—Can you now, after three and a half days' experience, suggest any difficulty that any body would have in filling those blanks. A.—Yes.

Q.—Suggest one to illustrate it. A.—Well, the matter of agriculture I was more acquainted with.

Q.—What about that? A. — The products of agriculture, such as taking down the stock.

Q.—Excuse me, what difficulty would you have? You would ask a farmer how many cows and sheep and horses he had. Is that not it? A.—The enumerators they were instructed in the schedules, but we were getting instructions in order to instruct the enumerators.

A.—Excuse me, did you do anything more than to tell them to ask the questions suggested by these forms? Anything more than that? A.—Well, we had to instruct in what the form meant, what the questions on the form meant.

Q.—Excuse me now, what instructions would you have to give a man in order to ask how many cows have you, or horses, or acres? A.—That would be very plain, but the product of that cow and the product of those acres had to come afterwrds.

Q.—That would be a suggestion suggested by the blanks. You had a question in the blank and you wanted an answer? A.—Well, now, the product of the cow was made up, sometimes in milk, it was sold at the factory or sold in a village and made up in a creamery, and exported or sold around. The cheese factories were very plentiful there, over 100 in that riding or that county, and that was a manufactory. We had to take account of what became of the product of that cow and these matters needed a great deal of explanation, and we had to ask the Commissioner of the District a great many questions in this way.

Q.—Would there be any question you would have to ask that would not be on the blank before you? A. Oh, no, but the understanding of that question.

Q.—If you asked a farmer as to the product of a cow all he would have to do, I suppose, would be to tell you the amount of milk that the cow had given. To illustrate the point you have just raised? A.—That would be very easy. He knew how much milk the cow gave, but where would you put that, whether it would be put to the credit of a factory the milk was manufactured in, or to the creameries, or whether it would be sold as milk in the city, and we had to divide all this product and put it in different schedules, and then there was besides the breed of the animal.

Q.—The breed of the animal would be a simple question. What is the breed? A.—Not very simple, to tell pure breed or common stock, and they had to go in different schedules.

Q.—But your enumerators were not experts. You would ask the farmer a question and he would answer it, would not that be it? A.—You are talking about the instructions at Smith's Falls.

Q.—Talking about the instructions you were getting there. You were told what you were to do. I am trying to find out what your duties were that would require three days? A.—To get the meaning of the schedules, there was mining and there was manufactures.

Q.—You had not any mining? A.—Yes mining. Is there not any mining in East Hastings?

Q.—I do not know of any mining in East Hastings. A.—Then you don't know very much about East Hastings, I would say.

Q.—When you went to talk to your enumerators you took two days to instruct them, did you not? A.—Yes, two days at first.

Q.—You went around to each of the municipalities and met the enumerators of that municipality and instructed them for two days, did you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was it necessary to spend two days instructing them how to fill out these blanks? A.—Well, it was necessary. I will—

A POLITICAL PICNIC.

A Grand Open Air Conservative Demonstration will be held on Hanlan's Point Athletic Grounds, Toronto Island, Toronto, on Wednesday, August 12th, at which Mr. R. L. Borden, Mr. J. P. Whitney, and the party leaders in Quebec and Manitoba have consented to be present.

The large and representative Committee in charge have made complete arrangements which will ensure the comforts of the thousands whose presence is confidently expected. The programme provides for afternoon and evening entertainments. The first will take the form of an old fashioned political picnic of the free and easy kind, where the rank and file of the Party, with their mothers, wives and daughters can meet and make the acquaintance of the Leaders and prominent politicians of the Party. Music by massed Military Bands will enliven the afternoon proceedings. In the evening there will be speaking by the Party leaders and prominent public men, and songs and choruses by a double male octette of sixteen voices. The double octette will be under the directions of Mr. E. W. Schuch.

The committee have arranged for single first class fares on all railroads, good from August 11th to 13th inclusive. Those attending the Demonstration will, when purchasing their railway tickets, procure from their local ticket agent, standard certificates, which, when signed by the secretary of the committee, Mr. J. A. Macdonald, will entitle them to free return tickets to their homes.

This demonstration is one of the things" Conservatives should not "forgot," all the indications are that it will be the largest ever held in Canada. The splendid ferry steamers of the Toronto Ferry Company will ply between Yonge street and Brock street wharves, and Hanlan's point during the afternoon and evening affording ample accommodation for those attending. Those who desire, can obtain refreshments on the ground, thus avoiding the necessity of returning to the city between the afternoon and evening entertainments.

EYE STRAIN.

You say, "Oh, I don't need glasses." How do you know that you do not? Have you had your eyes examined? It's all well enough to toss the matter off easily now, and it may be that your eyes are strong enough to hold out a good many years; but do they focus? That is the important point. If they do not focus, then every time you read, it is a strain on some muscle to hold the eye straight. This is one of the common causes of Headache and Weak Eyes in school children. Come in and talk it over. You'll understand it better then. Talk doesn't cost anything. Will be glad to see you.—Alex. Ray.

CHEAP TRIPS.

The Grand Trunk Railway is running an excursion from Belleville to Kingston every Wednesday. Fare for the round trip, Belleville to Kingston and return, $1.35. Tickets are good going on date of issue only and parties must go on 7 a.m. train. Connect at Kingston with boat for trip through Thousand Islands to Alexandria Bay. Return fare for round trip through Islands from Kingston 50c.

Colds How will your cold be tonight? Worse, probably. It's first a cold, then a cough, then bronchitis. Colds always tend downward. Stop this downward tendency quickly with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. 25c., 50c., $1.00. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sports and Pastimes

LACROSSE.

Locals Won a Short Match.

Owing to the late arrival yesterday afternoon of the excursion party from Millbrook, the lacrosse match between a team from that place and the city was not only delayed, but only 25 minutes of actual playing was allowed. During this time a very good exhibition of the national game was given, finally resulting in a victory for our boys, by a score of 4 to 3. The visitors played a fairly good game and those who attended seemed pleased. The following composed the local team: McFee, goal; Paterson, point; Cook, cover point; Panter, 1st defence; Hamilton, 2nd defence; Fish, 3rd defence; Alford, centre; Brown, 3rd home; Ford, 2nd home; Burke, 1st home; Kennedy, outside home; Harper, inside home.

Mr E. J. Bogart was referee, and he did his duty in an impartial manner.

Athletics Look Like Champions of This Group.

Peterborough, Ont., Aug. 5.— The first of a series of games for the championship of District 13 of the Junior C.L.A., was played here today, between the two local teams—Athletics and St. Peter's T.A.S.—before over 700 people. Both teams had previously won their section of the district without defeat, and intense rivalry prevailed. The game was a fine exhibition, although rough at times, and resulted in favor of the Athletics by 5 to 2. The winners played good lacrosse and deserved to win.

SPORTING NOTES.

Mr. H. Parker Thomas, the well-known local dog fancier, will judge all classes of terriers at the Eastern Townships' Exhibition, to be held at Sherbrooke, Que., first week in September.

Arrangements for a matched race between Eddie Durnan, Toronto, and Charlie Gaudaur, Orillia, have been completed. The race will be two and a half miles for $500 a side and will be rowed at Orillia on August 15th. Durnan will concede Gaudaur ten seconds start.

On an average pitch at Winnipeg the other day, L. Smith, of the Winnipeg Cricket Club, took eight wickets for thirteen balls and no runs, and did the hat trick twice. This is the world's record. The side was out for four runs in twenty-five balls pitched, the last man being caught out by Smith.

BUY GOOD CLOTHING.

In buying clothing don't always be looking for something for nothing, for if you do, disappointment is sure to follow. If you try to get $15 suits for $5 you get just what you pay for, a $5 suit for $5. You may depend that no store is crazy enough to lose a whole lot of money to sell you a suit. What do you think about it yourself? If you want good honest value, dollar for dollar, do your clothing buying at the Oak Hall.

WEARY BRAIN WORKERS.

Fagged out, ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snap's gone! The buoyancy that made work a pleasure—that's gone too. The doctor would tell you that you are run down, not eating enough nor digesting enough. Your stomach needs aid, your digestion needs a bracer too. Your blood requires phosphorus and iron that it may be formed readily. Now Ferrozone is a wonderful nerve bracer and blood maker. It's food for the blood and nerves, it will make you strong quickly and permanently. Sold by all druggists.

A DELIGHTFUL DAY'S TRIP.

Every Wednesday during August, the Grand Trunk Railway System, in connection with the Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte Nav. Co., will afford the public the opportunity of a day's trip through the 1000 Islands via Kingston at very low rates. This is one of the most delightful trips imaginable. Train leaves Belleville 7 a.m., Napanee 7.43 a.m. Seven hours' sail through the beautiful 1000 Islands of the St. Lawrence to Alexandria Bay and return. Round trip from Belleville $1.58. Napanee $1.35. a1tosl

THOS. E. MEPHAM. Local Manager,
and Provincial Representative of the Exchange.

The great advantage to local investors in placing their business with the Metropolitan consists in the fact that they have contracts with this strong financial institution itself, instead of with a local broker; thereby eliminating entirely the risk which may be involved in the question of a local broker's financial strength. Each commitment exists upon its individual merit, and cannot be affected by the short comings of the holders of other contracts nor even of the local manager. The local manager is the servant of this exchange, and the exchange is bound by his acts; consequently, the investor having the evidence that he has paid to a given point, his commitment is good to that point no matter what happens; and this is a valuable consideration —more so than most people imagine.

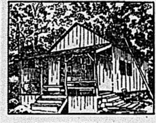
THE SUMMER CAMP.

Out of Door Housekeeping and the Right People For It.

While pessimists are shouting their belief that human beings are living artificial lives and the race is deteriorating, the world of optimists is seeing through clearer eyes the glories of mountain, lake and forest and living nearer to nature by means of camp, canoe, bicycle and the canned productions which have become so attractive to the camper as well as the dweller in cities. Every year more city people find solace in the remote forests or the near woods skirting our rivers and lakes.

The ideal camp is not that which depends upon a tent for protection from sudden wind and storm. It is the wood home, a securely built lodge with cook stove and fireplace for cool evenings. Let the house be built on the shore of lake or river, not so far from a farmhouse that ice, milk and other necessaries may not be procured. Then, given a congenial party, safe boats, a well chosen stock of provisions, and, come rain or come shine, we will be happy, sleeping or waking.



A LODGE IN THE WOODS.

"Given a congenial party," I said. Ah, there is the "beware" point. And right there permit me a few don'ts. Don't admit to a camping party the man, woman or child who is afraid of going an inch beyond half way, no matter whether at work or play.

Don't even mention camping to the man who loves himself first and always and who loves his mirror next to himself. Such a man would break up a camp in six hours.

Don't give room to the woman or girl who fears above all things to be seen in camping outfit and at the sound of paddle or oar flies off to arrange herself after the fashion of the latest window model. Don't think to be happy in a camp without one or two children, as a live boy will produce more fun in one day than a grown up man could possibly furnish in a year—yes, and he will perform more useful labor and find a world of healthy pleasure enough to last him until next year.

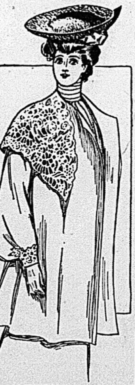
The woman whose happiness depends upon hand painted china, Persian rugs and honiton lace curtains will never appreciate the mossy seat, the pine needle carpet, the sweet aroma of the pines, the hammock under the trees. Don't ask her to leave her luxuries. She would be miserable without them.

A comfortable and cozy wood lodge can be built for $150, and, once completed, the owner has a joy for many years. The ideal cottage which I have in mind is owned by three men, each taking his vacation at a separate time, so that during the year a large number of persons are benefited and made happy. There are accommodations for eight people, and by using hammocks or couches more have been made comfortable. Movable frames have been built in the bedrooms, each frame equipped with spring bed and mattress. Every fall the blankets are packed away in the attic of a farmhouse near, so that the wandering fisherman or hunter may not be tempted to make use of them.—Anna P. Payne in Good Housekeeping.

A Work of Sartorial Art.

No garment is more indispensable at this season than the sort of coat for which a model is shown.

Made preferably in the new shade of champagne cloth, which really more nearly approaches tussore color, and the edges piped with the prevailing pale blue, it will be found suitable for dressy occasions. The back is cut so as to fall in two heavy flutes, after the style of box plaits. A lace pelerine gracefully finishes off the neck.



A SMART SACK COAT.

A Lake of Many Wonders.

Lake Chad, in Africa, is 185 miles long and 80 miles wide, or somewhat larger in area than Lake Erie, yet it is only twenty-five feet deep in its deepest part and only five feet in its eastern side.

It has eighty islands, some barren, others only pasture land and some covered with forests and millet plantations and having a total population of about 50,000.

Storms arise with surprising quickness on the lake, and the shallowness of the water forces up big waves at short notice, while treacherous gusts and puffs of wind about the islands make navigation dangerous.

Forestalling Fate.

In some parts of England the tapping of a bird round the house is looked upon by the superstitious as a warning.

He found an old man in bed, but in perfect health, and asked why he had been sent for.

"Why, sir," replied the daughter-in-law, "there coom a little robin about the door. We knowed it was a 'call,' and we thought it must be granfer; so we put 'im in bed and sent for you."

The Family.

Railway officials differ in the degrees of liberality with which they define the word "family" when used on a pass. An American copied the instructions of the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean railway bearing upon the subject as a lesson in liberality. On that road a pass for one and family is good for father, mother, children, grandfather, grandmother, mother-in-law, father-in-law, brother, sister, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, uncle, aunt, nephew, niece and servants attached to the family.

Only Room For One.

Lady—How could you be so foolish as to put anything on that newly painted table?

Maid—But I saw Mr. Jones lay several articles there.

Lady—What of that? If my husband makes a jackass of himself he has a right to, but you haven't, you stupid creature.

Discretion.

Miss Bizzy—I am glad to hear that you are married, O'Brien, and hope that you and Bridget don't have many differences of opinion.

O'Brien—Faith, ma'am, we have a good many, but Oi don't let her know about them.—Town and Country.

If a girl had to decide between having a pearl necklace or nice curly hair she would go crazy.—New York Press.

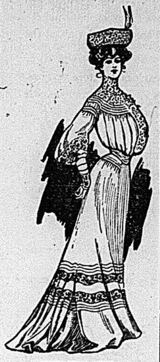
MUSLIN AND LACE GOWNS.

Pale Green Muslin Is Very Smart. Elaborate Styles.

Muslin and lace gowns really deserve a page to themselves. A pale green muslin has bunches of orange pomegranates on it and is a complete mass of tuckings, shirrings, etc. A very charming addition is a pelerine of hand worked lawn bordered by green silk fringe. The waist of this frock is enriched by a band of orange panne, which, although it does not sound like a very summery fabric, runs taffeta a close second in the matter of trimmings.



WHITE MULL GOWN.

A very smart gown seen at the races recently was of Limerick lace over an accordion plaited white chiffon underdress, the lace held across with ropes of chenille and tiny jet and paste buckles. The hat intended to go with this was of pale green straw. For trimming it had a single mauve ostrich feather.

Some very smart girls are appearing in fine white silk muslin or mousseline de soie made with a big fichu and a much beflounced skirt. After all there are not many ways of making up muslin. To look well it must be made rather fussily. Severe lines are distinctly out of place.

Soft, semitransparent fabrics are ideal for summer and evening gowns, and a most charming effect is obtained by using two or three harmonious colors in tulle or chiffon over a foundation of pale satin. A soft pink satin, first veiled with a pinkish gray chiffon and again with a silvery gray, gives a misty pastel effect which is both dainty and uncommon.

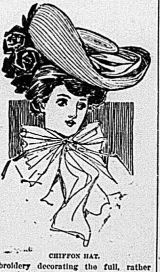
WHAT IS WORN.

Smart and Simple Gowns—Dainty Hand Painted Muslins.

A very smart yet simple French frock is in a periwinkle blue cloth edged with a cream lace application outlined with black and white chenille braid. This is made in the form of a tunic fastening with early Victorian buttons and finished with a black panne belt, with straps of embroidery decorating the full, rather round skirt, which barely touches the ground all around.



CHIFFON HAT.

In direct contrast to a costume of this sort there are some glorious hand painted muslins on a silky ground. Pompadour designs are of course the favorites, and their beauty is much enhanced by the addition of little coats, either in very fine old fashioned lawn or some real lace. The skirts in such cases are accordion plaited or finely gauged, and most of them are made with a flounce starting below the knees to give the necessary fullness.

The muslins this year are works of art, consisting of masses of tuckings, shirrings, laces and even fine embroidery.

The hat of white, coarse straw trimmed with a single feather is rich, simple and economical, for it may be worn with many gowns.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY. AUGUST 7, 1903 NO. 83

CYCLONE SWEPT PLYMPTON

Many Barns in the Township Blown Down and Unroofed.

Terrific Hail, After Shattering Windows, Stripping Orchards of Their Fruit, Threshing Out Oats, Lay Three Inches Deep Upon the Ground—Damage Also in Forest and Warwick Townships—Fruit Injured in Niagara District.

Forest, Aug. 7.—Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock a disastrous cyclone swept through a portion of Plympton Township, two miles west of Forest, and the damage done by wind and hail is serious.

Dozens of windmills were wrecked, several chimneys were blown off; a dwelling house and fences were levelled to the ground.

The hail which accompanied the wind was terrific. Windows were shattered, orchards were stripped of their fruit, and foliage and fields of oats literally threshed out and beaten into the ground. The hail was three inches deep.

Several persons were injured by loads of grain being upset and flying boards.

In Forest some damage was done, the end of the Franklin House barn, a brick building, being blown in and the fruit trees riddled.

In Warwick Township the roof was blown off Frank Jenkins' barn, and apple orchards were badly damaged. The storm came off Lake Huron without a moment's warning and spent itself in a short time.

In Niagara District.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Aug. 7.—This district was visited by a severe hail storm yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock. Stones fell the size of marbles and covered the ground. The effect on the fruit crop will be disastrous.

SAW MILL LEVELLED.

One Man Killed, and Two Very Badly Injured at Deschene.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—A terrific electrical storm accompanied by a wind of cyclonic force, which swept down the Upper Ottawa and over Lake Deschene, struck the city with awful force at 4 o'clock yesterday. At Deschene, seven miles from Ottawa, it hit the big saw mill being erected by the Fraser Company, blowing down three walls of the power house, killing one man, and probably fatally injuring another, seriously injuring a third and slightly injuring three others.

The dead man is James Campbell, son of ex-Ald. W. J. Campbell, boiler maker, Ottawa; Joseph Valiquette, boiler maker's assistant, had his back broken and will die. John Chugg, a line man, was seriously injured, but has a good chance for recovery.

The loss to the Fraser Company was about $10,000.

Barge Lost in Storm.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 7.—A tug which arrived here last night from the south, reported the loss of the barge Florrie, between Barnegat and Fire Island during Wednesday's storm. Five persons went down with the barge.

PROTECT HOME INDUSTRY.

Montreal, Aug. 7.—At the annual meeting of the Montreal branch of the Manufacturers' Association yesterday, a resolution was adopted asking the Government to protect the interests of Canadian manufacturers in the construction of the proposed new transcontinental railway.

The meeting, after calling attention to clauses 17 and 37 of the G. T.P. bill, decided to ask the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to draw the attention of the Government to the need of the following regulations:

That all contractors who undertake to build parts of the eastern section should be compelled to pay duty upon their imports.

That in all importations of supplies by the Government, the Government shall follow the usual procedure of Ministers within departments of computing the duties and giving the preference to the Canadian manufacturers when his price is the same or lower than that of foreign articles with duty and freight added.

That the Government take strict precautions to enforce clause 37 in accordance with the course adopted by the Government of the Province of Ontario, prohibiting importations by the G.T.P. Company for the construction of the western section without showing due cause to the Governor-in-Council.

INTERNATIONAL MARINE CO.

The Terms of the British Ship Combine With the Admiralty.

Provides That Vessels Shall Be at the Disposal of the Government For Any Military, Naval or Postal Service—Majority of Directors Shall Be British—Agreement to Continue For Twenty Years From Sept. 22, 1902.

London, Aug. 7.—The agreement of the International Marine Company with the British Admiralty and the Board of Trade was published in a Parliamentary paper last night.

It provides that the British companies in the combine shall remain on an equal footing with other British companies in respect to any military, naval or postal services that the British Government may require from the British Mercantile Marine. No British ship in the combine shall be transferred to a foreign registry without the consent of the president of the Board of Trade.

The vessels shall continue to be officered by British subjects, and carry the same proportion of British sailors as is prescribed in the case of any other British ships engaged in the same line of trade.

The vessels shall still be subject to hire or purchase by the Admiralty on the same terms as existed prior to the combination.

At least one moiety of the tonnage built or acquired during the continuance of the agreement shall be registered as British.

Any company hereafter taken into the combination shall be subject to the same terms.

The British companies included in the combine shall continue to be British companies, qualified to own British ships and at least a majority of their directors shall be British subjects.

Nothing shall be done to jeopardize the existing British register or the right of a vessel to fly the British flag.

Any British company hereafter absorbed by the combine shall be subject to the conditions of the agreement, and the combine shall advise the British Government of any other lines of whatever nationality they may be that may hereafter be absorbed.

The agreement shall continue for twenty years, dating Sept. 22, 1902 and shall be terminable, thereafter, at five years' notice on either side. It is provided that the British Government has the right to terminate the agreement at any time should the combine pursue a policy injurious to the interests of the British Mercantile Marine or British trade.

The International Mercantile Marine Company agrees that the chairman of the British committee shall accept service on behalf of the American company of any process or other document arising in connection with the agreement. The Lord High Chancellor is appointed referee in any dispute arising out of the agreement. His decision in law and fact shall be final.

The agreement is signed by Gerald Balfour, for the Board of Trade; Admiral Lord Kerr, senior naval lord, and Rear-Admiral May, third naval lord, for the Admiralty; Sir Clinton Dawkins, on behalf of the International Mercantile Marine Company, and by the directors of the constituent companies.

Business Manager of the Globe.

Toronto, Aug. 7.—The position of business manager of The Globe, made vacant by the death of Charles W. Taylor, has been filled by the appointment of John F. Mackay of Woodstock, who for the past five years has been associated with Andrew Pattullo, M.P.P., in the conduct of The Woodstock Sentinel-Review. Mr. Mackay began his newspaper career on that paper and spent brief terms in Toronto and Chatham, after which he became business manager of The Montreal Herald, where he remained several years. He is still a young man.

Fell From a Train.

St. Thomas, Aug. 7.—Henry Flynn of Cadillac, Mich., 18 years old, fell from a Michigan Central train on which he was coming to the city with his mother and sister yesterday. He is now lying in the Amasa Wood Hospital suffering from concussion of the brain, and his recovery is doubtful.

Fatal Explosion in a Mine.

Fairmont, W. Va., Aug. 7.—A terrific explosion of powder at Monongahela Mine No. 2 yesterday, resulted in injuries to eight miners, three of whom cannot recover. Two others may die.

IRISH LAND BILL.

Nationalist Circles Troubled Over Opposition in House of Lords.

London, Aug. 7.—The committee stage of the Irish Land Bill was reached in the House of Lords yesterday afternoon. There was an unusually large attendance of Irish peers.

The divisions on the amendments indicated a determined fight, and in the division on the first amendment the Government narrowly escaped defeat by one vote. In the following division the Government was defeated by three votes. Neither amendment was vital to the bill, but as notice has been given for 34 pages of amendments, this early opposition to the Government arouses in Nationalist circles apprehension of trouble before the committee stage of the bill is concluded.

Another amendment moved by Lord Abercorn (Conservative) was carried against the Government by a majority of three. After that the progress was easier to clause 42, upon reaching which the House of Lords adjourned.

Sugar Bill Passed.

London, Aug. 7.—In the House of Commons, after James Bryce (Liberal) and Chas. Wentworth Dilke (Advanced Radical), and others had denounced the Sugar Convention Bill as a protectionist measure the bill was passed to a third reading by a vote of 119 to 57.

Broker Cowan Arrested.

New York, Aug. 7.—Detectives yesterday arrested Joseph Cowan, a broker, who lives at Matuchen, N.J., on a charge of larceny of $5,300, which he is said to have appropriated to his own use between March 10, 1902, and the present time. The complainant is Blanche H. Smith of Milwaukee, Wis., who is said to have entrusted the money to Cowan to invest for her benefit. This firm is a member of the Toronto Board of Trade.

MOVED A BOUNTY ON LEAD

Finance Minister Places the Amount at $15 on the Ton.

Many Amendments to the Railway Bill Moved—Contractors Must Pay Current Wages to Railway Laborers—The Salaries of the Railway Commission Fixed at $10,000 For Chairman, $8,000 Each For Two Commissioners and $4,000 For Secretary.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—Consideration of the resolution fixing the salaries of the members of the Railway Commission in the House yesterday brought about a general discussion as to the salaries of commissioners, judges and Ministers. Those who spoke thought that these officials are not sufficiently paid.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in presenting the resolution, said the salaries were the highest paid by the Government, higher than those of the chief justices, and higher than the salaries of Ministers. It had, however, been strongly argued that the time had arrived for a revison of the salaries of judges. In view of the importance of the duties to be discharged by the commissioners, the salaries were not at all unreasonable.

The salary of $10,000 to the chairman of the commission was not out of proportion to that paid to high officials in the railway service. Another thing was that while judges held their positions permanently, the chairman of the Railway Commission only held office for ten years. The salaries of the other two commissioners, $8,000 a year each, and the secretary, $4,000, was, he considered, fair. The Prime Minister said no choice of commissioners had yet been made.

Mr. Maclean asked if there was any prospect of having the farming portion of the population represented on the commission.

"I understand that it is the intention to have the farming community represented," Sir Wilfrid replied.

Mr. Monk asked if the Government had any estimate of the cost of the commission.

Mr. Blair answered that he had looked into the subject and considered that the expense for the first year would be about $100,000.

The resolution was then adopted and considered as a part of the railway bill.

Classification of Freight.

In committee on the Railway bill Mr. Fitzpatrick proposed an amendment which provided that there should not be a change from a lower to a higher qualification of freight rates until six weeks' notice had been given in The Canada Gazette. The motion was carried.

Current Rate of Wages.

Hon. Chas. A. Fitzpatrick moved another amendment providing that contractors for railways receiving Government subsidies should pay to their laborers the current rate of wages in the district in which they are employed. This meant, Mr. Fitzpatrick said, that contractors would have no right to bring men into any district and pay them lower wages then prevailed there. After some discussion, Mr. Fitzpatrick consented to the proposal that declarations would be required of contractors which would ensure the payment of current wages.

Dr. Kendall wanted to amend section 212 so as to take from the commission and give to Parliament the power to exempt any railways from the obligation to equip their cars with certain specified safety apparatus as provided in the next preceding session.

Mr. Fitzpatrick declined to accept the amendment, but expressed his willingness to amend the clause to read that all box and freight cars purchased or leased by Canadian railways after the passage of this act shall be equipped with the appliances named in the bill.

Damages For Employes.

Hugh Guthrie moved an amendment to clause 242 providing that a railway employe may recover damages for injuries received through the company's negligence, notwithstanding any rights which he may have surrendered by becoming a member of an insurance or benevolent society.

Mr. Guthrie's motion was lost on a vote of 41 to 21.

The mover had only two supporters on the Government side of the House, C. B. Heyd, and Dr. Kendall The Opposition was almost unanimous in its support of the motion, only Messrs. Birkett and Laven voting against it.

Fires Caused by Engines.

Mr. Davis of Saskatchewan moved an amendment requiring railway companies in the Northwest Territories to plow fire guards at their own expense. At present the expense falls on the Government of the Territories. As the fires are caused by locomotives Mr. Davis felt that the full expense should be borne by the railway companies. The motion was declared lost.

Bounty on Lead.

Mr. Fielding moved a resolution granting a bounty on lead. The bounty, Mr. Fielding explained, will be $15 a ton, but the total amount is not to exceed $500,000 in each fiscal year. The bounty is to be proportionally reduced when the price of pig lead in London, England, exceeds twelve pounds ten shillings per ton.

A long discussion ensued.

The minister of Finance believed that the bounty would develop this industry. He had hopes, too, that a profitable white lead industry would be established.

After a protracted discussion an amendment was inserted in the resolution to the effect that the bounty should apply to lead produced by any other process than that of smelting. The Finance Minister explained that this was introduced to meet the wishes of several Toronto gentlemen who represented that they had a chemical process for the extraction of lead, and it was intended to establish it in the west. The resolutions were then adopted, and the House adjourned at 1.35 a.m.

THE CORONATION.

Great Preparations Being Made at Rome For Sunday's Function—500 Bells Rang Welcome For an Hour.

Rome, Aug. 7.—The attention is now centred upon the solemn coronation ceremony which will occur on Sunday, and for which great preparations are being made. The throne of St. Peter, which Pius X. will occupy, will be surmounted by a canopy 40 feet high. The function will consume five hours.

The Pope has informed the Vatican officials that he wishes to be received on the threshold of the Basilica by Cardinal Rampolla, who, as archpriest of the church, will address the formal greetings to him.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the Pope will confer his blessing upon the people, but it has not been decided whether he will do so inside the church or from the balcony looking out upon the piazza. It is said that Pius is favorable to the latter plan, but that the influence of the Vatican officials is against it, on the ground that it might be interpreted as a recognition of the present state of affairs in Italy.

The holding of the coronation ceremonies in St. Peter's itself represents a concession, as in the case of Leo, it occurred in the Sistine Chapel. It is expected that 60,000 tickets will be issued for the event.

In the consistories to be held Monday and Thursday next, the Pope will confer the red hat upon Cardinals Ajuti, Taliani, Katschthaler and Herrero y Espinosa, who were raised from the purple, June 25, but who have not yet received those symbols of rank because of the illness and death of Leo. It is believed the Spanish Cardinal, Herrero, will not be able to be present at the coronation ceremonies.

Bells Rang For an Hour.

During one full hour yesterday morning the bells of about five hundred churches were rung in honor of the election of Pius X., a welcome unique of its kind, and ordered by Cardinal Respighi, vicar of Rome, who issued special instructions therefor. All the churches contemporaneously celebrated masses for the event, the singing of the Oremus combining with the harmony.

REBELS DYNAMITE KONAK.

Fifty Turks Were Killed—Albanian Troops to Be Employed in Macedonia—Massacres Are Thus Inevitable.

Salonica, Aug. 7.—A special messenger from Monastir reports that the Bulgarian insurgents have dynamited the Konak (Governor's palace) in the town of Krushevo, 23 miles north of Monastir. Fifty Turks were killed.

A detachment of Ottoman troops has burned the village of Dihovo, near Monastir.

Eight Turkish battalions have been despatched to Monastir and three battalions to Salonica from Koscovo.

Telegraphic communication with Monastir is still interrupted.

Massacres Inevitable.

Constantinople, Aug. 7.—Consular advices received here Wednesday from Monastir indicate that the situation in Macedonia was constantly growing worse. At a meeting of the Ministers it has been decided to adopt measures of extreme severity to suppress the revolution. It is reported that Albanian troops will be employed, in which event massacres are almost inevitable.

General Uprising Aug. 31.

London, Aug. 7.—A news agency despatch from Vienna says that the Macedonian Central Revolutionary Committee has fixed Aug. 31 as the date of a general rising, and that Boris Sarafoff, one of the leading Macedonian agitators, has been appointed commander of the revolutionary forces, with Alexieff as his principal lieutenant.

Crops Destroyed.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 7.—The newspapers announce that Prince Ferdinand is returning. Reports received here show that the crops have been destroyed and bridges blown up in the districts of Monastir and Salonica, where the Macedonian Committee proclaimed a revolution.

Embezzlement Charged.

Windsor, Aug. 7.—Fresh trouble has arisen in the office of the Dominion Express Company in Windsor, and auditors have again been summoned to straighten matters out. Ben Holman, the former C.P.R. city ticket agent and representative of the Dominion Express Company in Windsor, is under bonds to answer to a charge of embezzling about $800. Gordon Henderson of Goderich was sent to Windsor to take his place. Saturday he left for Toronto, and an examination of his books is said to have shown an apparent shortage of nearly $250.

Cattle Dealers Want Damages For Detention of Cattle in Transit to Toronto Junction Stock Yards.

Toronto Junction, Aug. 7.—Fifteen live stock dealers of Ontario at a meeting here last night issued instructions to their solicitor to enter suit for damages to the amount of $20,000 against the Grand Trunk Railway for losses by wrongful and malicious detention of cattle in transit, and will also lay information against certain railway officials of that line for alleged cruelty to animals. They also passed a resolution in condemnation of the railway authorities in this matter, to be transmitted to Hon. Sidney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture.

Some of the facts which were given at the meeting, which was held in the Union Stock Yards, were as follows:

Twenty cars of cattle arrived at the Junction at 3.10 p.m. yesterday, which started from such shipping points as Kincardine, Lucknow, Blythe, Ripley, Midmay, Walkerton, Clinton, Chesley, Tottenham, Whitechurch and Dobbington, between the hours of 7.30 a.m. and 3 p.m. Wednesday. These cars should all have arrived at the Junction about 9 p.m. the same day, but were sidetracked at Stratford and Guelph Junction, although other cars in the same train are said to have been taken on to the city stock yards at the Western Cattle Market without delay.

By the Criminal Code the limit of time within which animals in transit may be left without food or water is 28 hours. In the case cited the G. T.R. are claimed to have violated the law by a margin of from 4 to 8 hours, whereas the utmost time needed for delivery at destination in any case was 16 hours.

The solicitor for the complainants said last night: "The only reason which can be discovered for the deliberate outrage thus practised on independent, outside stock dealers, is that the Grand Trunk, which would be interested in the maintenance of a monopoly at the Toronto stock yards, have conspired with the Toronto stock yards to so discriminate against its young and formidable competitor at the Junction as to discourage outside farmers from beginning or continuing trade with them."

A FARMERS' STOCK DEAL.

Decline to Pay Because of Alleged False Pretences.

Toronto, Aug. 7. — About forty Southwold and Yarmouth farmers were yesterday served with writs by Bailiff J. McKenzie in actions to recover amounts of unpaid stock in the Farmers' Co-operative Packing Company of Brantford (Limited). The farmers refuse to pay their stock, claiming that they subscribed for it under false pretences. They said they were promised as good a price for their hogs as anyone else was paid, and they said the promise was not kept. Hogs were purchased from them, too, they say, at a certain price, and when the company came to settle, a lower price was paid them. Therefore, they decline to pay up the balance due on their stock.

Daily Intelligencer.

VAN HORNE'S OPINION OF GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC SCHEME.

Sir William Van Horne has been in Toronto, and his given his opinion to reporters of the Globe and Mail and Empire of the Government proposal to secure the construction of a Grand Trunk Transcontinental Railway, after reading which the reader will come to the conclusion that it is a pity Sir William did not accept the position offered him of the Chairmanship of the Transportation Commission, which the Government proposed to form, as he would then have been in a position to advise Sir Wilfrid not to enter into such a wild, extravagant and useless undertaking

To the Mail reporter Sir William said:

"The Canadian Pacific Railway, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, or any other all-Canadian route, will never voluntarily carry a carload of wheat by the all-railway route around the Great Lakes to an Eastern Canadian port for shipment abroad, for the simple reason that it will never pay any road to do so. Nor will the transportation problems in the west ever be solved by the construction of an all-Canadian route from coast to coast."

The long haul around the Great Lakes was dreaded, and the vast bulk of the grain for the East came by the C.P.R. steamers to Owen Sound, or else by way of Buffalo, and the Erie Canal.

In conversation with the Globe reporter he was equally explicit, declaring that:

"Neither the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway nor any other all-Canadian route will ever voluntarily carry a carload of wheat by the all-railway route around the great lakes to an eastern Canadian port for shipment abroad, for the simple reason that it will never pay any road to do so. Nor will the transportation problems in the west ever be solved by the construction of an all-Canadian route from coast to coast."

Sir William added: "The Canadian Pacific Railway shipped every carload of wheat that it was possible to ship by their steamship line on the great lakes from Fort William to Owen Sound, and thence east by rail, or else by way of Buffalo and the Erie Canal. The long haul around the great lakes was dreaded, because it was unprofitable, and the bulk of the grain brought by that route was carried during the winter months, and used by the millers of Ontario to keep their mills in operation during the cold season."

"Have we not already," continued Sir William, "an all-Canadian line from Quebec to Vancouver? Doesn't it run entirely within Canadian territory? For a line to be built away up along the north for the purpose of tapping the west should be altogether futile."

The Rev. editor of the Globe devotes about a column of its editorial (wide measure) in an attempt to controvert the opinion expressed by Sir William. If the Rev. gentleman was as unsuccessful when in the pulpit in convincing sinners that they should turn from their evil ways, as he will be in convincing his readers that western freight will be carried to an Atlantic sea port by the new road, he did not leave the sacred desk too soon.

People may well ask themselves how can this new scheme carry wheat to an Atlantic sea-port, at a remunerative rate, when the C.P.R., a shorter line, does not and cannot do it?

One point, however, notwithstanding its special pleading, the Globe is compelled to admit after trying to weaken Sir William's statement, on account of his connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway, and that is: "That never will the grain of the Canadian west be hauled to the Atlantic seaboard voluntarily by any Canadian railway by rail route alone." To which it adds: "It is not necessary to dispute this dictum in order to defend the construction of that portion of the proposed transcontinental railway east of Port Arthur."

It was the transportation question almost exclusively, that led to the adoption of the scheme, and the Globe opposed the building of the eastern section when first mooted. It got its instructions and changed its tune. Such is the Globe.

TIMELY TOPICS.

"The visit of King Edward to the improved working people's houses in Dublin recalls the fact that as Prince of Wales he was for years chairman of a commission for improving the houses of the poor, and was assiduous in attendance on his meetings. Edward is certainly giving his empire a fine administration. There is heart in all he undertakes."

The Mail and Empire says: "'Cap' Sullivan, Mr. Stratton, Jim Vance and Duncan Bole have been to the Sault arranging for the bye-election that is shortly to be held there. The Sault will soon be in a position to say that the good people of that district are not slaves to Strattonism, and it is to be hoped that they will say it good and hard." Is it possible that Mr. Stratton has sunk so low in political depravity as to "chum it" with this notorious crew? Yet after his late whitewashing, he may well think he can do anything with impunity.

Is the request which has been made of the United States secretary of the Interior Hitchcock, to approve of the construction of a tunnel under the Behring Straits, any more fantastic than Sir Wilfrid Laurier's proposal to relieve the freight congestion in the Northwest by building a railroad from Winnipeg to Moncton, N.B. Not one bit. The one is just as likely to be a success as the other.

JUST SO.

Woodstock Express.

Gamey was formally censured by the legislature of which he was a member, and Stratton was formally exonerated by the same body.—Hamilton Herald.

To be accurate, Gamey was censured by the Liberals in the Legislature, and Stratton was formally exonerated by the same body. Gamey was exonerated by the Conservatives in the Legislature, and Stratton was censured by the same body. The censuring of Gamey and the exonerating of Stratton proves nothing, except that there were more Liberals than Conservatives in the Legislature, and that required no proof.

British Columbia Conservatives are confident of carrying that province in the coming elections quite as emphatically as Premier Roblin carried Manitoba. The signs all point that way. The people of the West are tired of Gritism.

It seems that the flag incident referred to in these columns the other day, as taking place on the Varuna, at Trenton, is taking on a seriousness probably not looked for at the time by the parties who did the shooting, who, we are informed, have been summoned and will be tried before the Police Magistrate. The outcome will be looked for with interest.

Belleville's Board of Trade resolutions are already advertising us far and wide, as will be seen by the article in another column. The London Financial Times nearly had a fit when it saw the resolution which is reproduced to-day, but in this vicinity the sentiments contained therein are classed as "strictly all right."

In Mr. J. M. Hurley's evidence, published to-day, it will be seen that after making out his bill for $105 he went to Ottawa and "made some additions" to it. One of the additions is "Rent of halls, $25." When asked by Mr. Northrup to specify any hall he had rented Mr. Hurley could not name one, but gave evasive answers. Comment is needless. But will the Government allow Mr. Hurley to retain that $25 when he does not seem to be able to show that his claim was a correct one?

The Little Doctor for the Feet.

When your feet bother you in any way, call in the aid of "Foot Elm," the wonderful specialist for all troubles of the feet.

A white, odorless, soothing, healing, antiseptic powder, "Foot Elm," when shaken into the shoes simply works wonders in relieving painful, sore, blistered, chafed feet. It rests tired feet. Cools hot, burning feet. Reduces swelling and inflammation of the feet. destroys all disagreeable, sweaty odors, takes the sting out of a corn and the burn out of a bunion. New shoes that pinch and cramp the feet, fit easy when Foot Elm is used. There is not an ache or ailment of the feet that Foot Elm will not relieve and cure. Price 25 cents a box of 18 powders at druggists or by mail. B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

Literary Notes

THE DESIGNER FOR SEPTEMBER

The early autumn number of the Designer is in many respects the most remarkable issue of this popular magazine for women that has ever appeared. The art work is of unusually high order, and the articles are brimful of entertainment and helpfulness. Fashions and millinery for autumn are tastefully set forth, and "Millinery Lessons" and "Points on Dressmaking" assist the amateur to attain excellent results in both. Every woman who wants to make money or who is interested in amateur photography should read "How a Camera Raised a Mortgage," an actual incident charmingly related by Annie Donnelly, and illustrated from photographs by the author. "Artistic Table Arrangement," by the well-known writer, Waldon Fawcett, accompanied by handsome half-tones showing the table spread with the correct appurtenances for the various meals, will be highly appreciated by the young housekeeper, and will incidentally furnish hints to those who are at a loss what to give in the silver line to prospective brides. The regular departments, "What Women are Doing," "Helps Along the Way," "Etiquette Hints," "Toilet Table Chat," "In Motherland," and "The Kitchen Kingdom," are filled with timely suggestions, and "Floriculture," which is made quite a feature under the able conduction of Miss M. W. Bark, a practical florist, is devoted this month to the cultivation of plants raised from bulbs.

VERY REMARKABLE CURE OF DIARRHOEA.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who was cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists

Q.—Let it go. Do not bother about that. You say it was necessary and we let it go at that. When you met them, I understand, you met them in each municipality? A.—I did for this reason—

Q.—I am not finding any fault. Here is your letter to a Department in which you say you went to the various municipalities yourself? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—So that the instructions given to these enumerators were given in their own municipalities? A.—Well, it was at first. I had to send for some of them afterwards. When they were close by I brought them into Belleville, where it was handy to get them after they had started.

Q.—When you went to each municipality, I judge from your bill; it is almost like a diary—you went to the hotel and the enumerators came to meet you? A.—Sometimes I did if I could get a sample room. If they had a sample room in the hotel I used it, and paid them for the use of it.

Q.—You did get it, did you not? A.—I did in some places, but could not get it in all. That was handier for us.

Q.—Did you get one at Melrose, for example? A.—No, I did not.

Q.—You took the Town Hall? A.—Took the Town Hall.

Q.—Was there any other place than Melrose in which you did not use the hotel? A.—I think there was.

Q.—What place? A.—I used the hotel where they had a sample room where we could get at it.

Q.—Tell me any other place than Melrose where you did not use the hotel to instruct your enumerators? A.—I could hardly remember just now without turning to the account.

Q.—Let me see, what is the first place you went to, "Thurlow enumerators, March 23rd." You met them in the hotel? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you charged a dollar for the room? A.—Yes, that is what I paid the hotel-keeper.

Q.—And the Tyendinaga enumerators you met at Shannonville? A.—Yes, the first meeting.

Q.—And you met them in this hotel? A.—Yes.

Q.—And the next place you went to was Deseronto? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you used the hotel there? A.—Yes.

Q.—And paid him for that? A.—Yes, we used—it was not a hotel exactly; it is a kind of annex, a little hall.

Q.—It is under the hotel? A.—At one side of it.

Q.—And you paid him for that? A.—Yes.

Q.—Then the next place you were would be Tweed. You met the Tyendinaga and Tweed enumerators there? A.—No the Hungerford and Tweed.

Q.—I mean the Hungerford and Tweed? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you used the hotel there? A.—Yes, I used the sample room of the hotel.

Q.—And you went to Melrose and met the Tyendinaga men? A.—Yes, used the Town Hall there.

Q.—So that was the only one where you did not use the hotel? A.—I think that is the case.

Q.—Then on these visits you handed over your books to the enumerators and instructed them, didn't you? A.—No, I did not hand the books all over; they were a little late in coming and I got some books very near the time they had to start out, the first of April. In fact, I had to start out some parties, to take the books to them so—

Q.—Your account covers the period from March 23rd to the 4th of April: During that time all the books had been handed over? A.—Yes.

Q.—So that these visits I speak of were where you met the enumerators and engaged the room in the hotel were the times you instructed the enumerators? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you have charged in your bill the $1.00 paid on each occasion.? A.—Whatever I paid.

Q.—After you had handed these books over to the enumerators they did their work and brought them back for revision, I suppose? A.—We were instructed to visit them so as to see that they were doing their work. After they had been a couple of days at work we were to visit them, so we would be sure they were doing it right, and I had to catch them wherever I could drive to them. That was one of Kelly's meetings. They were doing their work a couple of days then and I went to see if they were doing it right, and if they were wrong I would set them right.

Q.—Your books were handed over and you went around and saw them singly? A.—I saw those in that municipality.

Q.—They finished the work eventually and then brought the books back to you? A.—Yes.

Q.—They brought the books back to you? A.—Yes, after they got through. I went to some and I got some to bring them to Belleville.

Q.—Then the work being all done you made up your bill, which is a very full bill, almost like a diary, amounting to $105.37.? A.—Yes.

Q.—It is very full, a regular diary? A.—Yes.

Q.—Supposed to give an account of all you did during that time, is it not? A.—Yes, that is, and I added a little after that to the $105 for certain reasons.

Q.—I see it was made up by you at home, in Belleville, I suppose, and it is supposed to be a full account of what you had done? A.—Yes, up to that time.

Q.—When you brought it to Ottawa you made some additions to it? A.—Yes.

Q.—And the first of these is "rent of halls" in these municipalities, $25. What rent of halls would you have? A.—Well, I was always—

Q.—Tell me any hall that you rented? A.—That was made up of different things.

Q.—I did not ask you how it was made up. Tell me any hall that you rented as Census Commissioner? A.—When I—

Q.—I do not want that. I do not want to suppress your answer, but tell me any hall you rented as a Census Commissioner. If you did not rent any say so? A.—I do not just know now, but—

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

security, and I never had any idea of using them until the outbreak of war rendered your return uncertain and the impossibility of securing anybody to remain in Rolff House called for some disposition of the property. Under the circumstances, I placed the deeds on record, and am nominally the owner of the property in question, but of course I consider myself bound as a man of honor to keep the matter open for a satisfactory adjustment if we can come to amicable terms."

"I confess I do not understand you," replied Claude. "I wish to state, with the utmost distinctness, that I signed no deeds by way of collateral security or for any other purpose, and that if any such deeds are in existence they are fraudulent. My instructions were explicit, and our understanding complete, that there was to be no mortgage, incumbrance or obligation whatever relating to Rolff House."

"Ah, my dear young friend," replied the lawyer, still maintaining his smiling and insinuating mien, "I was more than half suspicious at the time of our business arrangements that you did not fully understand all the details we entered into. You left all the arrangements pretty much in my hands, and expressed your willingness to be governed by my judgment—in fact, I thought you were far too careless of your interests. Of course, left to act almost entirely on my own judgment, I drew up such papers as I considered wise and necessary in the premises, and you signed them. I am quite confident you did not critically examine all the papers you signed. It is well, perhaps, for you to remember this fact, before proclaiming any papers that may be in existence fraudulent. It might be difficult for you to disprove your own signature."

"What I mean," replied Claude, "is that I expressly informed you that Rolff House was not to be included in any of the transactions, and you could not have mistaken me in the matter. If you took advantage of my confidence in you to disobey my instructions and deceive me in the nature of the papers drawn up, it places your conduct in an equally bad light. The fraud is not less for being a cunning instead of a bold one. Now, sir, I wish only to be informed if you claim to have deeds covering Rolff House and the adjoining estate?"

"I do, most certainly," replied the lawyer. "And I will add that they are regularly drawn, and duly signed and witnessed. Still, as said——"

"That is enough," replied Claude, flushing with indignation. "I do not feel able to-day to discuss this matter further. You will next hear from me, most probably, through my counsel."

"You mean war?" asked the lawyer.

"I do—if it is necessary to assert my rights."

"Before proceeding to extreme measures, it might be well to more fully understand your position," said the lawyer.

Claude did not reply. Making a low bow, he withdrew.

Lawyer Saybrook rubbed his hands in a self-satisfied manner as he turned to Ralph, and said:

"I fancy I bluffed him pretty neatly, Ralph."

"Yes, very nicely," drawled the son.

"We have got to fight this out, Ralph," continued the lawyer, "that is, unless we can intimidate the young fool and come to a satisfactory arrangement."

"Exactly," responded Ralph.

"He can't bother us much. I am satisfied of it," continued the lawyer; "still, his coming now is very awkward for us. I am particularly concerned on account of your relations with Rosa. I am afraid it will have a bad influence on the girl. Still, we must not give up the battle yet. Our case, I maintain, is not desperate."

"I should hope not," responded Ralph. "I am too much interested in the young lady to be willing to give her up. I would prefer to resort to the most extreme measures rather than give her up."

"So we will, Ralph, so we will," replied the father. "Leave that to me. The longest head is bound to win. We will see who has got it."

CHAPTER XXIX.

It was the third day after his arrival home before Claude made any effort to see Rosa. He well understood the nature of old farmer Bruyn's feelings toward him, as he had been fully informed of the situation in Rosa's letter and from old Carl's statements since his return.

Claude had arrived home in the evening, having come by stage to a neighboring town, and then, in his anxiety to reach home, taken to the saddle from there. He went at once to the humble domicile occupied by Carl Crum, and was heartily greeted by that worthy old fellow. After a good night's rest, he had spent the morning in hearing from old Carl a full account of all that had passed during his absence, and in the afternoon had come to lawyer Saybrook's office and had the interview detailed in the last chapter. It appears that he had not received the letter dispatched to him by Rosa and old Carl by the hands of the privateer sailor, but, becoming uneasy in regard to the plans of British invasions that were bruited in Europe, and resolved if possible to give his services to his country in her hour of need, he had taken passage for home in the manner and with the results before described.

Claude was exceedinly anxious to see Rosa, but very much perplexed how to gratify his wish without injury to his self-respect. He understood well enough that the old farmer would be decidedly opposed to his having any interview with her, and he felt scruples as to his right to use any influence to induce her to disobey her father's wishes in any way. But if "love laughs at locksmiths," it certainly has a way of overcoming lesser obstacles; and Claude soon resolved in his mind to send a note to Rosa by old Carl, asking her to meet him in the old wood, at their trysting place, at a certain hour, provided first that she secured the consent of her mother to the interview. In this way he felt that he had compromised with his conscience to a sufficient degree, and at the same time would secure his object, as he remembered that he had been a favorite with Mrs. Bruyn, and did not doubt that she would readily consent to the interview.

In response to his note, he received a tender and brief epistle from Rosa, telling him that her mother had consented to the interview, but only on condition that she accompanied her and was present. Claude could not well object to this arrangement, spite of his anxiety to meet Rosa alone and have a full explanation and understanding in regard to the obstacles that had been thrown into the pathway of their love.

A little before the hour he proceeded to the appointed place, and had not long to wait ere Rosa and her mother appeared. Claude's bearing was so courteous and sincere, that it at once dispelled any prejudice against him that might have been excited in Mrs. Bruyn's mind. And, withal, he looked so handsome, and his evident suffering condition so appealed to the sympathies of the good lady's womanly heart, that it was well for him that she had chosen to be present at the interview.

Claude first greeted Mrs. Bruyn, and then taking Rosa's hand pressed it to his lips. Not a word was said by either, but their eyes told the tale of mutual distress and longing during the months of their separation.

Claude's story was soon told.

"My early return," he said, "is no doubt a surprise. The war had hardly broken out, however, before I resolved to take the first opportunity to reach home. Mr. Saybrook had constantly assured me in his letters that there could be no outbreak of war, so I had not been led to anticipate it. But when I found that I was really shut out from my native land in her hour of peril, and when I came to think what changes might occur during the progress of the war, all interest in my studies deserted me, and I could think of nothing but the ways and means to return home. I left Dresden and went to Hamburg and other Dutch ports, but could find no vessels going to America. I then went to France, as I had heard that occasionally an American privateer would avoid the British blockade, and run into port for repairs. I went to Calais, and after waiting there until I was almost discouraged, I was gladdened one day by learning that a schooner had escaped the blockade and run into the harbor, and was probably an American vessel. I took a boat and went on board, and found, to my joy, that it was an American privateer. I at once offered the captain to ship with him as a common sailor, and, as I was an American, he took me at once. On our return I was hurt in an engagement with a British brig, which accounts for my weak condition. But I shall get well if—if——"

He hesitated, as if somewhat fearful to repeat the thought that had occurred to him; and Mrs. Bruyn quickly replied:

"I trust you will get well without any 'if,' Claude. You are young and of vigorous constitution, and a long and useful life should be yours."

"But, my dear Mrs. Bruyn, I would not care to live a moment if the dream of happiness I have cherished should be rudely destroyed. I think it needs no words to tell how truly Rosa and I love each other. No one else can ever fill her place in my heart. I am alone in the world, without kith or kin; my friends seem to turn to enemies; those whom I trusted with implicit faith have proven false and tried to rob me of my inheritance; and if, now, the one dream of happiness that I have cherished above all others is to be ruthlessly shattered, I shall regret that the wound a received on board the Harpy did not strike me dead at once."

The young man spoke with much emotion, and his evident suffering and pale, emaciated features, added to the apparent sincerity of his declaration.

"You are sure you speak honestly, Claude?" asked Mrs. Bruyn.

"As I live, I do," replied the young man, fervently.

"I do not question the truth of your statement," continued the good lady; "but perhaps it is well to have an explanation of a matter that I confess has influenced my opinions to a certain extent. Not many months ago, Mr. Saybrook exhibited a letter from you that seemed to indicate that you had formed connections in Europe that hardly render your present statement of your feelings toward Rosa sincere."

The young man colored, but it was with indignation more than embarrassment.

"Carl Crum has told me," he replied, "of the base use made of a mere phrase in a letter of mine, written in humorous reply to some of Mr. Saybrook's suggestions that I might have become involved in love affairs in Europe. I now see through his double-eyed duplicity, and villainy. It was his purpose not only to rob me of my property and of the only girl I have ever cared for, but to incite me to conduct that would destroy in my heart the pure love it cherished. Oh, weak as I am, if I had him here I would make him own his duplicity or take the consequences."

"Do nothing rash, Claude," pleaded Mrs. Bruyn. "Public opinion will come to your aid if you have been wronged. Rely first on the law for justice, and do nothing to prejudice your cause."

"And did you believe that I had so soon proved false and villainous, Rosa?" he asked, turning impetuously to the fair girl.

"No, indeed, Claude," replied Rosa, with a frank and kindly tone that indidid not doubt you for a moment, or believe there was anything in the letter that you could not readily explain. Mother can bear me witness in this. Yet where all was so dark and everything seemed conspiring against us, I could not explain your silence of your strange words even to my own mind, so I attempted no defence of you, but kept my belief in your good faith in my own heart."

Claude folded her impetuously to his heart.

"I knew it—I knew it," he exclaimed. "God bless you! The devotion of a lifetime will be too little reward for your faith in me, Rosa."

"Say no more, Claude," answered Mrs. Bruyn, quietly separating the lovers. "I believe in your fidelity and goodness, and see through Mr. Saybrook's evil plans. But much wrong has been done, and it may be hard to right it. It is not advisable to prolong this interview. If you wil receive a little advice from me, I will suggest a course that may lead to the evil that has been done being corrected."

"Oh, most gladly," replied the young man.

"Mr. Bruyn is deeply incensed at what he regards as your treachery and recklessness," continued the lady, "and it will be difficult to reverse his opinion. Indeed, he looks upon you as hopelessly fallen from good. But although I fear for the result, I am compelled to suggest that you go to him and endeavor to explain all that seems wrong to him in your conduct. He will not approve of your resuming your friendship with Rosa unless you disabuse his mind of the impression he has gained—no doubt chiefly through Mr. Saybrook's influence. It would be wrong for Rosa to disobey him, and hold communication with you clandestinely in anyway. I could not approve of such a course, and I cannot believe that she would so forget her duty. I have accompanied her here, because I thought it was necessary there should be an explanation that would perhaps prevent future trouble. So far as I am concerned, my dear Claude, I would willingly admit you to our home as the most welcome of guests and friends; but it is not my province to decide in this matter, and you will have to secure Mr. Bruyn's consent before again attempting to see or communicate with Rosa."

The young man's head dropped.

"This decision seems hard," he said. "I am fearful—but, no, I will do as you say. I am strong in my own sense of integrity; I may have been foolish, but criminal—never. I think all can be explained, and I will trust in Mr. Bruyn's justice and charity."

With this understanding the interview terminated. Claude was allowed to give Rosa a farewell kiss, and to whisper to her a pledge of his unalterable devotion, which was returned by a glance that assured him that she could be trusted to the uttermost and then he turned away his soul filled anew with indignation toward the author of his unhappiness.

He took early occasion to have an interview with Mr. Bruyn. The old farmer received him curtly, and only after the most earnest pleadings gave his consent to even hear his explanations. But this concession was of no benefit to the young man. The old fellow shut both his ears and his heart to his pleadings, and remained obdurate and unconvinced in spite of all the earnestness and eloquence with which Claude defended his conduct.

"No, no, no," he said at last, "I tell you young fellow, that I've made up my mind on this matter. You're none of the kind for my Rosa. She must marry a sensible, plain fellow, with no rattlebrain notions about him. You don't care for her, and she's made up her mind to some one else. It will only make trouble for you to go to sparking her again. I was a fool to allow it in the first place. Now, don't say anything more. I've had enough of it. You can never have her—let that end it. No is as good as a clubbing with me. If you can't take the first and stay away from here, you may get the second to help your understanding."

Thus insultingly rebuffed, Claude turned away, and returned to his temporary home at old Carl Crum's utterly disappointed and miserable, and meditating a dozen expedients in his mind to restore his relations with Rosa.

CHAPTER XXX.

Recognizing that he had a hard battle before him, Claude devoted himself heart and soul to the contest he had in hand. The thought of regaining his property, and taking revenge on the knavish lawyer, was some relief to his wounded feelings. There was balm in action, at least, and day and night he gave his time and thoughts to consultation with his lawyer and to details of the proposed suit. He did not rely alone on such legal talent as the little village afforded. He retained the services of an experienced and prominent lawyer from a neighboring town, who undertook to unravel the thread of villainy, which he was convinced from Claude's statements had been perpetrated by Anthony Saybrook.

The name of this lawyer was Halstead. He was a short, keen, cool man whose sharp gray eyes and broad brow indicated unusual mental acuteness. After a careful study of the situation, Mr. Halsted decided on his plan of campaign. He determined that it was necessary to undermine the enemy's defences by counter-plots, and, if possible, to create a defection in his camp that would lead to a revelation of the methods by which the forgery of the deeds had been accomplished. Choosing his agents with keen judgment, he sounded every person who had in any way been employed by lawyer Saybrook, and was not long in getting a hint that the widow Grewy would become a valuable witness if she was won over to their service. And this—alas for feminine constancy!—was not a difficult matter. Lawyer Halstead, it happened, was a bachelor of considerable wealth. Though verging close on to sixty, he was still well preserved, and of a gallant and vivacious disposition not unlikely to impress the fancy of a susceptible and lonely widow like Mrs. Grewy.

Interviews were arranged, in which, little by little, the confidence of Mrs. Grewy was gained, and step by step was learned from her every detail of the plot for the possession of Rolff House, which her sharp ears and eyes had enabled her to obtain, in spite of the secrecy with which the lawyer and his son supposed they had conducted their conferences.

The first intimation that lawyer Saybrook had of the mine that had

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer Complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

For coughs, colds, bronchitis and all lung and throat troubles, there is no preparation of medicine can compare with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It never fails to afford prompt and permanent relief. It removes all soreness, and heals the diseased parts. It immediately soothes the most troublesome cough, and by, promoting expectoration, removes the mucus which stops up the air tubes which causes difficulty in breathing, thereby gives relief to that depressing tightness experienced in the chest. Public speakers and singers will find Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup of inestimable value, as it speedily and effectually allays all irritation, and huskiness in the throat and bronchial tubes, and gives power to the vocal cords, rendering the voice clear and sonorous. If parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves from much anxiety, trouble and expense, let them procure a bottle of "Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup," and whenever a child has taken cold, has a cough or hoarseness, give the Syrup according to directions.

To Those of Sedentary Occupation.—Men who follow sedentary occupations, which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver and kidneys than those who lead active, outdoor lives. The former will find in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills a restorative without question the most efficacious on the market. They are easily procurable, easily taken, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap considering their excellence.

A Sure Cure for Headaches. — Bilious headache, to which women are more subject than men, becomes so acute in some subjects that they are utterly prostrated. The stomach refuses food, and there is a constant and distressing effort to free the stomach from bile which has become unduly secreted there. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a speedy alterative, and in neutralising the effects of the intruding bile relieves the pressure on the nerves which cause the headache. Try them.

UNTOLD MISERY — WHAT A WELL-KNOWN COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER SUFFERED, AND HOW HE WAS CURED.—Gentlemen, About five years ago I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time travelling for Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine and when the third bottle was finished, I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of Dyspepsia.

How to Make Cloth Waterproof.

Ordinary cloth may be made waterproof by the following treatment: Put half a pound of sugar of lead and half a pound of alum in a pail of soft water. Stir this at intervals until it becomes clear. Then pour it off into another pail, put the cloth or garment into it and let it stand an entire day, twenty-four hours. Then hang up to dry without wringing. Garments treated thus, it is said, can be worn in the wildest storm of wind and rain without the wearer getting even damp. The rain hangs in globules upon the cloth, and cloth that is waterproof is better and more healthy than rubber goods.

The Spittle Fly.

The spittle fly is an insect which encompasses itself in a white froth composed of the juice it has sucked out of the plant on which it is bred. It seriously injures pinks, carnations and picotees if not checked in the early stages of its progress. It is very tender when young, but develops into a hard skinned hopper. It can be pinched and rubbed off with the fingers, or a good syringing with something bitter, like a concoction of quassia chips, will drive the creatures away.—London Times.

Russia Gets Corean Concession.

Seoul, Corea, Aug. 7.—An agreement has probably been concluded between Russia and Corea, whereby Russia acquires 200 acres of land at Yonghampo and the Yalu River on a 99-year lease. The application of M. Pavloff, the Russian Minister, for permission to erect a telegraph and telephone line to Yonghampo has been refused. The extension to the northward of the Seoul-Wiju Railway is progressing.

Many Killed and Wounded.

Kieff, Aug. 7.—The strike in the railway and private workshops continue. An attempt by the strikers to interfere with railroad traffic led to a serious riot, the strikers refusing to disperse. They were fired upon by Cossacks, who subsequently charged, killing and wounding many.

Queen Draga's Last Letter.

The Neues Wiener Journal publishes the text of the last letter written by Queen Draga of Servia, this letter having been penned on the evening of her assassination and bearing that date. The letter is addressed to an intimate friend of the Queen, who received it simultaneously with the news of the writer's death. Following is an exact translation of the letter:—

". . . . . I love Sacha (the King) with infinite tenderness, but I shall not hesitate to sacrifice myself and separate from this good and faithful soul. I know that I am hated and that the absence of a child, of an heir, increases the dangers which threaten us. If the King becomes reconciled with the extreme Radicals it may be that a second Queen of Servia shall follow the first into exile. I am haunted by dark presentiments; often during the night I recall the horrible picture of dying Michael, who extends his bloody hands toward his assassins, begging them: 'Ne mot je, bratscha, dosta' (Stop, my brothers, it is enough!) Sacha alone and in the midst of all our troubles is in good humor. This is largely due to his unshakable faith in the Obrenovitch star. I hope that his presentiments may be justified."

This is not the complete text of the letter, but the remainder of it bears no relation to the tragedy enacted at Belgrade a few hours after it was written.

A Sad Mistake.

"My dear," said the stork, emphatically, "I never was so embarrassed in my life as I was to-day. I made a fearful blunder, fearful."

"Indeed?" chirped the swallow, eagerly. "What was it, my dear?"

"Why, you know I am now filling my next year's engagement book," explained the stork, disconsolately, "and in making my round of calls I chanced into a suite of rooms in one of these monstrous apartment houses, as I think they are called. They were charming rooms, and the young woman I found there was no less charming. Of course, I knew she must be a bride right off, so I explained who I was and the purpose for which I'd called. She didn't blush nor seem at all confused or bashful, as so many of my clients do at first, and I was just congratulating myself on having secured a really sensible woman for my list, when she shook her head and said she really didn't have any use for my services.

"'Oh, but think, my dear,' I urged, for I wasn't going to let her slip if I could help it, 'how sweet and charming and lovely a dear little baby is.'

"'Yes, they are nice,' she replied, with what I thought was almost criminal indifference, 'but you must not bring one here. I positively cannot allow it.'

"'Oh, but you must have one at least,' I insisted, hoping that all she needed after all was a little persuasion. 'Don't you know how much more all your friends and relatives will think of you if you have one?'

"'I hardly believe they would enjoy it as much as you think; though I understand some of them have prophesied pretty much that,' she said, with a queer kind of smile.

"'And your husband, too,' I went on, like a fool. 'Where he loves you now he would worship and adore you then.'

"'But I haven't any,' she said, and actually laughed in my face.

"'What?' I almost shrieked, glancing curiously around the rooms.

"'Oh, yes,' she said, dryly, 'these are my rooms, but I am a bachelor maid.'

"My dear," concluded the stork, pathetically, "I blushed so hard I must have looked like a flamingo. And I do wish these modern girls wouldn't be so independent; I'm afraid now to call at any strange place for fear of repeating the blunder."—"Town Topics."

Lady of the House—Rosa, who is that dragoon you had in here yesterday?

Servant—Ach; that was my sweetheart, but I sha'n't have anything more to do with him, because he is always making remarks about everybody. Only yesterday he said: "Rosa, your mistress is the handsomest lady I ever saw." What business has he to talk about you in that fashion?

Lady—Still, he seemed a very decent sort of man, and I do not see why you should jilt him.—"Pick-Me-Up."

MR. POOLY'S GOVERNESS.

A SCORE or more of men and youths, rough-clad and unshaven, booted and spurred, most of them in cowboy fashion, were assembled on the platform of a Western railway station. In the center of the group a large man with red, shaggy face and good-natured blue eyes was expounding to the others an important matter.

"I tell you fellers emphatically," he said, slapping his leather leggin vigorously, "I ain't takin' no contract to furnish the whole county with wives. Yeh better jest import a carload an' be done with it, 'stead o' scramblin' over every young woman that comes in sight."

"Look here, Cal Pooly, yeh ought to be ashamed, bein' so narrow-minded and selfish," expostulated a tall, lank man with a thin, pale whisker. "If yeh wuz the right kind of a public-spirited citizen ye'd be glad to do what yeh can to civilize and populate the county. Course we'll marry 'em, every one of 'em, jest as fast as we can."

"Yes, and I'll bet a horse, Ted Sanders, you'll be over 'fore breakfast tomorrow spyin' round to see what this'n looks like," said the big man, with a sparkle in his small eyes. "But doggone my times! Yeh better stay away. I swear I'll git an injunction on you fellers, and not let yeh come on the place."

The whistle of the approaching engine interrupted this colloquy, and the men scattered in a line along the platform watching with curious faces. Mr. Pooly stood a little in the rear, inwardly chuckling at a seasonable joke which he felt was about to be perpetrated on the boys. As the train came to a stand, puffing and hissing, a single person descended and stood confronting the staring spectaters. Looks of anger, disgust, pain and resentment passed from man to man, looks that said plainly and despairingly, "Is that her? Do you think thet's her? Good Gawd!"

The person who was being thus unfavorably received stood for some time looking from one observer to another; then her face reddened angrily.

"Well, what are you staring at?" She fired the question point-blank into their faces and put them quickly to rout. "Don't you like my looks? Well, it's not costing you anything to see me, and if you're not pleased you can move on."

They moved away from her in alarm and huddled helplessly on one corner of the platform, swearing deep oaths of vengeance against Pooly, and keeping their eyes fixed in a sort of fascination on the stranger.

"Where's that man Fooly, or Pooly, or whatever his name is?" asked the apparition, approaching the group of men.

Pooly was at that moment behind the depot jumping up and down and hugging himself in an ecstasy of joy. But at mention of his name he came forward soberly enough to greet the newcomer.

"Good-mornin', ma'am," he said, with hearty politeness. "I'm Pooly, and I reckon you're Miss—Miss——"

"Miss Virginia Quigley, from Tennessee, Giles County, Pulaski Postoffice."

"Glad to see yeh, Miss Quigley. Fine day."

"I hadn't noticed anything remarkable about the day," she answered curtly. "Here's my check. You better get my trunk and let us be going. Where do you live?"

"Yes'm, ten mile out, ma'am, south," responded Pooly. "Wagin's round behind there. Jest climb in, and I'll have the trunk out in a hurry."

In the privacy of the baggage-room Mr. Pooly indulged himself with another brief period of jubilation, side shaking and thigh slapping. Then, pulling the trunk out, he heaved it into the wagon.

"Here, we are, ma'am. Everything ready? All right, off we go." And cracking the whip, he set the team of mules going at a gallop.

As they drove past the saloon many faces peered at them, muttering soundless imprecations, and many fists were raised in indignation. Pooly succeeded in giving the men in return a sly, triumphant wink on the side of his face that was away from his formidable companion.

"Who were those ill-mannered fellows?" she asked.

"Who? Them at the depot? Oh, I don't know; some of the boys, I reckon. They're always there, 'specially if they think a woman's comin'."

"They didn't seem to be highly pleased," she said, smiling grimly.

"Why, mebbe not," answered Pooly, with bluff frankness. "No, I guess yeh did strike 'em purty hard." He laughed loudly at the recollection. "Lord! Lord! but I reckon yeh did hit 'em hard enough!"

She turned to him a face fiery with anger. "I wasn't aware, sir, that there was anything so extraordinary about my looks," she said.

"No'm, oh, no'm!" Mr. Pooly hastened to explain. "Nothin' so very extraordinary, only, yeh see, they wuz lookin' fer somp'n different. I told 'em I had another governess comin' to-day. You're the fourth one inside of a year. The others didn't turn out well."

"Couldn't give satisfaction?"

"That wuz jest the trouble—they give too much satisfaction. Yeh see, they's about a hundred men in the county, and only half of 'em married, and no women loose, so whenever one comes the boys jest flock after her. An' these others that I brought out from East wuz young and peart and good-looking, an' the boys wouldn't give 'em no peace. They married, every one of 'em, 'fore they'd been here a month."

"Huh!" ejaculated Miss Quigley in extreme disgust.

"Yes'm, that's what I said," continued Pooly. "I got mighty tired of it, an' when the third one married, I wrote East an' told 'em to send on another, but doggone it all, not to be sending one that 'ud up an' marry on me inside of a month, but to find one that wuz so blamed ugly no self-respectin' white man could stand to look at her."

"And they sent me!" said Miss Quigley, with spiteful emphasis on the pronoun.

"Eggzactly! They sent you," said Pooly, looking at her with the admiration that a man must always bestow on a perfect type. "An' I guess you'll do. I don't hardly think you'll be takin' up with any of the boys right away."

"Huh! I guess not!" responded Miss Quigley in contempt. "If I had wanted to marry I needn't have come so far. There are plenty of men in Giles County, and better-looking and better-mannered men than any I've seen here. How many children have you?" she asked, changing the subject abruptly.

"Four, ma'am, all boys—oldest thirteen and youngest five," Mr. Pooly explained. "They're gittin' purty wild, too—jest like young colts that been runnin' on the range, with nobody much to look after 'em. Wife died three year ago, an' I ben kind o' bringin' 'em up by hand since, jest like tryin' to raise a calf on a bottle. But they're gittin' big enough now to be sassy, and need a woman to look after 'em; but it seems like I have the hardest luck keepin' a teacher fer 'em. Their aunt, my sister, is there, but, Lord! what can she do? They run right over her. I guess them four boys'll keep yeh interested so yeh won't git lonesome."

As the wagon drove up before the ranch house and stopped, Miss Quigley sprang down without waiting to be assisted. The four young Poolys dashed out with wild whoops to greet her, but stopped short, shocked into speechless silence and stood with mouths agape as they saw what manner of woman she was. The youngest, out of sheer childish sympathy, set up a frantic wailing and ran back into the house. Mr. Pooly laughed immoderately at the effect produced by the prospective governess, and called loudly to the weeping youngster:

"Here, Ben, what's the matter with yeh? Yeh ain't goin' to be a baby, air yeh? Come along and see the lady; she won't bite yeh."

The aggrieved Bennie came sullenly, rubbing his fists deep into his eyes. The woman stooped down and in a voice altogether different from the one she had hurled at the impertinent gazers at the station, soothed the child till his resentment was so far modified that he allowed her to lead him into the house. The other boys followed at a safe distance, whispering to each other: "I say, Jim, did yeh see her nose? Did yeh see her nose!" "An' her spectacles, Bob? I bet yeh don't pull her hair and play tricks on her like yeh did the other one."

It became evident before many hours that the new governess, whatever might be her superficial defects, had an effective way about her. She had had no previous experience of the domestic economy of a ranch house; but with a few quick, comprehensive glances she took in the whole situation. Her position was school mistress to the four boys, but she took a large view of her functions. Mrs. Reed, the widowed sister of Mr. Pooly, who was the nominal head of the household, was a thin, colorless creature, who let the boys and the Mexican servants do about as they pleased. She was quite willing to have some stronger will assume the responsibility of management. So the new governess, with the approval of everybody whose approval was necessary, set to work to institute a domestic revolution in the household of Pooly.

Before night she came to the inevitable issue with the juvenile Poolys. She took Jim first, he being the largest. The conflict for a few minutes was fierce and noisy; but when it was finished the wild colt was broken; she had only to look at him after that to have quick and cheerful obedience. The senior Pooly from a safe distance watched the conflict, with various dramatic gesticulations and inward guffaws expressive of satisfaction.

The following day several of the men who had witnessed the arrival of Miss Quigley rode out to the ranch. Pooly went out to the gate to meet them with boisterous good will.

"Hello, boys! Git down an' come in," he said, then added in a stage whisper, with expressive grimaces: "She's in there, right in there! Walk right in an' see her. She noticed yeh yesterday, an' has been wishin' she might see yeh again."

"Say, Cal, we want a-know what yeh got agin us," said Ted Sanders in a tired, aggrieved voice. "We ain't never done nothin' to yeh, have we? We ain't killed yer sheep, or run off yer cattle, an' what in thunder yeh want a-treat us like this fer. Why, man"—he leaned from his horse and spoke in regretful tones—"the creek down there's already dryin' up; the' won't be a foot o' water in the county inside of a week, and the grass is all dyin'. What yeh want to do us like this fer? We wouldn't mind her bein' old and ugly and havin' a voice like a sawmill, but that nose! that nose!"

Pooly leaned on the gate in a convulsion of laughter. "Oh, yes, her nose! her nose! Git down, boys, an' walk right in," he urged. "She's waitin' fer yeh. I say it's dog mean of yeh to come an' take every one I get, but I reckon I'll have to stand it fer the good o' the community. Which one'll go first? You, Ted, you're the smoothest-tongued."

The melancholy Mr. Sanders looked at Pooly without a smile. "Don't, pardner, don't," he said, "you hurt our feelin's. Don't make us yer enemies fer life. Box her up an' ship her away to-night; we'll pay the expenses."

At this moment the subject of their lamentations appeared at the door and stood frowning at the six cavaliers. They looked at each other in alarm, then, taking up their bridle reins, rode away. Pooly followed them, calling loudly:

"Say, boys, don't rush off like this in the heat of the day. Stay an' take dinner. Can't? Well, come over often, be glad to see yeh any time."

The men called back to him with sundry threatening motions, "Sack it up, Cal," "Stave it off." "Try cold buttermilk," and "Cornbread an' molasses makes a good poultice."

Before the rule of Miss Virginia Quigley was a month old order and thrift had been introduced into the Pooly household. Every room and the verandas and yards were tidy. The meals were served on time by servants who moved deftly and with the precision of clockwork. The children went to their lessons without murmuring, and no longer, when they were free, made a playhouse of every room. The tired Mrs. Reed rejoiced with many satisfied sighs, and Mr. Pooly thought what he thought, and said nothing. Then occurred an affair which might well have changed the even course of events.

Mr. Pooly had for some time suspected that some of his herders were stealing his sheep, and one evening he discharged four of them. The worst one of them was Pedro Nunes, an ugly cutthroat greaser, easily capable of making trouble. The following morning Mr. Pooly posted off to town to find men to take the places of those discharged. About noon, while he was gone, the Mexican servant girl Nana came into the house crying violently.

"What's the matter, Nana?" asked Miss Quigley, sharply. "What's hurt you? Speak out, now. What is it?"

"Oh, him, Pedro! Him mek trouble!" wailed the girl many times. And in spite of pleading and scolding she was either unable or unwilling to say more.

A little later the boy Jim came running in from the lower pens with scared face, saying that Pedro and three other Mexicans were shooting the sheep. "An' they say 'at they're comin' up here an' set the barns on fire an' scare us and run off, 'cause I heard 'em," explained the boy, in great excitement.

Miss Quigley, with the masterly decision of a general, took things immediately in hand. She put the children with Mrs. Reed and the two Mexican women into one room and told them to stay there. Then she took her stand at the door to await developments.

Pretty soon the four Mexicans rode up, yelling furiously. They dismounted and came toward the house, evidently bent on mischief. Pedro had a Winchester and began shooting at the chickens. Fortunately, he was half drunk, so that most of his shots went wild; but his conduct set Miss Quigley wild with anger. She strode out boldly and confronted the drunken greasers.

"Here, you hombres, what do you mean? What do you mean, I say!" she stormed. "I'll teach you to come round here scaring women and children. Gi'me that gun."

The Mexicans huddled together like frightened sheep, not knowing what to do. Pedro had raised the gun, pointing it at the irate woman.

"Put down that gun!" she cried, in feminine fury. "Put it down, I say, quick!"

And as he lowered it she ran up and, seizing the end of it, jerked it from his unresisting hands. Then, menacing them with the gun, she scolded and rebuked and threatened until they were thoroughly cowed. They understood little of what she said, but the vigor of her speech gave it all the power of the most virile masculine profanity. They tried to slip away to their horses and escape, but she stood before them with the gun at ready, and her finger on the trigger.

"No, you don't get away," she said. "Do you see that bench yonder?" She pointed to the front veranda where was a long wooden bench. "Go in there and sit down, every one of you. Sabe? I say go and sit down on that bench!"

She put the end of the gun against Pedro and gave him a push toward the house. Meekly as lambs they went in and sat down as she commanded.

"Jimmie," she called then to the boy inside, "saddle your horse and go for your pa. Hurry, now, and tell him to bring the sheriff. Jail is the place for such outlaws as these." And while the boy went as directed she sat down to guard her prisoners.

Mr. Pooly told afterward with a great relish the story of Miss Quigley's victory. "Yeh see, when we got there," he said, "there wuz them four greasers sittin' humble as yeh please on the front porch, and her settin' in a cheer in front of 'em with the gun in her hands guardin' 'em. Her nose wuz red and her eyes still poppin'. An' dog my cats if everyone o' them Mexicans wasn't lollin' back with their mouths open like they wuz tired to death, fer she'd been lashin' 'em with that long tongue o' hers fer three mortal hours, so they wuz damned glad to see the sheriff come, an' went along same as if they wuz goin' to feed."

This adventure served to confirm Mr. Pooly in a determination that had been slowly forcing itself on him for some time. The following day, when Miss Quigley had finished with the four small Poolys and sent them scampering away to play, the lord of the manor, coatless, and booted and spurred, lumbered into the room set apart for school purposes.

"Good-mornin'," he said in a robust voice, for once thinking to take off his hat. "How's the schoolma'am after the fracas? Feelin' peart and healthy, is she?"

Miss Quigley's unprepossessing features relaxed to a half smile, indicative of serenity and confidence. Mr. Pooly continued, fingering his hat nervously:

"I want to speak to you on a matter. I've about decided that I won't need a governess any longer." He planted himself aggressively in front of her with legs a-sprawl and looked at her with twinkling eyes. Her face reddened quickly.

"Very well, sir," she answered, "if my work is not satisfactory or my services are no longer needed, I am quite ready to go."

"No, I've decided that the governess business is a failure," he went on in a voice that might well have disturbed the sheep grazing on the distant meadows. "They're all alike. The best of 'em don't last more'n a month. Now when I got you, I thought mebbe——"

"Thought I was so ugly none of the men would look at me, did you?" cried Miss Quigley, standing up and confronting him angrily. "Thought my nose would scare them off. Thought my face would curdle their blood, did you?"

Mr. Pooly backed away from her in alarm, his eyes still twinkling mirthfully. "Somp'n like that, ma'am," he replied. "An' I can't say 'at the boys have been quite so anxious as before. No, somehow they haven't been round much lately. But 'tain't goin' to be so any longer. Since what yeh done yesterday with them greasers the' ain't goin' to be no keepin' the boys away. Looks don't count much with them when a woman's got grit like that."

"So you think I had better go before the harm's done," said Miss Quigley, recovering her composure. "Very well, I can be ready in half an hour."

"Hold on now, don't git huffy," admonished Mr. Pooly, in tones that were intended to be mollifying. "I ain't said nothin' about goin'. I jest say the governess business has played out, an' we got to try somp'n else." He planted himself firmly before her, and cramming his big hat down on the back of his head, collected his strength for a great effort. "I say, Virginia," he vociferated in tones that reverberated through the whole house, "le's you an' me git married!"

Miss Quigley collapsed utterly at this startling adjuration. "Hush! don't talk so loud, everybody'll hear!" she cried, shaking her hands at him frantically; whereupon Mr. Pooly continued in a tragic whisper:

"That's what I mean, jest what I say. I don't look like a fool, do I? I don't look like a man what 'ud let a good thing slip through his fingers without tryin' to grab it? Well, look at me. Here I am a lone man with four children to bring up, an' knowin' no more about it than a rooster does 'bout raisin' a gang o' chickens. Kids runnin' wild; house goin' to rack, an' everything in a devil of a fix. Then here you come; look things over, take holt an' go to work. In two days the kids is broke, house set to rights, and everybody knows what's what. You don't think I'm goin' to let a thing like that go, do you? Well, I ain't, an' that's jest what I'm sayin' now. I don't need no governess, I need a housekeeper, an' one 'at will be permanent, an' the' won't be no danger o' some other feller comin' along an' takin' her away jest when she is gittin' useful. Understand? Hey? How does it strike yeh?"

"But I'm so ugly, you know, that no self-respecting white man can stand to look at me!" declared the lady, her eyes flashing again.

"I know—I know 'bout that," responded Pooly, turning red to the edges of his shaggy beard. "An' I ain't sayin' yeh would take any prizes in a beauty contest. But looks ain't everything by a long sight. An' I ain't such a handsome looker myself. So come now, no hard feelin's; what d'ye say? I got to go to town this mornin', an' if yeh say so, I'll jest put on my coat, an' while we're down there we'll git hitched. What d'ye say?"

Miss Quigley said nothing, but her silence must have been quite satisfactory, for Mr. Pooly blustered noisily out of the room, stopping at the door to call back to her:

"All right, rush along now an' primp yehself up a little, an' I'll have the buggy at the front gate in half an hour. An' say, bring my coat along out, will yeh?—so we won't lose no time."—"Ainslee's."

EVERYBODY SHOULD TAKE A VACATION.

Whether it be for a few days or a few weeks, the change of occupation, the peaceful quiet rest in the woods, or a trip through the charming lakes and rivers of "the Highlands of Ontario," breathing in the pure air, impregnated with the odor of the balsam and pines, will not only do you and your family good, but will make you of more benefit to your employer. Think of this and call on U. E. Thompson, C. P. & T. A. or T. H. Coppin, station agent, Grand Trunk Railway. j28toa8

Anecdotal.

While preaching from the text: "He giveth his beloved sleep," a minister stopped in the middle of his sermon, gazed upon his dozing auditors, and said: "Brethren, it is hard to realize the wondrous unbounded love the Lord appears to have for a good portion of this congregation."

The "Green Bag" tells of a lawyer who was about to furnish a bill of costs. "I hope," said his client, who was a baker, "that you will make it as light as possible." "Ah," said the lawyer, "you might perhaps say that to the foreman of your establishment, but that is not the way I make my bread!"

While James McNeill Whistler, the eccentric American painter, was in a London shop one day a customer rushed in, and, mistaking Mr. Whistler for a clerk, exclaimed: "I say, this hat doesn't fit." The artist eyed him for a minute, and then replied, scornfully: "Neither does your coat, and I'll be hanged if I like the color of your trousers."

An attorney named Else, rather diminutive in his stature, and not particularly respectable in his character, once met Jekyll. "Sir," said he, "I hear you have called me a pettifogging scoundrel. Have you done so, sir?" "Sir," said Jekyll, with a look of contempt, "I never said you were a pettifogger, or a scoundrel, but I said you were 'little Else.'"

When Bishop Potter was asked, the other day, what he thought of woman suffrage he made the diplomatic reply: "My dear madam, I have gotten away beyond that; I am trying to make the best terms with the sex that I can obtain." This brings to mind the mot of William M. Evarts when asked by a lady if he did not think that woman was the best judge of woman. He replied: "Not only the best judge, madam, but the best executioner."

"S. Paul" is the name above a chemist's shop in a London suburb. It arrested the attention of a convivial gentleman returning home in the small hours, and he rang the bell vigorously. The chemist's head appeared above. "What is it?" he called out. "Want speak t' you ver' pert'clar," said the convivial one. "What is it; d' you want some medicine?" "Want speak t' you ver' pert'clar." The chemist hastily dressed, came down, and opening the door exclaimed impatiently, "Well now, what is it?" "I want know—did you ever get answer to that terr—terr'ble long epistle you wrote to Thes'lonians?"

J. Pierpont Morgan makes his boast that he never has been interviewed, and declares that in the last seven years but one interviewer ever has been able to approach him. This was on a recent trip to Europe, when a representative of the London "Times" would not take "No" for his answer. "Tell the 'Times' man my time is worth ten pounds a minute," at last said Morgan. "The 'Times' man says he'll take two minutes at that," came back the reply. The interviewer handed Mr. Morgan twenty pounds, talked just two minutes by both their watches, did all the talking himself, and rose to go on the instant. "Why did you want to see me?" Morgan asked in curiosity. "Oh, I wagered one hundred pounds that I would interview you personally, that's all," was his reply. Morgan congratulated him on his enterprise, and dismissed him within the third minute of his call. When asked, the other day, if he kept the twenty pounds, Morgan said: "Yes, and I haven't earned money in a long time that gave me the satisfaction that twenty pounds did."

Lincoln, even as a young man, was always ready and resourceful on the platform. In the new book, Lincoln in Story, it is related that in 1836 Lincoln made a telling speech in an election campaign for the State Legislature of Illinois. George Forquer, an old and respected citizen, who had changed his party, and almost simultaneously had been appointed to a fat office by his new friends, was present. Just at this time Mr. Forquer had completed the finest house in Springfield and over it erected a lightning-rod, the first in that region. At the conclusion of Lincoln's speech, Forquer took it upon himself to reply, commencing thus: "This young man will have to be taken down, and I am sorry the task devolves upon me." He then proceeded to answer Lincoln's argument in an able and fair but patronizing manner. At length Forquer ended and Lincoln had the floor to reply. "The gentleman has seen fit," said he, "to allude to my being a young man, but he forgets that I am older in years than in the tricks and trades of politicians. I desire long life and I desire place and distinction, but I would rather die now than, like the gentleman, live to see the day that I would change my politics for an office worth $3,000 a year and then feel compelled to erect a lightning-rod to protect a guilty conscience from an offended God."

Hard Luck in the West.

The cowboy sat down on the ground, fingered a roll of bills and looked sadly at his pard.

"Bill," he said, "it's no use. I can't go to town with you to-day."

"Why?" asked Bill.

"I've only got $25 to my name."

"Figger it up ag'in," said Bill.

"No use. I've figgered it up a dozen times, and it always comes out the same. It'll take $20 fer the drunk, dollar an' a half fer bed an' breakfast, three an' a half fer ca'tridges, an' that won't leave a cussed cent to pay the fine."—Indianapolis "Sun."

Ouida in Her Old Age.

Ouida, as Mlle. De La Ramee prefers to call herself, is now an elderly lady, but she still affects the white muslin frocks and pale blue ribbons of a bygone era. She is the autocratic queen of a large circle of admirers at Florence, where she has an ideal home, and an extraordinary collection of dogs. Ouida does not like England or English life and food, and not infrequently at London dinner-tables has asked for cold roast beef and beer, that being the level, she says, on which she places English cookery.

"I thought you were given a job in the public service because of the work you did for the party." "I was, but I quit." "Why?" "Why! Why, hang it all; they're getting so blamed particular now that they want a fellow to work for his salary."—Chicago "Post."

STOCK REDUCING PRICES.

Bargain giving is at its height in every department of our big store.

To accommodate such, stock reductions will be neccessary everywhere—goods must go.

A visit will convince you that we are putting forth our best effort to have our shelving as clear as possible.

If low prices are a factor in selling, desirable goods such as we now offer—many at 50 per cent. discount—should leave us quickly.

Dont think because your present wants are supplied that you will not be interested.

Much of our wash goods offered at half price is of staple design — as good next season as this.

The neccessity for room making this great reduction, even in such desireable goods.

A few moments spent here will reveal the bargains to you, if you are not convinced as to there economical advantages—do not buy.

MEN'S FURNISHING NOTES.

To the man or boy with a summer outing in view the many little vacation helps our furnishings department has to offer, at reasonable prices, should be appreciated.

Our object in this department—as all others—is obtaining and selling satisfying goods at satisfying prices.

The rapid increase of sales convince us that our efforts are appreciated.

Here are a few of the vacation "helps."

BATHING SUITS.

A vacation without some time spent on or near the water is hardly a vacation in the truest sense of the word.

You will likely need a bathing suit of some kind.

Best get it now while you think as in the hurry of your departure you are likely to forget about it.

Every desirable style and quality awaits your choosing.

—Boys' Trunks with elastic tops, ...15c and 20c

—Men's and Boys' fine plain navy or colored stripe bathing suits, open in front or on shoulders, fine jersey knit.................50c

BATH ROBES.

We sell quite a number of bath robes during a season. We are confident we would sell a great many more did men appreciate their usefulness.

Any man who has used one would not be without for double the cost.

We have now in stock a line of desirable garments which offer a range of prices, affordable by every man. Ask to see them.

—Men's Fine Turkish Crash Bath Robes with fancy colored stripes—quiet designs, a range of prices, from.............$2.75 to $6.50

—Ask to see the new Shamrock tie 50c

SCRIVEN'S UNDERWEAR.

Proper underwear is one of the best helps to perfect health obtainable.

Our furnishing department contains every desirable make at lowest cash prices—all guaranteed to give satisfaction. Could we say more?

We especially mention Scriven's Elastic Seam Drawer, for which we are sole agents.

This make gives or adjusts the drawer to the legs and hips—and takes up what would remain slack in the ordinary drawer.

We can strongly recommend it to all and especially those who break their underwear.

This gives to every movement no matter how sharp.

—Scriven's Improved Elastic knit drawers, ...$1.25

EARLY ARRIVALS.

We mention a few early arrivals below, which prompt purchasing enabled us to obtain before the recent general advance in prices.

Just foretastes of what our fall showing will have to interest you—hence worthy of note.

A few of our Fall Suits have arrived, which although but a particle of what we will have, will give the ladies some idea of what is newest for the coming season. See these in Mantle Room.

FLANNELETTE BLANKETS

We have received a consignment of flannelette blankets which are worthy of attention from housekeepers.

Before the recent advance we made a large purchase in these. This will bring the same reliable qualities at the same small prices as usual to our customers while they last.

—Fine Grey or white flannelette blankets in 11-4 and 12-4, 3 qualities, Light, medium and heavy.

—Fine bed pillows of heavy ticking, filled with fine Geese feathers, 20" × 26", each.....................$1.50

HOMESPUNS

The first arrivals in our Dress Goods department—Homespuns.

These are in weights suitable for walking and bicycle skirts.

For which purpose there is nothing that will give more general wear and satisfaction.

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

Quick & Robertson's for Fine Clothes

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard--built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

MEN'S SUMMER FURNISHINGS

Band Concert.

The attendance at the band concert last evening was exceptionally large. It was a delightful spot to spend the evening after the sultry day. As night wore on it became so cool that a large number left the park before the programme was completed. The band played well and everybody appeared to be pleased.

WEARY BRAIN WORKERS.

Fagged out, ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snap's gone! The buoyancy that made work a pleasure—that's gone too. The doctor would tell you that you are run down, not eating enough nor digesting enough. Your stomach needs aid, your digestion needs a bracer too. Your blood requires phosphorus and iron that it may be formed readily. Now Ferrozone is a wonderful nerve bracer and blood maker. It's food for the blood and nerves, it will make you strong quickly and permanently. Sold by all druggists.

Laid to Rest.

The funeral yesterday afternoon of the late Mr. Benjamin Weese, of Ameliasburg, was one of the largest seen in the township for some time. It was under the auspices of the Orange Order and a large number of the members were in attendance. Bro. Alexander Anderson, W.M. of the lodge, was master of ceremonies. At the family residence services were conducted by the Rev. R. M. Pope, and at Albury Church Rev. B. F. Byers, of Consecon, conducted services and preached an appropriate sermon. The bearers were members of the Ameliasburg Orange Lodge.

DRUGGING WILL NOT CURE CATARRH.

This loathsome disease is caused by germs that invade the air passages of the head, throat and lungs, and can be cured only by inhalation of medicated air. Stomach medicines, atomizers, snuffs are ineffectual, because they fail to reach the cause of the trouble. Catarrhozone is successful, because it is inhaled to every part of the breathing organs, and has power to kill the germ, heals the inflamed tissues and prevents droppings in the throat. Catarrhozone treats more than one thousand square feet of the mucous surfaces with every breath taken through the inhaler and affords instant relief. It perfectly cures catarrh, asthma and bronchitis. Sold by druggists. Two months' treatment, price $1. Small size 25 cents, or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

In the Justice Shop.

Wheels on the Walk.

Two young men who were caught riding their bicycles on the sidewalk, acknowledged the offence and were each fined $2.

Drunks.

Walter Whalen and John Gibson, who resides on Bleecker Avenue, were each fined $2 for being intoxicated.

Sidney Man Dead.

Mr John Jeffrey, a well known yeoman residing at Bayside, in the township of Sidney, died yesterday. Deceased was a man well advanced in years and was highly respected. A widow, one daughter and son survive.

BIRTH.

VALLANCE—On August 6th, to Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Vallance, Commercial street, a daughter.

"THE EVILS OF [illegible] STOCK SPECULATION."

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—The immense amount of tommy-rot which has recently gone the rounds of the press and been exploited from the rostrum, under the above or some similar caption, is certainly enough to make the judicious grieve; first at the crass ignorance displayed, and secondly, at the quite apparent lack of sincerity evinced. On the one hand we hear the politician endeavoring to gain a little cheap notoriety out of his ability to contort a subject about which he knows nothing and cares less; and on the other an exhibition of the facility with which the professional moralist can misrepresent existing conditions, and unjustly assail the reputations of honorable men in his effort to demonstrate his thankfulness that he is morally the superior of many of his fellow-men and neighbors. We hear a great deal about the evils of stock speculation—because it is a convenient peg upon which to hang the expectation of the approval of unthinking minds, but never a word do we hear in condemnation of speculation in general. Your politician and professional moralist rolls the phrase "trading on a margin" in his mouth as a delicious morsel; but only, mark you, in its connection with stock enterprises. The farmer may buy a farm, upon which he can pay but one-sixth or less of the purchase price in cash—giving a mortgage on the property to secure the lender of the balance, and it is a strictly moral, highly Christian proceeding. Not "trading on a margin." Oh dear, no! Yet if his brother in the city does the same thing exactly with reference to a stock transaction it is "trading on a margin," and is distinctly immoral and degenerating. There has been a tremendous talk made about the losses incurred in consequence of the fall in security values, but never a word about the precious gains when prices were moving in an opposite direction, nor about the losses incurred through ill-advised real estate speculations—speculations, mark you, just as surely made upon a so-called marginal basis as the most pronounced speculative stock transaction of them all. The simple fact seems to be that it is impossible to draw the line of demarcation between tweedledee and tweedledum, and this is a condition which will not admit of correction until the people at large have greater capacity for distinguishing between the true and the false, and between the right and the wrong. The most deplorable fact of the whole business is the amount of falsehood and misrepresentation sown broadcast, and the unscrupulous efforts made to besmirch the reputations of honorable gentlemen. Within the last few days we have witnessed honorable representatives gravely and sagely advocating means of repression on the one hand, and on the other endeavoring to "make it warm" for the brokers. As to the suggestion of repression it may be said at once that it was nothing more nor less than unmitigated buncombe, offered no doubt as incense to (but mistakenly) political expediency; but wholly insincere. It is very doubtful, indeed, whether the representatives who would seriously undertake to abridge, or in any way interfere with, the jealously-guarded right of contract as enjoyed by Anglo-Saxon free men from Magna Charta to the present date; but if there is such he will not have to exploit his doctrine very far before discovering what a gigantic boomerang he has launched into space, only to see it return and feel its crushing force full in the face. It is unnecessary at this time to refer to some other equally illogical suggestions which were offered at the time to which reference is had — these will keep for a future occasion—but the writer feels strongly impelled to protest against the manner in which the whole brokerage community was assailed on account of the alleged shortcomings of some one or two. Even in the cases cited it seems as though the story were imperfectly told, and that there is another side to it; but, however that may be, the fact remains that brokers as a class should no more be blamed for the immoral practises of one or two any more than pomologists as a class should be brought to task because the big apples have been found at the top of the barrell in more than one instance, and very small ones beneath; or than milk vendors should be blamed because through some mysterious process of induction, a certain lot of milk has been found to have absorbed a certain percentage of aqua pura from the adjacent pump, and a given quantity of coloring matter from the neighboring apothecary's. Brokers are human, and because they are so, degenerates will come to the surface from time to time among them, but it is the writer's experience that, taken as a class, they will average as high in the scale of morality and big-hearted generosity as any profession in the land. Coming to the question of speculation in general, it may be said that in a competitive social system the mainspring of the entire business life is essentially speculative. It is merely a matter of degree. Whether a man is renting a store and hiring help with the purpose of vending the necessaries of life—many of which are perishable—or whether he is laying in during summer his supply of winter coal, he is speculating; some may call it prudent foresight, but it is speculating just the same. We have known farmers to hold grain until it spoiled entirely and became a total loss, rather than take the market price. Yet nobody called that speculating, and yet it would be hard to describe it as anything else. The troubles that have come from recent market conditions are not to be attributed to speculation of itself, but to over-speculation. It is the same trouble which comes to an overgorged stomach and must be relieved in the same way, namely, by disgorgement, because it cannot be digested. There is probably no human attribute or characteristic which does not manifest itself at times in an extravagant degree, and recent liquidation in Wall St., and other markets, is neither more nor less than the operation of nature's law, where people have become entirely intemperate in the matter of speculative commitment. If one looks around him he will discover an unlimited number of people who have done the same thing in land and other real property that others have done in stocks, and who in consequence are "real estate poor." Yet one never hears the real estate brokers assailed because of the ill-advised action of their customers, and yet it is a moral certainty that the average stock broker never uses one-tenth of the insistent persuasion to induce his customers to buy stocks that is employed in the making of the average real estate transfer. As to the question of the relative size of the losses in the two cases, it is good opinion that losses growing out of ill-advised real estate transactions are as 100 to 15 as compared to those in the stock market, and this largely because there have usually been great gains in the latter case ante-dating the later losses, but about which nothing is usually said. A consideration of stock market conditions and the empirical comment which the same have called forth would seem to involve a kind of double-barrelled moral, namely, that even-handed justice is a scarce commodity, and that there is no squealer so vociferous as the man who is not hurt at all. All the talk has come from politicians on the one hand, and pharasaical moral reformers on the other; and in both cases the object has been the same, namely, to draw attention to themselves out of the pretense that they are constituted their brother's keeper—and judge. To the honor of a speculative community, it may be stated that, however badly hit, it is seldom that one of them displays any tendency to sub-cutaneous yellow streakage. They take their profits, when they accrue, as a matter of course, and they pocket their losses, when they are encountered, in an equally philosophical spirit, and free from heart-burnings. It is not from them that the howl emanates, but from various classes of people who are ever on the alert to draw profit and comfort out of their brother's misfortune, but who never were known to take a chance of any kind or description.

Very respectfully yours,
THOS. E. MEPHAM.

SPORTING NOTES.

Billy G., owned by Mr. G. I. Thomas, of this city, got second money in the 2.17 trot at the Peterboro races.

The game between the Athletics and T.A.S. at Peterboro was a rough one. The Review says: It was learned on good authority that three of the T.A.S. players will be reported to the C.L.A. for their conduct yesterday. Some of it was certainly worthy of condemnation.

The Yankee challenger Irondequoit and the Canadian defender Strathcona will sail the first of a series of races for the Canada's cup to-morrow. The races will take place just outside Toronto bay.

Lord Minto, Governor-General of Canada, has requested the Doherty brothers and Mahony, the tennis players, to come to Canada after the Newport tournament. It is expected that the players will accept the invitation.

Twenty-two and a half minutes in a twenty-mile race, which occupied a little more than three hours in the sailing, was the beating administered to Shamrock I. by Sir Thomas Lipton's new cup candidate yesterday. No shift of wind nor calm helped or hindered the boat.

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by all druggists.

DON'T LIKE OUR BOARD OF TRADE RESOLUTION.

LONDON FINANCIAL TIMES SAYS IT WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE TO TABLE.

London, Aug. 6. — The Financial Times, commenting on the programme of the Montreal Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, has no fault to find with the ten resolutions emanating from the Canadian Chambers, except that from Belleville, Ont., asking for the destruction of inter-Imperial tariff barriers, which it is obviously impossible to table. All the Canadian resolutions, it says, make requests for preference in the friendliest terms, except Winnipeg, which complains of lack of reciprocity.

The Belleville resolution mentioned above is in these words: "It is resolved that, whereas the British Dominions beyond the seas are now in a position to meet nearly all the requirements of the Mother Country in the way of food products and raw material for manufacturing, and whereas the market of the United Kingdom is required for the surplus products of the colonies, this Congress of Chambers recommend: That steps be taken to bring about a conference of representatives from all portions of the Empire to consider and formulate a plan to meet the financial requirements of the Empire, which will insure free trade within and throughout its bounds and impose such duties on the products of countries that maintain tariffs against British goods as well, while yielding a revenue, foster and stimulate the various industries and natural resources on which the prosperity of the people and the stability of the Empire depend, quicken the development of its vast uncultivated domains, and enable the wealth and energy of our own people to be utilized within our own national bounds."

The great advantage to local investors in placing their business with the Metropolitan consists in the fact that they have contracts with this strong financial institution itself, instead of with a local broker; thereby eliminating entirely the risk which may be involved in the question of a local broker's financial strength. Each commitment exists upon its individual merit, and cannot be affected by the short comings of the holders of other contracts nor even of the local manager. The local manager is the servant of this exchange, and the exchange is bound by his acts; consequently, the investor having the evidence that he has paid to a given point, his commitment is good to that point no matter what happens; and this is a valuable consideration more so than most people imagine.

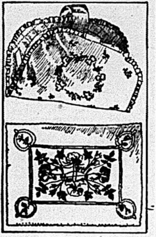
SUMMER FANCY WORK.

The Newest Way of Treasuring Perfumed Flower Petals.

New ideas in fancy work are always welcome when a summer holiday is in prospect, its programme including the delights of sitting out of doors in the sultry days, or when a round of country house visiting is in contemplation, for which a new piece of embroidery is at all times a pleasant accompaniment.

Potpourri sachets are a dainty notion which comes very happily with the rose season and the fancy for delicious, old fashioned perfumes. Our grandmothers used to store their potpourri in china bowls and jars, and of late years silver boxes with pierced lids have been added to the available receptacles for it. Potpourri sachets provide a delightful way of carrying about the scented petals and imparting their fragrance to the contents of drawer or portmanteau.

Two charming patterns are illustrated. One is shaped like a square mouthed bag, made in white china silk and embroidered with a design of half opened crimson roses. A separate case sewed into the lining contains the potpourri and can be taken out and refilled at any time with very little trouble. The other is pale blue silk, has rounded corners and is powdered with small roses in ribbon work. The lining is delicate pink silk, and in this also a separate case contains the perfume. A number of miniature sachets are designed to be laid among linen or handkerchiefs, all daintily embroidered and some incorporating appropriate mottoes. Most makers of potpourri have their own treasured recipe, handed down from mother to daughter through many generations. Some old and well tried recipes advocate the use of rose petals alone or mixed with lavender as the foundation. Others prefer the compound in which the queen of the garden lends her perfume to combine with that of her fragrant subjects, such as the clove, the pink, the lemon verbena, rosemary, bay and orange flower.



POTPOURRI SACHETS.

Dear Mother May Keep on Doing It.

If a mother persists in eating the crusts and building the fires and taking the butt end of every household responsibility and wearing old clothes, she may keep on doing it to the end, with little thanks and probably, finally, the realization that she has fostered selfish and unlovely traits in her family. Her daughters will in their turn make poorer wives and mothers, her sons more selfish and thoughtless husbands for never having been taught to consider her comfort sometimes before their own. She should train the children, boys as well as girls, to be helpful and handy, and let even father taken an occasional turn at the household mill. Then he will learn which bearings are stiff and need oiling with some new conveniences, and not allow the family to get the idea that she is so wedded to the daily round of household tasks that she is never willing to lay down the broom and dishcloth.—Exchange.

Baked Rhubarb.

Baking rhubarb requires less sugar than is necessary when stewing. Peel the stalks, selecting red rhubarb. Cut into inch lengths and place in a stone crock. Add one part of sugar to two parts of the fruit, unless you like it very sweet, then add nearly half and half. Arrange the fruit and sugar in layers; use no water. Stand the crock in a pan of hot water, cover and set in the oven and bake until the pieces are clear. This may be used for a meringue by filling a shell of good light pastry, covering the top of fruit with a meringue and coloring a delicate brown in the oven.

Dog and Cat Comfort.

A 3 per cent solution of creolin will kill the fleas on a dog. Two per cent is strong enough on cats. Four teaspoonfuls of creolin to a quart of water or four tablespoonfuls to a gallon make a 3 per cent mixture. Shake well. It will not only kill the fleas, but heal up the bitten places and small skin irritations, cleanse and soften the hair and remove all unpleasant odors the animals may contract from running in unclean localities. So says the New Hampshire experiment station.

Cream of Green Peas Soup.

Cover a pint of peas (shelled) with cold water; cook until tender, seasoning with a teaspoonful of salt and a sprig of mint. Remove half of the peas and press through a sieve. Cook thoroughly two tablespoonfuls of flour and two tablespoonfuls of butter and add to a quart of hot milk. Next cook together the pressed peas, this hot milk with the floured butter, and add the water the peas were cooked in. Just before serving add a cup of whipped cream and the whole peas.

Lincoln's Fees.

As a rule, Abraham Lincoln's fees were less than those of other lawyers of his circuit. Justice Davis once remonstrated with him and insisted that he was doing a grave injustice to his associates at the bar by charging so little for his services. From 1850 to 1860 his income varied from $2,000 to $3,000, and even when he was recognized as one of the ablest lawyers of the state his fee book frequently shows charges of $3, $5 and $1 for advice, although he never went into court for less than $10. During that period he was at the height of his power and popularity, and lawyers of less standing and talent charged several times those amounts. But avarice was the least of his faults.—"The True Abraham Lincoln."

What He Is Worth.

"What a curious habit we have," remarked the street car philosopher, "of saying that a man is worth so and so many thousands of dollars. I know men who have many dollars who, judged from any reasonable standard that I know, are not worth anything at all. It is refreshing to hear occasionally of men who do happen to be worth a great deal even though they are rich and who are anxious that people should forget they have money and think of them only for their qualities. All the same, it always gives me an unpleasant turn when I see a man's worth put down in dollars."

A Bismarck Incident.

It used to be the privilege of Austria's representative at any conference of representatives of the German states to smoke, the others refraining. This was supposed to be an acknowledgment of Austria's supremacy. At the first conference that Bismarck attended as Prussia's representative he began to puff smoke across the conference table as soon as the Austrian diplomat lit up. That set everybody present to smoking on equal terms, and Austria's supremacy got a blow.

He—No, but I've got my eye on another girl, and I could use them writing to her, you know.—Exchange.

Badly Balanced.

"I am a self made man," said the proud individual.

"Well, you are all right except as to your head," commented the other part of the conversation.

"How's that?"

A Pessimist.

ACCESSORIES OF DRESS.

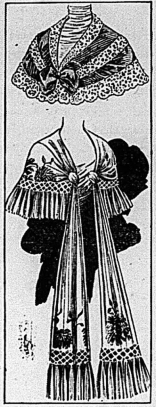
Fichus and Cape Effects Are Useful In Transforming Gowns.

The accessories of dress mean a good deal in the way of its success. Every year more care is exercised in the designing of them.

The wide collar—almost a cape—of lace or any dainty material is the one prominent feature of the summer season, and it is seen on at least one gown or coat in every smart wardrobe.

The fichu, hand painted, embroidered or made of lace, is a welcome addition to a simple gown or to one which has grown narrow through the shoulders.

Tassels and applications of all descriptions decorate even the washable summer gowns, and no gown is a success without a few of these little adornments.



DRESS TRIMMINGS.

Irregular chiffon appliques come in all the pale tints and are so designed that they can be cut up and joined together to form collars, cuffs, etc.

A flat stole seen recently was of finest point de venise laid on ivory satin, and it had a border of marabou in the natural brown tint and round the collar many fascinating tails of the same feathers. Another superb stole of Irish point laid on lime green velvet had the round, flat collar finished with a deep frill of Irish lace.

The cut shows a dainty fichu of mousseline de soie trimmed with silk fringe and embroidered. There is also a collar of louisine silk trimmed with bands of lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR WARM DAYS.

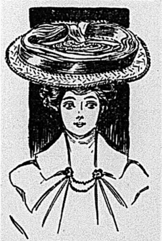
Unlined dresses of fine white lawn are very pretty and very smart. The waists are made with fancy yokes and fine tucks, while the sleeves are prettiest fulled into a tightly fitting upper portion. Some have little turnover collars and cuffs of pale material embroidered in white. This is particularly fetching in pale blue when combined with a ribbon sash and neck ribbon of the same color.

Dust coats of white sicilienne are very dainty to wear over thin gowns and protect the gowns themselves from the fading effects of the sun. A coat of this sort can easily be run up by the summer seamstress and merely trimmed with a loose collar of lace.



TAILOR MADE HAT.

The plain straw tailor made hat is useful because it may be worn with gowns of any color simply by adding a chiffon veil of that hue. Among the novelties in veils, by the way, is one of pale lavender trimmed with an edge of ecru lace.

Floral garnitures are very smart on chip and bass shapes, and the "crushed" roses, bare of foliage and arranged in heavy masses or conventional lines, are extremely popular. Flower trimmed hats also have the addition of feathers, and the plateau now has a broad border of contrasting color.

The picture shows a tailor made hat of yellow straw trimmed with a twist of brown. JUDIC CHOLLET.

CANADIAN NEWS SERVICE

Resolution Granting $60,000 Passed to Aid the Press.

Any Paper in Canada, Which Pays Its Moiety, Will Be Able to Get the Independent, Telegraphic News From Great Britain After the Service Is Established—Discussion on Wireless Telegraphy—The King's War Medal.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—In the House today Dr. Sproule asked if the Government would give out the proceedings of the intercolonial conference.

The Premier stated that the despatch from the Colonial Office was a secret one, but His Excellency is communicating with the Colonial Secretary to ascertain whether secrecy is still enjoined upon the Dominion Government.

Canadian News Service.

There was not a murmur of objection to the resolution moved by Mr. Fielding authorizing government assistance in the establishing and maintenance of an independent and efficient service of telegraphic news from Great Britain for publication in the Canadian press. The aid amounts to $15,000 a year for the first three years, $10,000 for the fourth year and $5,000 for the fifth year. After the fifth year Mr. Fielding said he hoped that the newspapers would be able to carry on the service without assistance. The newspapers must raise and spend an amount equal to the aid supplied by the Government.

Mr. Fielding spoke of the existing cable service from Great Britain to Canada as eminently unsatisfactory. The news came through American channels and was often colored to suit American sentiment. Some years ago Mr. Fielding said he had asked his colleagues to offer encouragement for such a service such as is now proposed, but only recently had this offer been taken advantage of by the Canadian press.

The service will be open to every newspaper in Canada which choses to pay its share of the cost of the service.

Mr. Borden supported the resolution. He, too, complained of the coloring of news cabled from Britain to Canada. If this Government grant ensured fair reports of public events in Britain and if Britain was supplied with better means of learning of events in Canada it would be money well spent. Mr. Borden said he had noticed while in England the scarcity of Canadian news in British newspapers.

Mr. Fielding explained that a service from Canada to Britain is not contemplated just now. The proposed service may, however, grow into a more complete interchange of news between Canada and Britain.

Wireless Telegraphy.

A discussion as to the cable tolls that would be charged brought up the Marconi system. Mr. Fielding said that he had no information as to the recent movements of the Marconi company. The comuany had encountered some difficulties, but he has assurances from officials that they would soon be able to carry out all they have undertaken.

Mr. Borden asked about the De Forest Company. Mr. Fielding replied that the De Forest Company had made great progress, but it had not yet attempted ocean message.

Mr. Borden suggested that no money should be spent by the Government before the possibilities of the wireless company were distinctly understood. To this Mr. Fielding replied that while the Marconi system was not yet a commercial success, he did not regret the expenditure the Government had made to aid it. Canada had gained considerable kudos as a result of its contributions, the Dominion being the first Government to offer the inventor a friendly hand. The resolutions passed.

Jurisdiction of Exchequer Court.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier moved the second reading of the bill respecting the jurisdiction of the Exchequer Court as to railway debts. Mr. Demers, who had charge of the bill until it was made a Government order, explained the provisions of the bill. Railways under the jurisdiction of Parliament which become insolvent or cease to be operated for ten days may be placed in the hands of a receiver at the instance of the Minister of Railways or any creditor of the railway. The bill was read a second time.

Mr. Fitzpatrick moved the second reading of the bill respecting penitentiaries. The bill makes several changes in the internal management of penitentiaries, with the object, Mr. Fitzpatrick said, of freeing these institutions from political influence.

Should Get War Medal.

Mr. Clarke then read a petition from the Canadians who had served twice in South Africa, addressed to the Governor-General, setting forth the circumstances under which they were shut out by the regulations governing the grant of the King's medal for service in South Africa, and asking that the regulations be altered to meet their case. He asked if this petition had been received by the Government and forwarded to the Imperial authorities, and if any request had been sent by His Excellency that the regulations might be altered.

Mr. Fielding regretted the absence of the Minister of Militia and his own inability to give any information on the subject. He promised, however, that the matter would be communicated to Sir Frederick Borden.

A Further Statement.

The Minister of Militia made a further statement to the fact that representations had been made to the War Office to secure recognition of the services of Canadians who had sailed for South Africa, but arrived after peace was declared. The War Office had held that the time occupied in the voyage to South Africa would not be counted in considering claims for medals. An appeal was then made to the commander-in-chief with the same result. The commander-in-chief ruled that the Canadians could not receive more favorable consideration than other volunteers, and that the time occupied in the voyage could not be counted.

YOUTH TRIED TO ESCAPE.

Hit Keeper With Bar of Iron, But Was Overpowered.

St. John, N. B., Aug. 8.—Fred Goodspeed, the accomplice of Frank Higgins, the condemned murderer of Willie Doherty, who was shot in Rockwood Park in this city a year ago, made another attempt to escape from the reformatory, near this city, Thursday night while his guard was handing him a glass of water. Goodspeed struck him with a long bar, stunning the official and inflicting a deep gash. The attempt was futile, however, as help soon arrived and the lad was overpowered. Friends were waiting outside to help the boy escape.

John Abell Dead.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—One of Toronto's oldest business men passed away at his home, 5 Madison avenue, at 8.30 last night in the person of John Abell, founder of the Abell Engine Works. Mr. Abell, who is a native of England, was 82 years of age.

MILE WIDE, TEN MILES LONG

Course of Cyclone That Struck Plympton and Warwick.

Loss Reaches $20,000 and Is Greater Than at First Estimated—Twenty Barns Were Unroofed and a Score of Windmills Were Broken Down—Fish Carried Inland Some Distance by Waterspout Off the Lake.

Forest, Aug. 8.—The damage done by Thursday's cyclone in this locality is much greater than at first estimated, the total loss being over $20,000, about $12,000 in Plympton and $8,000 in Warwick.

The storm came off Lake Huron in the shape of a funnel-shaped cloud and traveled at tremendous speed. It struck near the shore in Plympton and crossed the northeastern corner of that township, then across the north end of Warwick, devastating a stretch of prosperous farm lands, a mile wide and ten miles long, its whole course being marked with damage to buildings, crops, fences and trees. The greater part of the damage was done by the terrific hail which accompanied the wind and battered the crops into the ground. Fortunately the wheat and barley crops are harvested, but oats, corn, clover, seed and fruit all suffered severely. Hundreds of acres of oats just ready for cutting were totally destroyed by wind and hail, the straw being actually pounded into the ground. Corn and seed clover fared almost as badly, thousands of bushels of apples, plums and pears were stripped from the trees, and in many places the trees were uprooted.

Some twenty barns were unroofed, score of wind-mills broken down and hundreds of panes of glass shattered.

James Hubbard Heaviest Loser.

The heaviest individual sufferer is James Hubbard, an extensive farmer in Plympton, whose loss is $2,000. The roof was blown off his house, nearly all the windows were smashed; of his three barns one was totally unroofed and the others partly so; all his oats, corn and fruit were utterly ruined and most of his poultry killed by the hail. Horses attached to reapers and wagons, maddened by the hailstones, ran away, and cattle were driven wild.

A quantity of fish, including several sturgeon, were carried some distance inland by the water-spout off the lake.

In Warwick the losses are both heavy and numerous, among which are: Frank Jenkins, $1,000; Albert Melton, $600; Wallace Melton, $500; Aaron Smith, W. Grout, Wm. Burnham, Mrs. Toulin, Alex. Campbell, Mrs. Brooks, George Daly, Ed. White, James King, Ambrose Logan, Wm. Knapp, Amaso Weaver, George Harwood, John Kernoham, David Kernoham, Sam Farrell, Robert Campbell and others, each from $100 to $600, making the total in both townships about $20,000.

Had the storm been half a mile farther north it would have swept the town of Forest with disastrous results. As it was, the fact that no lives were lost is remarkable.

WRIT HAS BEEN ISSUED.

Ontario Cattlemen Carry Their Complaint to Osgoode Hall.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—Eleven cattle dealers of the province have combined to fight the Grand Trunk Railway, as a result of the company's alleged discrimination against the stock yards at Toronto Junction in favor of the western cattle market. Thomas Mason and George Paulin of Clinton, William Finlayson and Henry Harris of Lucknow, Edward Watson of Dobbington, Thomas E. Durnin of Blythe, Smith McLean of Kincardine, Urban Schmidt of Ripley, John Wolf of Walkerton, Albert Walker of Chesley and John Martin of Whitchurch, all well-known cattlemen of western Ontario, instructed W. E. Raney yesterday to issue a writ asking $20,000 damages for the "wrongful, wilful and malicious determent of cattle delivered by the plaintiffs to the defendants as common carriers for transportation."

Invited Gamey.

Orangeville, Aug. 8.—The directors of the Dufferin Agricultural Society have invited R. R. Gamey, M.P.P. for Manitoulin, to attend the big Orangeville fall fair on Oct. 6 and 7, and the invitation has been accepted by that gentleman.

Mr. R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., has accepted an invitation to speak at a picnic, under the auspices of the Milverton Public Library, on Aug. 27.

Holden White Dead.

Windsor, Aug. 8.—Holden White of Walkerville, the young man who was arrested and subjected to alleged ill-treatment at the hands of the police officers in Detroit, and who has been lying at the point of death since, died at midnight Thursday night. Thursday was the twenty-sixth anniversary of White's birth. White has been a newsboy in Walkerville since he was eight years of age.

Burned to Death.

Eganville, Aug. 8.—Mrs. Richard Ellis of Curry Settlement, while preparing dinner, was in the act of throwing an apronful of chips into the stove when her apron took fire and before help arrived she was so badly burned that she died in a few hours. She was 57 years of age.

TO SEE POPE CROWNED.

Venetians Rushing to Rome by Thousands—Selection of Papal Secretary of State Is Becoming Complicated.

Rome, Aug. 8.—St. Peter's is closed while the preparations for the coronation to-morrow are proceeding. Pope Pius has expressed a desire to have as many humble members of the faith as possible admitted, and fifty thousand tickets will be distributed by the parish priests, Catholic clubs and associations, seminaries, ecclesiastical colleges, monasteries and convents. The remainder of the seats will be reserved for distinguished guests. Only two tribunes have been erected, one for the diplomatic body and one for the Roman aristocracy. The body of the church will be divided into compartments, with separate entrances.

Thousands From Venetia.

From the Venetian provinces they are already leaving by thousands to attend the coronation of "Their Pope." The papal master of ceremonies has issued the invitations to the archbishops and bishops who will participate in the procession from the Vatican into St. Peter's. They are requested to be at the Vatican at 7 o'clock to-morrow morning.

The Papal Secretary.

The selection of a new Papal Secretary of State is daily becoming more complicated, as there is a division in the Sacred College such as existed before the election of Pius X.

Pius X. offered the position to Cardinal Agliardi, who declined to give up the Vice-Chancellorship of the church. Cardinal Satolli also declined on the ground that he was not sufficiently acquainted with the French language, and that he knew too little of foreign questions generally, except those relating to America. He suggested Cardinal Vinconzo Vannutelli. Negotiations are proceeding to have Cardinal Agliardi, while retaining the Vice-Chancellorship, assume the Secretaryship of State temporarily.

Dr. Lapponi stated yesterday that Cardinal Herrero y Espinosa is out of danger.

Cardinal Gibbons Received.

Cardinal Gibbons was received by the Pope yesterday in a private audience. In closing the audiences, the Pontiff charged Cardinal Gibbons to carry the apostolic benediction to all the faithful of America.

MAY LEAD TO WAR.

Vienna Pessimistic Over the Turko-Bulgarian Situation—London Thinks It Is Not Yet Serious.

Vienna, Aug. 8.—One of the gravest features of the situation as seen here is the danger that it may lead to war between Turkey and Bulgaria. The feeling is strong in Bulgaria that it is feared that Prince Ferdinand might be faced with the alternative of declaring war or abdicating.

Not Very Serious.

London, Aug. 8.—Confidential official reports received at the Foreign Office regarding Macedonia, have caused the British Government to adopt the view that the situation is not very serious for the moment, although sufficiently so to warrant the taking of precautions. The Porte is looked to to re-establish order in its own territory, and the British officials do not believe that Turkey contemplates an attack on Bulgaria in view of the known attitude of the powers, especially Russia and Austria.

According to a despatch from Vienna Thursday night, the Macedonian Central Revolutionary Committee had fixed Aug. 31 as the date for a general rising, and had appointed Boris Sarafoff, commander of the revolutionary forces.

DEATH LIST STANDS AT 23

Wreck on the Grand Trunk Railway at Durand, Mich.

Two Trains of Wallace Brothers' Circus Crash With Terrible Results—Railway Officials Unhesitatingly Lay the Blame on Engineer Probst, Who as Positively Asserts That the Air Brakes Would Not Work.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 8.—The death list, as a result of the collision early yesterday in the Grand Trunk yards between the two sections of Wallace Brothers' circus train stands last night at 23, eight of whom are in the morgue unidentified. Coroner Farrer yesterday afternoon empanelled a jury, which viewed the remains and adjourned until Aug. 14, when the inquest will be held. Following are the dead and injured:

The Dead.

James McCarthy, trainmaster Grand Trunk road between Port Huron and Battle Creek.

A. W. Large, special officer Grand Trunk, Battle Creek.

John Purcell, Peru, Ind., boss canvas man.

G. Thomas, residence unknown, member of stake and chain gang.

Andrew Howland, New York State, canvas man.

Robert Rice, residence unknown, harnessmtn.

Charles Sands, Peru, Ind., driver.

Joe Wilson, Pittsburg.

W. J. McCoy, Columbus, O., canvas man with side show.

Seriously Injured.

James S. Foley, special officer Grand Trunk, Detroit, shoulder dislocated, bruises.

Joseph F. Benton, New Milford, Con., internal injuries.

W. H. Roe, Armstrong, Ill., internal injuries.

Responsibility For Wreck.

In discussing the question of responsibility for the horror, the railroad officials unhesitatingly lay it to Engineer Probst of the second section of the train, whose home is in Battle Creek. Probst says that the air brake on his train refused to work, but the officials declare that he could have stopped the train in time to have avoided serious consequences. General Manager F. H. McGuigan said yesterday afternoon:

"Probst knew that he was coming into a yard where trains usually stand and take on coal and water. The rules say plainly that engineers shall approach such yards with their trains under control. A brakeman sent back by the first train warned him of the danger three-quarters of a mile before he got to the standing section. For nearly half a mile before he got to the first train the track is straight and clear and he should have been able to see the red light on the back of the train ahead of him in time to stop his train. Of course, he, like anyone else, will try to avoid such a dreadful responsibility."

The official report on the accident issued by Superintendent Brown declares positively that the air brakes have been tested since the accident and found to be in perfect condition and that there is evidence that they were not applied.

The head brakeman and fireman, however, who were on the engine, bear out Probst's statement that the brakes refused to work.

MAIMED FOR LIFE.

School Principal Sutherland Somehow Shot His Feet—Leg Amputated.

St. Stephen, N. B., Aug. 8.—A very serious shooting accident, by which J. Brook Sutherland, principal of Milltown High School, will be crippled for life, occurred yesterday morning at Oak Bay. He was at his summer camp on the shore of the bay and had got up early and gone out alone, taking a gun with him.

How the accident happened is not known. Dr. W. H. Laughlin of Milltown, who was camping near, heard his cries for help, and found him lying with one foot shot off and the other badly injured.

Mr. Sutherland was brought to the Chipman Memorial Hospital, where the left leg was amputated. He has not recovered from the shock, and his life last night was hovering in the balance.

Gen. Miles Retires.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the United States army, will retire from active service at noon to-day, having reached the age limit of 64 years.

Lieut.-Gen. Young has been assigned to the command of the army until Aug. 15, when he will assume the duties of chief of staff.

Confessed to a Plot.

Elmira, Aug. 8.—Charles Brooks, the convict from New York who on Wednesday shot and badly wounded James H. Gunderman, a head keeper at the reformatory, has confessed that his attack on the keeper was part of a plot to murder all the chief officials of the prison.

REFERRED TO MR. ROBLIN.

Premier Laurier Gives Answer to the Manitoba Catholics.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—Mr. Russell, the Manitoba school delegate, got his answer from the Dominion Government yesterday to the representations made by Mr. Deegan and himself in behalf of the Roman Catholic separate school supporters of Winnipeg. The official reply is withheld from the press, but it is understood it refers the delegates back to Premier Roblin, pointing out that the British North America Act places the subject of education absolutely under the control of the provincial authorities. Mr. Russell leaves for home immediately.

Says He Stole $80,000.

Boston, Aug. 8.—In a letter written last Tuesday from Montreal to the pastor of his church in East Boston, Willard S. Allen, treasurer of the Preachers' Aid Association of the New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, confessed that he was a defaulter to the amount of more than $80,000 of the society funds. Mr. Allen has been treasurer of the society for 12 years and clerk of the East Boston District Court for 29 years.

ROYAL CANADIAN HENLEY.

Events and Their Issue of First Day of New Annual Regatta.

Port Dalhousie, Aug. 8. — The weather was grand for the first annual Royal Canadian Henley regatta opening yesterday afternoon. The air was cool and the sky clouded. Oarsmen from all over the country are here for the races. All the old-timers, including Ned Hanlan, Jack Rumohr, Pat Mulqueen and Pat Smith were on hand. The crowd of outsiders was not large. The record:

Junior fours (first)—Winnipeg Rowing Club 1; Ottawa Rowing Club, 2; Detroit Rowing Club, 3. Time—1st, 7.50; 2nd, 8.06.

Pair oars—Detroit Rowing club, 1; Argonaut Rowing Club, 2. Time—1st, 8.45; 2nd, 8.51½.

Junior doubles (first)—Argonaut Rowing Club, 1; Detroit Rowing Club, 2; Toronto Rowing Club, 3. Time—1st, 8.51; 2nd, 8.77. Detroit only led Toronto Rowing Club by 3 feet.

Junior singles (first)—Detroit Rowing Club, 1; Hamilton Rowing Club, 2; Don Rowing Club, 3. Time—1st, 8.44; 2nd, 8.51.

Junior singles (second)—Don Rowing Club, 1; Ottawa Rowing Club, 2; Mutual Rowing Club, Buffalo, 3. This was a very close race, the winner being only 2 2-5 seconds ahead of Mothersill, Ottawa's representative.

Junior doubles—Brockville Rowing Club, 1; Crescents of Philadelphia, 2. The Crescents claimed a foul and the final decision has not been given.

Do You Lose Weight in Summer?

You should not. If you do it shows that the enervating effects of the hot weather have affected your appetite and weakened your digestion, so that you do not eat enough of the right kind of food and what you do eat does not nourish you as it should.

What you need is a concentrated food that will restore your weight and keep you up to the mark without overworking your digestive organs. Try FERROL and you will be surprised how perfectly it will meet your requirements.

FERROL is a perfect nutrient furnishing nourishment for every part of the human economy. It is pleasant to take, easy to digest and never fails to increase the weight and build up the system.

When you first experience "that tired feeling" after the hot weather comes, try FERROL and like many others, you will soon come to regard it as a summer necessity.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC—ITS ROUTE.

Mr. Frederick Ireland, an official reporter of the debates in the Washington House of Representatives, was in Montreal the other day, and spoke of the route marked out for the Grand Trunk Pacific. Mr. Ireland is an enthusiastic hunter, and, having visited most of the route in question, can speak with authority. He said:

"I am not an engineer, and, as you know, a railway may be laid almost everywhere a river is to be found. Through the province of New Brunswick the railway will have to follow the course of numerous rivers. It cannot be carried in an air line, or in anything approximating that. I can take you to a place in the centre of the province of New Brunswick, where, on the top of a mountain, nothing can be seen for thirty miles on all sides, but verdure-clad mountains.

"From Quebec across country to the Northwest, back of the height of land formed by the Laurentians there is nothing but poplar trees, and I should not think that for fifty years to come a railway through such a section would be a paying proposition. Until the vacant lands are taken up in the Canadian West, no one would be induced to live north of the Laurentians.

"When you get out to British Columbia, in from the coast, at Fort Simpson, you have nothing but huge canyons, uninhabited except for wild animals. Here the grass grows waist high for cattle to browse upon. If a railway were required merely to make a highway into the grizzly bear country, I should say, under these circumstances, that the Grand Trunk Pacific would be a supreme success."

The newspapers at the Sault, in noticing the recent advent of Mr. Stratton to that consituency, says he appeared among them in the constituency for the purpose of organizing for the bye-election which is to be held in that riding, so soon as the Ross Government dares issue the Writ. Meetings were called, but the respectable Liberals declined to attend. The prominence of Mr. Stratton is very offensive to their better element. It means, of course, that that element is, so far as the Government can accomplish that end, to be made responsible for Mr. Stratton's doings. The fact that respectable Liberals declined to obey the call of Stratton argues well for the future. The "forget something" minister cannot be palatable to thinking men.

The Toronto News sarcastically remarks:

"It is hard to avoid the suspicion that if Mr. Loy were a Conservative he would have to go back for re-election. He must be an exceedingly guileless person if he did not suspect that his property was being purchased for the Government. He escapes responsibility very much as the candidate escapes responsibility for the questionable work of unrecognized agents in the doubtful polling districts. It is manifest that it was intended that Mr. Loy should benefit by the transaction, and that he should have no exact knowledge of the purchase. The work was done according to the specifications. The deal was made, Mr. Loy profited, the independence of Parliament was not violated, his seat is secure. It was altogether a thoroughly expert performance. Fortunately, as the charges were not investigated by a commission, Mr. Monk escapes condemnation."

"De ye want to make $25 aisily?" said Mr. Dooley to his friend Hennessy. "If ye do," he went on, "all ye have to do is to put in a bill to the Government for hall rint, like me frind Mr. Hurley did. Twinty-five plunks paid over, and no questions asked."

"But I niver rinted a hall," said Mr. Hennessy.

"Nayther did he," said Mr. Dooley, "but he pulled down his quarter of a cintury just the same."

Hamilton Herald: They (the Irish) know that the King has for years been well disposed towards the Irish Nationalists and their ideas.

Not so fast, kind sir. How do you or anyone else know that the King is "well disposed towards the Irish Nationalists and their ideas?" Give us the source of your exclusive information. We prefer to think that King Edward is in favor of unity in the British Empire; judging by their speeches the Irish Nationalists certainly are not.

The Yankee toy pistol hardly compares with another form of fatal carelessness. In England, last year, the habit of allowing children to play, unattended, before open fireplaces caused about 1,500 fatal accidents.

Never is time more precious than when some member of the family is attacked by colic, dysentery or any bowel trouble. The doctor is distant but if Perry Davis' Painkiller is near all danger is soon ended.

Happiness.

We are forever children. When we are infants we cry for the moon; when we are grown up we cry for happiness. And we always cry for the wrong thing because we never know what is good for us. It is a man's lot to mistake his wants and to be disappointed. It is his purpose in life always to grasp for the useless thing, to strive for that which has no merit, to hope for that which perishes as soon as he holds it in his hands. We have our ideal of happiness, but we endeavor to realize it in ways which are not good for us.

Happiness, as we perceive it in this terrestrial sphere, is a saddening illusion. It never lasts, because it cannot. It never satisfies, because it is not made to satisfy. The land of El Dorado forever remains east of the sun and west of the moon—that is, nowhere. It is the fatal morgana, the mirage of the desert of life. Happiness remains happiness while it is an illusion. Mortality is not made to hold and to enjoy it. It is mortality's lot to chase jack o' lanterns—to cry for the moon, which cannot be obtained because it hangs so high up in the heavens.

The Last of the Ruffs.

In 1762 the rage for ruffs, such as are seen on many monumental effigies, began to decline. A writer in the London Chronicle of that year says of gentlemen's dress, "Their cuffs entirely cover their wrists, and only the edges of their ruffles are to be seen."

It is said that a distaste for ruffs was first created so far back as 1613, when a woman named Turner wore them on her trial for the murder by poison of Sir Thomas Overbury. The French revolution of 1789 much influenced British fashion, and the picturesque cocked hat and ruffles then gave way generally to round hats and small cuffs.

The period of their final disuse cannot be easily determined, as men of old fashioned or eccentric habits have worn ruffled shirt fronts within quite recent memory similar to those which, according to Planche's "History of British Costume," originated in the seventeenth century.

The Number of Smiling and Happy Infants Would be Vastly Increased if Mothers Thoroughly Understood the Value of LACTATED FOOD

In Ireland they have a pretty fancy that when baby smiles in his sleep it is "talking with angels."

How many more smiling babies there might be, if mothers more thoroughly understood the virtues and life-giving powers of Lactated Food. The only remonstrance to this want of knowledge that is possible to the babies, is expressed in the language of suffering and disease.

Stale cow's milk—absolutely fresh milk in the city is a fiction—is not only unpalatable and lacking in nutrition but also harmful. Mother's milk is sometimes quite as bad, and poorly prepared foods are worse.

Lactated Food is a blessing to the baby-world. The most eminent physicians are agreed, and the experience of thousands of parents has proved, that Lactated Food is the most natural and nourishing diet for infants. Ask your druggist for it and take no other.

IT IS A PERPLEXING THING.

For the reader of newspaper advertisements to determine what is what. We do not use as large type as some, but we are sure that what we have to say is not the less important to any one who is interested in the subject of clothing at this time. Our summer suits are ready to speak for themselves, if you will but take time to inspect them, and we think you will find no fault with the prices. We are making an immense display of hot weather clothing and furnishings.—Quick & Robertson.

Palaces of Waters.

The principal Palace of Waters is an immense hall which stretches in mysterious grandeur far beneath the city of Constantinople. Its roof is formed of wide spanned arches supported on massive marble columns. These stand some ten feet apart, and their capitals are elaborately wrought.

This marvelous building springs from an expanse of waters which underlies the foundations of the city for miles. Its origin and extent have been shrouded in mystery ever since its discovery about seventy years ago, when some of the arches gave way. All attempts to explore by boat this marvel of construction have been either fatal or fruitless.

Another palace of waters was the stately Palace of Ice which was built in 1739 at the command of Anne, empress of Russia, to honor the nuptials of the Prince Gallitzin and a simple peasant girl. In this novel palace bride and bridegroom were housed, in rooms of which the walls and furniture and bed were constructed wholly of frozen water.

MALIGNANT LUMPS AND TUMORS

Are Readily Cured by Our New Constitutional Treatment Without The Necessity of Operation.

Many people are afflicted with lumps or tumors in various parts of the body. Tumors, it must not be forgotten, are serious, and should not be neglected for several reasons. In the first place, their growth may involve or impair some vital part of the body, in the second place they constitute a drain on the system, and in the third place they frequently develop into cancers. Few people care to have these growths removed by the surgeon, as they dread the pain of the operation. With our pleasant home treatment, it is different. You simply take the remedy internally. It goes through the system, searching out and neutralizing and destroying those poisons from which tumors and cancers develop. After a time you will notice the tumor lessening in size, and gradually disappearing until it is completely cured. Send two stamps and we will mail you our treatise and testimonials. B. I. The Serpent That Talked Like a Man

In John Ashton's "Curious Creatures of Zoology" there is a quotation from "a little Latine booke printed at Vienna in the yeare 1551" which tells a most wonderful story. Ashton quotes as follows: "There was found in a mowe or rycke of corn almost as many snakes, adders and other serpentes as there was sheafes, so as no one sheaf could be removed but there presently appeared a heape of ougly and fierce serpentes. The countrie men determyned to set fire upon the barne and so attempted to do, but in vaine, for the straw would take no fire, although they laboured with all their witts and policye to burn them up.

"At last there appeared unto them at the top of the heap a huge great serpente, which lifted up his head and spake with a man's voyce to the countrie men, saying, 'Cease to prosecute your devise, for you shall not be able to accomplish our burning, for wee were not bredde by nature, neither came we here of our owne accord, but were sent by God to take vengence on the sinnes of men.'"

Ashton leaves us in the dark as to what the "countrie" men did, but it is natural to suppose that they surrendered at once.

Pictures In Stone.

Shakespeare could "find tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones and good in everything," but he fails to mention the possibility of finding a picture drawn by nature in a stone. In several of the ancient as well as modern scientific journals we read of lines and markings in certain stone formations, particularly agates, which bear striking resemblances to the outlines of men, animals, landscapes, etc.

One of these curiosities now preserved in the museum of the Vatican is a perfect likeness of a crowned king. Many of these representations are so lifelike that they have been mistaken for medallion portraits. We read accounts of several of these wonders in Albertus. One plainly shows a man in the attitude of running, another is a perfect figure of the good St. Jerome, but the most remarkable of all is an agate containing a representation of Apollo surrounded by the nine muses.

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

arranged to be sprung under the very citidal of his defences, was afforded by the retirement of the widow Grewy from his house and service. She refused to give any explanations, and was firm against all promises and cajolements. The lawyer, in his desperation, went even so far as to lay his hand and fortune at her feet; but it was too late.

Thus aroused, lawyer Saybrook put himself on his mettle to meet the enemy's plans. But the more he examined into the matter, the deeper and more dangerous he found the plans that had been laid for his destruction. The defences he had imagined so impregnable had been undermined in a dozen places. Leb. Sackett had been none too cautious in some of his statements as to the nature of his engagement with the lawyer, and witnesses stood ready to come forward and unfold the plot to rid Rolff House of the protection of Carl Crum and old Margaret. Moreover, the tools the lawyer had used as witnesses of his irregular papers had been tampered with, he found, and were not to be relied upon in case they were brought under the cross-questioning of a sharp lawyer.

Look which way he would, lawyer Saybrook saw defeat and disgrace awaiting him, and the door of a felon's cell, to his fearful imagination, stood yawning to receive him. His confidence and shrewdness deserted him. He became demoralized and almost imbecile in spirit.

Ralph vainly sought to encourage him.

"No, no, Ralph," he said, as they were discussing the matter in the office. "I can see no gleam of hope in this matter. I tell you our case is completely riddled. There isn't a ghost of a show. Everything depended on there being no direct witnesses against us. Owing to my cursed recklessness and want of the most ordinary forethought, that infernal traitress not only has knowledge of all our plans, but has been the means of furnishing other clues against us. Everything has worked wrong. I put too much confidence in the war shutting off Claude, and in his weakness of character. I never expected to see him show such vigorous fight. It's too bad—too bad! We are doomed to be beaten. I can see it. I dare not contemplate the consequences. Unless something more hopeful turns up—but, no, there can be no hope. It is idle for us to delude ourselves. Fate is against us. If it hadn't been for that devil-haunted house—Ralph, I am growing superstitious. Yes, yes—popular legend is right. None but a Rolff can ever inherit that property. Don't tell me—look how every plan we have set in motion has been foiled in some strange and mysterious manner. I have been too sceptical. Some occult power is leagued against us. We must give up the fight. We must save ourselves, if we can."

"But what are we to do?" demanded Ralph.

"I don't know yet, Ralph. I must think—I must think. We can run away, I suppose."

"What, and give up everything, without a single manly blow? I would rather do anythink than that. How do we know but that, by making a good fight, there is hope for us yet?"

"No, no, Ralph; my spirit is hopeful—too hopeful generally; but it is madness to deceive ourselves on this point. They can send me to prison. It's a criminal offence. Halstead is too sharp not to see the point he has got against me. He'll institute a criminal suit—see if he don't."

"And must we abandon everything—sacrifice all we have got—and go out in the world like beggars! Hang it! I'd rather shoot myself."

"So would I, Ralph. But we won't have to. You are not really concerned in this, and the responsibility cannot be made to lie against you. Matters can be arranged so that you will be all right. In fact, if I was to abscond and allow the suit already begun to go against me by default, I think that would be the end of the matter. All my property would be put in your hands and disposed of at your leisure, and we could make a new start in some other section. It's a hard choice, but I am not disposed to stand the chances of ending up my days in a penitentiary."

Disgusted and disappointed as Ralph was at the total collapse of the plans that had promised such brilliant fortune, he was unable to combat his father's fears successfully. At times the lawyer would show a temporary return of spirit, but it would be quickly succeeded by a new fit of depression. In fact, Anthony Saybrook was like many a keen rogue, bold to plot and execute so long as success smiled on him, but easily worried and frightened under misfortune. Convinced that the lawyer Claude had secured to press his suit was skillful and determined, and had hold of very dangerous testimony against him, he had no heart to await the issue, which he felt sure Claude was in a mood to push to the utmost extremity.

However, he made a show of carrying on a vigorous fight; boasted on the streets that he would win an easy victory; and apparently was prepared to contest every inch of ground in defending his character and holding on to the property he had so strangely acquired.

Finally the day arrived when the great suit of Rolff vs. Saybrook was to be opened. There was much public excitement over it, and the court-room was thronged. But, when the case was called there was no response from the defence. Inquiry was made, and it was found that Ralph Saybrook was at home; but he stated that his father had saddled his horse and ridden from town the previous night and had not returned. He did not know where he had gone or how soon he would return. For himself, he could only say that the management of the estate was entirely in his father's hands; he knew little or nothing of the matter; and he was not prepared to put in any answer till his father's return.

The case was postponed; but, as days passed by, and Anthony Saybrook did not reappear, it became evident that he had run away to escape the consequences of his crooked acts, and a judgment went against him by default.

Ralph Saybrook had not been sued jointly with his father, as suggested by Claude's lawyers, for the reason that the young man considered the father the instigator and manager of the whole scheme of fraud, and possessed too fine a sense of honor to allow it to be said of him that he desired to injure anybody out of mere spirit of jealousy. Having asserted his right to his patrimony, and secured a reversal of all the wrong attempted against him, he was not disposed to be revengeful. His hatred vanished, and, in its place, came a dull apathy and melancholy. He had succeeded—but to what purpose? He abased himself to make another appeal to farmer Bruyn; but only to be rudely rebuffed. The old man was of too obstinate a nature to yield easily in a matter where he had committed himself so strongly and Claude made the mistake of showing too great eagerness, and going to him before the disgust and disappointment at the failure of the schemes he had set such great store by had worn off. Farmer Bruyn did not lack in a certain coarse kind of conscientiousness. He had really distrusted and suspected Claude's character, and flattered himself that his efforts to control Rosa's future had been actuated by a fatherly regard for her welfare. Though surprised and almost stunned by the absconding of Anthony Saybrook, the flight of that individual and the consequent derangement of the plans he had cherished, he was too honest not to see that these events did not the least affect the opinion he had held of Claude. To change his attitude now was to convict himself of hasty and unreasonable judgment, and to lay himself open to the suspicion of being merely mercenary, and the bluff, wrong-headed old fellow was not in the least disposed to make such admissions, and, as has been stated, rebuffed Claude's approaches with even more than his former curtness.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The events detailed in the past chapters had occupied the fall months, and winter had again arrived.

For awhile, Claude found occupation enough to keep himself from total despondency. He had much to do to straighten his affairs, but under the advice and with the assistance of lawyer Halstead, he was enabled to meet obligations falling due by issuing new mortgages and disposing of outlying portions of the estate.

Claude went through with all this business wearily and mechanically. His health had been restored in a measure; and, feeling himself once more master of Rolff House, his pride and spirit returned, subdued only by the experiences he had passed through. The career of study and travel he had marked out for himself had come to a sudden end; he could not interest himself in the business and pleasures of the little place; and his ardent spirit fretted and soured under the ill-fortune that seemed to baulk his chief desire. There was but one object that now absorbed his hopes and ambition—and that object was sweet, patient faithful Rosa Bruyn. The young man's short experience as a student of art abroad, and the knowledge that he was shut out for the time from all hope of carrying out his ambitious projects, had dulled the edge of his enthusiasm for travel and study, and it was natural, at his years, that, foiled in every other outlet to his abundant energy and spirit, he should surrender himself completely to the beguiling passion of love.

He could dream only of Rosa Bruyn. He caught a furtive glimpse of her occasionally, and saw she was growing fairer, though paler than of yore and

BABY'S SECOND SUMMER.

WHY IT IS A DANGEROUS TIME FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Baby's second summer is considered a dangerous time in the life of every infant because of the disturbance to the digestive functions caused by cutting teeth during the hot weather. In slightly less degree every summer is a time of danger for babies as is shown by the increased death rate among them during the heated term. Of great interest to every mother, therefore, is a comparatively recent discovery of which Mrs. David Lee, of Lindsay, Ont., writes as follows:—

"My little girl had a hard time getting her teeth. She was feverish, her tongue was coated, her breath offensive, and she vomited curdled milk. On the advice of our doctor I gave her Baby's Own Tablets and she began improving at once. She had not slept well at night for about three months, and I was almost worn out caring for her. Nothing did her any good until I gave her the tablets. Now her food digests properly, her breath is sweet, her tongue clean and she is quiet and good. I can strongly recommend the tablets to other mothers as they cured my baby when nothing else would."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all dealers in medicine or will be sent post-paid at 25 cents a box, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

THE FEVER OF LIFE.

> And he came and took her up by the hand, and lifted her up; and immediately the fever left her, and she ministered unto them.—St. Mark i., 31.

A visit to the country or a little time spent in God's out-of-doors, away from the haunts of men and the strife of the multitude, always gives us a chance to learn some lesson that we could not hear for the tumult of the city. Communion with nature is necessary to the life of the soul, and even one day spent in the presence of God's great teacher will be sufficient to enlighten and cheer and give new hope, provided, indeed, that we are willing to listen to the voice of the teacher.

There is one discovery that we make every time that we enter nature's cathedral, whose walls are the spaces that separate us from the busy world from which we have come and whose dome is the arch of blue that suggests the beauty and infinity of the world to which we are going. The noise and the fret and the strain of life are shut out, and as we rest awhile in the cool and the silence we become aware of the tension of those past days; we find that we are possessed of a fever, that the temperature is above the normal, that the pulse of life is quick and irregular, that the fever of life is threatening mind and body.

There are few who will deny the fact that life in the great centres of industry is for the majority oftentimes more of a burden than anything else. And this not from lack of the necessaries of life, but from the strain and tension which must be undergone to secure the means of subsistence. It is not that the number of hours of the day's labor is increased, but that the amount of work per hour is greater. The facilities for lessening the drudgery of work have made a greater demand upon the attention and skill in producing the work.

And so it is with the social life of the present age. The question of pleasure has become absorbing. The thing is no longer a means to an end; it has become the end itself. People live for pleasure. They exhaust every energy in the pursuit of pleasure.

Society has become more and more artificial. Simplicity and informality are two words not to be found in the dictionary of modern society. The life of the present generation is more complex, more exacting, more intense than that of any former age.

The fever of life seems to have seized all classes and conditions of men, and instead of healthy ambition there are nervous haste and consuming desire.

This is not the view of the pessimist—there is nothing in the statement to warrant such an opinion.

The present age is far in advance of any previous age, and the world is going forward. There is more enlightenment, more liberty, more brotherly love, more regard for the rights of the individual than ever before. And yet one cannot but see that the world's happiness is not in proportion to the world's progress; that while the material surroundings of life have been so much bettered, yet the result, as expressed in a stronger, better, more rational life, is not equally apparent.

Our civilization has developed a malady hitherto unknown, and no better term can be found to describe it than to call it the fever of life.

The question of the hour is, What can be done to cure this disease—this fever of life—which threatens to consume the vitality of the present generation?

Christianity points to the only One who has the power to perform the miracle of healing, and that One is the great Physician, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. The Master of Life is here to tell us the secret of living. He has come to show men how to live.

The world to-day lies sick of a fever. It will never enter into full possession of its life until it looks to Jesus, who has come to give it life. He is writing to put His cooling, life-giving touch on the fever-tossed sufferer and to give it strength to rise up and perform its task. Both by teaching and example He has given mankind the standard of the perfect life. Just in proportion as the world accepts this standard will it receive the more abundant life which is its inheritance.

The fever of life is the result of our experiment with the things that ought to make for our happiness. Somehow we cannot get the right proportion, and instead of receiving joy and peace and a larger life from our use of the mixture, we find ourselves weak and feverish and sick at heart.

Let us go to Him and take His life for our example. Let us note what things He counted precious and what things He rejected as harmful to the soul. Let us accept Him as the Way and the Truth and the Life. And He will enter the room in which we are now lying sick of the fever of life, and He will take us by the hand and lift us up and fill us with new life for service to His glory and the salvation of our fellow-men.

The appointment of Miss Jameson of Darlington to be professor of the English language at Grenoble University has now been ratified by the French Minister of Public Instruction. This is the first time that a lady has been appointed to a professional chair in a French university. Miss Jameson is of Scottish descent. She was educated at the Edinburgh Ladies' College of the Merchants' Company, took first-class honors last year at Edinburgh University, and also holds the Heriot travelling scholarship given by the same institution.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer Complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

For coughs, colds, bronchitis and all lung and throat troubles, there is no preparation of medicine can compare with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It never fails to afford prompt and permanent relief. It removes all soreness, and heals the diseased parts. It immediately soothes the most troublesome cough, and by promoting expectoration, removes the mucus which stops up the air tubes which causes difficulty in breathing, thereby gives relief to that depressing tightness experienced in the chest. Public speakers and singers will find Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup of inestimable value, as it speedily and effectually allays all irritation, and huskiness in the throat and bronchial tubes, and gives power to the vocal cords, rendering the voice clear and sonorous. If parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves from much anxiety, trouble and expense, let them procure a bottle of "Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup," and whenever a child has taken cold, has a cough or hoarseness, give the Syrup according to directions.

To Those of Sedentary Occupation.—Men who follow sedentary occupations, which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver and kidneys than those who lead active, outdoor lives. The former will find in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills a restorative without question the most efficacious on the market. They are easily procurable, easily taken, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap considering their excellence.

A Sure Cure for Headaches. — Bilious headache, to which women are more subject than men, becomes so acute in some subjects that they are utterly prostrated. The stomach refuses food, and there is a constant and distressing effort to free the stomach from bile which has become unduly secreted there. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a speedy alternative, and in neutralising the effects of the intruding bile relieves the pressure on the nerves which cause the headache. Try them.

UNTOLD MISERY — WHAT A WELL-KNOWN COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER SUFFERED, AND HOW HE WAS CURED.—Gentlemen, About five years ago I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time travelling for Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine and when the third bottle was finished, I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of Dyspepsia.

TIMELY TOPICS

The rolling mills matter has turned up in a new shape. As will be seen by reference to our report in another part of this issue, a syndicate now offers to purchase the mills from Mr. Kirkwood for $65,000, the intention, presumably being to operate them and earn the bonus which was promised to Messrs. Kirkwood and McKinnon, their heirs or assigns. The obstacle now in the way of the purchase and, presumably, the operation of the mills, is the $2500 forfeit money put up by Mr. Kirkwood, which was forfeited on April 1st, 1903, and which the Bank of Montreal now holds in trust for the city. Mr. Kirkwood, it seems, is willing to sell the mills for $65,000, providing the $2500 forfeit money is refunded to him.

• • •

Opinions may differ in the matter, but to the Intelligencer it seems that Mr. Kirkwood has no right to demand the return of that money. Throughout the matter, latterly, at all events, he has appeared in the light of a speculator and should receive no more consideration than any other speculator could reasonably expect. Mr. Kirkwood may have intended to run the mills when he purchased them, at least he said he did, and believing him, The Intelligencer supported the by-law granting him the bonus; but his actions, from the start up to the present time, have not been such as to convince people that such was the case.

• • •

But, to look at the question from another standpoint, is it wise for the city, for the sake of $2500, to stand in the way of a deal which may cause the mills to pass into the hands of a syndicate, represented to be of unlimited capital, which premises to spend $20,000 on new machinery and then proceed to operate the mills in such a manner as to earn the bonus? That is the point. As at present constituted the mills are a black eye to Belleville. Would it not be advisable for the city to make some small sacrifice in order to see those mills fall into the hands of responsible men, and go into operation? We think so.

• • •

The question, then, narrows down to this: Should the city, in order to further the sale of the mills, return that $2500 to Mr. Kirkwood? We answer, unhesitatingly, no, at least not until something has been done to prove that the new company or syndicate means business. If the prospective purchasers of the mills take them over, instal the new machinery they speak of, and operate the plant so as to earn the first year's bonus, with reasonable indications that the works are to be continued in operation, then, we would say hand back that $2500 forfeit money if the Council have the power lawfully to do so, and not before.

• • •

In Mr. Hurley's evidence, published to-day, he makes a delicious admission. After the census men had finished their work they received some more instructions. Rich, isn't it?

• • •

We are informed that a curious state of affairs exists in connection with the elevator on Pinnacle street now being built by Mr. Pearce. The property on which the building was erected was purchased from the city, which was supposed to be the owner of it. Now it turns out that the land in question belongs to Mrs. (Dr.) Lister, and has been in possession of her family for 60 years. The city authorities were yesterday served with a notice by Mrs. Lister's legal adviser.

YOUR HOLIDAY TRIP.

If you are about to start on your holiday trip, or if you are staying at home, a nice rainproof coat is almost indispensable. If you go on a boat for a day or go down to the park for the band concert, you must have a coat of this kind. The best place in town to buy one is at the Oak Hall.

CIVIC COMMITTEES' REGULAR SESSION.

Estimates for Work of Various Committees Were Brought Down Last Night.

$7,000 for Public Works, $5,000 for Fire, $4,000 for Light.—Others Modest.

Gas Company Sends a Letter Which May Require Considerable Deliberation.

At the Civic Committee meetings last night there were present Ald. McFee, Sulman, Green, Chown, Panter, Paterson, Cooper and Sinclair.

WATER WORKS.

Ald. Sulman, Chairman, presided.

The accounts passed were as follows:

Pay Sheet	$ 78.47
Cartage Charges	15.15
Trenton Electric Co.	21.25
J. W. London	1.35
Downey Co.	136.18
J. W. Walker	39.16
G.T.R. Freight Bill	44.44
J. Morrison Brass Co.	9.16

It was recommended that the application of the Fish Company for a reduced flat rate for their shirt factory be referred to the Chairman and manager to report.

The application of Thos. Blaind for a goose neck water service was referred to the Chairman and manager, with power to act, and to enquire if others would take some kind of service in the neighborhood to cheapen the putting in of the service.

PUBLIC WORKS.

Ald. Panter, Chairman, presided over this Committee.

The accounts passed were as follows:

Pay Sheet No. 16	$ 417.83
J. W. Walker	93.26
Turner & Sons	10.80
C. C. Leavens	44.25

The Chairman stated that up to the present time, in round figures, $4,000 had been expended this year.

Ald. Sinclair moved that the Street Surveyor give an estimate of the cost of spreading gravel on Albion and a portion of Albert streets.—Carried.

It was decided to repair Coleman street from the footbridge to Moira street, and Moira street from Coleman street to the upper bridge, also Wickett street, and a portion of Church street.

A motion prevailed that Pinnacle street be repaired from Wharf St. to the railway crossing north of Victoria Avenue, at a cost of about $960.

Ald. Panter stated that the expenditure up to the present time and the work ordered to be done brought the estimate up to $5,700.

It was decided to make the estimate this year for Public Works $7,000.

A petition was presented in reference to an open drain on the corner of Strachan and Geddes street, which was in an unsanitary condition.

Ald. Cooper moved that the Street Surveyor be instructed to cover the drain.—Carried.

FIRE.

Ald. McFee, Chairman, presided over this Committee. The only account presented was from J. W. Walker for $5.14.

The estimate for the Fire Committee for the year was fixed at $5,000.

LIGHT.

Ald. Cooper, Chairman, presided over this Committee.

The Chairman recommended that a light be placed on Foundry St.—Agreed to.

The estimate for this Committee was placed at $4,000.

MARKET.

Ald. Green, Chairman, presided over this Committee.

The following accounts were passed:

A. W. Dickens	$3.50
J. W. Walker	1.75

The matter of renovating the City Clerk's apartments in the city building was left in the hands of the Chairman and Ald. Sulman and Paterson to report.

The estimates for the Committee was fixed at $900.

PARKS.

The following accounts were passed:

Geo. Frost	$ .75
E. McGrath	16.20
S. Sheehan	8.00

The estimate for this Committee was fixed at $700.

EXECUTIVE.

Ald. Chown, Chairman, presided over this Committee.

The following accounts were passed:

Miss Thompson, for typewriting	$ 1.25
J. W. London	4.40
Police Department	12.00
Intelligencer Co.	159.45

In speaking of advertising, Ald. Sinclair said a great many of our citizens think the assessment should be printed. He thought it would be a good idea and perhaps a benefit to future assessments.

The matter was allowed to drop.

A communication was read from Rev. G. R. Beamish, asking the Council to remit the taxes for 1902 upon the premises occupied by Mr. M. Kelleher, who was unable to pay them.

As the Council cannot remit taxes the solicitor was instructed to notify Mr. Beamish to that effect.

The Gas Company.

The following communication from Messrs. W. J. and Robert Thomson, in reference to the Gas Company, was read:

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Belleville.

"On behalf of the Belleville Gas Company, we wish to thank your honorable body for the friendly spirit of your resolution of the 27th ult., and would request as follows:

"That the Council pass a by-law declaring that the city will join the other stockholders of the Gas Company in an application to the Government or the Legislature for a renewal of the present charter, which expires on February of next year, as a new charter to parties taking over the stock and assets of the present company at the company's expense.

"That a by-law be passed granting a continuation of the present franchise for, say 30 years from the expiry of the old franchise.

"Also that the city will consent to exchange the stock at present held by the city in the Gas Company for one-third that amount in the Company under the renewal or new charter, or accept 33 1-2 cent. on the dollar for their stock.

"We would be satisfied to have a provision put in the renewal of the charter or the new charter securing the complete independence of the Gas Company from any other heating or lighting plant doing business in the city and if necessary to have the new stock certificates contain this on their face. Also to have it provided that in no case shall the price of fuel gas exceed $1.25 per 1000 cubic feet, leaving the price of lighting gas to be regulated by the natural competition with the electric.

"We would be satisfied to have a provision in the by-law granting the franchise that if the provisions are violated the franchise would be forfeited.

"In case the city desire to exchange its stock for stock in the Company to be formed under the renewed or new charter the city may be represented at all meetings of the shareholders by two representatives on the Board of Directors in respect of the city stock.

"Trusting your honorable body will consider this matter and pass the by-law necessary as soon as possible, as Mr. Dolan's term, as you are aware, terminates on September 1st, and our negotiations with outside capitalists are at a standstill pending the passing of the by-law."

A majority of the Aldermen thought the proposition was too important to be considered hurriedly, and as the hour was getting late, it was decided to refer the communication to a special committee to report. The committee named was Mayor Graham, Ald. Chown and Pope.

The Rolling Mills.

Ald. Sinclair asked if the rolling mills matter was to be considered again.

Ald. Chown said that nothing definite could be done.

The majority present agreed with Ald. Chown, and the matter was not further discussed.

The Committees then adjourned.

MUNYON

Cures Mrs. O'Leary

"I have had Rheumatism for four years in my knees and feet. I tried all kinds of medicines and liniments, but at the changes in the weather my Rheumatism was particularly hurtful to me. I procured a bottle of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure, and I am now cured. Professor Munyon is a great doctor, and a good one. I would probably never have been cured if I had not heard of his free distribution." —Mrs. John O'Leary, 90 St. George street, Montreal.

If you are sick, if you have indigestion, if you are nervous, if your liver or blood is out of order, if you have any kidney disease, if you have piles, or any ailment, ask your druggist for "Munyon's Guide to Health"; it is free and will tell you how to cure yourself for 25c. HIS ARDUOUS DUTIES AS FISHERY INSPECTOR — INTERESTING READING.

Committee Room 34,
House of Commons,
Wednesday July 22, 1903

Q.—Did you rent any hall while you were acting as a Census Commissioner? A.—That meant more in a general way that hall—

Q.—You can explain that afterwards. I do not want to curtail your explanation, but answer my question first; did you rent any hall in East Hastings as Census Commissioner? A.—I do not think what you would call a real hall.

Q.—So far so good. You did not rent a hall. Now give any explanation you like? A.—Well, for places that might be called as halls, perhaps as Deseronto.

Q.—Now tell me any other place that you rented that you might call a hall? A.—No, what I meant was that the one in Deseronto was really a hall.

Q.—This is Marigold's hall? A.—Yes.

Q.—Admitting that, but you notice that you have in your bill March 26th, paid Marigold [illegible], so you did pay him and charge it to make up the $105? A.—Well, when I got the whole thing done we began to get circulars and more instructions, as it were.

Q.—After you had finished your work you got more instructions? A.—It was not all done, but after I had made up my time this far we got more instructions and found out we were not going to be paid in the way we thought and we had to couple a lot of things and to put it kind of under the head of different things.

Q.—That is to say, after you had made up your bill, after your returns were all in you got information that you were not going to be paid as much as you expected, so somebody said to put in something else and you put it in? A.—Not exactly as much as we expected, but we had to put it in different forms.

Q.—You put $25 rent, and did not rent a single hall, that is a fact, is it not? A.—I do not remember just what they said. Of course that is an addition.

Q.—You say "rent of hall in said municipality $25," and you have not been able to tell me one single hall or room you rented except these you have already charged for? A.—What I meant was that after getting instructions again—you will understand I have not charged for a great many things. Now, I went to Deseronto and went to other places with respect to instructing the manufacturers. They did not finish theirs at the time and I instructed the Indian agent. We have a large Indian Reserve in that riding.

Q.—You carefully charged for that in your bill, too? A.—Not for the hall.

Q.—Did you have to have a hall for the instruction of the Indian agent. A.—I did not.

Q.—Do you mean to say you— A. I had to go there to that place.

Q.—After you had sent in your bill, having completed your work, under instructions from somebody, you made a lump charge in order to increase the bill, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q.—Although the bill had already been sent in by you at $105.00? A.—No, it had not been sent in.

Q.—It was made up in Belleville? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you brought it to Ottawa? A.—It was not sent in.

Q.—And the final items were added after you reached Ottawa, when the first item was $25 for hall rent, which you admit you did not expend. There is a charge here, stationery supplied to enumerators, $10. Did you supply them out of your own pocket? A.—I furnished them with a good deal of stationery.

Q.—Did you keep an account of the stationery you furnished them? A.—No.

Q.—Could you name the particular individuals to whom you gave it? A.—I gave it to nearly every one of them.

Q.—And yet you never thought of charging that until you came to Ottawa and got the suggestion you spoke of? A.—No, I did not get any suggestion.

DRUGGING WILL NOT CURE CATARRH.

This loathsome disease is caused by germs that invade the air passages of the head, throat and lungs, and can be cured only by inhalation of medicated air. Stomach medicines, atomizers, snuffs are ineffectual, because they fail to reach the cause of the trouble. Catarrhozone is successful, because it is inhaled to every part of the breathing organs, and has power to kill the germ, heals the inflamed tissues and prevents droppings in the throat. Catarrhozone treats more than one thousand square feet of the mucous surfaces with every breath taken through the inhaler and affords instant relief. It perfectly cures catarrh, asthma and bronchitis. Sold by druggists. Two months' treatment, price $1. Small size 25 cents, or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

MILLS ARE SOLD.

RUMOR SAYS SATISFACTORY TERMS HAVE BEEN REACHED, AND THAT WORK WILL BEGIN NEXT WEEK.

It is stated to-day that an agreement has been reached between Messrs. Carbonneau and Kirkwood, that the mills have been purchased by the former gentleman, and that operations will commence next week. Owing to going to press early, The Intelligencer is unable to verify this statement, which bears, at all events, the earmarks of probability.

ACUTE AND CHRONIC RHEUMATISM

are equally influenced by the almost magical pain-subduing power of Polson's Nerviline, equal in medicinal value to five times the quantity of any other rheumatic remedy. Nerviline cures because it reaches the source of the disease and drives it out of the system. Nerviline is an unusually good rheumatic cure, and makes many unusual cures. Just rub it in the next time you have an attack. The immediate result will surprise you. 25 cents.

The Day After.

Manifold are the songs that celebrate our holidays and anniversaries, plentiful are the pages filled with suitable selections and appropriate refrains commemorating this great day or that remarkable occasion. Lives there a holiday so humble that it has not its host of eulogists? Is there a memorable time that has escaped due recognition?

Yes, one—and that of such incalculable importance that it should stand preeminent among red-letter days: a day the value of which none may ignore; the vast significance of which all must acknowledge; a day that plays a vital part in every life and makes or mars the history of every soul. It is a petty day of judgment. A day that tests our passions and tries our strength and patience, and teaches us the worth of all other red-letter days, none of which may dare rival this one in might and majesty.

It is a strange omission that the "Day After," supreme and epoch-making period of time, should have failed to receive the homage which is its just prerogative.

The Day After the feast, we run slight risk of overrating its value. The Day After the ball, we can sit down to analyze our partners. The Day After the wedding begins a new regime, for better or for worse. The Day After the funeral the bereaved realize that the beloved one has departed.

That is the day that tests, and tells, and laughs, and weeps, and registers its date upon the soul.

The battle surely tries the general's skill and strength, but the Day After reveals his character and greatness.

The coronation is a mighty spectacle, but the Day After we learn the measure of the king.

Upon a summer day we shout the wondrous victory of Manila, but the Day After perchance we may deplore the burden of the Philippines.

What mean those two great words "success" and "defeat" save in the light of the Day After?

The angel with the flaming sword drives Adam and Eve from Paradise, and then begins the story of the world.

A climax is much oftener a beginning than an ending. We follow a series of great events up to that instant of triumph or despair, and then we end abruptly; such a conclusion is verily artistic!

The curtain falls as Phyllis murmurs "yes," but still the audience wonders if the glad ending will really prove so, when tested by the clear prosaic daylight that is to come.

Ah, vital day of days, we are incapable of measuring our other days except by you!

Breathing your calm tranquillity, we learn regret and thankfulness. In your judicial presence we recognize success and failure, which in the rush of swift events and stirring action we are unable to distinguish.

And at the end, we speak of "Death" with lowered tones and dim forebodings, yet 'tis not Death we fear, but the Day After.—From the "Contributors' Club."

Why Kipling Wouldn't Lecture.

A very characteristic Kipling letter has again been brought into print by the death of Major Pond, the manager of celebrities. It seems that in 1895, while Mr. Kipling was living in Vermont, the major tried to get him to make a lecture tour of the country, offering compensation well proportioned to the author's celebrity, then at its height. Mr. Kipling evidently considered the proposition with some care, but only to reject it, for he wrote:

"There is such a thing as paying one hundred and twenty five cents for a dollar, and, though I suppose there is money in the lecturing business, it seems to me that the bother, the fuss, the being at everybody's beck and call, the night journeys, and so on, make it very dear. I've seen a few men who've lived through the fight, but they did not look happy. I might do it as soon as I have two mortgages on my house, a lien on the horses and a bill of sale on the furniture, and writer's cramp in both hands; but at present I'm busy and contented to go on with the regular writing business. You forget that I have already wandered over most of the States, and there isn't enough money in sight to hire me to face again some of the hotels and some of the railway systems that I have met with. America is a great country, but she is not made for lecturing in."

"The Best-laid Plans——"

A story is being told in London about a man prominent in public life, whose name may not be mentioned, which illustrates the insecurity of human preparations. He was planning an entertainment, on an elaborate scale, to be given to various friends in the neighborhood of his country-seat. Unfortunately, his nearest neighbor, a close relative, is highly uncongenial to himself and his intimates, and he racked his brains to devise a scheme by which he might avoid the necessity of inviting the undesirable cousin to be among his guests.

"I have it!" he announced to his wife at breakfast on the morning of the event. "I'll send him some tickets for the play to-night in town. Of course he'll be delighted, as he seldom has an opportunity of going to the theater."

The tickets were accordingly sent, and the host, with an easy conscience, proceeded to enjoy the company of his friends. But his satisfaction was of short duration. At the height of the festivities in walked the objectionable neighbor.

"Such a stupid mistake you made," he announced, as he approached his cousin; "as soon as I heard about your party I knew that you must have sent me the tickets for the wrong night, so I got them changed for to-morrow evening and came right over here as soon as I could."

Slow.

Mr. Perkins—That's a pretty likely lookin' boy you have there, Sam.

Mr. Dobbs—He's good enough if he wasn't so all-fired slow; why, if that boy had a' had the job buildin' the ark we wouldn't a' had the flood yit.

Reggie's Conclusion.

"Oh, mamma!" shouted little Reggie, as he ran to his mother in great glee, "what do you think? I was just over there where they're putting up the circus, and they're filling the ring all full of breakfast food."—"Smart Set."

Quick & Robertson's for Fine Clothes

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard--built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

YACHTING

Lipton and the Cup.

In all sporting history there is nothing to duplicate the manly and the courageous efforts of Sir Thomas Lipton to win back for the Old Country the cup emblematic of the yachting supremacy of the world, which she lost just 52 years ago.

When he brought over Shamrock I. it is estimated that at the end of the third race he had spent $1,000,000.

Shamrock II. cost him a second $1,000,000, and Shamrock III. it is stated will involve a total cost of $1,250,000 more.

With the present challenger there is a fleet of seven other vessels and 202 men are on the pay roll, with a daily cost in maintenance of $1,200. For docking Shamrock I. and Shamrock II. last week Sir Thomas alone paid $5,000, and that operation will be repeated twice before the races begin, or in all another $10,000.

To the 63 picked men who will sail Shamrock III., this prince of sportsmen has promised that if the cup is won he will pension each of them for life, young though many of them are.

And what are the chances this time?

Most authorities agree that they are excellent.

Shamrock I. in her three races was beaten 10 minutes 8 seconds in the first test; did not finish in the second test because of a mishap, and lost in the third test by 6 minutes and 34 seconds.

Shamrock II. lost in the first test by one minute, 20 seconds; second test 3 minutes 35 seconds, and third test by 41 seconds.

That was getting pretty close to things, and Shamrock III. is admittedly a faster boat than her predecessor.

Three and a quarter million dollars is a lot of money to expend for the purpose of securing a trophy valued at $150, but the outlay has not only benefitted vast numbers of people on both sides of the Atlantic, but in addition it has given Sir Thomas an opportunity to do more genuine work on behalf of establishing cordial relations between the United States and English sporting worlds than any other man has ever accomplished.

Here's hoping that Shamrock III. will be successful, and if she isn't we have the word of Sir Thomas that he will build Shamrock IV.

COULD NOT HOLD A LEGAL MEETING

But the Council Met in Special Session and Talked Over the Latest

Rolling Mills Proposition--French Syndicate May Buy and Operate Them

If the Council Returns to Mr, Kirkwood that $2,500 Forfeit Money.

A special meeting of the City Council was called for 4.30 yesterday afternoon, and when that hour arrived there were present Mayor Graham and Ald. McFee, Panter, Chown, Sulman, Paterson and Sinclair.

Acting City Clerk Mikel read the notice calling the meeting, and stated that he had been unable to notify Ald. Marsh, who was out of the city.

The Mayor said that, as all the members had not been notified the Council could not legally transact any business, but there was no reason why the members present could not talk over the matter for which they were called together, namely the consideration of matters connected with the rolling mills. He understood that Col. Lazier was present in that connection, and he would ask him to address the Council.

Col. Lazier's Remarks.

Col. Lazier said he, as a citizen of Belleville, was interested in seeing the rolling mills started, and detailed a conversation he had at the Sandbanks with Mr. S. J. Ritchie, of Ohio, concerning them, the latter gentleman being also interested. The Colonel then outlined the facts of the case, which, briefly, are as follows: A Mr. Carbonneau, of Paris, acting for a French syndicate, desired to purchase the mills from Mr. Kirkwood, and offered $65,000 for them. A previous offer of $62,500 had been made and refused. The last offer was as high as the syndicate would go, though more was asked. Mr. Kirkwood was willing to sell the mills for $65,000 providing the city returned the $2,500 forfeit money which they now held. As a means of bringing the parties together and securing the operation of the mills, the Colonel suggested that the time for the forfeiture of the $2,500 in question be extended from April 1, 1903, to December 1, 1903. He did not think the $2,500 should stand in the way of securing the sale and operation of the mills. The parties purchasing the mills would, in the opinion of their expert, have to expend some $20,000 in order to put the mills in first-class shape.

Some Questions and Answers.

Mayor Graham—"Does Mr. Carbonneau intend to operate the mills himself?"

Col. Lazier.—"I understand that it is a syndicate who will operate the mills."

The Mayor stated that it would be much more satisfactory if the Council had something definite from Mr. Carbonneau.

Ald. Sinclair asked if the deal hinged on the $2,500.

Col. Lazier.—"I certainly think it does."

Ald. Chown is Emphatic.

Ald. Chown said that this looked something like another bunco game. He did not see how the Council could touch the money, as the agreement distinctly stated that the mills were to be in operation by the 1st of April, 1903, and the by-law ratifying that agreement was voted upon by the ratepayers. How could the Council extend the time?

Col. Lazier said Mr. Kirkwood had stated that he would not sell unless he got back the $2,500. He (the speaker) believed the Council had power to extend the time.

The Mayor referred to the demand which had been made to the bank to have the money transferred to the sinking fund, but the matter, he believed, was still in abeyance, as the bank had not the opinion of its solicitor yet upon the matter.

The City Solicitor stated that he did not know whether the bank had yet received the opinion of Mr. Biggar upon the matter.

Col. Lazier said he could not see what the city would gain by refusing to accede to what Mr. Kirkwood desired.

The Mayor said that all were anxious to have the mills run, and they did not want any more fishing business. If the Council had the authority to refund the money and the mills were operated, perhaps the citizens would not object to refunding it.

Col. Lazier—"Give the parties another chance to operate the mills."

Ald. McFee said that if a resolution would be legal he would move one to the effect that in the opinion of the Council it would not be wise to refund the money. He was totally opposed to refunding the money. If the parties were in earnest in the matter of a sale he did not believe the $2,500 would stand in the way. If Mr. Kirkwood did not sell the mills or operate them another matter to be considered was the withdrawing of the bonus. Mr. Kirkwood, he thought, had played with the Council long enough in this matter. If he sold the mills for $65,000 would he not be making a good margin over and above what he had paid for them?

Ald. Sinclair stated that if Mr. Kirkwood sold the mills for $65,000 he would be making $18,000, as it was stated that he had only paid $47,000 for them. Mr. Kirkwood some two weeks ago was perfectly satisfied to pay the $2,500 forfeit, and he believed that the deal would go through, and it would not depend upon the $2,500, either. Mr. Carbonneau had agreed to pay $65,000 for the mills after offers of $60 000 and $62,500 had been refused.

Ald. Panter said that all the members of the Council had considerable feeling upon this matter. Mr. Kirkwood stated three times in this city that if the ratepayers voted yea on the by-law he would operate the mills on the 1st of April, 1903, and if the mills were not operated the $2,500 would be forfeited to the city. Mr. Kirkwood, he thought, had deceived the citizens of Belleville in this matter. He did not believe that the $2,500 stood in the way of selling the mills.

Ald. Sulman said he would be in favor of refunding the $2,500 if it meant the running of the mills, but it was not clear that such was the case.

Ald. Paterson thought the sale would be made irrespective of the refunding of the $2,500.

The Mayor said that he had a conversation with Messrs. Kirkwood and McKinnon, and they considered they had been placed in a false light in this matter. They had endeavored to sell the mills and had paid out considerable money in endeavoring to get purchasers. They had apparently been honest in their endeavors, but they had not the means to operate the mills.

Ald. McFee asked if Mr. Wills had not stated that $65,000 had been offered Mr. Kirkwood for the mills.

The Mayor—"I think not."

Ald. Chown said the sale was a matter between the parties. The $2,500 forfeiture belongs to the ratepayers and he believed that any ratepayer could object to their refunding the money, thus making it illegal to do so.

Col. Lazier stated that Messrs. Kirkwood and McKinnon intended to operate the mills, but shortly after purchasing they had a serious loss, which financially embarrassed them. The deal would not go through, he was certain, unless they got $67,500. He had acted in this manner in the city's interests, and it was the second time he had been turned down by the Council, once before in the Shibley deal.

Ald. McFee said there was no feeling against Col. Lazier. As far as the Shibley deal was concerned the citizens at a public meeting turned it down.

At this stage of the proceedings the Mayor announced the matter would be taken up again at the meeting of the Executive Committee, and something definite might be arrived at.

This concluded the business and the Council adjourned.

Belleville, July 23rd, 1903.

A. M. McDonell, Esq., General Agent Manufacturers' Life Insurance company, Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I beg to express my appreciation to you and to the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company for the very prompt adjustment of my claim under the policies of insurance in your company on the life of my son, the late Robert E. Leslie.

The claim was filed with you on the 16th of July and I was most agreeably surprised to be advised by my solicitor, Mr. E. J. Butler, on the 22nd of July, that the cheques for the full amount of the policies were in your hands for payment, and I duly received the same from you on the following day.

As an evidence of thorough business methods and fair dealing with the policy holders, I think your company cannot be too highly commended, and I sincerely trust you and your company will continue in that success so highly merited.

Believe me,
Yours very truly,
MARGARET LESLIE.

PEN PICTURES OF PEOPLE YOU MEET

ON A BELLEVILLE STREET.

ALD. D. V. SINCLAIR.

Ald. Sinclair is not the best looking man in the City Council, but he is certainly one of the best natured. With his jolly, clean shaven face, figure rather inclined to embonpoint, as our friend the Professor would say, and keen eyes that occasionally twinkle with unctuous humor, the worthy Alderman is a well-known figure on our streets. The subject of our little sketch entered the Council some four years ago, when it began to dawn on the minds of the electors that "young blood" was needed in that body. Recognizing in Ald. Sinclair a lover of things beautiful and an admirer of nature, the Council elected him to the responsible position of Chairman of Parks. So carried away with the honor was the worthy Alderman that he dropped out of the Council the next year, returning, however, a year later, when he was appointed Chairman of Industries, a position which he has since filled quite full. Of all the industrious people you ever saw, the Chairman of Industries certainly, during his first year's tenure of office, was "the limit." From morn till dewy eve he talked industries; the money he spent in paper, envelopes and stamps would keep a boarding-school miss in candy for years, the said paper, etc., being used to lay before various promoters the advantages of Belleville as a desirable place to locate. There is no exaggeration in saying that, had Ald. Sinclair's success been commensurate with his efforts, this city would to-day have had Hamilton, Brantford and various other places left at the post, as the sporting editor would say. But the industries didn't come, and gradually disappointment began to tell on Ald. Sinclair, though he did not, like Shakespeare's heroine, "Let concealment, like a worm i' the bud, feed on his damask cheek." He did his best; what man can do more? Finally he got reconciled to the situation. Now, if a newspaper man asks the Chairman of Industries if there is anything doing in the industrial situation, he smiles a sad, sweet smile and says, "Well, I don't think there is anything for publication today." It can truly be said that during Ald. Sinclair's two years and a half in the Council he has been led by nobody and driven by very few. His fervid eloquence may not have influenced many of his brother Aldermen, but he has had his say on all great public questions, from the dismissal of the Cow Inspector to the proposal to erect a public bath, and his opinions have been voiced with no uncertain sound, and in sharp, vigorous, incisive language. His votes, in nine cases out of ten have been in accordance with what was supposed to be public opinion. Ald. Sinclair was born in Madoc village; he confesses to being thirty-eight years old, and twenty-one years ago came to this beautiful city to make his fortune. Whether he has made it yet or not we don't know; ask him the next time you see him. He was educated at the Madoc High School and at Ontario Business College, this city. In fraternal society work he takes a prominent part, being a member of the Sons of Scotland and a Free Mason. In the first named society he has been high up, though so far as we can learn he neither plays the bagpipes, dances the Highlan' Fling, wear kilts or sings "Scots Wha Hae." However, as he eates oatmeal for breakfast every morning, and wears a Tam o' Shanter every time there is the least excuse for it, he easily qualifies for membership. As a Free Mason Ald. Sinclair is sure to rise; he is one of the kind of men you cannot keep down; he would go up if he were only a hod carrier. About the worst thing one can say concerning Ald. Sinclair is that he is a Liberal. As a slight offset to that defect, however, he is president of the local Y.M.C.A. and an elder in John St. Presbyterian Church. In all fairness his character may be thus summed up: A quick-witted, warm-hearted, well-meaning man, who has worked hard in the interests of this city, and who may be Mayor some day—if he changes his politics.

ASSAY OFFICE NOTES.

STATEMENT OF WORK DONE AT LOCAL INSTITUTION DURING JULY.

The statement of the laboratory work at the Ontario Government Assay Office, conducted by the Bureau of Mines, show a total receipt of 98 samples for the month of July.

The samples sent in for assay and analysis aggregated 85, on which 302 determinations were made. Of these determinations 45 were gold, 19 silver, 8 copper, 5 nickel, 2 platinum, 7 iron, etc.

Six samples of iron ore were received from the Rainy River and Nipissing districts for partial or complete examination as to smelting qualities, on which 17 determinations were made.

Twelve samples of limestones and clays were examined as to suitability for the manufacture of cement, pottery, fire brick, etc.

Thirteen samples were for identification and report as to probable commercial value, no charge being made on those brought personally to the office.

The Bureau of Mines required 211 determinations, on which no fees were collected, while the custom work for the public done at actual cost, amounted to $90.

Inquiries have been made by a New York firm who desire to obtain non metallic minerals, as barite felspar, fluorite, etc., in eastern Ontario.

The office supplies, free of charge, shipping bags and mailing envelopes to those desiring to send in samples.

WEARY BRAIN WORKERS.

Fagged out, ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snap's gone! The buoyancy that made work a pleasure—that's gone too. The doctor would tell you that you are run down, not eating enough nor digesting enough. Your stomach needs aid, your digestion needs a bracer too. Your blood requires phosphorus and iron that it may be formed readily. The Metropolitan Stock Exchange.

INCORPORATED, MASS., 1890.

CAPITAL, $100,000 (Full Paid).

Stocks, Bonds, Grain, Cotton and Provisions bought for cash and immediate delivery, or carried on deposit of satisfactory security.

OFFICES, NO. 34, Bridge St., - Belleville, Ont.

The great advantage to local investors in placing their business with the Metropolitan consists in the fact that they have contracts with this strong financial institution itself, instead of with a local broker; thereby eliminating entirely the risk which may be involved in the question of a local broker's financial strength. Each commitment exists upon its individual merit, and cannot be affected by the short comings of the holders of other contracts nor even of the local manager. The local manager is the servant of this exchange, and the exchange is bound by his acts; consequently, the investor having the evidence that he has paid to a given point, his commitment is good to that point no matter what happens; and this is a valuable consideration more so than most people imagine.

Eat It and Forget It

It is worth while to be able to eat a suitable amount of food and then forget that you have eaten it. Those who suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia are never able to do this. Food sours, ferments, or gives distress in many cases for hours after eating. This is a condition which we believe to be unnecessary and are willing to guarantee Carter's Dyspepsia Cure to cure all forms of indigestion, no matter whether the case be an acute or chronic one. This remedy has been tried by hundreds of people in this locality and has given universal satisfaction. Price, 50c a bottle.

Turks Rout Bulgarians.

Salonica, Aug. 8.—Four battalions of Turkish troops, supported by artillery, Thursday met and routed a body of 1,700 Bulgarians near Sarovitch.

French and Moors Clash.

Madrid, Aug. 8.—A fight has taken place between French and Moorish troops near the village of Beni-Fatt. The Moors, who were pursuing a body of Kabyle insurgents, entered French territory in spite of the protests of the French frontier post, and a conflict ensued. Three French and two Moorish soldiers were killed and a number were wounded.

CHARGED WITH ARSON.

Aunt and Three Nephews Arrested—The Boys Confess.

Cornwall, Aug. 8.—Mrs. Sydney Gallinger, of Newington, and her three nephews, Thos., Cory and Percy St. Pierre, from near Aultsville, were incarcerated in Cornwall jail last night, to await trial for an attempt to burn the residence of Mrs. Alguire, a neighbor of Mrs. Gallinger. The boys broke into Mrs. Alguire's house, smashed the furniture, and set fire to the place. This, they claim, they did at the instigation of their aunt, Mrs. Gallinger. The fire was extinguished before much damage was done. The boys were arrested, and confessed their crime, implicating Mrs. Gallinger. By Magistrates James Martin and George F. Jardine, the quartette were sent to Cornwall to await trial.

Chimney Fell on Him.

Southampton, Aug. 8. — William Strickland, an aged farmer, living nearby, was struck by a falling chimney and had his left arm broken and was otherwise seriously, perhaps fatally, injured.

IN DELAY IS DANGER

A fatal ending often follows a neglected weakness of the kidneys. Watch their action, and as soon as it changes from normal, or you have any of the following symptoms:

Backache, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, Puffiness under the Eyes, Dropsy of the Extremities, Bowel or Urinary Irregularity, Rheumatic Aches or Pains,

Use Trade-Mark Bu-Ju The Kidney Pill That Cures

All Kidney Ailments and Rheumatism. For rheumatism is due to excess of uric acid in the blood, which is expelled by Bu-Ju and the disease eradicated.

Dyspepsia, neuralgia and headache are often caused by disordered kidneys. These organs are the sewers of the body, and if they become clogged or weakened dangerous results follow at once. The poisonous matter re-enters the blood and passes through the entire system.

UNTIL THE KIDNEYS ARE MADE WELL, YOU CAN NEVER BE WELL

The latest product of medical experience and skill in kidney and allied ailments is found in Bu-Ju. All the old and tested remedial agents, and all the new discoveries, are utilized in its composition. It is the up-to-date remedy for kidney diseases and rheumatism of whatever character. Bu-Ju is put up in red and green boxes; 50 pills, 50 cents. All druggists sell it. Do not accept worthless substitutes.

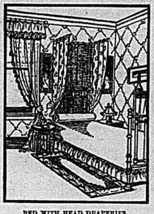
HOME DECORATION.

SOME NEAT ARRANGEMENTS OF THE MODERN BEDROOM.

Position and Clever Draping of the Bed—When There Is No Closet In the Room—Dresser, Washstand and Toilet Table.

The bed, which is the principal piece of furniture in the sleeping chamber, should be given the choice position, so that there may be a complete circulation of air around it, yet the occupant not exposed from direct draft. This can be easily managed even in a small room by the use of swinging rods and draperies, as shown in our first illustration. The rods or poles may be obtained in brass or wood and may be hung in such a manner that they may be pushed to and fro as readily as a door. The draperies are suspended from these on brass or wooden rings and may be looped back in the daytime, but at night hang straight down, cutting off the draft from the sleeper's head yet giving it free access to his lungs.

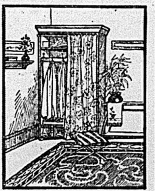


BED WITH HEAD DRAPERIES.

A bedroom without a closet—a good large closet at that—is a mistake, but fortunately not an irretrievable one, for there are many ways to make up for this deficiency, none, of course, quite as handy as the genuine receptacle.

An arrangement pictured consists of four crosswise boards held by two upright ones, the latter forming the sides and the others the top and bottom of the closet, and two shelves, one for hats and the other for shoes. The upper shelf is twelve inches deep, the lower one ten. This frame, being pushed close to the wall, needs no backing, nor is it necessary to screw hooks into the wall, as narrow cross strips of wood may be nailed across the back from upright to upright and the hooks put in these. Any preferred style of curtain which harmonizes with the other furnishings may be hung on a rod across the front, but the open back, although the closet is placed against the wall, requires something to keep out the dust, and this something can consist of a piece of thick linen or bedticking tacked closely over the opening. This may be washed when desired. A molding may give a finish to the top of the closet or the top may be used as still a third shelf. Whatever portion of frame is visible should be painted to match the woodwork of the room.

Dressers, as bureaus are now called, are made low and wide, and the newest design has the swell front and a large round, oval or square mirror. Washstands, when the room is occupied by two persons, are made large enough to accommodate two sets of toilet china. In some bedrooms the bureau is dispensed with altogether and a high, wide chiffonier and a toilet table used instead, or in a very large room the three articles of furniture appear.—Designer.



SUBSTITUTE FOR A CLOSET.

Jewelry Fashions and Fancies.

Variations on the fob for both men and women never cease.

Fans in the Louis XV., Louis XVI. or empire style are much sought for.

A man's tie clip, very much up to date, has a green heart shaped stone, surrounded with brilliants, sunk in its face.

Turquoise and pink tourmaline in alternation furnish a pretty color scheme in the decoration of gilt purse frames.

Sweet peas, roses or a cluster of flowers of several kinds, tied with a ribbon bow, represent a pretty brooch in enamel work.

College seals in rose gold or enameled finish, to be worn on the fob, furnish a fresh and taking ornament. They are also made with a pin attachment that permits them to serve as a lady's brooch.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, AUGUST 10, 1903 NO. 84

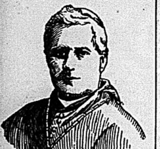
BRILLIANT SCENE AT ROME

Great Throng Received and Acclaim New Pope in St. Peter's.

His Holiness Was Tranquil and Passed Through the Fatiguing Ceremonies With Grace and Dignity—Received the Pontifical Pallium and Donned the Triple Crown Amid the Acclamations of the Vast Multitude.

Rome, Aug. 10.—The ceremony of the coronation of Pope Pius X. took place yesterday in the Basilica of St. Peter's, in the presence of the princes and high dignitaries of the church, diplomats and Roman nobles, and with all the solemnity and splendor associated with this, the most magnificent rite in the Roman Catholic Church.

At 6 a.m. the ringing bells announced the imminent opening of doors. A gigantic crowd had waited for hours and the police and Italian soldiers had a difficult task to maintain order as the crushing and fatigue had begun to tell upon the patience of the people. When the doors opened, the inrush was terrible, many of whom started from the bottom steps outside were lifted off their feet and carried into the cathedral. It was a great human torrent let loose. Women fainted in comparatively large numbers and even men were overcome by the heat, but no serious accidents were reported.



POPE PIUS X.

Inside the Vatican palace there was no less movement and bustle as the Papal procession, composed of about 500 people, was formed. The Pope seemed to be the only tranquil one among them all. He rose unusually early and took a few turns in the Vatican garden. Then he allowed himself to be dressed by the cardinals. He evinced no nervousness.

The central figure in the long cortege was Pius X. borne in the Sedia Gestatoria. His heavy white robes and the red and gold mitre were worn without an effort. Over the Pontiff's head a canopy was held by eight men, while the historic ostrich feather fans with peacock tips gave a touch of barbaric splendor to western eyes.

The Pontiff was exceedingly pale, but composed his emotion. Cardinal Rampolla advanced with dignity, knelt and kissed the foot of the Pontiff. He then presented in a firm voice the wishes and greetings of the Chapter of St. Peter. The Pontiff answering in a trembling voice, warmly thanked the chapter for their well wishes. The procession then reformed and proceeded to the door of the Basilica. On the appearance of the Pontiff himself it seemed as though the people would seek to carry him in their arms, so great was their enthusiasm. Cries of "Pius, our Pope, our father," and "Long live Pius X." were raised, notwithstanding the large placards posted all over the Basilica, saying: "Acclamations are forbidden."

The cries were continued until the Pontiff was compelled to rise and bless the multitude, and at the same time he made a sign for more reverential behavior.

A quaint ceremony was then carried out. The master of ceremonies knelt three times before the Pontiff, each time lighting a handful of hemp which surmounted a silver torch, and as the flame flashed and then died out he chanted in Latin, "Holy Father, thus passeth away the world's glory."

The procession then proceeded, the Pope's face meanwhile illuminated by a smile. At the chapel of the sacrament, there was another halt and His Holiness left the Sedia Gestatoria, and prayed awhile at the altar. On re-entering the chair, he was carried to the chapel of St. Gregory, where he officiated at a mass.

From the throne Pius X. surrounded by his suite, walked to the high altar, standing over the crypt of St. Peter, into which meanwhile Cardinal Macchi descended to pray. Returning from the crypt Cardinal Macchi placed upon the shoulders of the Pope the pontificial pallium and attached it with three golden jewelled pins.

Mass was then celebrated with great pomp and ceremony, the voice of the Pope becoming gradually firm and sonerous until it was even audible in the most distant corner of the immense church. The Holy Father then walked to the shrine of St. Peter for the culminating rites of the extremely fatiguing ceremony. The whole sacred college gathered about the Pope singing "Palestrine's corona aurea super caput ejus," while the choir burst forth into song, giving the dramatic touch. Cardinal Macchi then recited the "Peter Noster" and offered the following prayer:

"Omnipotent and ever eternal God, dignitary of the clergy and author of sovereignty, grant thy servant, Pius X. grace to fruitfully govern thy church so that he, who by thy clemency, becomes and is crowned as father of kings and rector of all the faithful, through thy wise disposition may govern well."

"Amen" rang out from all corners of the Cathedral.

Cardinal Deacon Segna then raised the Pontiff's mitre and Senior Cardinal Deacon Macchi placed on the venerable white head the triple crown. At this moment the church was filled with the ringing of bells, the blowing of silver trumpets, the triumphant strains of the choir and the acclamations of the multitude, which could no longer be repressed.

Pope Pius was quite overcome and had scarcely strength left to impart the apostolic benediction. Cardinals Macchi and Segna granted a plenary indulgence to all present, and the procession then reformed and left the Basilica in the same form as it came.

Four Drowned at St. John.

St. John, N. B., Aug. 10.—Yesterday afternoon four youths lost their lives in the Magaguadavie River by the capsizing of a sailboat, about two miles below St. George, N. B. The dead are: John Chambers, aged 20, and George Phillips, aged 15, of St. George; Guy Henry, aged 19, and his brother, Gilbert, aged 12, of Caithness, near St. George. A fifth boy, Charles Chambers, was saved.

A Murderous Lunatic at Large.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—Word reached here yesterday that young Lussier, who attempted to kill his father, the Seigneur of Varrens, and ex-M. P. P. for Vercheres, and who was sent to the Longue Pointe Asylum, has escaped from that institution and every effort has been made to capture him, but without success.

A. F. PIRIE SHOOTS HIMSELF

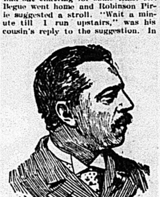
Found by His Cousin, Who Heard a Shot While Waiting For Him to Go For a Stroll, With Blood Streaming From a Hole in His Temple—Held Photograph of His Dead Wife in His Hand—His Newspaper Career.

Hamilton, Aug. 10.—Alex. F. Pirie, editor of The Dundas Banner, who is well known all over the Dominion, shot himself Saturday evening about 9 o'clock. At a late hour last evening the doctors held out a faint hope of his recovery.

It is supposed that grief over his wife's death led him to make the attempt on his life. He had spent the evening with his cousin, Robinson Pirie, of the W. E. Sanford Company, and T. H. Begue. The three had sat chatting for some time. Mr. Begue went home and Robinson Pirie suggested a stroll. "Wait a minute till I run upstairs," was his cousin's reply to the suggestion. In a few minutes Robinson Pirie was startled to hear a shot. He hurried upstairs to find his cousin stretched out on the floor with the blood streaming from a bullet hole in his temple. The wounded man had evidently placed the weapon close to his head, for the bullet went right through the brain. Robinson Pirie rushed out for Dr. Ross. When they returned they found the injured man sitting up on the bed. He held a photograph of his dead wife in his hand and was looking fondly at it. In answer to questions, he made muttered replies, in which his wife's name was repeated over and over again, but he could give no connected account of what led him to shoot himself. He remained in this semi-conscious condition until about 1 o'clock yesterday morning.



A. F. PIRIE.

Dr. Olmstead of this city went to Dundas yesterday morning, and with Dr. Ross attempted to remove the bullet. They did not succeed, although they relieved the pressure on the brain, and they say there is just a chance of his getting over it.

Before coming to Dundas Mr. Pirie was editor of The Toronto Telegram. He was also connected with The Montreal Star. He was well-known as an after-dinner speaker. His wife's death occurred two years ago. For a long time after he refused to attend anything in the way of a public meeting, although he was much sought after. Last winter when the Young Liberal Club held a banquet, he consented to speak, and made one of his characteristic speeches and as usual brought down the house. He had just returned to Dundas after spending several weeks in Brandon, where he was editing a paper and stumping the country on behalf of the Liberal interests. It has been hinted that overwork in this connection and disappointment at the result had something to do with the attempt on his life, but his friends scout the idea.

Mr. Pirie is about 50 years of age. He has a family of four sons, three of whom are in Manitoba.

The news of the affair created a sensation in this city, where he has hundreds of friends who could hardly believe the story.

At 11 o'clock last night Mr. Pirie was still alive, but was unconscious.

JAMES S. LOCKIE SUICIDES.

Manager of the Imperial Trusts Co. of Canada Shoots Himself.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—James S. Lockie, manager of the Imperial Trusts Company of Canada, with offices at 32 Church street, shot himself on Saturday afternoon at his residence, 2 Queen's Park. Mr. Lockie has been under treatment for some time past and for four days prior to his death had been confined to his bed. The coroner decided that there was no necessity for any investigation, and signed the death certificate.

By Poison and Gun.

Aylmer, Aug. 10.—Word has just reached here that Alex. Marshall, a prominent farmer of Orwell, a small place about two and a half miles from here, took poison and afterwards shot and killed himself. He was found yesterday morning in his own field.

30 Weeks Strike Ended.

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 10.—The strike of trolleymen which began thirty weeks ago ended yesterday.

BURNED CAPTIVES ALIVE

Insurgents Attack Djivarok and Massacre Inhabitants.

Displayed Furious Rage and Ferocity—Mussulman Inhabitants Are Greatly Dismayed—Eight More Battalions Ordered to the Vilayet of Monastir—Greek Peasants Killed—Russian Consul at Monastir Murdered by a Policeman.

Constantinople, Aug. 10.—Fresh despatches from Hilmi Pacha, Inspector-General of the Reform Government, announce that insurgents in large numbers in the District of Clisuri, Vilayet of Monastir, attacked the village of Djivarok, near Kastoria, and massacred the inhabitants, including women and children, and then furiously attacked neighboring villages, taking many captives, some of whom were burned alive. Some Greek peasants were also killed in one of the Kasas of the Vilayet of Monastir, and in the Vilayet of Okhridaby insurgents likewise attacked some Mussulman villages. They everywhere displayed rage and frocity, and the Mussulman inhabitants were greatly dismayed.

The Government is taking every measure possible to suppress the uprising. Eight more battalions have been ordered to the Vilayet of Monastir. M. Maurocordato, the Greek Minister, has made representations to the Porte on behalf of the Greek subjects.

M. Rostkovski, the Russian Consul at Monastir, it turns out, was murdered at 10 o'clock Saturday morning by a policeman who was on duty outside the Consulate. The assassin was arrested. The Grand Vizier and the Minister of Foreign Affairs, called on the Russian Ambassador and expressed the Government's deep regret over the occurrence.

TWENTY OF MOB KILLED.

London, Aug. 10.—The Standard prints a despatch from Kieff, Russia, dated Wednesday, which says that day before all the factory hands at Nikolaieff struck and that serious disturbances ensued. Twenty were killed and 60 wounded. The governor sustained a scalp wound. Half a battalion of Cossacks, summoned from Odessa, helped to suppress the tumult.

Situation Alarming.

Vienna, Aug. 10.—An Odessa despatch to The Trieste Il Picolo describes the situation as alarming. It says that the dockers were sacking shops and throwing their contents into the sea. The rioters put the chief of police to flight, tore down anti-strike proclamations and threatened to set the city on fire. At the first shot by the troops the Jewish population became panic-stricken and many fled afoot seaward, as the railroads were stopped.

JULY FRUIT CROP REPORT.

Apples Seem to Be Plentiful Throughout Eastern Canada.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—The July fruit crop report of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, just issued, says:

Weather conditions on the whole have been favorable for July, and hence there is no marked change since the June report.

Winter apples will be a full crop in Nova Scotia, medium to full crop in Southern Ontario, Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario Districts. In Eastern Ontario and Quebec the crop is light.

Early apples are a medium to full crop everywhere except in Quebec.

Pears will be a light crop, except in part of Southern Ontario and Nova Scotia.

Plums are a medium to full crop in all plum growing sections, with not more than the usual amount of rot.

Peaches promise well in Essex and the Niagara peninsula.

Grapes are a medium crop, except in Essex and Kent, where they are almost a complete failure.

Dr. McLaughlin, Ex-M.P.P., Dead.

Bowmanville, Aug. 10.—After an illness of nearly three years Dr. James W. McLaughlin of this town passed away at an early hour yesterday morning of Bright's disease. He began practice of medicine at Enniskillen in 1861 on graduation from Toronto University, where he was gold medalist in his class. In 1871 and 1872 he took post-graduate courses in Edinburgh, and at his final examinations received the degrees of M.R.C.M. and M.R.C.S. He was for some years an examiner in Toronto University, and was a member of the Medical Council of Ontario at his death. In 1874 he moved from Enniskillen to Bowmanville. Deceased represented this riding in the Ontario Legislature as a Liberal for three Parliaments. On retiring from the Legislature he was appointed Registrar for West Durham.

Sunday School in Wreck.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 10.—An accident occurred at noon Saturday in the G.T.R. yards here. The Listowel-Drayton Union Sunday School excursion, composed of five coaches and combination baggage passenger car, containing about 200 passengers bound for the Falls, collided with yard engine No. 666, completely demolishing both engines and freight box car, and telescoping the baggage end of the combination car. Four boys were slightly injured and Hugh Bright of Wiarton was cut and bruised.

Drowned While Photographing.

Quebec, Aug. 10.—Alphonse Legare, a clerk in the Agricultural Department, while taking photographic views at the foot of the natural steps at the Montmorency Falls, lost his foothold, fell into the river and was drowned.

PREMIER COMBES IN PERIL.

At Marseilles an Italian Fired Two Shots at Him But They Went Wide of the Mark.

Marseilles, Aug. 10.—As Premier Combes was returning yesterday afternoon to the Prefecture from a banquet given by the Friendly Society of Teachers, two pistol shots were fired at the carriage in which he was riding. The Premier was untouched, and none of those accompanying him was hurt.

The attempt upon the life of the president of the ministry caused great excitement, and the crowd pointed out to the police as the author of the attempt, a man dressed in fishermen's clothes. His companion drew a knife, but the police disarmed him.

The police had much difficulty in protecting the man who had fired the shots. He struggled desperately, but was soon overcome, handcuffed and taken to the Prefecture, where M. Combes had already arrived. The first interrogation of the prisoner took place in the presence of the Premier. The man said his name was Sauvaire Picolo. He spoke very bad French, with a strong Italian accent.

He denied that he had fired the shots, but when searched a revolver was found with two chambers which had been freshly fired. It is believed that Picolo and his companion, who had effected his escape during the confusion, are both dangerous Anarchists. The presence of a number of Anarchists in Marseilles is known to the police.

MILLIONAIRE KILLED BY BEAR.

Prominent Rossland Citizen Dies From Injuries Received.

Rossland, B.C., Aug. 10.—George H. Bayne, a wealthy Rossland mining man, is dead at Ferguson, a hundred miles north of here, from the effects of wounds received in an encounter with a vicious Silvertip bear last week. His skull was broken, and frightful flesh wounds about his head caused septic meningitis. Two Rossland physicians went to Ferguson and trepanned Bayne's skull, but the relief came too late. Deceased was a son of a millionaire Nova Scotia wholesale merchant, and was independently rich himself. He had lived here for five or six years, spending half of each year in globe-trotting. Flags are flying at half mast in his memory.

Drowned in Waste Weir.

St. Catharines, Aug. 10.—A sad drowning accident happened in the waste weir at lock No. 9, new Welland Canal, about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when G. Arthur Wilson, son of Thomas Wilson, shipping clerk of the Whitmon & Barnes Co., was drowned.

He, in company with his brother, went in bathing, and was seized with cramps and immediately sank.

Deceased was an excellent swimmer, and he was a member of the 7th Field Battery. He was 21 years of age.

Waved Adieu and Was Drowned.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—James Platt, a fireman on the R. & O. steamer Kingston, was drowned off Milloy's dock at the foot of Yonge street on Saturday afternoon. He was intoxicated and had been waving a farewell to passengers on the Corona as she left on her 5 o'clock trip. In turning to wave a final adieu, he slipped over the edge and went in the water. Efforts to save the man were fruitless. He came from Londonderry, Ireland; was about 35 years of age, and was unmarried.

Probably 100 Persons Injured.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—The left field wall, back of the left field bleachers of the Philadelphia National League Baseball grounds, gave way later Saturday afternoon precipitating several hundred persons to the street a distance of 25 feet. Probably 100 persons were seriously injured, some fatally, but so far as known no one was killed. There were nearly five thousand persons on the bleachers which were supported by the wall.

James Shannon Dead.

Kingston, Aug. 10.—James Shannon, ex-publisher of The Daily News, and ex-postmaster of this city, died suddenly Saturday night, aged 75 years. He had been a resident of Kingston since 1857.

Miss Pettypiece Dead.

Forest, Aug. 10. — Wilhelmina, daughter of H. J. Pettypiece, M. P. P., died yesterday morning, aged 17 years.

Twenty-Fourth Victim Dies.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 10.—John Thompson of Peru, Ind., who was severely injured in the wreck of circus trains at Durand, died Saturday. This makes the total death 24. It is thought the others will recover.

WHAT STRIKES DO.

Over twenty-eight and a half million working days have been lost in the United Kingdom during the past five years owing to strikes and lockouts. The figures for the past three years are as under:—

	Days.
1902	3,579,890
1901	4,142,287
1900	3,152,094

The figures are very moderate, however, compared with the "black year"—1898—when the lost days numbered fifteen and a quarter millions.

Of 442 disputes last year, 202 were settled in favor of the masters, 107 in favor of the men, and 123 were compromised, the remaining ten being left indefinite. The boards of conciliation and arbitration averted 669 disputes last year.

The letter from officials of the Gas Company, read to the Executive Committee on Friday night, and published in this paper, is remarkable neither for brevity nor diffidence. The scriptural injunction, "Ask and ye shall receive," seems to have been borne in mind by the compilers of the epistle in question. To ask the Council to grant a franchise which fixes no maximum price for illuminating gas is not exactly reasonable; neither, we think, is the request to the city to exchange its Gas stock for stock in a new company at one-third its present value, or to sell for 33 1-3 cents on the dollar. However, there may be good reasons for these requests, which will come out later, And the reasons, we would gently remark, should be good ones, or those requests should not be entertained.

That flag incident at Trenton caused our neighbors across the line to do a lot of talking. But in discussing the matter they jump at the conclusion that it was a U. S. flag in Canadian waters; it may be remarked that their wonder is shared by many on this side of the line.

The Intelligencer's comments in Saturday's paper re the rolling mills matter are approved by several very earnest people. "I would not," said one party, "have voted for the by-law but for the forfeiture clause which it contained. The money should not be returned under any consideration." Other people, while averse to the return of the $2500 at present, think that, as it cost the city nothing to obtain possession of the money in question, the Council might, rather than see the present deal fall through, agree to return the $2500 after the mills had earned the first year's bonus and were fairly on the road to earn the second. That was The Intelligencer's opinion, as expressed on Saturday, and it has seen or heard nothing since to make it change its views. The matter will likely be threshed out at to-night's Council meeting, and an interesting session should result.

VERY REMARKABLE CURE OF DIARRHOEA.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than [illegible] death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who was cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

with a mein of settled sadness that cut him to thre heart. How willingly could he now resign every other thought of ambition or happiness to throw himself at her feet!

Claude could not resist once more communicating with her. He wrote her a long, passionate letter, bewailing the fate that separated them, declaring his unchanging love, and vowing that he would be faithful forever, and would wait while life lasted for Fortune to smile on their happiness and crown their union. He wished her to give him a like pledge, for he had plans in view that might take him from the place for years; indeed, he might never return; but, whatever fate overtook, he wished to carry with him the assurance that she could be his, and only his, while life lasted.

This letter he entrusted to old Carl to deliver and bring him an answer and in the course of two or three days the old fellow handed him the following brief reply from Rosa:

My Dearest Claude: It was not wrong for you to write to me; nor can I think it wrong for me to reply this once without my mother's knowledge for I think she would give her consent most readily. My heart bleeds for you, and my life is very, very sad; but my duty is plain. It is very good and noble of you to be so considerate, after all the illtreatment you have suffered. Do not despond. Do not be unhappy. Do not do wrong to yourself by being misanthropic. These clouds will yet depart. We shall yet be happy. I shall love you always, and be faithful till death; and should you wait for me, your reward will not be denied, if I live till the day that makes me free to be the mistress of my own heart. You speak of going away. I cannot control or advise you; but remember how unhappy I shall be not to see you even at a distance occasionally; and do not do anything reckless. Believe me, ever fondly and faithfully, your own

Rosa.

These sweet words came like a blessing and a prophecy of hope to the young man. But he was resolved on not staying longer than he could help in the little village. He felt that the only thing that could enable him to bear the sorrow and disappointment wringing his heart was excitement and action. His country was in the throes of a terrible war; disaster had fallen upon her arms; the call for help from all patriotic sons resounded through the land. Claude was naturally of a generous nature in which the spirit of patriotism would find easy root. He felt that his country needed his services, and his restless, eager nature, fretting under disappointed hope, was ready to face any danger or bear any privation that would supply stimulus to his moping spirits. He put himself in communication with the military authorities of the State, and, having the opportunity to take a position as orderly, in which he surmised he could render efficient service, he resolved to accept it, and give his services to his country.

With this resolve he made hurried preparations to settle his business affairs. He determined to install old Carl and Margaret in the great house again; made careful arrangements for the disposition of his property, if he should never return; and, on the approach of the New Year, was ready to join the army at its winter headquarters.

But he recollected his promise to be at the old vault on New Year's day, and so delayed his departure for a few days.

The first day of the New Year soon arrived, and Claude proceeded to the old house to observe whether the expected sign had appeared on the door of the old vault. He had not entered the old mansion before since his departure for Europe.

It was with a beating heart, and many recollections crowding on him, that he again traversed the old hall, and procuring a light, proceeded down to the old cellar.

Entering it, he was quickly at the door of the old vault. Here the traces of Leb. Sackett's abortive attempt to break into it attracted his attention for a moment. Then, casting his eye scrutinizingly over the door, he noticed in each of the four corners a small white cross, plainly painted on the dark stone.

It was the sign his aunt had told him to await. At last, the time had arrived when the secret of the old vault was to be removed. The prohibition had ended. He recalled to mind the mysterious roll his aunt had given him, and resolved to proceed at once to learn its contents.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Returning to his room at the tenant house occupied by Carl Crum, Claude opened his trunk and took out the roll of manuscript left him by his aunt, which, in his eagerness to carefully preserve, he had kept with him in all wanderings.

He then drew a chair up to a table standing near the window, and, sitting down, placed the roll on the table before him and examined it narrowly. It was sealed heavily. The superscription read: "To my dear nephew, Claude Rolff: To be opened only according to promise."

Claude had often studied these words before, and longed for the time that would make him master of the secrets of the roll communicated to him under such mysterious circumstances. At last he could conscientiously and properly gratify his curiosity. He broke the seals, and spread the sheets of paper out on the table before him. The paper was heavy foolscap, and a glance showed him that the writing was in the cramped, peculiar hand he knew well to be his aunt's.

He at once became absorbed in the contents of the manuscript. It read as follows:

My Dear Claude: At my death you will be left alone in the world—the only surviving representative of your blood and race. Both in the old world and the new, every one that could claim near kin to you will have passed away. To the end that you may know your birth and lineage (of which you have been purposely kept in partial ignorance); that strange matters, which common report has greatly exaggerated and misrepresented, may be correctly reported to you; and that my action toward you, my dear child, under which I have often observed you were restive, may be justified in your eyes—I write these lines.

It is over sixty years ago, that there was living in the picturesque old city of Haarlem, in our mother country of North Holland, an aged and reputable burgher, one Rolff Van Buyzen, who, with his good wife, his handsome son named from himself, and a single daughter (the writer of these lines); lived as happily as it is given mortals to live. He had been an only son; had passed an industrious youth; had married rather late in life; and at this period was wealthy, honored with important trusts in his native city, and was noted for his public spirit, his philanthrophy and his patronage of the arts and sciences. His son Rolff grew to manhood; but, being of a restive, wayward disposition, was not inclined to settle down into the practice of some useful art or profession as his father desired him to. On the contrary, his only wish seemed to be to spend his father's substance in extravagance and riotous living. Great was the grief of the tender and excellent father over the waywardness of his son, and he sought by all means to restore him to obedience and a proper life. But his efforts were of no avail. The son grew wilder and more reckless, and finally threw off all semblance of respect for his father's authority and wishes. And so it came to pass that the good father, though of the kindest and tenderest nature, became fully persuaded of his duty to compel the obedience and respect to his wishes of his son, and assumed toward him a stern demeanor, though, in truth, his heart was wounded and bled sorely for him. But Rolff only grew more ungovernable, and finally became involved in a difficulty that rendered him amenable to the law. It was a reckless, boyish freak, committed against the property of a high official of the city, and his father's influence was no longer available to save him from arrest and trial. Bitter and stern was the rebuke that Rolff's father administered to him; but the law officers were on his track, and he fled from his home in the night, and many weary years passed, and he was not again heard from by his aged and sorrowing parents. The blow, indeed, was too heavy for their declining years, and it was not long before the tender mother had gone to her final rest and her faithful husband, with the last prop of his life taken away, did not linger long behind her.

So it was, my dear Claude, that I was left alone in the world, not knowing that I had a single relative of near kin left, for on both my father's and mother's side all had passed away save a few distant and to me unknown kindred; and, though I hoped my brother was still alive, it seemed idle to do so.

After my fathers affairs were settled, I still had left a comfortable fortune, and lived a quiet and lonely life in my native city, indulging in few pleasures, and cherishing the one hope that I would yet hear from my brother. At length, to my great joy, there came a letter from him. In it he stated that he had settled in the New World; had grown rich, and married, and was then living in a fine mansion; but his wife had died, leaving him with two small children, and he had no proper person to take charge of them, or of his household. So he entreated me to come to him—saying that he had heard of our parents' deaths, and believed me still to be unmarried. He said he would make me the entire mistress of his household and guardian of his children, and that I should have complete disposal of all that he possessed. The tone of the letter indicated great grief and despondency, and my heart was touched. After careful consideration, I decided to go to my brother. Arranging all my affairs, and getting all needful information from further correspondence with him, I set sail for the New World.

In due time I arrived at my brother's house. I found him living in almost princely style; but afflicted with incurable grief and melancholy. His infant daughter had died ere I arrived. His mind seemed affected at losing his wife and child; and, in paroxysms of sorrow and self-abasement, he would curse himself, and cry out that the vengeance of Heaven was visited on him for his crimes. Naught I could do would comfort him. He was completely changed—broken, penitent and despondent. He confessed to me strange stories of evil deeds he had done—how, after coming to this country, he had joined a privateer, and amassed wealth, but in his warlike adventures had participated in crimes the memory of which was burned upon his conscience, and could not be forgotten. I was compelled to take complete charge of his affairs; and he freely gave me the power and right so to do. I had brought with me my own little fortune, and, alarmed and horrified at the stories he told of the manner in which he had procured his wealth, I determined to use none of it, but to make my own money available for the maintenance of the household.

Meantime, my brother grew more and more melancholy. To divert his mind, I talked to him of plans to expiate his evil life. I urged him to use a portion of his wealth in charity and good works. The idea seemed to please him, and he soon became filled with plans to travel, seek out the miseries of the unfortunate and to relieve them. In pur-

FRUIT DAINTIES.

Including Candied Cherries and Strawberry Jelly.

The Morello cherry is one of the best for the purpose of making candied cherries, according to Table Talk, in which the following recipes occur. Any slightly tart cherry, however, will do for this conserve:

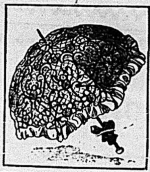
Pit and weigh the fruit, allowing one-half of a pound of granulated sugar for each pound of fruit. Spread in alternate layers in an earthen or granite pan, and let stand overnight. Drain off the juice and undissolved sugar, heat and boil slowly for thirty minutes. Drop in part of the fruit at a time and simmer for fifteen minutes. Skim out and spread on large platters. Stand in the sun, covering with fine cotton or wire gauze to protect from insects. Boil down the sirup until very thick. Each night bring in the dishes and set in a cool, dry place. In the morning turn them into the bowl of sirup, stir up till well moistened, then skim out again on the dishes and place in the sun for the day. If stormy, do not expose to dampness. By the time the sirup is used up the cherries should be quite dry. Let stand in the sun for another day, then pack in small jars or in boxes lined with waxed paper.

The Gandy is the best variety for making strawberry jelly, although it is usually the latest in the market. For canning and preserving the dark colored fruit is much superior to the light, even if the berries are smaller. Underripe rather than overripe should be the rule, and for jelly especially it is advisable to have the berries still a little green at the tips. Use firm, perfect fruit. Lay aside about half, and press the juice from the rest. Strain, and to each pint of juice allow one pound of sugar. Weigh the berries, put aside and add to them the same weight of sugar. Boil the juice about twenty minutes, add the sugar, which should be heated in the oven, and boil fifteen minutes longer. Add the mixed fruit and sugar to the jelly and simmer a few minutes longer. Seal when cold.

Only fresh, firm, perfect strawberries should be selected for canning. Hull, wash and drain, but handle very carefully, not to crush the fruit. Measure the berries after they are hulled. Allow a teacupful of granulated sugar to each quart of fruit. Put the sugar and berries in layers in a preserving kettle and allow it to stand an hour. Then bring slowly to the boiling point and let simmer two minutes. Do not stir the fruit. Seal at once.

Parasols of the Season.

As protectors from the sun must be in keeping with the dress it is not surprising to find the champagne tint a prominent one, white and red both high favorites and green not unknown in parasols.



SILK APPLIQUE AND CHIFFON PARASOL.

The chief points in the latest models are that they are larger and more domed in form. Some are diminutive as to shade and long in the handle. The example in the illustration is a grosgrain of champagne hue, with lace appliques in which medallions are introduced and a frill of the champagne tinted chiffon at the edge.

How to Hang the Hammock.

A hammock hung firmly according to the following directions will be safe and comfortable, says a Good Housekeeping correspondent: The rope that secures the head end should be twelve inches or less in length, while that at the foot should measure four and a half feet. Arranged in this way, the lower part only will swing free and the head be kept nearly stationary.

Fashion's Echoes.

Pipeclay figures largely this season as a cleanser for white linen suits, white parasols and white shoes.

One inch and two inch tucks have become a dominant note in fashion.

Anything more charming, fashionable and exacting on the purse than the entire white suit, hat, veil, parasol, gown, gloves and shoes, would be hard to invent.

A sheer white linen shirt waist suit represents one of fashion's present fascinations.

Boas of tulle and plaitings of lace or quilled taffetas mingling among flowers are Paris fancies.

Skirts are less clinging and more profusely trimmed at the hem than last year.

Many evening gowns have the skirts kilt plaited and veiled, or not, as the wearer pleases.

Beautifully embroidered stockings are a feature of the season.

There is nothing equal to Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator for destroying worms. No article of its kind has given such satisfaction.

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer Complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

For coughs, colds, bronchitis and all lung and throat troubles, there is no preparation of medicine can compare with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It never fails to afford prompt and permanent relief. It removes all soreness, and heals the diseased parts. It immediately soothes the most troublesome cough, and by promoting expectoration, removes the mucus which stops up the air tubes which causes difficulty in breathing, thereby gives relief to that depressing tightness experienced in the chest. Public speakers and singers will find Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup of inestimable value, as it speedily and effectually allays all irritation, and huskiness in the throat and bronchial tubes, and gives power to the vocal cords, rendering the voice clear and sonorous. If parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves from much anxiety, trouble and expense, let them procure a bottle of "Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup," and whenever a child has taken cold, has a cough or hoarseness, give the Syrup according to directions.

To Those of Sedentary Occupation. —Men who follow sedentary occupations, which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver and kidneys than those who lead active, outdoor lives. The former will find in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills a restorative without question the most efficacious on the market. They are easily procurable, easily taken, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap considering their excellence.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

A Sure Cure for Headaches. — Bilious headache, to which women are more subject than men, becomes so acute in some subjects that they are utterly prostrated. The stomach refuses food, and there is a constant and distressing effort to free the stomach from bile which has become unduly secreted there. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a speedy alterative, and in neutralizing the effects of the intruding bile relieves the pressure on the nerves which cause the headache. Try them.

All trails are long to the lazy.

Will be Found an Excellent Remedy for sick headache. Carter's Little Liver Pills. Thousands of letters from people who have used them prove this fact. Try them.

The Well Known Strengthening Properties of IRON, combined with other tonics and a most perfect nervine, are found in Carter's Iron Pills, which strengthen the nerves and body, and improve the blood and complexion.

UNTOLD MISERY — WHAT A WELL-KNOWN COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER SUFFERED, AND HOW HE WAS CURED.—Gentlemen, About five years ago I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time travelling for Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine and when the third bottle was finished, I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of Dyspepsia.

He Has Tried It.—Mr. John Anderson, Kimloss, writes: "I venture to say few, if any, have received greater benefit from the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, than I have. I have used it regularly for over ten years and have recommended it to all sufferers I knew of, and they also found it of great virtue in cases of severe bronchitis and incipient consumption."

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

Success undoubtedly often covers mistakes, but human nature is on the whole generous, or at least good tempered.—"Retrospect and Prospect."

The Cause of the Delay.

Mrs. Passe was in a hurry. She was going to a concert, and the friends who were to accompany her were waiting downstairs. She was dressing and making things most uncomfortable for her maid, unaware of the fact that everything she said was audible downstairs.

"Annette," she cried, "how slow you are! Have you the flowers for my hair?"

"Ah, yes, madame, but"—

"Well, well, well!" sharply. "Where are they?"

"They are here, madame; but, pardon, I've mislaid the hair!"

Lipton as a "Smoker."

In his early days Sir Thomas Lipton denied himself almost every pleasure except that of amassing a fortune. Calling one day on a consul on business matters he was offered a cigar by the official.

"No, thank you," said Sir Thomas (then Mr.) Lipton. "Although I am the biggest smoker in England I never smoke cigars."

"What do you smoke?" was the surprised query.

"Bacon," was the prompt reply.

An Alaskan Smoke.

How would you enjoy a pipeful of wood shavings, saturated with a strong solution of pepper, as an after dinner smoke? Strange as this may seem for a substitute for tobacco, it is, says the Family Doctor, nevertheless used as such by Indians along the Alaskan coast. Their mouths are often made raw by the practice, and the eyesight of many is affected by the strong fumes.

CAUGHT IN A LOG JAM.

Thrilling Fishing Experience in Northern Michigan.

Upon one occasion in northern Michigan I was trout fishing in company with a veteran timber cruiser, a man who knew everything about the rough bush life, says a writer in World's Work. In time we reached a bend in the stream where a lot of small logs had jammed during the spring freshet. My comrade unconcernedly ventured upon the logs, and before I could follow by some mischance he stepped upon a loose one and instantly disappeared. Had I not been looking at him it is likely I should have imagined he had crossed and gone into the brush upon the farther side. One log of all the mass was rolling, and a hand showed at one side of it. To dart across and seize the hand occupied very few seconds, but to my horror I could not pull him up through the narrow space through which he had slipped. To set a foot upon the log either side the opening and shove with all strength was the only hope. For seconds I clung to the wrist and strained mightily. Slowly the logs separated and up he came till he was able to twist upon his stomach across a log. Half drowned as he was, he had not lost his nerve. "Do-don't let 'em squeeze back on me!" he gasped, and a moment later he was on his feet. Most men would have weakened then, but he was iron. He had swallowed a lot of water, had been cheek by jowl with an awful death, yet he had no idea of proving false. The logs were slowly slipping farther apart and I was standing like a certain large gentleman of Rhodes and unable to stand much more spreading or to spring to either side, while, of course, to slip into the water meant to enter the trap he had just escaped. In a few seconds he seized my hand and one quick haul carried me to firm footing. The logs at once closed like a gigantic trap. When we reached solid ground my comrade almost collapsed, and for half an hour he was a very sick man. Later he said: "I held my breath as long as I could, calculatin' you might try to get me, an', pardner, I'll never forget that little turn. I reckon I was in a mighty tight place."

His Wife's Stockings.

"Traveling with children is the very dickens!" said a New York family man who escorted his wife and offspring to their chosen summer resort and had returned to the city. His tale of woe is related in the "Tribune" as follows: "We were going to a little place not far from Buffalo, and, knowing how tiresome a long day's travel is to those in charge of the young and active, I proposed we should make the journey by night, and my wife assented readily. The children were eager for the novelty of a night on a sleeping car. I secured three berths, a lower for my wife and the baby, an upper for myself and my little son, and a third upper for our two young twin girls.

"At 10.30 o'clock we got to bed, and I at least spent a pretty wretched night. I worried about our trunks, which I suddenly remembered had been very late in getting down, and about the change at Buffalo, which was a very early one, and when at last I was hustled out in the cool, gray morning by the conductor's warning cry, 'Buffalo in ten minutes!' I was pretty nervous.

"My wife had, fortunately, got the baby dressed earlier, but my hands were very full with Bobby and myself to attend to, so that only an agonized 'Gwen! Gladys! Do hurry and dress, like good little girls!' was all the help we could give the twins.

"The train stopped. I knew our next train made a pretty sharp connection, so ran to where a pink leg stuck out of an upper berth.

"'Gladys, aren't you dressed?'

"'Yes, papa, all but my stockings.'

"'Your stockings? Do you mean to say you took them off?'

"'Yes, papa; it was so hot. Please help me look for them.'

"So I plunged an arm wildly round the bed-clothes, while Gwen climbed down quite neat and tidy, and went to her mother, crying in her shrill, penetrating voice, blessed, I am sure, by the sleeping passengers: 'Mamma, Gladys can't find her stockings, and the people in the berth below won't let her look there. I'm sure they've dropped down,' and, in fact, at this moment a surly voice below exclaimed:

"'For heaven's sake, stop your fussing over my head! Can't you let a soul on the car sleep because you have to get up?'

"I returned to my wife.

"'The stockings can't be found,' I said, 'and Gladys is nearly crying. She can't walk across Buffalo station with bare legs. Haven't you got another pair?'

"'None but my own,' she replied, glancing dubiously at her feet.

"'Then, quick! Take them off. Your dress is long and no one will see.'

"In a twinkling she tore them off, and I pulled them up the long, bare legs of the twelve-year-old girl, to her surprise and joy.

"'Come along,' I cried, 'quick, or we'll miss the train.'

"'Step lively!" called the porter.

"I seized the baby and rushed out.

"Bobby was the first to get off, and eyed his shrinking mother with interest as three polite men stepped forward to help her off. With a deep flush she declined their aid and crept down the steps, but the keen eyes of Bobby missed nothing, and as she reached the ground he remarked, in a triumphant and ringing voice, 'They look just like white stockings, don't they, papa?'

"I seized his hand and rushed him across the tracks to our train, while my wife dropped her veil and followed with the little girls, the guilty Gladys stepping out bravely and nonchalantly, clad demurely in neat black stockings of perfect fit.

"Well, my wife had a perfect fit, too, and blew me up for not silencing Bobby, though how I was to do that I do not know, but I don't think I will ever repeat the experience of traveling with all my encumbrances at night."

Language was not Needed.

"I don't see how the count could propose to you when he can't talk any English and you don't speak French."

"Oh, it was very easy. We were sitting in the parlor. Pointing up at an oil painting of papa, the count took out a piece of paper and a pencil. Then he set down a dollar mark, and after it placed a figure 1. Looking at me out of his big, deep, eloquent, lovely eyes, he began making ciphers after the dollar mark and the figure 1. When he had made four ciphers, which, with the other figure, meant $10,000, he stopped. I nodded my head for him to go on. Then he made another cipher. That meant $100,000. I nodded my head again. He made another, which raised it to $1,000,000. I nodded for him to go ahead. He put down another cipher, making it $10,000,000. Then I smiled and took the pencil from him, and he caught me in his arms and—and ah, it was so lovely! It almost seems like a dream to think that in three weeks I shall be a real countess."—Chicago "Record-Herald."

The Facts in the Case.

It turned her head. The gown was not
 By any means a perfect fit.
Some ugly wrinkles it had got
 And down the back the seams were split.
The sleeves were short and all too tight,
 And showed long lines of basting thread;
But, though it was "a perfect sight,"
 It turned her head.

The colors fairly seemed to shriek—
 A purple, trimmed with blue and green,
With salmon bows—a gaudy freak;
 A gaudier was never seen.
No tint but did the other kill;
 One looked upon the thing with dread.
I shuddered at the sight, but still
 It turned her head.

It fairly turned her head, and yet
 The woman's taste was reckoned good.
Among a most exclusive set
 A leader she unchallenged stood.
But, then, she did not wear the dress;
 She saw it. Though 'twas not well-bred.
Just as it passed her, I confess,
 It turned her head.

Where He Was Tanned.

"Oh!" giggled the frivolous damsel, "you just ought to see my arms. Mamma told me not to go bathing so much, but I just would, and I got tanned away above the elbows."

"Huh!" puts in her small brother, who is sitting gingerly on the edge of the chair. "Mamma told me not to go bathing, too, but I didn't get tanned on the arms."

And the small boy received the usual bedtime hint.

THE CANADIAN HENLEY.

Argonauts Broke a World Record and Beat the Winnipegers.

St. Catharines, Aug. 10.—Large crowds were the order at the final races in the Royal Canadian Henley regatta Saturday. The stand was well filled with enthusiastic spectators, while the shore along the course was thronged. The weather was ideal on this the last day of the gala event, except for a strong wind blowing from the southeast, which caused the course to present a somewhat ruffled appearance. The events were well filled, and expectations of those present ran high at the prospects of fast races and close finishes. Nor were they at all disappointed, as the competition throughout was keen. The feature of the day was the lowering of the world's record by the Argonauts in the senior eights. They went the distance in 6.33 3-5.

The Events.

Junior doubles, final—Argonauts 1, Brockville 2, Dons 3.

Junior singles, final—Hamilton 1, J. E. Coltson (Don) 2, W. Graham 3.

Intermediate eights—Argonauts 1, Dons 2.

Intermediate doubles—Argonauts 1, Brockville 2.

Senior singles—Scholes 1, Vesely 2.

Senior eights—Argonauts 1, Winnipegs 2.

22 SECONDS AHEAD.

Strathcona Won in Canada's Cup Yacht Race on Saturday.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—The R. C. Y.C. defender Strathcona defeated the challenger Irondequoit over the 21 mile lake course Saturday off Toronto Island. The contest was sailed in a good breeze from the southwest over a triangle seven miles to the leg, all buoys to be left to starboard. The Strathcona was 22 seconds ahead at the finish.

Canadian Swimming Championship.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Charles Rubel of the New York Athletic Club swept the slate in the Canadian swimming championship decided on the Rockcliffe course Saturday. He won all three championships, the 100, 440 and 880 yards. Joe Wilson of the Toronto Swimming Club was his strongest competitor.

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Smith: Waste-Product.

There were four of us, met together one Saturday evening in our accustomed quiet Bloomsbury tavern—three of us friends of long standing, the fourth only admitted to the circle of late; we knew little of him save that his name was Smith; his age would be something over thirty, and he seemed to have done and seen most things under the sun.

That evening someone had mentioned the case of a young fellow who had just been told by his doctor that he must not expect to live more than ten years, and we had been discussing whether he should live "the strenuous life" for his short span, or take things easily. Smith listened in silence for a time, but presently broke out.

"Blame me if I can understand you fellows," he said, "and your talk of the strenuous life and fame and success and the rest of it; I suppose it's not in me.

For to be'old and for to see,
For to admire this world so wide

—that's me. I've not had much of a time of it on the whole; had a bad start for one thing. I was what people call the 'love-child' of a barmaid. Don't know nor care who my father was—bit of a swell, probably; he settled a hundred and fifty a year on me for life through some lawyers. I was put out to nurse soon after I was born and never saw my mother to know her—lawyers told me who she was. I had a middling education and could gabble my 'Arma virumque' with the best of 'em when I was sixteen. I started in Canada, took up my 160 acres, wheat got frozen two years running, so I chucked it and went lumbering. Got down into the States, was a potman in New York, clerk in a tinned beef show in Chicago, cow-puncher in Utah, and worked on fruit ranches in California. Fine country, California. Signed on a tramp at 'Frisco, left her at Sydney and did Australia—sheep-shearing, cattle stations, 'sundowning,' anything, mostly 'sundowning.' Made a bit of money over a deal in cattle, blued it in a week in Sydney, and got on another tramp for Cape Town. Left her there, went up country and joined the B. S. A. Police, went through the Matabele war, and was in the Jameson Raid, and then came home for a spell."

Why "home"? I thought.

"Went out to the Cape again a bit before the war; when that started, joined the I.L.H., and went all through it. War's about my mark, I guess—not soldiering, mind you. There's a grisly kind of fascination in the zip-zip-zipping of the bullets, seeing fellows go down all round you, and wondering where the next one's coming. It's like swapping yarns with death. What am I going to do now? Lord knows; there's not much left in life for me; it's a mystery why some bullet didn't come my way a bit straighter, but my sort don't seem to get killed that way. Marry and settle down? Not likely; women 're just like places to me—I get sick of 'em. I've loved a few; I'm all human that way. I'm not one of your cold-blooded kind. Holy Mary! pity women!"

He brought his fist down on the table with a display of emotion that was astounding.

"I've broken all the ten commandments and I haven't the conscience of a self-respecting rat: but when I think of those poor, simple, trusting fools—God! why had I no mother?"

"Ah, well," he went on, "Ca ira. Some fellow once called me a waste-product of the Empire—it's a fancy phrase, but I guess he wasn't far wrong. I'll be on the move again soon—I'm sick of your cursed stuffy city—I want God Almighty's winds in my face, and the smell of the sea in my nostrils, and the sound of it in my ears; I want the veld or the prairies again—space—God! I want space."

He stretched out his arms and drew in a long breath through clenched teeth and then got up.

"Well, good night, you fellows: I've been drinking too much to-night, but I'll give you a last toast—here's to the next war, and pray God I'll never see forty." He drained his glass and lurched unsteadily out into the night.

A Life-Saving Kite.

Of late years the kite has emerged from the position of a mere toy, and has been successfully employed for meteorological observations at high altitudes. A more recent application of the kite principle is as a life-saving appliance, to be carried on shipboard, its particular duty being to establish communication between a stranded vessel and the adjacent shore. It stands to reason that a ship in this position generally has the assistance of the wind in carrying anything shoreward, and it would be far easier to launch a kite under such conditions than it would be to fire a rocket in the reverse direction. The kite carries a guide-rope, and contains in a pocket a set of signals and instructions. It is also furnished with apparatus for telephonic communication between the crew and their would-be rescuers. But we must confess that, seeing the frequent difficulty of telephonic conversation ashore in a quiet office, we can hardly believe that it would be possible in a howling tempest. The kite is the invention of the Comte Brossard, and it is said to have been tried with success at Toulon and at Brest.—"Chambers' Journal."

No Difference Which Side.

Mr. Booker T. Washington tells this story of a man who belonged to the "po'h white trash" of Alabama.

A black man who ran a ferry was one day accosted thus:

"Uncle Mose," said the white man, "I want to cross, but I hain't got no money."

Uncle Mose scratched his head.

"Doan' you got no money't all?" he queried.

"No," said the wayfaring stranger, "I haven't a cent."

"But it done cost you but three cents," insisted Uncle Mose, "ter cross de ferry."

"I know," said the white man, "but I haven't got the three cents."

Uncle Mose was in a quandary. "Boss," he said, "I done tole you what. Er man what's got no three cents am jes' as well off on dis side er de river as on de odder."

Crow's Nest Inn.

I often wonder if the crow is an altruist. The farmers would never call him by so flattering a name. But surely he must feel more or less benevolent when engaged in building a nest that, before it finally falls to pieces, will probably be the home of many and various birds and beasts.

And is it because the crow is a generous bird, willing to provide apartments for his woodland neighbors, that he builds false nests also? Perhaps not, for the crow is a wise bird, too; and although it is not quite certain what purpose these false nests serve, they may be designed to draw the attention of the irate man who shoulders a gun when he finds the crows have been at work in his corn-piece.

But although the false nest is less carefully built than the nest the crows really occupy, and although it is generally placed in a more exposed position, it is as sure to find a tenant as is a nest in which crows have lived.

A deserted crows' nest less than a mile from my house has been occupied alternately by hawks and squirrels for the last five or six years. After the crows left it, a pair of red-shouldered hawks took possession. During the season one of the hawks was killed and the eggs were broken, and for a few months the nest lay idle.

In the autumn some red squirrels raised a roof of bark and pine-needles over the hollow of the nest, filled it with soft grass, and made it their home for the winter. They would doubtless have continued to dwell there had not a couple of Cooper's hawks decided the next spring that the tenement suited them. After ousting the squirrels, perhaps by killing and devouring them, they went to work to fix it up.

But the squirrels had done too thorough a job for the hawks to undo easily, and after several futile attempts at tearing it to pieces, they were forced to content themselves with constructing a new nest on the "top floor," the roof the squirrels had raised. So the nest has gone on being serviceable, sheltering a long succession of tenants.

In another nest in my neighborhood long-eared owls succeeded the crows, and sparrow-hawks followed the owls.

I have known still another nest to serve as nursery for two families in the same season: the great horned owls, which lay their eggs in the latter part of winter, having succeeded in teaching their young ones to fly before the chicken-hawks—which breed later than any other species—were prepared to undertake the care of a family.

Wild ducks, sea-gulls, and even partridges, whose habit is to nest on the ground, have been known to make use of abandoned crows' nests. In winter various kinds of owls borrow them to sleep in, and the pine-marten or sable is said to have the same habit.

To be sure, almost every new tenant remodels a nest to suit his own fancy, and after it has been occupied by three or four families it would hardly be recognized by the crow that built it. Probably that ingenious architect is not sensitive about such alterations. It is glory enough for him that the other birds approve his general design; and very likely when he leaves a nest to an owl or a hawk or a gull it is stipulated between them that repairs shall not be at the landlord's expense.

Women Who Insure.

According to a successful woman insurance agent of Chicago, more and more insurance is being taken out by women every year. "They are now considered good risks" she says "whereas formerly a woman had to pay an extra premium to secure insurance. About six years ago that hindrance was removed, and now nearly all of the life insurance companies accept them on the same basis as men. One of the old conservative companies just yielded the point a few weeks ago, but still makes an exception to married women, as several of the other companies do. The mortality among women is no greater than among men, and their liability to accident is not so great. As for the class of women that take out insurance, I suppose that trained nurses and women physicians have a larger percentage than have other professions. After that come the teachers in schools, then dressmakers, milliners, cashiers, clerks in department stores, and others, but very few stenographers. It is a singular thing that we always find it difficult to convince a stenographer of the value of life insurance. Professional women are more apt to insure than others, and insurance has recently become popular among actresses. They are taking out twenty-year endowment policies as investments for old age. As a rule, actresses do not save their money, and do not have anything left after their popularity has passed. We insure a good many women in private life also. It is becoming quite common, and very soon as many women as men will take out policies upon their lives, particularly those who have others dependent upon them."

Mrs. Leland Stanford, it is said, carries a larger amount of insurance than any other woman in the world. Her policies amount to more than a million dollars. Mrs. Frank O. Lowden of Chicago carries $250,000, probably more than any other woman in the West, and Mrs McReynolds carries $200,000. Helen Gould and one of her sisters have $100,000 each. Anna Held carries $100,000; Mrs. Leslie Carter, $50,000; Nordica, $50,000; Maud Adams, $25,000; Blanche Walsh, $10,000; Katherine Grey, $10,000; Blanche Bates, $10,000; Maxine Elliott, $10,000; Lulu Glaser, $10,000; Pauline Hall $10,000; Laura Joyce, $10,000; and others similar amounts.

Science and Religion.

The last word from science is that each of us normally contains both good and bad microbes, and that the two parties are constantly at war. This seems, says New York "Life," to bear out Dr. Lyman Abbott, who maintains that hell is within us.

Very Forgetful.

Bacon—That family next door is the limit for borrowing things.

Macon—What have they been after now?

The Glorious Fourth.

"There is no blinking the fact that, in American cities, the annual celebration of the Fourth of July has degenerated into an annual nuisance—a carnival of hoodlumism instead of a festival of patriotism." This sentiment is voiced by The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, and is echoed by newspapers all over the country. "The prevailing fashion of celebrating Independence Day," remarks The Philadelphia Public Ledger, "is barbarous. There isn't a particle of common sense or fitness in it. It would have some meaning in China or perhaps in Central Africa. In other matters we are past the firecracker and the tom-tom stage of civilization. How long do we propose to linger there in this?" The Chicago Tribune, which makes a specialty of collecting statistics of crime and casualties, has published an estimate of the dead and wounded caused by the havoc of Fourth of July celebrations. The record this year shows that 52 persons were killed and 3,665 injured. The loss of property by fire amounted to $400,625. The New York Evening Post says: "It appears that the celebration this year was of an exceptionally destructive character."

The Springfield Republican is leading a newspaper crusade against Fourth of July "perversion," and offers some definite suggestions for a saner and more appropriate celebration of the day. It proposes to limit the "carnival of noise" to the morning hours, between four and nine, and to allow the pleasure-giving fireworks—"the rockets, the candles, the brilliant bursting bombs"—to have right of way in the evening. The afternoon, suggests The Republican, might be devoted to suitable sports and patriotic exercises.

Frenchmen in London.

The West End of London has been for the last few days a part of Paris, says The London Express. In Regent street, which ought to be called the Boulevard du Regent, one has heard nothing but "Dis donc," "Oh, la, la," and other strange phrases. Restaurant keepers have imagined themselves out of the jurisdiction of the licensing magistrates, and only remembered by a great effort to close at 12.30, and the waiters have become quite civil when receiving the modest Parisian tip of a penny. A country clergyman yesterday afternoon became almost terrified after asking six persons the way from Piccadilly circus to the Royal Academy, and receiving the polite answer, "Mille pardons, monsieur, je ne puis pas parler anglais." But perhaps the most striking feature of the French conquest has been the neat, blue-coated Frenchman selling Le Journal at frequent intervals from Shaftesbury avenue to Oxford circus. They have been brought here by the enterprising proprietors of the Paris paper, and the copies they receive about 4 in the afternoon are sold at the ordinary Paris prices. The men speak no English; they do not need it. Every passing policeman politely says "Bon jour," and the native newspaper sellers show their feeling for the entente cordiale by patting them on the back and shouting "Good old France." "How do you like London?" one of the camelots was asked. "Oh, c'est magnifique; les anglais sont bons garcons. Vive l'Angleterre!" was the reply. "Bravo; 'ear, 'ear—" added his neighbor, a grimy gentleman selling souvenirs, and they both went round the corner to find how "la biere anglaise" tasted.

Should Ladies Wear Socks?

The question as to whether English ladies should wear socks, after the example of their American cousins, says The London Express, was earnestly discussed yesterday in the West End and in the large wholesale hosiery houses in the city. The general opinion of the heads of large drapery firms was that the fashion would never become popular in England. In an interview with an Express representative the managing partner of a firm near St. Paul's Churchyard said:—"The idea that well-bred English women will adopt the latest American fad of wearing socks instead of stockings is a ridiculous one. A certain class of women who call themselves 'the smart set' may do so, but I do not think that even they would have the hardihood to walk down Regent street in broad daylight wearing gaily-colored socks and a short skirt. A woman who ventured out attired in such a manner would stand a poorer chance of setting the fashion than those strong-minded females who attempted to adopt the 'rational costume' and walked about in bloomers some three years ago. No first-class hotel or restaurant would admit them, and they would probably be followed through the streets by a crowd of idle loafers."

Is it a Vandyck?

There is at present being carefully guarded in Manchester a picture which is declared by many experts to be a Vandyck. Others incline to the opinion that it is a Rubens. It treats of a Scriptural subject—the offer of Abraham to sacrifice Isaac. The history of the picture is remarkable. For many years it hung neglected in an old Cheshire mansion, one of the sons of the family ultimately exchanging it for two diamond bracelets and a breast pin. It changed hands at cheap rates frequently in its grimy state until it reached a man who, finding it cumbrous in his house, gave it to a Mr. John Bolton of Manchester, who had it cleaned and kept it for twelve years.

About nine months ago Mr. A. J. Millorme, an art expert of Longsight, was commissioned by Mr. J. Spurr of the Towers, Blackpool, to inspect the painting. He at once pronounced it to be a genuine Vandyck, and his opinion has been endorsed by a number of gentlemen in official positions in the art world. Mr. Spurr at once bought the picture contingently for £5,000. It is probable that the picture will shortly be brought to London for inspection.

Australian Appointments.

Many rumors are in the air respecting the impending Australian appointment, says The London Chronicle, and some appear to think that Sir Edmund Barton will withdraw from the turmoil of politics and take the chief seat on the new Federal Supreme Court Bench. Then the post of High Commissioner has to be filled presently, and the names of many prominent men, besides the Premiers, are mentioned in connection with this, the Agents-General at present in London being left entirely out of calculation. Then, as Lord Tennyson is certainly returning home this year-end, it is probable that his successor will soon be settled upon, so as to give him good time for preparation. One report has it that Lord Lytton is being thought of in connection with this important office, but his youth would stand against him in the Australian estimate. Still, all the young Governors have not done badly in Australia, for Lord Belmore was not much over thirty when he was appointed to New South Wales.

The Only Way.

"Have you lived here long?" asked the stranger.

"Well," replied the lank gentleman who looked [illegible] you'd expect a feller like me to live here."

For the Farmer.

Good poultry is always wanted, and poor stuff is a drug in the market. The time is coming when there will be no sale at all for poultry of poor quality, for those who can afford to buy it at all will demand the best.

The green crop plowed under is composed of three chief parts. About four-fifths of it is water, or from 80 to 88 per cent.; about one-fiftieth of the whole, or 2 per cent., is composed of what is called the ash ingredients, and the rest is the so-called organic manner. This organic matter, which is really the most useful part of the green manure, makes up, therefore, about a twelfth of the whole mass put under the ground.

Kansas needs 5,000 men to help harvest the great wheat harvest, and the farmers are getting so desperate that they are stopping express trains and going through, offering large wages for men to get off and work in the fields. At the same time the United States is receiving at least one hundred thousand immigrants monthly, and the question naturally arises as to what becomes of them.

The Nova Scotia Apple Crop.

In a letter to the Fruit Division, Ottawa, Mr. J. W. Bigelow of Wolfville, N. S., gives the following estimate of this season's apple crop in Nova Scotia:—According to present prospects there will be a full crop of superior apples, giving over 400,000 barrels for export. Varieties are about as follows:—Nonpareil, 60,000 barrels; King, 50,000; Gravenstein, 50,000; Ribson Pippin, 40,000; Golden Russet, 30,000; Baldwin, 60,000; Rhode Island Greening, 30,000; all other varieties, 80,000.

Points of Wool.

In judging wool, the following points are those of most importance:

Softness—This is essential in good fleeces, and the want of it is most conspicuously noticed, if it is wanting, by examining the wool on the neck. Those fleeces are best which abound in a sort of transparent oil, which, after growing to the end of the staple of the wool, attracts the dust and gives the outside of the fleece when on the sheep a darkish, dirty appearance. This oily matter is of service in hastening the growth of the fleece, and in imparting softness, elasticity and strength to the wool.

Soundness, or strength of fibre, is an indispensable quality in wool. A want of this invariably reveals itself along the ridges of the back, where there is a sort of division between the wool of each side. To test it, pull a lock or staple from this part, hold to one end in each hand, and give it a strong, steady pull. If the strands break, the whole fleece is lacking in soundness. This want of soundness is generally caused by bad feeding.

Fulness means the closeness with which the locks of wool grow together. Before opening the fleeces of sheep possessing the quality in perfection, only a fine thin line of skin will be seen around each lock of wool. If defective, the space between the locks will be larger.

Freeness—This implies that the individual locks of wool, as also their individual fibres, are not entangled, but perfectly separate and distinct. The wool on being opened in a well-bred sheep should fall apart under the hands clear and unbroken. A want of freeness will show most plainly along the ridge of the back.—C. G. Freer-Thonger, in Farm and Home (Eng.).

Apple Blight.

A number of reports from widely separated districts, complaining of the ravages of the apple blight, have been received by the Fruit Division, Ottawa. Mr. Peter Anderson, Hepworth, Ont., thus describes the situation in his locality:—"Apples, both early and winter, are suffering from a new disease here. A blight struck the blossoms when in full bloom and withered them as if they had been scorched by fire. It is now withering the small twigs and limbs in the same way. The tops of the trees look as if fire had been applied to about one-half of the smaller branches until the leaves were all crisp and brown, and even the wood, as far as this extends, is evidently dead." Mr. Arch. MacColl, Aldboro, Ont., writes that many orchards in his locality are almost completely ruined by blight, and that many trees will have to be cut out.

It is difficult to explain the origin of this trouble, but it is evidently of a bacterial nature. It appears to live over the winter just in the margin of the affected part, near the healthy wood, and not in other parts of the tree or in the soil. Mr. W. T. Macoun of the Experimental Farm agrees with Mr. MacKinnon, Chief of the Fruit Division, that the only remedy is to cut out the blighted branches well below the affected part, say one foot below any appearance of blight. The knife used for this purpose should be thoroughly cleaned or sterilized before being again used on healthy wood. It is fortunate that the disease sometimes dies out of its own accord, especially in the case of the body blight. It is said to be conveyed from tree to tree by bees and insects, which would account for the great increase at blossoming time. The blight appears to develop very rapidly, and the maximum amount of damage is done almost as soon as the attack becomes noticeable. It will probably be found, that the fall is the best time to cut out the affected wood, as the damage will not be much, if any, greater then than at present, and in the fall one may make sure of getting all the blighted portions.

As anything which stimulates an undue growth of succulent wood is conducive to blight, it would be well for the orchardist to cultivate and manure so as to produce a medium growth of strong healthy wood.

PERSONAL.

Professor O'Brien, Canada's greatest Phrenologist and the only recognized Scientific Palmist, from Toronto, whose methods were approved of by judge and jury at the Toronto General Session, March 14th, 1901, is now in Belleville for a short season only, and can be consulted from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. at the Anglo-American Hotel, room 17, second floor. Prof. O'Brien is recognized by the press, medical faculties and scientists generally as the foremost Phrenologist and Scientific Palmist of modern times, and should not be classed with those travelling, cheap pretenders who bring disgrace on these sciences and mislead the public. Everybody knows Professor O'Brien; his patrons rank amongst premiers, judges, lawyers, doctors, clergymen, bankers, editors, etc., and their families. Prof. O'Brien has the highest recommendations from the press and patrons than any one else in his profession. Your past, present and indications of future events, as marked in your hand by nature, correctly delineated. Your ailments also positively located. Eminent physicians refer their patients to him. No questions asked. Call for circular. A photo read free to patrons. Children half price. Lady in attendance a7-3t

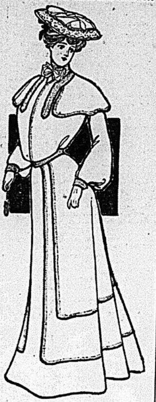
SUMMER FROCKS.

CLEVER IDEAS IN SMART WASHING AND GENERAL UTILITY GOWNS.

The New and the Old in Fashions. Frilly and Flouncy May Be the Chic Woman, but Not Untidily Floppy. Crash and Canvas Costumes.

Summer frocks, already exploited in every imaginable phase, are most alluring. Perhaps we think this every time a change of season comes round with its accompanying change of raiment. Yet there is certainly more than novelty in the attractiveness of our present styles.

By a strange contrariety at the same time that we profess to be searching for the new we are resuscitating the old. Everywhere there is a thirst for the antique. In dress it is called a feeling for the "quaint" or "picturesque."



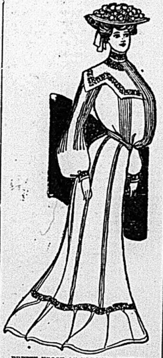
SMART CRASH COSTUME.

Although the full skirts, full sleeves and loose boleros give the idea of untidy floppiness nothing is further from the aim and being of fashion as properly understood. Skirts, however full, must be most carefully fitted round the hips, the upper part of the shoulders and chest must be free from fussy details which interfere with the outlines, and the waist must be trim and neat.

This idea of trim smartness is more generally realized in the sporting, outing and utility frocks, such as the old, and now new, favorites in linen and crash.

Simple as it is, the model of the first cut has a distinct chic. Both the coat and the skirt are in natural colored crash, and the linen piping may be of any color preferred. In very pretty taste, too, is the flecked canvas frock of the second cut, which is trimmed with lace insertion.

Washing gowns are also being cleverly made up to depend for ornament mostly upon the lace shoulder cape collars, so easily transferable from one gown to another, a fact which renders them most desirable.



PRETTY FROCK OF FLECKED CANVAS.

Many a so called washing gown is just a charming bit of deception. As likely as not it will no more wash than a satin will turn.

The mercerized washing stuffs are lovely, and their name is legion.

AMY VARNUM.

Strawberry Pudding Sauce.

One large tablespoonful butter beaten to a cream. Add gradually a cup and a half of powdered sugar and the beaten white of an egg. Beat till very light, and just before serving add a pint mashed strawberries.

Quick & Robertson's for Fine Clothes

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard--built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

MEN'S SUMMER FURNISHINGS

Robbed the Till.

Mr. Tomblinson, who conducts a shop in the Star Block, on Front street, on Friday afternoon left the store for a few minutes, and when he returned discovered that some one had been in the premises and robbed the till. He informs the police that $10 in bills were taken, also some silver. There is no clue at present as to who committed the theft.

SLOWLY DYING FROM CATARRH.

Thousands are in this terrible condition, but don't realize their danger. If you have the slightest taint of catarrh would it not be wise to commence Catarrhozone treatment now and be perfectly cured in a short time? This pleasant remedy cures without the use of drugs, atomizers or snuffs. You inhale the medicated vapor which spreads to all parts of the breathing organs, kills the germs and heals the inflamed surfaces. Catarrhozone clears the throat and nose instantly, and never fails to cure the most obstinate catarrhal, lung and throat troubles. A trial will demonstrate the value of Catarrhozone, which sells for $1.00, small size 25c, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

IT IS A PERPLEXING THING.

For the reader of newspaper advertisements to determine what is what. We do not use as large type as some, but we are sure that what we have to say is not the less important to any one who is interested in the subject of clothing at this time. Our summer suits are ready to speak for themselves, if you will but take time to inspect them, and we think you will find no fault with the prices. We are making an immense display of hot weather clothing and furnishings.—Quick & Robertson.

Took Paris Green To End His Troubles.

JAMES JOHNSON, A YOUNG WIDOWER, ATTEMPTED SUICIDE ON SATURDAY NIGHT — HIS LIFE SAVED.

James Johnson, who resides on Wickett street, West Belleville, on Saturday night made an unsuccessful attempt at self-destruction. The means employed was a dose of Paris green, and but for the prompt arrival of a physician the end sought would no doubt have been accomplished.

Johnson lives with a brother Eli, who is a married man, and between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock Mrs. Eli Johnson found a note on a table which conveyed the intelligence that James desired to end his existence and had taken the poison. He was found lying on a porch in the front part of the house, and it was apparent that he was suffering from the effects of the deadly drug.

A physician was immediately summoned and by the use of strong emetics Johnson's life was saved. He had mixed up about a teaspoonful of Paris green in a tea cup with a small portion of water and drank the contents. His condition was serious for some time, but to-day the unfortunate man was able to be about.

A few weeks ago Johnson had the misfortune to lose his wife, and brooding over her death is said to have been the cause of his rash act. In the note which was found he stated that he desired to die and join his wife in heaven. In the note he also stated that he desired all his worldly possessions to go to his two little children.

In conversation with a representative of The Intelligencer the physician stated that Johnson had drank enough of the poison to cause death, if he had not received medical aid in time.

CUT DOWN IN EARLY LIFE

DEATH OF MRS. WALTER FENN AT THE FAMILY RESIDENCE LAST NIGHT.

Mrs. Walter Fenn died last night at the family residence, Station road. Deceased had been ill for some months with lung trouble and her demise was anticipated. Mrs. Fenn was but 23 years of age and had been married only three years. She was a daughter of Mr. Wm. Couch, who resides in Thurlow, and was born in this vicinity. She was a member of Bleecker Street Methodist Church. A husband, but no family survive.

PLENTY OF WARM WEATHER YET.

The little changes in the weather need not make you feel positive that the hot weather is over. We will have lots of it yet. The months of August and September are both good hot months, and you will have lots of time to wear your summer suit. If you have not got one, the Oak Hall will be pleased to fit you out.

A MISTAKE CORRECTED.

MR. J. R. MATHESON, FORMERLY OF THIS CITY, WRITES TO A DETROIT PAPER CONCERNING THE RECENT FLAG INCIDENT.

Mr. John R. Matheson, of Detroit, Mich., who formerly resided in this city, his father having been bursar at the Institution for the Deaf, writes as follows to the Detroit Free Press, showing that Belleville, though lost to sight, is still to memory dear to him:

On behalf of young Belleville Canadians of Detroit, I beg to call your attention to the article in to-day's issue under the heading "Shot at Stars and Stripes," wherein the idea is given that the offence against the United States flag was made by young Canadians at Belleville. On reading the article through it is found that the offence was committed by some ignorant persons at Trenton, a town twelve miles distant.

As the good people of Belleville are accustomed to the sight of the Stars and Stripes on visiting yachts and vessels there, and know how to give their visitors proper welcome and entertainment, too, it is due them that you kindly correct the impression conveyed by the article that Bellevillians are in any way responsible for the conduct of the neighboring villagers of Trenton, or are lacking in the common manners of civility.

J. R. MATHESON.

CHURCH CHIMES OF YESTERDAY.

NOTES OF SERVICES IN DIFFERENT PLACES OF WORSHIP YESTERDAY.

St. Thomas'.

The Rector Rev. Mr. Beamish, yesterday morning preached a powerful sermon to a large and attentive congregation. The text was taken from I. Kings, 3rd chapter, part of the 5th verse:

"Ask what I shall give thee."

There was a prevailing fashion nowadays of setting forth the doings of wealthy men, and much stress was laid in the manner in which they spent that wealth. King Solomon was great in every particular, not only in wealth but in wisdom. He was not poor in any respect, while his 1005 Songs and Proverbs showed that he was an unrivalled student of human nature and history. His commerce reached to Central Africa, where he secured his gold and precious stones. Surely he was great above all the kings of the earth. The Queen of Sheba visited him, and marvelled greatly at his wisdom and treasure. Ten years previous he had ascended the throne of his father, dreading the responsibility of the building of the temple. But Solomon communed with God. He did not ask for riches, but for wisdom, and God gave him a discerning mind to rule his people, who numbered millions. The riches which he did not ask for came with his wisdom. What God did for Solomon he will do for others if they ask it humbly and with a true heart. Self-interest has dragged and is dragging many down to degeneration. People should not live in the world only for what they can get out of it. There is a nobler motive than that, namely, the advancement of God's kingdom upon earth. In conclusion the eloquent preacher impressed upon his hearers the fact that whatever was asked of God would be granted if it was for our well-being and was asked in a true spirit of faith and not for selfish purposes.

Bleecker Street Church.

Rev. Thos. Hambly, a former Bellevillian, now of Worthington, Wis., preached a fine sermon to a good congregation in the above church yesterday morning, his text being Mark ix., 23:

"Jesus said unto him—If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth."

Christ Church.

Rev. Prof. Howard preached a beautiful sermon in the above church last night, showing that God was ready to save all sinners who came to Him through the mediation of Jesus Christ. Mrs. (Col.) Campbell presided at the organ, and during the offertory Mr. Walter Greaves, Mrs Campbell's brother, played a flute solo with most artistic taste and expression.

Holloway Street.

At the close of the morning service sacrament was administered by the Pastor, Rev. J. R. Real, who conducted both services. In the evening the reverend gentleman's text was from Acts, 7th chapter and 31st verse:

"When Moses saw it he wondered at the sight, and as he drew near to behold it, the voice of the Lord came unto him."

Bridge Street.

In the absence of the Pastor yesterday, the Rev. J. Thomas occupied the pulpit in the morning. In the evening Rev. Thomas Hambly, of Wisconsin, preached an eloquent sermon, taking for his text part of the 3rd verse of the 11th chapter of St. Matthew's gospel:

"Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?"

The consensus of opinion is that this was one of the best sermons delivered in this church for years. Mr. Hambly is most original in thought, dramatic in delivery, and intense in manner. It was old truths put in new settings. His illustrations, which were numerous, were drawn from the present. It was manifest that the preacher studied modern men, and was well versed in the trend of modern thought in every field.

At the morning service Mrs. Leo Riggs sang a solo, which was much appreciated. In the evening Miss Mabel Vermilyea and Mr. Jessop rendered a duet, entitled "Some Day and Sometime."

Baptist.

Rev. Dr. Cross, of McMaster University, Toronto, yesterday occupied the pulpit at this church and his discourses were able efforts. In the evening the text was from Romans, 8th chapter and 28th verse:

"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them that are called according to his purpose."

During the service Mrs. Leo Riggs sang two solos, entitled "I Heard the voice of Jesus Say" and "Show Me Thy Way O Lord."

Tabernacle.

At the above church yesterday morning Rev. Dr. Gardner preached and his discourse gave general satisfaction. In the evening Rev. R. N. Adams occupied the pulpit.

St. Michael's

At St. Michael's Church yesterday, Rev. Father Hanley officiated, in the absence of Mgr. Farrelly. Special reference was made to the coronation of Pope Pius X., and at the conclusion of High Mass at 10.30 the Te Deum was sung.

John Street.

Rev. A. W. R. Whiteman, of Toronto, occupied the pulpit of this church yesterday, in the absence of the Pastor. His discourses were thoroughly enjoyed. At the evening service Miss Pearl Fanning rendered a charming solo, entitled "Face to Face."

St. Andrew's Church.

In the absence of the Pastor yesterday, the Rev. R. Young, of Pakenham, occupied the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church and gave two fine discourses.

OLDEST POSTMASTER IN CANADA IS DEAD

HAD BEEN IN OFFICE FIFTY-EIGHT YEARS — CONNECTED WITH PREMIER ROBLIN.

Ameliasburg, Aug. 10.—Owen Roblin, postmaster of this place, died Saturday at 4 p.m. Deceased was in his ninety-seventh year, and has been postmaster here since 1845, probably the oldest postmaster in Canada. He received his commission from Earl Lonsdale, Postmaster-General of England, there being no Postmaster-General in Canada at that time. He was a Justice of the Peace, and he was a great uncle of R. P. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba.

Rolling Mills Matter Still In Statu Quo.

AGREEMENT HAS BEEN REACHED, BUT BARGAIN HINGES ON COUNCIL'S RETURN OF $2,500 FORFEIT MONEY TO MR. KIRKWOOD.

It was learned, upon investigation, that there was only a very limited amount of truth in the report current on Saturday morning that an agreement had been arrived at between Messrs. Kirkwood and Carbonneau, and that the rolling mills had been sold to the latter gentleman.

Mr. J. F. Wills, who is in touch with the whole situation, informs us that it is true an agreement has been reached between Messrs. Kirkwood and Carbonneau, but the matter still hinges on the action of the City Council. If they return Mr. Kirkwood his $2,500 forfeit the deal is on, otherwise there will, likely, be "nothing doing."

Mr. Carbonneau is expected to arrive in the city this afternoon, and may have a conference with the City Council at its session to-night.

OFFICES, NO. 34, Bridge St., - Belleville, Ont.

THOS. E. MEPHAM. Local Manager,
and Provincial Representative of the Exchange.

The great advantage to local investors in placing their business with the Metropolitan consists in the fact that they have contracts with this strong financial institution itself, instead of with a local broker; thereby eliminating entirely the risk which may be involved in the question of a local broker's financial strength. Each commitment exists upon its individual merit, and cannot be affected by the short comings of the holders of other contracts nor even of the local manager. The local manager is the servant of this exchange, and the exchange is bound by his acts; consequently, the investor having the evidence that he has paid to a given point, his commitment is good to that point no matter what happens; and this is a valuable consideration—more so than most people imagine.

IN THE WOMEN'S EYES

HOW REV. DR. TALMAGE WOULD PLUCK MOTES AND BEAMS.

THE SERVANT GIRL QUESTION

Antagonisms and Difficulties and Estrangements Existing Between the Parlor and the Kitchen Are Due to Faults on Both Sides — The Preacher Finds a Remedy in a Text From the Psalms.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—In this sermon the preacher suggests a new solution of the much vexed "servant question" which would appeal to housekeepers and heads of families everywhere. The text is Psalm cxxiii, 2, "As the eyes of a maiden unto the hand of her mistress."

Two weeks ago "The Privilege of Being a Consecrated Domestic" was my subject. To-day I preach from another standpoint of this vitally important theme—namely, "The Relations of Wives, Mothers and Housekeepers to Their Servants." We would try to show that the antagonisms and difficulties and estrangements existing between the parlor and the kitchen are due to faults upon both sides. It is easy enough for the complaining housewife to develop such keenness of censorious vision that she can see innumerable imperfections in her servant's life, but when plucking the motes from out of her humble sister's eyes it is not always easy for the mistress to perceive the beam, the huge destructive beam, projecting from under her own overarching eyebrows.

That the housekeeper as well as the servant can be negligent in her duty there is no doubt. The psalmist, as a spiritual diagnostician of the heart's weaknesses, asserts it. He figuratively seems to place the mistress as a prototype before her domestics. Day in and day out the actions of the parlor are being duplicated in the kitchen. Adam Clark the great commentator, interprets these words of my text in the following way: "As servants look to their masters and mistresses to see how they do their work, that they may do it in the same way," so may we correct some of the evils found in the kitchen by exposing the evils practiced in the parlor. All virtues are not clothed in broadcloth. All feminine unfaithfulness and injustice do not warm themselves near a kitchen stove or centre on a stupid and stolid head with a waitress' cap or nestle in the selfish heart of a girl who, wearing a nurse's apron, pushes the baby's carriage along the avenue. If the head of the house wishes her servants to be faithful and true to her then she must first set an example of faithfulness. She must be true and kind and loving and Christianlike to her servants and to all the people with whom she comes in contact in her domestic walk of daily life.

The housekeeper is her servant's model. That implies that the mistress must be honest if she wants her servants to be honest. The eyes of rivals, of subordinates, of employes, are keen and see more than we know. They are apt to imitate, too, both the good and the bad, so that one wrongdoer may cause deterioration through whole circles of his social inferiors. In the home, as in business, the example of dishonesty has always the tendency to recoil on the wrongdoer. The merchant who connives at his clerks cheating of the customers in his interests must not be surprised if the clerks cheat him in their own interest. If the bank officials criminally misplace the institution's trust funds, there is likely to come a time when one of those bank employes will default, and in the emptied safe of that bank the sins of that financial institution will, like the proverbial chickens, come home to roost.

A step further! If a housewife will bid her waiting maid answer the front door bell and tell the would be caller that she is out, when she is in, that mistress is teaching her servant to be a liar in all things as well as in part. If a wife is false in her dealings with her grocer and butcher and washer-woman and false in her financial dealings with her servants, she need not be surprised if the laundress steals the stray handkerchiefs and collars and the cook sinfully wastes the butter and filches the cupboard, and perhaps goes so far as to sell the potatoes and the eggs.

Dishonesty is contagious. Dishonesty is an immoral germ which is apt to spread through a whole family as the diphtheria germ often in the olden times used to destroy all the children of one household. The sinful plague of dishonesty and untruthfulness and unfaithfulness does not always enter a home by the back door. It is sometimes comfortably installed in the boudoir long before it appears in the servants' quarters, and its first nap in a household is taken upon the parlor sofa and not by resting in a kitchen chair. The mistress, in spite of herself, is an exemplar to the domestic. Very often when the housewife is finding fault with her servants she is denouncing the malformed results of her own evil life.

Servants sometimes seem to have no sympathy with the wear and tear and the sorrows and the sicknesses of their housekeeper's life. They seem to be foreigners dwelling for a little while under the roof of a home with nothing in common between themselves and their mistress. Mr. Beecher once described a summer jaunt through Germany. He said that it was one of the strangest experience he ever had, because up to that time he had never placed his foot upon European soil. All about him were men and women living a distinct life of their own. They bought and they sold, traveled in railroad trains and ate at hotels. These people lived alongside of him. Yet he was a thousand miles away from them. He could not speak their language. He had nothing with which to draw him and them together. So some of the servants living under our roofs seem to speak a foreign tongue. They never seem to become "familized." They do not care what happens to us in any way. If death comes, or sickness comes, or great trouble comes, they will heartlessly leave us at a moment's notice and let us get along the best way we can.

But, housekeepers, why should you expect your domestics to sympathize with you in your time of trouble? You say that your cook left you during that awful crisis when your husband was hovering between life and death on account of typhoid fever. But have you ever sympathized with your servant in her sickness? Tell me frankly, have you ever stopped for one moment to realize that you had a human being, an immortal soul, working for you in the kitchen, or have you regarded her only as a little cog in the domestic machinery, which can be thrown away as soon as it is useless? Your eyes have been red with weeping from sitting up by your baby's crib. Did you think to ask why your chambermaid's eyes were red with weeping, on the day after she received that letter with a foreign postmark? You have had a hard financial struggle to get along and make ends meet. You have complained again and again because the female help is so wasteful. You say: "They will let the furnace go out, and then you must start it up again with extra coal and wood. They will not turn down the gas in the dining room and in the parlor and in the halls, and they do not care if the bills run up. They will throw away good meat, because they are too indolent to cook it in another form." But, my sister, did you ever stop to sympathize with your servant's financial struggle? Some of those girls are humble heroines. Why is she working and so carefully economizing? For herself? Oh, no. She is perhaps sending home all her wages to support her old parents or to help educate her orphaned brothers and sisters. If you were to go into your servants' room to-day perhaps you would find they did not have sufficient clothes to keep them warm. Why should your servants sympathize with your troubles if you care so little for theirs?

Sympathy, God given, practical sympathy, can break down many a barrier which to-day separates the kitchen from the parlor. Christopher Columbus' life proves what well directed sympathy can do. After the great Genoese mariner had returned from his voyages of discovery jealousies arose. He was thrown into prison and mangled with irons. The effects of these persecutions was to make Columbus' heart as dead as stone. A popular writer of that day described the new world and stole away its rightful name. The two continents which should bear the title of Columbia are called America. Columbus said nothing. His enemies lied about him and called him a traitor. Columbus said nothing. But one day he was brought before the Spanish throne. He came into the royal palace a stern faced man. He looked up and saw the eyes of Queen Isabella wet with sympathetic tears. At once this strong and sullen hero wavered. He knelt before the throne and buried his face in his hands and wept, until his frame shook with emotion. Sympathy, God given sympathy placed Columbus at Isabella's feet; not the chains, not the persecution, not the upbraidings, not the indifferences. So, my sister, if you expect your servants to be sympathetic with you, be as Queen Isabella, who sympathized with Columbus' troubles. You must sympathize with theirs.

The name of home ought to have for every true housewife a charmed sound. It ought to be spelt by her, as her grandmothers used to spell it, in many letters of gold. It ought to be spelled in tongues of flame, glowing above the hearthstone. It ought to be spelled in a word of eleven letters, "happiness." It ought to be spelled in two words, the one of eight and the other of three letters, "maternal joy." It ought to be spelled in another word of seven letters, "liberty." The true wife should never want to be anywhere but under the shadow of her home. But though Mary Anderson, the queen of the American stage, gladly abdicated her theatrical throne in order to be queen of her domestic fireside, a dangerous tendency of this age is for wives and mothers to vacate their domestic thrones. They want to hand over the kitchen to their cooks. They want to leave their children under the exclusive control of the nurses. They want to be separated from their husbands, on account of their clubs. They want to be liberally educated in everything on earth, except in the old fashioned way of learning how to be a good housewife and mother.

Now, housekeepers, is it right to expect your servants to be proud to work in the kitchen when you yourself are ashamed to be found doing kitchen work? Is it more of an intellectual accomplishment to be able to speak poor French than it is to cook good bread? Lord Aberdeen, the Governor-General of Canada, did not think so. A few years ago, in a public speech, he said that the most pleasant experience of his sojourn in America was in the following incident: He was, in an official capacity, traveling through one of the Canadian provinces and was stopping at a prominent official's home. After an elaborate meal, perfectly cooked and perfectly served, he turned to the hostess and congratulated her upon her cook. With that the lady's face lighted up with pleasure, as she answered: "My lord, I thank you for your compliment. Your words of praise sink deep into my heart. This afternoon our regular cook was taken sick and so my daughter took her place. She will be in presently from the kitchen. You can then, face to face, congratulate her upon her success."

The housekeeper is her servants' model. Then she must give to them her love as well as her sympathy. "Oh, no," some housewife answers, "I could not love my servants. I could sympathize with them in their troubles, but I could not love them. Why, if I loved them I should have to receive them into the 'holy of holies' of my heart. I should in one sense have to make them part of my own family. I cannot place my servants side by side with my children." Yes, my sister, you can love as well as sympathize with your domestics. You can give them your heart as well as your hand. You can make them part of your household. You can look upon your domestic help in the same way that King Solomon looked upon his. He was verbally painting the ideal condition of his home when he wrote, "And had servants born in my home." That means, as I take it, that the servants were part of himself. If any troubles should come those servants would cling to him and love him on account of the love your servants would cling to him and love him on account of the love with which he loved them. You can learn to love your servants just the same as your servants can work for you from a higher motive than that of getting money. They can learn to love you.

Housewives, if you will only learn to love your servants and make their interests your interests, that love would be returned to you in a thousand blessings. We can prove this by the silver cords of affection which bound some of the southern planters to their black slaves. Did not those slaves return their masters' love by a noble devotion? There was many and many a woman in the south who, after her husband had been shot in the civil war, would have starved to death had not the strong limbed negroes who worked for her as "slaves of the law" continued, of their own free will, to work for her as "slaves of love." The true interpretation of love means simply this: If you love your servants, you will take them into your life and make their interests your interests. And by your loving them they will let you creep into their hearts and make your interests their interests.

The housekeeper is the domestic model also in religion. Therefore, by her life she should teach her servants that religion is not a mere sham, but a reality, and that the noblest of all lives is that consecrated to the service of the Lord Jesus Christ. It has been said that "No man is a hero to his valet." Therefore "No mistress could be a true Christian exemplar for her servant." That statement is only partially true. No housewife, if she is leading an insincere life, can have a true spiritual influence over her servants. The nearer a servant comes to an insincere mistress the more she is repulsed by her pretensions to religion; but the nearer a domestic comes to a pure, true, noble woman, who is earnestly and prayerfully trying to follow out the teachings of the Christ love, the more she realizes the importance of living for eternity and not for time; for Christ, and not for pleasure; for present duty, and not for a transient whim.

The greatest cause of unfaithfulness and dishonesty in the kitchen is the fact that your servant girl is not converted to Christ. Perhaps the chief reason why your servant is not converted is that she does not see you, her mistress, a professing Christian, living the Christian life you ought to live. My sister, is it not time for you to turn over a new leaf and start afresh for Christ? Is it not a good resolve to try to settle this "servant question" once for all by surrendering yourself, body and mind and soul, to the service of your Master?

The spiritual influence which a consecrated Christian woman can have over the life of her servant was well shown by Rev. Francis E. Clark of the Christian Endeavor society. He told this beautiful story soon after his return from China: The wife of an American missionary, who was massacred in the late Chinese uprising, was one day teaching a Sunday School class, among whom was one of her Chinese servants. This servant girl, by coming in contact with her mistress, was not only led to the feet of Christ, but also was led to believe that her faithful mistress was her true spiritual adviser. So this day the young girl looked up into the face of this Christian lady and said: "Missionary, as you talk about the great joys of heaven I would like to ask you a question. Will we know each other when we reach heaven? Will you know your father and mother and husband and little children? Will you know me and I know you?" "Yes," answered the Christian lady. Then, missionary," said the poor Chinese servant, "you have been so kind to me that when I get to heaven I am going to ask Jesus to just let me sit by your side and hold your hand forever and ever and ever." Oh, mistresses! Oh, housewives and housekeepers, in your dealings with your servants may you reveal the same gentle Christian life that the martyred Christian lady showed to her household.

Housewives and housekeepers, heed well the importance of consecrating your lives to Christ, not only for your own sake, but also for the sake of your servants. Remember that it is far easier for you to commit a sin against those whom you suppose to be lower than you than it is against those whom you suppose are above you. It is easier for a parent to sin against a child than for the child to defy a parent. It is easier for a king to do an open wrong to a subject than for a subject to flagrantly sin against a king. And remember further, that God judges our actions just as much by how we treat our cattle as our masters, our underlings as our employers, our servants as our husbands and wives. May The Spirit inspire every housewife to live such a holy life that her servants can well take her as a spiritual model and can see in her face a reflection of the living smile of Jesus Christ, who willingly became the servant of all.

MACEDONIA MAKES APPEAL

Civilized World Invited to Consider Causes For Despair.

Revolutionary Committee Issues Statements of Cause and Effect—The Situation Becoming Serious—Russia Demands Full Retribution and Exemplary Punishment For All Concerned in the Assassination of Russian Consul.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 11.—The delegates here of the Macedonia Committee addressed the following appeal to each of the representatives of the powers:

Your Excellency:

"The delegates of the Macedonian Committee have the honor to bring to your notice the following declaration, with the request that you communicate it to your government.

"Mussulman's systematic persecution has compelled the Christians in Macedonia and the vilayet of Adrianople to institute a general rising. They have had recourse to this extreme measure after exhausting all pacific means to secure the intervention of Europe to enforce the provisions of the Berlin treaty. At the present moment this intervention is the only means of remedying the evil and stopping bloodshed. The sporadic efforts of the powers to secure reforms having failed, they are said merely in recrudescence of Turkish fanaticism and government oppression.

"It is evident that reform measures to be efficacious must include the appointment of a Christian governor-general of Macedonia, some one who has never held office under the Porte, and who must be independent of the Turkish government in the exercise of his functions and the further appointment by the powers of a joint permanent administrative with full power to deal with any disturbances

"Having published the foregoing facts to the civilized world and made known the causes which have driven Macedonians to despair, the committee of the Macedonians now in arms proposes to continue the fight till the object of their uprising has been attained."

8,000 Insurgents Under Arms.

The representatives of the Macedonia Revolutionary Committee have published a statement saying that the number of insurgents in the District of Monastir is 8,000, and that they are armed with rifles. It also states that in August 2,600 insurgents destroyed three detachments of Turkish troops numbering altogether 100, and attacked the Town of Kitchevo, but failed to occupy it. The insurgents, however, destroyed the Turkish Village of Drougov, whose inhabitants had come to the assistance of the garrison of Kitchevo. The statement further says that three Christian villages, Smilevo, Kruche and Bolno near Monastir have been completely destroyed by the Turkish troops.

Czar's Demands.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—The Czar has demanded the exemplary punishment, not only of the murderer of the Russian Consul at Monastir, who was killed last week by a Turkish gendarme, but of all the military and civil officials in any way responsible for the crime.

The assassination of the Russian Consulat Monastir, M. Rostkovski—the second murder of a Russian consular official in Macedonia within a few months—has created intense indignation here.

Sultan Sends Regrets.

In reporting the occurrence to the Foreign Office, the Russian Ambassador at Constantinople telegraphed Aug. 8:

"The Russian Consul at Monastir has fallen the victim of an atrocious crime. The Grand Vizier and the Turkish Foreign Minister have come to me with expressions of regret in the name of the Sultan. Ferid Pasha, the Grand Vizier, informed me that the assassin was a gendarme named Hamlin and that he will be subjected to the severest punishment, and the Vali of Monastir will be removed from his post."

Russia's Reply.

"His Majesty has received a telegram from the Sultan expressing his deep regret at the death of the Russian Consul at Monastir. When I submitted your telegram to the Emperor His Majesty gave orders that you should not confine yourself to receiving explanations from the Grand Vizier, but should make the most energetic demands on the Turkish Government for full satisfaction and immediate exemplary punishment both of the murderer and of all of the military and civil officials on whom responsibility for the audacious crime may fall."

According to the report made by the official now in charge of the Russian Consulate at Monastir, the murderer is a gendarme. The Consul asked his name, because, in defiance of instructions, the gendarme did not salute him. The gendarme thereupon fired several shots, mortally wounding the Consul in the head and hip. The horse drawing the carriage in which the Consul was driving received two bullets and shots were also fired at the coachman.

Called Him a Pig.

Belgrade, Servia, Aug. 11.—According to reports received here, M. Rostkovski abused the Turkish gendarme, who was doing sentry duty, for not saluting him, and called him a "pig of a Turk," then he struck the sentry with his whip, saying, "Next time perhaps you will know me." The gendarme thereupon fired on the Consul. It is stated that M. Rostkovski was hated by the Turks on account of his intense arrogance.

A More Serious Aspect.

London, Aug. 11.—The Balkan situation has assumed a more serious aspect in the eyes of the British officials as the result of the murder of the Russian Consul at Monastir. It is expected that the Russian demands for the punishment of the murderer and the responsible officials will be followed by others of greater international interest, and affecting the general Balkan question.

Mr. Balfour on the Situation.

The state of affairs in Macedonia was brought up in the House of Commons yesterday, but Premier Balfour declared he was unable to give any satisfactory assurances regarding the situation. The latest news reaching the Government, he said, was far from reassuring. Mr. Balfour acknowledged the ill success of the efforts of Europe in the Macedonian question since the signing of the Treaty of Berlin, but he thought that the critics of European diplomacy should not forget the extraordinarily complicated difficulties of the task. He was still hopeful that the plan recently designed by Russia and Austria would prove the best way of dealing with the problem. Between the outrages deliberately planned by the revolutionists and the license of the Turkish troops, the historical truth required him to say that the balance of criminality lay rather with the revolutionists than with the Turks. Mr. Balfour said everything possible would be done to impress the Porte with the necessity of keeping its troops well in hand, and every assistance would be given to the Porte in carrying out that object. The British Government's policy, concluded Mr. Balfour, was to aid Austria and Russia in introducing the elementary principle of sound government, which for the present constituted the best means of dealing with the deep-seated evil.

VAN HORNE NOT INFORMED

By a Vote of 45 to 34 the House of Commons Declares Against a Two Cent a Mile Railway Fare For Canada—Five Government Supporters Voted With the Opposition For Mr. Maclean's Amendment.

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—Replying to Mr. Rosamond in the House yesterday, Mr. Fielding stated that since 1896 The Montreal Herald Printing Company had received $113,614 from the Government.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated that the letter in which Sir William Van Horne declined to act on the transportation commission was received by the Government on the 25th of July last. Previous to this date the Premier said Sir William Van Horne had not been informed of the arrangements for the construction of the transcontinental railway, nor had the Government ascertained Sir William's views in regard to the proposed transcontinental railway policy.

The Premier also stated that the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Bill would be taken up to-day and debated every day until disposed of.

Liberal amendments proposed to the bill incorporating the Grand Trunk Pacific were declared lost. The bill was given its third reading.

For Two Cent Rate.

Mr. Maclean moved his amendment providing for a maximum passenger rate of two cents a mile on Canadian railways in connection with Clause 263 of the Railway Bill, which deals with passenger tariffs. He said railways had existed in Canada for over fifty years. During all that time the passenger rates had remained the same. All other forms of rates had been reduced. Freight rates had been cut in two, and by this reduction traffic had grown and the railway revenues had increased. If passenger rates are reduced, said Mr. Maclean, the railways will have larger receipts, and a great benefit will be conferred on the Canadian public. He then went exhaustively into the whole question.

Mr. Jabel Robinson, who seconded Mr. Maclean's motion, said the member for East York had exhausted the subject. He thought, too, that the railways, as well as the people, would benefit from a 2-cent rate. The proof might be found in the popularity of excursions for which reduced rates are given. Mr. Robinson recalled the rate war that took place two or three years ago when the low rates brought about a heavy passenger traffic. Nearly every train could carry twice as many people as it does, and these extra passengers would mean increased revenues without any increase in expense.

Mr. C. B. Heyd said Mr. Maclean had devoted a great deal of attention to this question, but he had still some important facts to learn. Only one railway in Canada earns $3,000 a mile, which is the basis of the two cent rate in Michigan. The Canada Atlantic with 458 miles, earns $316,000 a year, or $700 a mile. The C.P.R., with 7,321 miles, $9,000,000, or $1,300 a mile. The Grand Trunk, with 3,100 miles, $262,000, or $210 a mile. The Canadian Northern 1,248 miles, $262,000, or $210 a mile. The Canada Southern, with 282 miles, $1,377,000, or $3,600 a mile. With a capital of twenty-eight millions the latter declared a dividend of only 2 per cent. and the stock is quoted at 62. The earnings of the above named railways all told is only eighteen millions. Mr. Heyd said they should be fifty-five millions to justify a two-cent a mile rate.

Mr. Philip Demers, Liberal member for St. John and Iberville, said he felt a cordial sympathy for the movement for a two-cent rate. Between Montreal and St. John, Mr. Demers stated, the distance is 25 miles, and a single ticket cost one dollar, or exactly four cents a mile.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that it would be a grand thing if people could travel on railways as on the king's highways, for nothing, but the member for East York must admit that passengers must pay some tolls for the service they receive. Everyone agreed that reasonable tolls should be charged. It would not be advisable, however, to fix an iron limit as Mr. Maclean proposed. There must be elasticity in the rates, the Premier declared. In some localities two cents a mile might be a high rate and on other localities three cents a mile might be low enough. Sir Wilfrid argued that the question of passenger rates should be left to the railway commission, which could be depended upon to redress all grievances. He suggested that the high rate between Ottawa and Prescott is due to the fact that the country between these points is very thinly settled. The Premier agreed with Mr. Demers, however, that there was no justification for a four-cent rate between Montreal and St. John, Que.

The amendment was declared lost.

Another Amendment.

Mr. Maclean then tried to move a second amendment providing for a rate of 2½ cents a mile on all railways east of Port Arthur. The speaker ruled that Mr. Maclean having spoken once could not speak again on the third reading of the bill.

Dr. Sproule thereupon presented the amendment, which he defended in an able argument.

Mr. Rosamond seconded the motion.

Mr. Maclean, in replying to Mr. Heyd, said the movement was progressing.

Mr. Fitzpatrick suggested that the three-cent rate in Manitoba was applied only to the Canadian Northern Railway.

"Yes, but the C.P.R. had to come to that rate," replied Mr. Maclean.

"Competition did it," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

"Yes," said Mr. Maclean, "competition resulting from an agreement made between the Government of Manitoba and the Canadian Northern Railway."

William Ross of Victoria, N. S., spoke in favor of lower passenger rates, but his vote was recorded against the amendment.

Dr. Sproule's amendment was then submitted to the House and was defeated.

The Votes.

Only 77 members, or a little over one-third of the full strength of the House, voted on the issue. Of these 34 members voted for the amendments and 45 against it.

It was almost a straight party division, the Opposition rolling up 29 of the 34 votes recorded for the amendment. The other five were drawn from the Government supporters. Frank Oliver of Alberta, Demers, Kendall, Christie and Turgeon declined to follow their leader.

The Railway Commission Bill was then read a third time and passed.

TEN MILLIONS TO DIVIDE.

C.P.R. Declares Dividends on Its Preferred and Common Stock.

Montreal, Aug. 11.—At the meeting of directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company yesterday a dividend of two per cent. on the preferred stock for the half year ended June 30 last was declared. A dividend of three per cent. for the same period was also declared on the common stock.

The results for the fiscal year to June last were:

Gross earnings	$43,957,373
Working expenses	28,120,527
Net earnings	15,836,845
Income from other sources	1,286,812
Total net income	17,123,658
Less fixed charges	7,052,197
Less amount applied against ocean steamships	150,000
Net revenue available for dividends	9,921,460

After payment of all dividends declared, the surplus for the year carried forward is $3,973,960.

The following additional directors were appointed to the C.P.R. board: Hon. Robt. Mackay, Robt. Reid, Hon. G. A. Drummond, D. McNicoll and Clarence Mackay of New York.

POPE LOOKS TEN YEARS OLDER,

But His Affable and Simple Manner Has Not Changed.

Rome, Aug. 11.—Pius X. had another fatiguing day yesterday, as he received all the delegates, which had come to Rome to attend the coronation ceremonies. He accorded a lengthy audience to about three hundred persons from Venice. He said to them: "I am a poor mortal, too weak for the heavy cross which God has given me. But His will be done. I will carry it as best I can, and you all must pray to Our Lord to give me the necessary strength."

His old Venetian friends agree that the Pope looks 10 years older, than he did before his election, but that his affable and simple manner has not changed.

Distressing Shooting Accident Near Arkell, Wellington County.

Guelph, Aug. 11.—Ann Hume, aged six years, daughter of Peter Hume, a farmer, living near Arkell, was accidentally shot by her brother, George, aged twelve, yesterday morning. Investigation showed the shooting to be purely accidental.

FACTORY BLEW UP.

Three Workmen Killed and Many Others Injured.

Portsmouth, O., Aug. 11.—Hamphrey & Hogan's canning factory, at Rutland, near here, blew up at noon, killing three workmen and injuring a dozen others.

Jumped Into Water Twice.

Montreal, Aug. 11.—A determined attempt at suicide was made early yesterday at No. 2 lock, near the Ogilvie mills. A young man about 25 years of age, rather disheveled appearance and apparently the worse for liquor, deliberately threw himself into the basin. Mr. James Evers, assistant superintendent of the canal, who is a strong and determined swimmer, jumped in and succeeded in bringing the man to the bank. They had no sooner landed, however, than the stranger jumped back into the basin. Mr. Evers again started to bring him back to dry land, but the exertion was almost too great, and Diver Fitzpatrick had to go down to help both men out. The stranger refused to give any information as to his identity or his reasons for his rash act.

TWELVE YEARS FOR ROWLEY

Sentenced to Fifty-Five Years But Terms Run Concurrently.

Counsel Pleaded Extenuating Circumstances, and Rowley, Himself, Asked For the Clemency of the Court—Told of His First False Step and of the Elusive Hope That a Lucky Stroke Would Enable Him to Pay Back His Clients.

St. Thomas, Aug. 11. — George Rowley, the defaulting manager of the Elgin Loan Company, who pleaded guilty a few weeks ago to one charge of perjury, came before Judge Ermatinger at 11 o'clock yesterday morning for sentence. John A. Robinson at some length pleaded extenuating circumstances, and Rowley was allowed to make a speech.

Asked Court For Clemency.

Rowley thanked His Honor for the privilege of stating his case. He reviewed his career in the city since he came in 1867, and recounted the history of his life during that time. He told how he made the first false step, and how he had gone on in the hope of recovering money and restoring it to his clients.

He appealed for a merciful sentence in order that he might endeavor to repay at least some of the money he had taken from those who had trusted him.

Rowley spoke in good voice and well chosen language, showing much emotion, and at the close sat down, buried his face in his handkerchief and wept.

As a Warning to Others.

Judge Ermatinger spoke earnestly of the excellent character Rowley had maintained as a citizen for many years, and of the shock he had experienced on learning of his downfall.

He considered Rowley had been in a better position to resist temptation than a hardened criminal. One of the most serious phases of the case in His Honor's mind was the discredit brought upon the church to which he belonged, and to the cause of religion generally by his conduct. If he, the judge, had only his own feelings to consult he would perhaps pass a lighter sentence, but he had a public duty to perform, and it was incumbent of him to pass a sentence which would deter others holding positions of trust from doing as he, Rowley, had done.

The Penalties.

The judge passed sentence as follows: On the charge of theft 12 years in Kingston Penitentiary; on each of the three charges of forgery 12 years, and on the perjury charge seven years, all the sentences to run concurrently. Rowley appeared dazed at the sentence, and remained seated in the court room some time after all had left except the jail officials.

Irish Bill Past All Danger.

London, Aug. 11.—The report on the amendment to the Irish Land Bill was read in the House of Lords last night and the bill will probably be passed to a third reading to-day. John E. Redmond, Nationalist, said last night: regarded as past all danger. If it works, as it is confidently hoped it will, there is no question but that it will effect a revolution in the condition of Ireland."

QUACKENBUSH CAUGHT.

Escaped Prisoner From the Central Taken With Two Other Crooks While Committing a Burglary in Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 11.—Caught redhanded, in the full light of day, Quackenbush, the notorious escaped convict, with two others of Toronto's worst crooks, is again in the toils of the police. The trio were arrested while in the act of committing another burglary.

Since the escape of Quackenbush from the Central Prison some weeks ago, there has been a systematic search instituted all over the province. As a result of the increased vigilance on the part of the detective force he was brought to bay while burglarizing the premises of Mrs. Adeline Brodie, 469 Sherbourne street. The other two prisoners arrested were Stephen Doyle and Thomas Gallagher, alias Murphy, both of evil reputation. One man escaped.

The arrest of the three men was the result of cool and clever work on the part of Detective Forrest, and the police express the greatest surprise that a serious tragedy was not the outcome of the incident. All three burglars were armed to the teeth, and although an attempt to shoot Detective Forrest was made by Gallagher, the other two dropped their revolvers and threw up their hands when the muzzles of four police guns in the hands of Forrest and Acting Patrol Sergeant Pogue were turned on them.

FELL OVER AND EXPIRED.

Samuel Warner Died of Heart Failure From Shock After Accident.

Midland, Aug. 11.—A very sad accident occurred in the power house of the municipal electric light plant. The town were installing a new three-hundred horse-power Wheelock engine. The engine was almost in position when it canted over slightly, and Henry Chester was caught between one of the blocks and the engine and his foot was badly broken in two places.

Another man, Samuel Warner, was near Chester, and, when the engine shifted he called to the other men to help Chester, and got up himself, but directly after he fell over and expired. He did not seem to be injured in any way, and it is surmised that his death was the result of heart failure caused by the shock. The remains will be taken to Prescott for burial.

ON A SOUND FOOTING AT LAST.

Bellevillians generally can congratulate themselves that the rolling mills, which have so long lain idle, a standing monument to the city's ill-luck, have at last been acquired by live men, with keen business instincts and ample capital, who will operate them to their full capacity and do justice both to the mills and the city in which they are situated.

The white elephant which for so long has stood down by the bay shore is to once more become full of energy and activity, and there is every reason to hope that, under its new ownership and management, the concern will be what it should have been long ago, a real benefit and credit to the city and the loadstone which will attract many other industries.

The fact that French capital is to be employed in the furtherance of a Belleville enterprise is also a matter for much congratulation; let us hope that the strangers within our gates may find their efforts crowned with success. Assuredly they will receive every good wish and assistance from all classes in this city.

The fact that a former Belleville boy Dr. Alf. Wills, is one of the syndicate which is to run the mills will be a source of pleasure and pride to our people, thus showing that, after all, blood is thicker than water.

Success to the rolling mills under their new management. May they find that prosperity which should have been theirs in the past.

The article in another column, detailing the completion of the negotiations will be interesting and gratifying reading.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Talking about last night's thunderstorm, wouldn't that jar you?

• • •

No doubt the weather man was letting off fireworks because Belleville's rolling mills are going to be operated again.

• • •

Everybody should be happy now. The city has a base assessment and the tax rate is 2-10ths of a mill less than last year.

• • •

In the opinion of many people, Ald. Paterson's suggestion for municipal ownership of the Gas Works was a timely and sensible one.

• • •

Ald. Chown's budget was a creditable production, delivered in a lucid and sensible manner.

• • •

After all the fireworks he set off last night, the weather man should give us fine weather for the races and picnics to-morrow.

No recent novel has been more talked about or more widely discussed in the press than "Abner Daniel." None has been more generously praised by the reviewers. Everybody who has not read it wants to read it—and those who have not read it are legion. "Abner Daniel" is bound to make a hit in newspapers. ROLLING MILLS WERE PURCHASED THIS AFTERNOON.

Have Now Passed Into the Hands of a Syndicate of Three With a

Capital of $250,000—Mills Will at Once be Put in First-class Shape,

And Everything Necessary be Done to Make Them Up-to-date in Every Way.

It is The Intelligencer's privilege to-night to impart to its readers the fact that the Belleville Rolling Mills, which have so long lain idle, have now passed into the hands of a syndicate which purposes to at once put them in first-class shape and operate them to their full capacity.

During the course of an interview with Mr. C. Carbonneau, one of the syndicate, this morning, our representative found out a few interesting things.

"I can tell you," said Mr. Carbonneau, "that I have just closed a deal with Messrs. Kirkwood and McKinnon, and that all arrangements have now been completed whereby we come into immediate possession of the Belleville Rolling Mills. The sum of $250,000 has been advanced by the members of the company, which will be a limited concern, and that sum will be used for the purchase and operation of the mills. The company or syndicate, I may say, will consist of three persons, namely, Dr. Alf. Wills, Mr. Jackson, of Paris, and myself. Three-quarters of the $250,000 is put up by Dr. Wills and myself, and the other quarter by Mr. Jackson, who, though his name sounds English, is a thorough Frenchman, and has been, as were his family before him, identified with the iron industry in France for a long time. Mr. Jackson will shortly arrive here and take up his residence in this city."

"How did you come to be interested in the Belleville Rolling Mills?" queried the newspaper man.

"Through my partner in the Yukon, Dr. Wills," said Mr. Carbonneau. "He was, naturally, greatly interested in the welfare of his birthplace, and was sorry to see the mills lying idle. I interested myself in the matter chiefly because I saw that my partner, the Doctor, had his heart set on doing, if possible, something for Belleville, and the present outcome is the result."

"And do you purpose beginning work in the mills at once?" asked the interviewer.

"At once," said Mr. Carbonneau. "The gentleman who will act as manager of the mills is in the city. He has been ordered to make a thorough examination of the plant, and has been told to spare no expense in order to put the plant in first-class condition. He will visit other places and obtain the newest and most up-to-date machinery, so that the mills may be able to compete with any on the continent.

"This," continued Mr. Carbonneau, "is a private enterprise, in which only the three whose names I have mentioned are interested. I have been told that your former Rolling Mills Company were not successful owing to banking troubles. We anticipate no troubles of that kind, as our own capital of $250,000 will be ample to maintain the mill in operation without asking favors of anybody. I may say that it ought to be gratifying to your people to see French capital invested in your city. If the mills run successfully we intend to build smelters to use the ore which exists in large quantities in the northern portion of this county, and you need not be surprised, if all goes well, to see them started within a year."

"I may say," said Mr. Carbonneau, as the newspaper man rose to go, "that Mr. J. F. Wills will be our managing representative in this city for the present. There, now you know the facts of the case, and can give your readers a true story, without any guess work. Good morning."

Mr. Carbonneau left the city this afternoon.

Two Fine Days of Racing Promised.

BY THE BELLEVILLE DRIVING AND ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION, TO-MORROW AND THURSDAY AFTERNOONS.

People who love a good horse race, and their name is legion, will have a rare opportunity for enjoyment to-morrow and Thursday afternoons when the Belleville Driving and Athletic Association will hold a meet at which purses will be hung up aggregating $1,000. No pains have been spared to put the track on the Driving Park in first-class condition, the I.O.O.F. Band will be present on both afternoons, the officials are noted for being A1 in their respective positions, and with fine weather people can be sure of sport never excelled in this city, which is certainly saying a good deal, for Belleville in the past has seen some race meetings second to none ever held in any small centre.

The Belleville Driving and Athletic Association, as everybody may not know, is composed of gentlemen deeply interested in good clean sport, who formed a company and purchased the Driving Park with the object of holding semi-yearly races. Their charter has been granted, but the association has not yet met to elect officers, the affairs of the association, in the meantime, being managed by the following provisional Board of Directors: Messrs. J. E. Ketcheson, W. H. Bottum, C. N. Sulman, James Brown and L. R. Terwillegar.

The officials for the races which commence to-morrow are:

Starter for harness events — Mr. Frank G. Smith, of Buffalo. Mr. Smith is said to be king pin in his position.

Starter for running races — Mr. Matt. Williams, of Cobourg.

Judges—Messrs. F. Peake, of Campbellford; Poulette, of Ottawa; Dr. Dolan, of this city, and Matt. Williams.

Timekeepers—W. D. Chisholm and James O'Neil.

The races are announced to begin at 1:30 sharp on each afternoon. The trotting races will be governed by the National Trotting Association rules, and the running races by the Ontario Jockey Club's rules.

Following are the events and entries for to-morrow, the driver's name, where known, following in parenthesis:

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

suance of this plan, he charged me with the care and education of his son, placed all his property and fortune in my hands subject only to my promise to supply him with such funds as he should ask from time to time; and so he quietly left his home and went I knew not where.

In the cellar of his great house, my brother had built a strong stone vault, and in this was deposited the money and valuables he had not used in buying or improving his property. Of this he gave me the key, telling me to use what I would. But I resolved to touch not a penny, save only to supply his demands, and moreover, to place therein all the profits that accrued from my management of the place—paying only the expenses, and using my own money entirely for every luxury or necessity of my household. After a length of time, my brother returned secretly, supplied himself again with money and left. This he did at various times, never staying over a single night at his home, and saying nothing of his plans or purposes.

There came a period of years in which I did not hear from him. His son had grown to manhood, married, and you were born, my dear Claude, and named by me. My brother returned once again, and looked upon your infant face. He had grown old and feeble, and told me that he had at last found peace in religion, having joined a society of brothers, in a French monastery, where his life was devoted to works of charity and to penitence. He examined carefully into his affairs, and arranged that, in case of his death, a certain portion of his fortune should go into the hands of the brethren of his society. Though I had been reared in the strictest Protestant faith, I could not condemn the life in which my brother found hope and peace, and I agreed to all his wishes.

He went away again; and years passed on. Your father and mother died, my dear Claude, and I was left as your only guardian.

One dark night, at a late hour, as I was sitting in my room, there came a knocking at the door of the house. Old Carl answered the summons, and ushered in a tall, venerable stranger, who desired to see me. At the first glance of his face, I surmised that he came to tell me the fate of my brother. "My brother is dead?" I said to him in an inquiring tone. "Yes," he replied, with a grave, sorrowful mien, "your brother, and our brother, is at rest."

I knew then that this stranger was a brother of the religious society which my brother had joined. I invited him to a seat, and asked him to give me all particulars. He told me of my brother's final hours, and declared that he had died at peace, having for years been one of the most faithful, sacrificing and devout members of his order. He had left, he said, a written testament, with directions that it be brought and delivered to me. He handed me the paper. Opening and reading it, I found it to be in my brother's handwriting, and that it contained his last wishes in regard to his affairs. He gave a short narrative of his long travels and adventures, in which he had particularly sought to trace up the proper heirs to some valuable jewels which he had acquired under circumstances that had always troubled his conscience, and which, consequently, he had never allowed himself to dispose of. In this he was successful, a coat of arms furnishing the clue; and the jewels were restored. His other wealth had come through prize money, but as he said, sometimes acquired in deeds of actual piracy, and he determined, for the full relief of his conscience, to devote a sum to charity equal to the full amount of what he considered he had acquired by violent and unlawful means. The sum fixed on, he wandered far and wide, bestowing charity wherever he had opportunity. In his travels he became acquainted with a Jesuit missionary. An intimacy was formed, and, through the influence of his new-found friend, his thoughts were turned in the direction of religion. He at last determined to join the society to which his friend belonged, and make use of its organization to dispense his charitable sums. He had continued to draw as largely on the contents of the old vault as he thought he could do without crippling the resources he had designed for me; but death was drawing near, and still the sum he had fixed on as cancelling all his ill-gotten gains, was not made good. So, trembling on the brink of the grave, he abjured me to allow a certain sum each year for a certain number of years to the use of the brethren of a certain monastery in France, that it might be applied by them to the charities to which he wished it devoted. He knew, he said, that I would grant this request, and he could die in peace. And with a blessing for me and his little grandchild, the paper came to an end.

I then had a long conversation with the strange visitor in regard to my brother's last wishes. He impressed me as being a devout and good man whom I could trust. I informed him of the course I had pursued in regard to my brother's property, and that I never touched and knew not the amount of his treasure in the old vault. I told him, that, as the companion and friend of my brother, and knowing his wishes, I would give him a key to the vault, leaving him to supply himself with such money as he desired to take. In answer, he said he could honestly take only so much for each year, and would take no more. We finally arranged that he should have a key to the vault, coming when he chose, entering the house by a secret entrance and taking such money as he desired from the vault. So he quietly came and went yearly. I desired that he should enjoy the hospitalities of my house on his visits, but he would not, and asked only that a dark basement room, that connected with the cellar containing the vault, be furnished with a desk, pallet and chair, candles, and a little fuel, so that he might occupy it when he came, to the disturbance of nobody.

At last, dear Claude, as I felt myself growing feebler with age, I sought to make such arrangements as would leave my property unencumbered by any conditions in your hands. I waited till the stranger priest came again, and besought him to take at once all that he deemed proper to fulfill my brother's dying wishes. He declined, as he said that it was only allowable according to my brother's wishes to take so much each year. I spoke of the probabilities of sudden death overtaking me at my advanced age, and the chance that it would place obstacles in the way of the payment of the annual tribute according to my brother's wishes. He then said he would go and consult with the superior officers of his society on the subject. On inquiry, I found that the amount remaining to be paid was equal to the sum of five annual payments. So, to provide against all contingencies, and to avoid any legal and formal disposition of the matter (which I shrank from, as it would only add to popular gossip about matters incapable of public explanation), I arranged with him to leave the old vault protected against intrusion for five years after my death, should it occur ere he came again. This would allow of my brother's last wishes being fully carried out. At theh same time, if he agreed with the brethren of his society to take the full amount of the money at one visit, he was to place a visible and lasting mark, in the shape of a small white cross, in each corner of the old vault, as a sign that his visits were ended, and that the arrangements to gratify my brother's last wishes were fully completed.

If these lines ever come to your eyes, my dear Claude, I will have been long at rest in my grave, and you will have been duly informed of my plans to carry out the arrangements herein described. These revelations will explain to you why such strange instructions as will have been given you have seemed necessary. But with the opening of this paper, all mystery and all limitation to your rights in your inheritance will have departed. You will be left, my dear boy, I trust, with ample wealth. Though I have never touched or counted my brother's stores, I know that great wealth still remains in the old vault. All will be yours. You need have no hesitation in using it, for no responsibility can descend to you through three generations. Moreover, long years of sorrow and penitence, and the restoration in deeds of charity of much more than the original sum, can well have lifted the guilt from the treasures of Rolff House.

And now, my dear Claude, you can understand why a cloud has always rested over Rolff House and its inmates, and which has shadowed your young life. You can understand much that has no doubt always seemed mysterious to you in my actions and your surroundings. With a sense of darkness and horror always on my mind, and settled grief at my heart, my life and actions have not been what in youth I dreamed they could ever be. I can well believe that I have grown crabbed and peculiar, and often I have deemed that perhaps my reason has been warped. I can be no proper guide and instructor for guileless, aspiring youth. It will be well when the hand of death takes me away.

But you will live, my dear, dear boy, to be a wise and good man. You will use the wealth left you to do good deeds. You wil continue, perhaps, the line of our family, not under the cloud of guilt, but in the light of innocence

HOUSE NOVELTIES.

The Pretty Fad of the Bedroom Candle—Neat Pine Furniture.

"At early candle lighting" is a pretty phrase that will be heard once more to describe the twilight, and the small attention of lighting and handing a lady her bedroom candle is among the gallantries revived with old fashions. For as in century old English country houses, so in modern electric wired homes, from Maine to California, our architects are putting in Jacobean wainscoted halls, for which the occupant never fails to furnish a mahogany table freighted with candles. Guests go twinkling up the stairs like indoor torchlight processions, and, sensible or not, no one can deny the charm of the sight. Consequently one is collecting candlesticks, and all the shops are full of them—in Dresden china and in wrought iron, in Spanish pottery and in silver plate, with fascinating extinguishers and snuffer trays, in burnished brass and in turned mahogany, tall enough to stand on the floor and still illuminate the upper regions.

With the candlesticks, and often without them, goes the fancy for old fashioned chintz or cretonne hangings. Wall paper comes nowadays with charming cotton hangings to match. You may cover your side walls with nosegays or colonial stripes and use the same pattern in woven goods for curtains or bedspreads. They are excellent for testers to a high, four post bedstead and make good coverlets to the more modern kind, with a finish of white cotton fringe in little balls or tassels.

The prettiest bedroom set for the country seen for many a day was of Georgia pine with low head and foot boards for the bed, a dressing table and high chest of drawers, two or three chairs, a light desk and medium sized table. All the supports were straight, solid uprights of wood, lightness being given by a very simple balustrade, wherever such an effect could be appropriately used, and the decorative relief to the eye was afforded by the lovely reddish grain of the wood itself.

A very different effect would be produced by the use of cretonne, as in a bedroom recently finished for a guest room. Toilet table, writing stand and a portable window seat were covered with gay flowered cotton, stretched to fit smoothly over the wooden framework. The mirror frame was also covered, ruffled draperies being hung on brass supports around it.—House Beautiful.

For Wounds Caused by Rusty Nails.

Summer is the season of small accidents. Here is the remedy an exchange recommends for one of them: Every little while we read in the papers that some one has stuck a rusty nail in his foot or hand or other portion of the body and lockjaw resulted therefrom, and that the patient died. If every person were aware of a perfect remedy for all such wounds and would apply it then such reports would cease. The remedy is simple, always on hand and can be applied by any one, and, what is better, it is infallible. It is simply to smoke the wound, or any bruise or wound that is inflamed, with burning woolen cloth. Twenty minutes in the smoke will take the pain out of the worst case of inflammation arising from such a wound. People may sneer at this remedy as much as they please, but when they are afflicted by such wounds just let them try it.

A Tent For the Youngsters.

A waterproof tent, which may be used on rainy days, as well as on sunny ones, and is always cozy and comfortable, is one of the many ingenious devices adopted by a mother who resides in the country for the gratification of her little brood, and it has proved itself an unqualified success from the start. A small sized kindergarten table and a few little chairs and treasures of toys make up the furnishing. In rainy weather last summer it was considered great fun to put on rubbers and cloaks and make for the tent, where one could play to one's heart's content without fear of the elements.

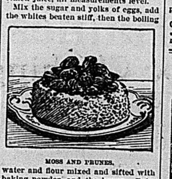
Best Way to Beat Carpet.

Perhaps the most thorough way to clean a carpet, especially a brussels, is to lay it on a clean grass plot, face down, and beat it as it lies there. After being beaten thoroughly it can be dragged by the corners over the grass, which will brush off all adhering dust, and the carpet will be cleaned in the most approved manner. To beat a carpet on a line is but an imperfect way, and the work is not as well done unless by the most patient beating.

A Nice Simple Dessert.

Three-fourths of a cup of sugar, the yolks of two eggs, the whites of two eggs, one-fourth of a cup of boiling water, one cup of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, all measurements level.

Mix the sugar and yolks of eggs, add the whites beaten stiff, then the boiling water and flour mixed and sifted with baking powder, and the lemon. Bake in a border mold and fill the center with stewed prunes that have been sweetened and the stones removed. Serve with whipped cream.—Good Housekeeping.



MOSS AND PRUNES.

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it; many without a trace of that hereditary disease have drifted into a consumptive's grave by neglecting what was only a slight cold. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup before it was too late, their lives would have been saved. Mr. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writes: "I think Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the best preparation on the market for coughs and severe colds. About six years ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and for three months I had a cough. I had a physician attending me, but gradually grew worse until I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hopes of being cured, when I was induced to try Bickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I was completely cured. I always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, and disordered stomach.

Lost chances never leave any trail.

AT DEATH'S DOOR.—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen,—My medical adviser and others told me I could not possibly live when I commenced to use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. My case was one of the worst of its kind. For three years I could not eat meat and my weight decreased from 212 to 119 lbs. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking the Vegetable Discovery consisted of milk. I am now entirely cured and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery since it cured me, as I am well-known and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I could not possibly be cured. They are eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life as I never expected to recover when first I commenced using it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as a certain cure for Dyspepsia.

Much talk, many lies.

The Flagging Energies Revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These come from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare powder, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression, and reviving the flagging energies.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

HAD LA GRIPPE.—Mr. A. Nickerson, farmer, Dutton, writes: "Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back and hip that used to catch me whenever I tried to climb a fence. This lasted for about two months, when I bought a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and used it both internally and externally, morning and evening, for three days, at the expiration of which time I was completely cured."

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed 'Perfection.'

All trails are long to the lazy.

Very many persons die annually from cholera and kindred summer complaints, who might have been saved if proper remedies had been used. If attacked do not delay in getting a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, the medicine that never fails to effect a cure. Those who have used it say it acts promptly, and thoroughly, subdues the pain and disease.

Committee Room 34,
House of Commons,

Q.—Let me have the facts. You did not think of charging that in the bill until you got to Ottawa? A.—Yes, I did, I was considering all along.

Q.—You were thinking about that all the time, were you? A.—Not all the time, but after we commenced to make up the details my own account was—

Q.—Why did you not put it in your bill as originally made up? A.—Well, as I had got further—

Q.—Now, where did this stationery come from? Did it all come from Ottawa? A.—No,

Q.—Stationery bought by yourself and given by you to these enumerators? A.—No, I have a good deal of stationery about home.

Q.—And you put up your own stationery? Did you take it around to different places, carry some to distribute? A.—Yes, I carried lots.

Q.—Wherever you went you took stationery to distribute and you gave it impartially to every enumerator? A.—Where I thought they needed it.

Q.—Why do some of them charge for stationery in their accounts, when you were carrying it around giving it to everybody? Could you give what the value would be of the stationery you gave them? A.—Well, it was not all what they got, it was what I used myself, I had to write hundreds of letters.

Q.—Then did you figure out how much actual stationery was used up? A.—No, I made up a little sum that I thought would cover that.

Q.—Now, here is our friend John Allan, of Hungerford, did he give you that suggestion? He charged for stationery, etc., $1.00. A.—What is the question?

Q.—John Allan, he charged for stationery, then there were some others also charged for stationery. Was that what gave you the idea, looking at their account? A.—Well, I used a lot of stationery myself.

Q.—When did you first think— A.—And had to furnish a fountain pen.

Q.—Had to furnish a fountain pen to each enumerator? A.—No, myself.

Q.—I suppose you had the fountain pen after you got through? A.—Yes.

Q.—You did not include that in the $10, three dollars for a fountain pen? A.—I just took a lump sum of what I thought I was out by the use of stationery and what I gave to some of the enumerators.

Q.—And you made that lump sum after you came to Ottawa and got these suggestions that you mentioned here. Then I notice that you also charge $15 for your horse. You used a horse for ten days at $1.50 a day. You didn't think of that until you got to Ottawa either? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—Why didn't you put it in your bill? A.—I made it out either when coming down or when I got here.

Q.—But your bill was completed and added up, all closed, here it is before you. You closed up your bill at $105.17. That is what you brought from Belleville? A.—Yes.

Q.—After you got to Ottawa you added the use of horse, ten days at $1.50? A.—Yes, I put in the use of horse.

Q.—Now, what were you using your horse for? A.—Well, for different times and odd times that I had to drive around that I didn't charge for at any other place.

Q.—It was not any ten particular days, it was a lump sum? A.—I used the horse after I made up that account of my own.

Q.—After you made up this account. This comes down to the 10th of June, when you had returned the census books, what were you doing then? A.—I was looking after the manufacturers, they were not finished up.

Q.—Not even after you had returned your census books. A.—No,

Q.—Even without your census books you were running around and you did not charge for this running around after after you had returned the census books in your original bill? A.—No.

Magnet Finds Needles.

"John, buy a magnet while you're out. Ruth has lost the old one," said the head of a big dressmaking establishment to her errand boy.

"What do you do with magnets here?" a woman who was being fitted asked.

"We find needles with them."

"How do you mean?"

"Every day it naturally happens that my forty-five assistants drop a great many needles on the floor. To stop and look for these needles would take time. They are all left lying, therefore, till the day's end, when a cleaner goes over the room with a magnet, holding it close to the floor. Every lost needle instantly, then, jumps up on the steel and in that way all are recovered in a few minutes. To recover them by any other means would take at least an hour."

SCALP HUMOURS

Itching, Scaly and Crusted With Loss of Hair

Speedily Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment

When Every Other Remedy and Physicians Fail.

Warm shampoos with Cuticura Soap and light dressings of Cuticura, the great skin cure, at once stop falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, soothe irritated, itching surfaces, destroy hair parasites, stimulate the hair follicles, loosen the scalp skin, supply the roots with energy and nourishment, and make the hair grow upon a sweet, healthy scalp when all else fails.

Millions of the world's best people use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings and chafings, for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, for ulcerative weaknesses, and many antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery.

Complete treatment for every humour, consisting of Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the skin, Cuticura Ointment, to heal the skin, and Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood may now be had. A single set is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning and scaly humours, eczemas, rashes and irritations, from infancy to age, when all else fails.

Cuticura Resolvent, liquid and in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Australia, R. Towns & Co., Sydney; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Sole Proprietors.

A RIOT IN TITLES.

Elaborate Classification of Rank That Rules In Denmark.

The Danish classification of rank is a very elaborate one, built up of offices, orders, birth and titles, writes J. Brochner in "Danish Life In Town and Country." There are nine classes, which are divided into as many as a dozen subsections, each of which may again comprise a score or two of different titles and offices, yet there was a complaint in one of the Danish papers the other day that it was anything but complete.

Holders of titles have to pay an annual tax ranging from $44.50 in the first class to a miserly $3.33 in the ninth. There are about a score of different titles, several of which are again divided into "real" and "others," the "real" being several shades better than the "others."

These titles are always used in conversation, as, for example, "Will not the chamberlain have a cigar?" or "Mr. Chamberlain, will you not have a cigar?" And it requires a fairly clear head and a good memory to give everybody his due in a large party, especially as some of them are decorously long, as, for instance, geheimeconferentsraad.

Then there are ladies, who generally have "inde" (the English "ess") added to their husbands' title or office. A colonel's wife, for instance, is called oberstinde, and the wife of the chamberlain to the king kammerherreinde, and so forth.

But the subtleties of the additional titular address in writing even excel the verbal form. That persons of the first rank are "excellencies" is only natural, but gentlemen of the second class have on documents addressed to them a "high well born" prefixed to their title and name, and those of the third class a "high and well born." I much regret that I cannot explain why the addition of this "and" should somewhat detract from the value of the same words.

Gentlemen of the ninth class are addressed as "well honorable and well bred," which is, I think, almost more than they could expect for their $3.33.

Ladies do not attend funerals.

Children kiss the hands of their parents.

The bridegroom purchases his bride's trousseau.

The hostess is served first at a Mexican table.

When friends pass each other on the street without stopping they say adios (goodby).

Cards are sent to friends upon the anniversary of their saints' day and upon New Year's day.

Even the youngest children of the family are dressed in mourning upon the death of a relative.

The pronoun tu (thou) is used only among very intimate friends and relatives or when addressing children or servants.

Never allow a caller to carry a package of any size from your house; always send it to his home. Mexicans do not carry parcels.

If you change your residence you must notify your Mexican friends by card; otherwise they will not feel at liberty to enter your new home.

A Matter of Time.

"The reason why I quit shaving," said Rivers, "was that I figured up one day the amount of time that it took. I used to spend a little over fifteen minutes every day of my life shaving myself. I found that this used up ten or twelve working days every year, and I decided I simply couldn't afford the time."

"Well," responded Brooks, "you spend at least half an hour three times a day eating your meals. That makes ten and a half hours a week. There are fifty-two weeks in a year. Ten and a half times fifty-two—let me see—is 546. Allowing eight hours to a working day you spend sixty-eight days, or over two months, every year at your meals. Why don't you quit eating?"

University.

"A university," said John Henry Newman, "is in its essence a place for the communication and circulation of thought by means of personal intercourse."

That was some years ago.

Now a university is in its essence a group of buildings costing $15,000,000, containing apparatus costing $10,000,000 and in the custody of a faculty whose salaries foot up $5,000,000, where young persons, regardless of religious beliefs, provided only they have the dollars, may learn to use tobacco and slang.—Life.

His Business.

"Yes, gentlemen," said the newly nominated candidate, "I am opposed to holding public meetings and rallies. My idea would be to have a house to house canvass."

"That might be all right for you," objected another candidate, "but how about us? We are not used to it, while you are an awning maker."

Satisfied.

Aunt Sophia—Before engaging yourself to Henry I would advise you to take him to a palmist and learn something of his life and character.

Grace—I saw the lines in one of his hands last evening when we were out driving, and I was perfectly satisfied.

The Omnipresent Scot.

The London Chronicle tells a story of a traveler in eastern Russia who attended service in a Greek church and noticed a gigantic attendant in the procession who flourished an asperge with great skill, uttering words which seemed familiar. Listening intently, the tourist made out the sentence: "It's jist a pickle o' clean cauld watter. If it does ye nae guid it does ye nae hairm."

After the service the attendant disclosed himself as a Dunfermline man who had temporarily taken service with the local Greek priest.

David Was on Time.

Mr. Joggins (tentatively)—If I should not be home at dinner time you need not—

Mrs. Joggins (with decision)—You'll be home at the usual time, David.

Joggins says he doesn't know how it is, but when his wife says a thing it is pretty sure to come true.

A Discouraged Fighter.

"He isn't so much of a fighter as he used to be."

"No. You see, he was always looking for some one who could whip him—at least that's what he said."

"Well?"

"Well, he found him."

Doesn't Reciprocate.

"Mis'ry likes comp'ny, don't it?"

"Yes, but w'en I see it comin' dat's de day I don't feel sociable."

A miser grows rich by seeming poor; an extravagant man grows poor by seeming rich.

Justice Is Blind.

"It ain't no figger of speech," commented the philosopher, "that justice is blind. Nothin' happens to the man that makes the toy pistol, the feller that sells it or the guy that buys it for his little boy, but the kid, who don't know no better, gits the punishment that's comin' to all the others."

Ready For the Emergency.

"If you find it impossible to keep open your line of retreat," said the instructor in the military school, "what ought you to do?"

"Open up the line of advance," was the prompt reply.—Exchange.

A Persian Story.

There is a story in Persian literature of a certain poet who came before a great man and praised him very ornately. The rich man was very pleased and said: "Ready money I have not; nevertheless there is in my granaries very much corn. If you come tomorrow I will give you some." The poet went to his own house and on the morrow presented himself to his patron. The rich man asked him, "Why have you come?" He said: "Yesterday you promised to give me corn. For this reason am I come." The rich man said: "A most wonderful fool thou art. What you said to me gave me pleasure. What I have said to you equally pleased you. Why, then, should I give you corn?" The poet was covered with shame and departed.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA.

How it shakes one up, invades sleep, destroys strength, adds a real misery to life. Not the stomach, but the nerves are affected. Starved nerves make the whole trouble. You need Ferrozone because it's a nerve food. It supplies the elements that are needed to make rich, red blood. This is the savings bank of health. The richer the blood in red cells, the richer you're sure to be in health. Ferrozone quickly makes blood, strengthens the nervous system, strengthens the digestive organs and, presto! the nervous disturbance disappears. Sold by all druggists.

IT IS A PERPLEXING THING.

For the reader of newspaper advertisements to determine what is what. We do not use as large type as some, but we are sure that what we have to say is not the less important to any one who is interested in the subject of clothing at this time. Our summer suits are ready to speak for themselves, if you will but take time to inspect them, and we think you will find no fault with the prices. We are making an immense display of hot weather clothing and furnishings.—Quick & Robertson.

CHEAP TRIPS.

The Grand Trunk Railway is running an excursion from Belleville to Kingston every Wednesday. Fare for the round trip, Belleville to Kingston and return, $1.35. Tickets are good going on date of issue only and parties must go on 7 a.m. train. Connect at Kingston with boat for trip through Thousand Islands to Alexandria Bay, Return fare for round trip through Islands from Kingston 50c.

Every person should take advantage of low rate of $2.60, Belleville to Ottawa and return, going special at 6.30 a.m., August 12th. Tickets valid until 13th.

SLOWLY DYING FROM CATARRH.

Thousands are in this terrible condition, but don't realize their danger. If you have the slightest taint of catarrh would it not be wise to commence Catarrhozone treatment now and be perfectly cured in a short time? This pleasant remedy cures without the use of drugs, atomizers or snuffs. You inhale the medicated vapor which spreads to all parts of the breathing organs, kills the germs and heals the inflamed surfaces. Catarrhozone clears the throat and nose instantly, and never fails to cure the most obstinate catarrhal, lung and throat troubles. A trial will demonstrate the value of Catarrhozone, which sells for $1.00, small size 25c, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A LIGHT HEART.

Said to Be Oftener Linked With Brawn Than With Brain.

Is it possible to cultivate a light heart? Probably not, but all sorts of shifts have been practiced at all times to retain one. There have always been men like Thoreau and St. Francis who believed that property brought with it a heavy heart and who have refused, as did the American philosopher, to be "harnessed to his possessions." St. Francis "cast aside every weight" that he might free himself from "idle sorrow." He and his first disciples "loved nothing earthly and feared nothing earthly. They were secure in all places, troubled by no fears, distracted by no cares; they lived without trouble of mind, waiting without solicitude for the coming day." St. Francis in the fastnesses of the Italian hills singing French hymns among the highway robbers in his whimsical lightness of heart makes a strange picture. He knew French badly, but it seemed to him the language of gayety. The founder of the Franciscans, though we are told that he possessed what was quaintly called the gift of tears when performing his devotions in his cell, was never seen abroad without a smile; neither would he tolerate any appearance of heaviness in his followers. He rebuked a brother to whom a dejected manner had become habitual, saying, "My brother, repent thy sins in private, and do not appear before the community thus downcast."

We are inclined to think that those who make their living—provided it is a fairly good one—in the sweat of their brow have lighter hearts than those who make it in the sweat of their brain. The high spirits which seem to be enjoyed by domestic servants, to judge by the sounds which come upstairs, are a case in point. Dusting, scrubbing and plate cleaning seem to weigh on the heart far less than doctoring, journalism or the study of law or theology. Too often spirits are broken by overwork or by disappointment in the wild struggle to succeed which goes on among professional people. Certainly in the literary world light hearts are generally lost early, yet the light hearted man of letters, though he is rare, is the most attractive of all light hearted men. He knows how to express the music that is in his mind and is like a composer who is also an executant.—London Spectator.

When He Did Better.

A celebrated bishop once sat through a long and atrocious sermon on a hot summer morning. With an immovable countenance he listened to metaphors that were mixed, pathos that was bathos and humor that was sad. The preacher was a youth just out of college—a very conceited youth. He bellowed through his sermon at the top of his lungs. His gestures were violent enough to break his arms. At every climax he fixed the bishop with his eye to see if a suitable impression had been made.

And at the end of the service this young snip swaggered up to the bishop and said:

"I fancy I did rather well today, sir. Don't you think so?"

"Yes," returned the bishop; "but you did better last year."

"Last year!" said the young man. "Why, I didn't preach at all last year."

"That's the reason," said the bishop, with a pleasant smile.

The Dying Boarder.

The minister had been summoned.

"Is there anything you would like to have sung—any specific hymn?" asked the good man.

"Yes," said the boarder, with feebly fluttering breath. "There is a hymn with something in it about 'Feed me till I want no more;' also some one might sing 'We're going home to dine—O more.'"

Several persons were present who boarded at the same place, and in their loud sobs could be detected a grief greater than mere sympathy.

That Cheese Taint.

RESULT OF INVESTIGATION BY PROF. CONNELL, BACTERIOLOGIST.

A Matter of Much Importance to All Connected With the Dairy Industry.

Following is the report of Dr. W. T. Connell, the eminent bacteriologist of Queen's University, who was recently appointed by the Eastern Ontario Dairyman's Association to inquire into the serious defect in the cheese which has recently been discovered. Dr. Connell and Inspector Publow went all through this district, and the following report will be found interesting:—

Kingston, Ont., July 29, 1903

R. G. Murphy, Esq., Secretary Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association:—

Dear Sir,—As you are aware, I, at the request of Mr. Publow, have taken up the question of the cause and means of prevention of the prevailing serious defect in the cheese throughout a wide district of Eastern Ontario. The nature of this defect I will describe in Mr. Publow's words, as follows:—"The cheese is open and not clean in flavor, the openness taking the form of small round or oblong holes, increasing to the size of a pea and continuing to grow during the first week of curing. When the cheese contains excessive moisture, the openness is usually greater and the holes more irregular and slit like. In cheese in which high acid has been allowed to develop the flavor is quite bitter and the openness is quite marked.

"The taint can be detected in the milk from which such cheese is made as a hot, somewhat bitter flavor, and the curds under ordinary treatment are weak-bodied, greasy, do not shrink well, and tend to become open. The openness makes its appearance in the cheese in from one to ten days, depending on the severity of the taint and the temperature of curing.

"I have obtained samples of cheese from factories situated in different districts, also a number of curd and whey samples, not only from general vats, but that made from the milk of individual patrons.

"In all these samples when examined, I have readily demonstrated large numbers of 'yeast' organism, together with the usual lactic acid bacilli, and in most samples I have also found fair numbers of such common gas bacteria as the bacillus coli or the bacillis lactis aerogenes.

"The 'yeast' organism is the cause of the trouble, in my opinion. Such an organism is not found in good cheese, and is not met with except in this or like defects, such as bitter cheese (e.g., that studied by Prof. Harrison). This YEAST WILL, IN THE LABORATORY, PRODUCE LIKE CONDITIONS TO THAT FOUND IN THE MILK, CURD AND CHEESE IN THE FACTORIES.

"As to the source of these yeasts, I cannot make any positive statements. Certain yeasts are found frequently growing on the leaves of trees and on grasses, and it is probable that the yeast in question comes from such a source. From trees it could readily fall into open milk cans kept under them. Some such general primary source of infection must have occurred to account for the markedly wide-spread character of this trouble. From certain cans infected in some such way the factory vats must have become infected and thence the whey vats followed by infection of all milk cans in which such whey was taken back to farms. As not 25 per cent. of milk cans are ever thoroughly cleaned, at least three-fourths of the patrons will continue to seed the factory daily with infected milk, so that the trouble will continue to keep alive so long as such conditions prevail.

"Re the other gas forming bacteria present, they are such as are found in milk very commonly, in fewer or greater numbers, depending upon the cleanliness of milking and the care taken in the handling and cooling of the milk. THEIR CONSTANT PRESENCE IN THE SPECIMENS IS AN ADDITIONAL INDICATION THAT PROPER CARE IS NOT BEING TAKEN BY THE PATPONS IN THE TREATMENT OF THEIR MILK.

"As to the remedy for this defect. This defect being due to the growth of an organism, the remedy lies in the devising of means to stop its development. It goes without saying that we cannot stop its development on trees or grasses if such be the primary infecting source, but we can control its spread through factory and the continuance of the trouble.

"1st. Do away with the possibility of the factory being a seeding centre by a care of the whey tank. Do this by a thorough cleaning and disinfection of the tank by thorough scraping, then scrubbing (using brush) with hot lye and soda and ending by scalding if possible with steam. This ought to be repeated at frequent intervals: (b) care of factory vats and utensils. This will not require any elaboration.

Most Important.

"2nd. Take steps to prevent the patron from seeding the factory. This will require attention to several points, (a) thorough cleaning of milk cans, pails and strainers, (b) cleanly milking, (c) handling of milk in an atmosphere as free as possible from dust and odors from pens and stables, etc., (d) cooling of night's milk best down to 65 degrees.

"If these remedies are adopted, not only will this but many other defects disappear and everyone will be repaid by a better quality of cheese made, a satisfactory market and a consequent higher price."

Yours very truly,
W. T. Connell.

SHIRT SALE.

Here is another underpriced item from our Mens' Department to help us bring the stock into line for fall arrivals.

We bought our Soft Shirts with the expectation of having a warm season.

It has not been so—consequently we have more left than we should at this time.

We have had no trouble in suiting men who required fine soft shirts.

The continued cool weather has kept this requirement below our expectation.

There is almost sure to be plenty of warm weather yet. We could sell many at regular prices later on, but—we need the room.

Already the new goods are arriving and so, of necessity, we make this seasonable offering for Thursday Friday and Saturday.

NEW AMERICAN HATS.

True—it's only August yet, but we like to be first to show the new goods.

It gives you a chance to study the new styles before purchasing.

These are the very latest American blocks in both stiff and soft varieties.

Just the styles every man will be wearing for the fall season.

Come in and see these whether you desire to purchase or not.

—Latest styles in American Hats both soft and stiff.......$2.50

CARPET ROOM ITEMS.

Many households contain convincing evidence of the ability of this department to furnish beautifully—yet economically.

We are pleased with the increased patronage enjoyed each succeeding season, Yet—not surprised.

Our DIRECT buying for CASH enables us to mark finest qualities at prices which cannot be lowered—seldom met.

It's edging toward fall housecleaning. Maybe a new rug or carpet will be needed.

Our assortment will be more extensive and—if possible—more pleasing than ever.

Every article backing our reputation for RELIABLE GOODS AT LOWEST CASH PRICES.

Give this department a call before purchasing. The values will interest you.

CHINA MATTINGS.

For inexpensive yet sightly and durable floor coverings our China Mattings are growing in popularity each day.

The excellent designs we were successful in obtaining this season making them more than usually inviting.

If there is a floor to be covered and a carpet will be too expensive, come in and see what pleasing effects these offer at most moderate prices.

Quick & Robertson's for Fine Clothes

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard—built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

PROTESTANT TAX RATE 23 MILLS

Catholic Rate 24 6-10ths—Estimates for Year Were Brought Down Lart Night.

Reduction of 2-10ths Mill in Protestant Rate—Assessment Fixed for 1904.

Prospective Purchasers of Rolling Mills Had Conference With the City Council.

The back benches in the Council Chamber were pretty well filled last night with an interested audience, which had evidently gathered to hear the discussion on the rolling mills matter. What between the submission of the estimates by Ald. Chown, a conference between the Council and Messrs. Carbonneau and Wills, re rolling mills, and the consideration and passage of no less than eight by-laws, last night's meeting turned out to be the most important, as well as one of the longest of the year.

Ald. Cooper was the only absentee he being out of the city.

Communications.

From Col. Ponton, notifying the Council that the land sold by them to Mr. Pearce, the elevator man, belonged to one of his (the Colonel's) clients.—Laid on table.

From Dr. Ross, medical health officer, stating that the Victoria avenue sewer was a nuisance to the Public Library, as complained of by the secretary of that institution.—Referred.

From W. Banfield, of the N. A. Tel. Co., Kingston, complaining that the new poles and wires being erected by the Trenton Electric Company on Coleman St., would be a menace to the men employed by other lines, and asking the Council to look into the matter.—Referred.

From Mr. J. S. Starling, tax collector, asking for an extension of time for the return of the rolls of 1901, which were due to be returned on the 15th inst.—Laid on table.

Reports of Committees.

The reports of the various standing committees, as already published, were read.

The Estimates.

Ald. Chown, Chairman of the Executive Committee, presented his financial statement for the year. The total assessment this year amounted to $3,878,200, against $3,843,661, a gain for this year of $34,539. They had $16,800 more for school purposes this year than last year. The assessment on real property was $225,000 less than last year, and the personal property and income assessment was $175,000 more. The assessment on hotels was increased $10,000, and the Hotel Quinte paid on $10,000 more for school purposes. The Separate School would this year get the benefit of the rolling mills taxes, as they were now assessed to Mr Kirkwood. There was this year, Ald. Chown pointed out, a material reduction on the real estate assessment and a corresponding gain on income and personal property, which means that the wealthier class pay more and the poorer class less. The tax rate this year, for Protestants, would be 23 mills on the $, a reduction of 2-10ths from last year, while for Separate School supporters the rate would be 24 6-10ths. The reason the Separate School rate was larger than the other was explained by the fact that the Separate School Board had for some years been carrying an overdraft, which they wished to pay this year and have a clean slate.

Following are the figures in detail as given by Ald. Chown:

Committee of the Whole.

Council went into Committee of the whole on reports, Ald. Sulman in the chair.

The reports of the various standing committees were adopted without changes.

A committee composed of the Chairman of the Executive, Ald. Pope and the City Solicitor was appointed to deal with the Pearce elevator matter.

When Mr. Starling's request came up, Ald. Chown said it would, he thought, be best to defer it to a special meeting, when it could, in common with the assessment matters, be considered.

The Estimates Adopted.

On motion of Ald. Pope the estimates, as presented by the Chairman of the Executive, were adopted in toto.

The Rolling Mills.

At this stage of the proceedings the Mayor announced that a deputation was in the next room which desired to confer with the Council concerning the prospective purchase of the rolling mills. Was it the pleasure of the Council that they be introduced.

The Council was willing, even anxious, to meet the gentlemen, and Messrs. J. F. Wills, Col. Lazier, Carbonneau and H. Wills filed in and took seats within the rail.

Mr. J. F. Wills opened the ball by explaining matters, and in doing so reiterated many things known to Belleville people concerning the early history of the mills. An agreement, he said, had been reached between Messrs. Kirkwood and McKinnon and Messrs. Carbonneau et al., and the agreement had been signed by the vendors; it had not, however, been signed by the prospective purchasers, nor would it be, unless the Council at once took steps to rescind the motion to set aside the bonus by-law. As to the $2500 forfeit money, his clients were ready to advance $2500 to Mr. Kirkwood and complete the sale, if the Council would agree, after the mills had been running a reasonable length of time, to pay over to them the $2500 forfeit money now held by the bank in trust for the city. If the Council would agree to this proposition, his clients would themselves pay the $2500 in dispute to Mr. Kirkwood and close the deal to-morrow. His clients recognized that the city had a legal right to the forfeit money, but thought that, if the mills were operated in a proper manner, they should not insist on its retention. His clients, in order to put the mills in first-class shape, would have to expend about $20,000, and, if successful, proposed enlarging the works. They had already options on surrounding property. They were thoroughly in earnest, and their proposition was a straightforward business one. All they asked was that the motion to withdraw the bonus be rescinded, and that the time for the forfeit of the $2500 be extended from April 1st, 1903, to December 1st, 1903. The syndicate for whom he appeared was composed of Mr. Carbonneau; a gentleman now in Paris, who had a lifelong experience in iron works; and a former Belleville boy, whose sympathies were strongly in favor of this, his native city. He trusted they would see the matter in its true light, and would ask them to listen to a few words from his client, Mr. Carbonneau.

Mr. Carbonneau, who spoke with a strong French accent, addressed the Council at some length. They were not speculators, he said. He had become interested in the rolling mills matter through his partner, who was a former Belleville boy, and had obtained an option on the works and had them examined by a competent engineer. At that time there was some misunderstanding and the idea of purchasing the mills had been given up. Then, through the efforts of Mr. J. F. Wills, they had again taken the matter up, and it now laid with the Council whether the deal would be completed or not. Some people seemed to think the mills were ready to begin operations at once. Such was not the case. The mills would not start till they had been placed in a position to compete with other mills, and in order to do that they must instal modern machinery, which would cost, he was told in the neighborhood of $20,000. As to the $2,500 forfeit, it was not much, but the principle was what he looked at. He could not see why they, who came in good faith, should be made to pay the penalty of Mr. Kirkwood's shortcomings. However, they would put the money up, but thought that, if the mills were run to the satisfaction of the Council, they should, after a reasonable length of time, get their $2,500 back. If these matters were arranged amicably, he could assure them that operations on the mills would begin at once, as a manager for them was now en route to the city. In conclusion he thanked the Council for their courteous hearing, and trusted that matters might be pleasantly arranged.

The gentleman from La Belle France was warmly applauded by the backbenches as he resumed his seat.

The Council had listened intently and courteously to the explanations of Messrs. Wills and Carbonneau, but in the discussion which ensued they made it clear that, even had they the legal right to do so, which they doubted, they would not return the $2500 forfeit money to Mr. Kirkwood under any consideration. The motion withdrawing the bonus, however, was rescinded, on motion of Ald. Chown, and the Solicitor was instructed to take no further action in the matter.

The deputation thereupon withdrew, and the crowd in the back benches went with them.

Introduction of By-laws.

After the time of the Council had been extended for an hour the Chairman of the Executive introduced a nice little bunch of nine by-laws, one of which, however, was laid over for a special meeting. Of the remaining eight, five were in relation to the collection of taxes for the present year, one for the taking of next year's assessment, and one to grant a 20-years' franchise to the Gas Company. The by-laws were passed and numbered 1101, 1102, 1103, 1104, 1105, 1106 and 1107.

Ald. McFee was in the chair.

The assessment by-law provides that the assessment of this year, as revised by the Court and Judge, shall stand for next year, and the appeals, if any, must be made to the Court of Revision and Judge this fall, so that the tax rate can be struck early in the new year and the taxes collected in the summer instead of in the winter, as formerly. By this means it is claimed that the city will be spared the necessity of borrowing money for current expenses, making a saving of about $1000 a year.

The by-law passed.

The by-law appointing tax collectors for next year was, on motion of Ald. Chown, left for consideration at a special meeting.

In the course of a discussion the Mayor said there was only $19,325 uncollected on the rolls of Messrs. Diamond and Chisholm, and he had been surprised to see that the delinquents in the majority of cases were well-to-do people.

Ald. Pope said they had the same experience last year. The well-to-do people did not pay so promptly as the poorer people.

The by-law granting the Council's consent to a new franchise for the Gas Company was passed. A 20-year franchise is recommended. There is no maximum price fixed for illuminating gas, as the committee believed it would be regulated by competition, and a maximum price, if set, might militate against anybody purchasing the works. The maximum price of fuel gas is fixed at $1.25 per 1000 feet. All the restrictions of the old charter are to be continued, and in addition the company is forbidden to amalgamate with any other company selling artificial light in Belleville.

During the discussion Ald. Paterson, who said he was in favor of public ownership, wanted to know why the city could not acquire the Gas works and run them, as they ran the Water works, but it was pointed out that the present time was not the proper one to discuss this question.

Some small enquiries were made and satisfactorily answered, and the Mayor stated that he had received a very graceful letter from Sir Gilbert Parker thanking the Council for their good wishes expressed to him.

Council adjourned till Friday night, August 14, after which session it is understood that they will take their holidays.

"PARTICULARLY TIMELY."

MONTREAL STAR'S DESCRIPTION OF A RESOLUTION FATHERED BY THE BELLEVILLE BOARD OF TRADE.

Speaking of the agenda of the coming Congress of Chambers of Commerce in Montreal, the Star of that city says:

The Belleville Board of Trade's resolution on the subject of railway communication is particularly timely, so far as Canada is concerned, at the present moment. It is resolved "that the trans-continental railways of Canada—those existing and those projected—are, in the opinion of this Congress, for the general advantage, not merely of Canada, but of the Empire, and should receive Imperial support and consideration in any proposed plan of Imperial Federation, not merely on the ground that they furnish rapid and effective modes of transportation of troops and munitions of war for Imperial defence, but also on the ground that they form the chief land links in the chain of British commerce, and are the inlets to and the outlets from the granary of the Empire, and essential to the future food supply of Great Britain."

LAST NIGHT'S STORM.

NOT MUCH DAMAGE DONE IN THE CITY, BUT THE COUNTRY DISTRICTS SUFFERED.

A severe electrical storm visited the city and vicinity at an early hour this morning, and, although but little damage was done in the city, some buildings in the country suffered destruction. The lightning was vivid, the thunder exceedingly heavy and rain fell in considerable quantities.

A barn adjoining Mr. J. R. Brower's residence, corner of Dunbar and West Bridge streets, was struck and somewhat damaged, but fortunately was not ignited.

A chimney on Mr. John Doyle's residence, Alexander St., was shattered by lightning.

A residence on Alexander street, occupied by Mr. Gillen, a G.T.R. employee, was struck by lightning. One of the chimneys was shattered and some damage done to the roof. The inmates were badly frightened, but not injured in any way.

In the Township of Ameliasburg the storm was exceptionally severe, and during its progress a barn belonging to Mr. Frank Thompson, at Roblin's Mills, was struck and destroyed. Some vehicles were taken out of the building before the fire had gained too much headway. At the same time a bright reflection farther south showed another fire in progress, but it could not be ascertained whose place it was.

The great advantage to local investors in placing their business with the Metropolitan consists in the fact that they have contracts with this strong financial institution itself, instead of with a local broker; thereby eliminating entirely the risk which may be involved in the question of a local broker's financial strength. Each commitment exists upon its individual merit, and cannot be affected by the short comings of the holders of other contracts nor even of the local manager. The local manager is the servant of this exchange, and the exchange is bound by his acts; consequently, the investor having the evidence that he has paid to a given point, his commitment is good to that point no matter what happens; and this is a valuable consideratio—more so than most people imagine.

Hot Weather Beauty

The fresh bloom and beauty which is so attractive in women—the beauty of perfect health—falls an easy victim to the enervating heat of summer. The roses fade and a sickly pallor takes its place: nervous headaches leave dark shadows beneath the eyes: the eyes themselves lose their sparkle and lustre: rashes and blotches destroy the fine texture of the skin and almost without warning beauty has fled.

These troubles are but outward manifestations of the effect of hot weather upon the digestive system. With perfect digestion beauty can defy the heat.

"Nerves" lassitude, loss of appetite and the hundred and one troubles that make hot weather almost unbearable are unknown to the person with a sound digestion.

IRON-OX

Tiny Tonic Tablets

With them you can defy the heat, escape rashes and blotches, retain your appetite, preserve the roses in your cheeks, or make them bloom where they never bloomed before.

Iron-Ox Tiny Tablets are the best tonic for women and children. Best because they are dainty and gentle. Not a harsh purgative but a safe tonic-laxative. Pleasant to take—very certain in their effect.

KOREA'S SEVEN WONDERS

The Most Peculiar of Them Is the Famous Floating Stone.

Korea, like the world of the ancients, has its "seven wonders." Briefly stated, they are as follows: First, a hot mineral spring near Kinshantao, the healing properties of which are believed to be miraculous. No matter what disease may afflict the patient, a dip in the water proves efficacious.

The second wonder is two springs situated at a considerable distance from each other. In fact, they have the breadth of the entire peninsula between them. They have two peculiarities. When one is full the other is empty, and notwithstanding the obvious fact that they are connected by a subterranean passage one is of the bitterest bitter and the other pure sweet.

The third wonder is Cold Wind cave, a cavern from which a wintry wind perpetually blows. The force of wind from the cave is such that a strong man cannot stand before it.

A forest that cannot be eradicated is the fourth wonder. No matter what injury is done the roots of the trees, which are large pines, they will sprout up again directly, like the phenix from its ashes.

The fifth is the most wonderful of all. It is the famous "floating stone." It stands, or seems to stand, in front of the palace erected in its honor. It is an irregular cube of great bulk. It appears to be resting on the ground, free from support on all sides; but, strange to say, two men at opposite ends of a rope may pass it under the stone without encountering any obstacle whatever!

The sixth wonder is the "hot stone," which from remote ages has lain glowing with heat on the top of a high hill.

The seventh and last Korean wonder is a drop of the sweat of Buddha. For thirty paces around the large temple in which it is enshrined not a blade of grass will grow. There are no trees or flowers inside the sacred square. Even the animals decline to profane a spot so holy.

SENATOR COX DOES NOT WAIT

Hon. Mr. Blair's First Smash at Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

Sir Wilfrid's Poetic Oratory, Culminating in "Time Does Not Wait," Riddled—G.T.P. Scheme Roundly Denounced by the Former Minister of Railways, Who Proposes as an Alternative the Principle of Government Ownership.

Ottawa, Aug. 12. — A powerful speech from Hon. A. G. Blair opened the debate on the resolution providing for the construction of a national transcontinental railway in the House yesterday. The former Minister of Railways talked for over four hours, and made an unanswerable defence of his position. He received no encouragement from his side of the House. In sullen silence the Government's following heard the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway scheme condemned. Early in his speech there was an interruption. It was the last. Mr. Blair turned on the interrupter, W. F. McCreary, Liberal member for Selkirk, and in a dozen words stripped the latter's assertion of every vestige of credibility. Again as Mr. Blair was rounding off his argument in an appeal to his old-time supporters to lay a restraining hand upon the Government, a few derisive cheers came from the Government benches. Again Mr. Blair turned the tables on those who sought to ridicule and discredit him.

Triumphs of Argument.

From the beginning to the end of the four hours' speech was a succession of triumphs of argument for Mr. Blair. Liberals admit that Mr. Blair made a powerful argument. Their criticism is that he was too bitter, and that by his bitterness he turned from him men who were inclined to sympathize with his argument. It cannot be fairly said that Mr. Blair was bitter in his references to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway scheme. He did not go to extremes in his condemnation of the Government's policy, though he undoubtedly made his language severely clear.

What angered Liberals was Mr. Blair's ill-concealed contempt for the poetic phrases which graced the speech in which Sir Wilfrid Laurier presented the scheme to the House. On this topic Mr. Blair undoubtedly set free some biting sarcasm, though it was noticeable in his tone rather than in any specific words.

More Accurate Statement.

"The Right Hon., the First Minister, says that time does not wait," said Mr. Blair early in his speech. "With all respect to him I say that it would be more accurate, if not as poetic, to say that Senator Cox does not wait."

This was Mr. Blair's first smash or blow at the scheme, and it had no splendid isolation in his speech. On the whole the speech was broad and argumentative. That tribute is due him. He stated his objections to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway scheme on broad national grounds, and took up the New Brunswick aspect of the situation only in defence of the Intercolonial Railway. New Brunswickers who have committed themselves in favor of the Grand Trunk Pacific will think twice when they read Mr. Blair's speech. He showed the effect the new road would have on the country served by the I.C.R., and on the city of Moncton, whose Board of Trade some time ago passed a resolution favoring the scheme. The picture he drew was a dismal one. Some of the Liberal members from New Brunswick who have been argued, jollied or bullied into supporting the Government on this question will pause before turning that picture to the wall.

A distinctive feature of Blair's speech was his strong advocacy of the principle of public ownership. As an alternative to the Grand Trunk Pacific he favored the extension westward of the Intercolonial Railway, the purchase of the Canada Atlantic and its gradual extension westward as conditions warranted it. On no previous occasion has Mr. Blair come out so strongly for public ownership. He has now owned himself an earnest sympathizer with the cause, and while he admits some minor defects in the operation of the principle he seems to be ready to consider these as mere spots on the sun.

Mr. Charlton Replies.

Mr. Charlton argued that the Government had given the subject deep thought before coming to a decision upon it. He declared that this subject had been before the country for months—for years almost. The railway could not be built for five years, and the Government was simply preparing for conditions in the West five years hence when the production of that section would be quadrupled. Mr. Blair had accused the Government of being animated chiefly by a desire to please Senator Cox, "but that," said Mr. Charlton, "was an implication unworthy of the honorable gentleman as applied to his late colleagues, who are providing for a great national emergency." He declared that despite the fact that Mr. Blair had made light of it, the threat of the Americans to withdraw the bonding privilege was a real menace to this country.

Mr. Charlton continued to defend the scheme until about 11 o'clock, when he moved the adjournment of the debate. He will have the floor when the House meets to-day.

ASHORE OFF ANTICOSTI.

The Steamer Manchester Trader Is Aground in the Gulf.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—The steamship Manchester Trader of Manchester is ashore in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, two miles west of Southwest Point, Anticosti. She left Montreal last Friday afternoon for Manchester, with a general cargo on board. The Furness-Withy Company, her agents, are notified that she struck on the southern shore of Anticosti Island, forty miles out of her course. The wrecking steamer Strathcona and the wrecking schooner C. T. D. left Quebec Monday evening for the scene, and it is expected that by getting out a good part of the cargo forward the vessel will be floated.

DEATH IN A PARIS TUNNEL

Two Burning Trains Stalled and Third Crashes Into Them.

The Death List Will Probably Exceed One Hundred—Eighty-Four Bodies Already Recovered—A Night of Horror—Victims Were Drawn From the Middle and Working Classes—Heroic Rescuers Driven Back Half Suffocated.

Paris, Aug. 12.—Eighty-four bodies have been recovered and the death list probably will exceed one hundred, in the underground railway disaster which occurred here Monday night. The accident, which occurred on the Metropolitan Electric Railway, assumed terrible proportions early yesterday morning. More than four score bodies of the burned and suffocated victims were removed from the subterranean passage. The work continues, and indications are that the death list will perhaps exceed five score.

The scenes at the mouth of the tunnel, where the victims were brought out, were of the most heart-rending description, crowds of weeping men and women and children struggling forward in an effort to recognize their missing relatives and friends. Most of the victims are from the middle and working classes, as the trains were carrying them from their work.

Heroic Attempts at Rescue.

Although the accident occurred at 8 o'clock Monday evening, the officials and firemen were unable to descend into the tunnel, owing to the blinding clouds of smoke from the burning train. Frequent attempts were made by heroic volunteers whom it was necessary to rescue half suffocated and carry away to the hospitals.

At the station of Les Courennes the same scenes of death and despair had been enacted. The accident occurred midway between the stations of Monilmontant and Les Courennes, so that the work of salvage proceeded from both ends of the tunnel. In addition to the blinding smoke, the tunnel belched forth a terrific heat as one of the trains slowly burned within.

Cause of the Wreck.

Several versions and reasons for the wreck have been given out. The most authentic, however, seems to be as follows:

The electrical motor on a train from Porte Dauphine failed to act properly, and the train waited at the station of Les Courennes until the arrival of a second train which pushed the crippled train forward, making a total of sixteen coaches. The damaged dynamo set fire to the engine of the first train, raising quantities of smoke. The electric lights on the trains went out, and this impeded the progress of the trains toward Monilmontant. The terror-stricken passengers tried to grope their way back to Les Courennes, and it is believed many were shocked to death by the electric current.

A third train crashed into the fiery mass and added another crowd of panic-stricken passengers to those seeking an outlet. The officials were made aware of the disaster by the clouds of smoke rising from the tunnel.

Those who got out were unable to give any information concerning those left behind, but told of stumbling over bodies all along the tracks.

Premier Combes has been making a special personal inspection of the disaster, has said he intends calling a special meeting of the Council for the purpose of instituting measures of relief for the families of the poor persons, victims of the wreck.

Train on Fire.

Paris, Aug. 12.—Fire broke out last evening in one of the trains of the Metropolitan Electric Road at Ternes Station. There was quite a panic, but only two women were injured.

SHOCK DESTROYS VILLAGES.

Earthquakes Felt in Italy and Greece—Vesuvius Erupts.

Athens, Aug. 12.—An earthquake shock here yesterday caused the death of two boys. Three villages on the Cythera were almost entirely destroyed.

Vesuvius Active.

Rome, Aug. 12.—An earthquake having the region of Mount Aetna as a centre, was felt yesterday throughout Sicily and Southern Italy, and to a smaller degree in Central Italy. Little damage was done. Mount Vesuvius is again in eruption. Its present activity being considered to be connected with the earthquake shock.

POPE PIUS X. IS STRICKEN

Seized With Fainting Spell While Celebrating Mass.

Confusion and Alarm as His Holiness Lay Motionless and Unconscious—Soon Recovered, But Must Be Kept Quiet—Collapse Was Considered to Be Due to Heart Failure—Pontiff Insists Upon Transacting Business Although Unfit.

Rome, Aug. 12.—Pope Pius X. had a fainting spell yesterday morning while celebrating mass. His Holiness soon revived, however, and brightened up considerably.

Owing to the excitement of the past month he has been unable to sleep for whole nights, while numerous receptions yesterday only tended to make matters worse.

His Holiness was not well Monday night, yet he insisted upon admitting all the Venetians to mass yesterday morning, who had traveled to Rome for that purpose. There were about 300 in the chapel and the atmosphere was up to about 90 degrees.

Appeared to Be Dead.

Pope Pius was seen to grow paler and paler, finally throwing up his hands as though seeking support. He would have fallen had not Mgr. Bressan, his private chaplain, been quick to catch him. It is impossible to describe the confusion and alarm among the worshippers while the Pope lay motionless and unconscious with his eyes closed.

Fortunately, among the Venetians present was Dr. Davenezia, who for nine years had been the Pope's attending physician at Venice, but had been called only once during that time to treat a sore throat. Davenezia gave the Pontiff immediate assistance, while the messengers telephoned for Dr. Lapponi. The latter rushed to the Vatican, but did not arrive until after the Pope had been restored to consciousness and taken to his own apartments.

Due to Heart Failure.

The collapse was considered by the doctors to be due to heart failure aggravated by fatigue. All audiences will be postponed, including that of the representatives of the Irish parliamentary party, who were to be received this morning.

The Pope, after taking some medicine to calm his heart and nerves, was able to lunch, afterwards taking a sleep, which lasted two hours and a half. On awakening he felt much benefited and refreshed.

The Pontiff seems more docile to the doctor's wishes than his predecessor, although he insisted on transacting some current business, such as the appointment of Alberto Sill, the son of the dean of the grooms, as his personal valet.

MAY BE COMPLICATIONS.

Arising Out of Seizure of Fishing Tug by Canadian Cutter.

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 12.—According to statements made yesterday afternoon by Congressman D. S. Alexander of Buffalo, the State Department at Washington has just ordered Consul General John G. Foster, at Ottawa, to lay the matter before the Canadian authorities once more, the case of the seizure of fishing tug Kitty D. on July 3. The exact wording of the instructions to the Consul-General is as follows:

"You will again present the case to the Dominion authorities and ask for the release of the vessel as an act of grace in view of the strong proof as set forth in the evidence, that the Kittie D. was in American waters at the time she was seized."

BUTCHER KILLED HIS WIFE.

Charles Vosper, of Hamilton, Then Shot Himself in Head.

Hamilton, Aug. 12. — A horrible double tragedy happened here yesterday morning, when Charles Vosper, one of the most widely known butchers in Hamilton, was found dying from two bullet holes in his head, lying in bed by the side of his wife, who had also been shot.

No one saw the occurrence, but the indications are that it was a case of suicide and murder. A 22-calibre revolver was found on the floor at the husband's side of the bed. There was a slight froth on Mrs. Vosper's lips, and this gave rise to a rumor that she had been poisoned, but the doctors say that her death resulted from a bullet that entered her head under the right ear.

Vosper had been married three times, and his last wife was a widow before she married him. They created a deal of talk before the wedding was celebrated by squabbling over property. They did not get along well together at times, and had frequent jangles. They lived at Mrs. Vosper's residence, 315 Herkimer street, where the shooting occurred.

A New Theory.

There is a new theory in reference to the tragedy. A post-mortem examination of Vosper's body revealed the fact that neither of the bullets found in his head had entered his skull, and neither caused injuries sufficient to kill him.

In the top drawer of the washstand was found a bottle of strychnine. It bore the marks of bloody fingers upon it. It is supposed that when Vosper found that the bullets were not going to relieve him from his troubles, he took a dose of the poison. The stomachs of both bodies have been preserved, and the contents will likely be analyzed. Coroner McNichol and the jurors visited the Vosper home yesterday afternoon. They did not find anything that would throw new light on the affair. They will continue the investigation next Friday evening.

Doctors Give Up Hope.

The condition of A. F. Pirie remains unchanged, and the doctors have almost given up hope.

Body in the Bay.

Toronto, Aug. 12.—The body of a man was found floating in the Bathurst street slip yesterday morning. When taken out of the water it was identified as the body of William H. Breakwell who lived with his parents at 306 Adelaide street west. Breakwell was last seen standing on the Bathurst street wharf last Wednesday. He had been suffering with consumption and appeared very despondent. He was 40 years of age.

House Breakers Remanded.

Toronto, Aug. 12.—Charles Quackenbush, Thomas Gallagher, alias Murphy, and Stephen Doyle appeared before Magistrate Denison yesterday, charged with housebreaking and burglary. They were remanded for a week.

Safe Crackers at Work.

St. George, Aug. 12.—A desperate attempt to rob the Merchants' Bank was made here about 2 o'clock Monday morning. The safe was shattered by nitro-glycerine, but the robbers got nothing for their pains.

ELECTIONS DUE SEPT. 29.

Mr. R. L. Borden Gives Dinner in Honor of Party Organizers.

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—Mr. R. L. Borden gave a luncheon in the Senate Restaurant yesterday in honor of Hon. L. P. Pelletier and Hon. F. M. Hackett, the new Conservative organizers of Quebec. The guests included Conservative members and Senators and members of the press gallery.

Mr. Borden introduced Mr. Pelletier and Mr. Hackett in a bright speech, in which he predicted greater successes for the Conservative party in Quebec.

Mr. Monk spoke in a highly optimistic strain and declared that the people of Quebec should be appealed to as Canadians, not on narrow racial or sectional grounds.

Mr. Pelletier made a most favorable impression. In the course of a strong speech, he condemned the tactics practised by the Liberal leaders in Quebec. He stated that he had received information from a reliable source that the Dominion elections would take place early in the coming autumn. Nominations would be held on Sept. 22, and the elections on the 29th. Mr. Hackett held out high hopes of the result of the coming contest.

BIG CONSERVATIVE PICNIC.

Toronto Island to Be the Scene of a Most Notable Gathering.

Toronto, Aug. 12.—To-day the great Liberal-Conservative demonstration takes place at Hanlan's Point, at which thousands of Conservatives from all over Canada will be present, many of whom arrived in the city yesterday. Among the leaders who will be present are Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Dominion Opposition; Mr. J. P. Whitney, leader of the Ontario Opposition; Hon. P. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba; Hon. M. F. Hackett, Mr. R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., Mr. W. F. Maclean, M.P., and others. Speeches by the leaders and concerts by the massed bands will comprise the program.

TWO TON IRON CHILL.

Fell Upon John Pollock, Employe at Goldie & McCullough's Shops at Galt, and Instantly Killed Him.

Galt, Ont., Aug. 12.—John Pollock, aged about 55, a moulder by occupation, was instantly killed about 9 o'clock yesterday while at work in the moulding shop of the Goldie & McCulloch Co. An iron chill weighing between two and three tons was being placed in a pit three feet deep in which Pollock was working along with two others, when suddenly the side of the pit gave way with the weight of the chill, which fell across Pollock, whose back was towards it at the time, crushing the skull and causing instant death.

The deceased leaves a widow, five sons, and one daughter. He was at the time of his death and for many years previously an elder and superintendent of the Sabbath school in the United Presbyterian Church, Galt.

Fatal Fall From a Ladder.

Dutton, Aug. 12.—Frank Raison, a farm laborer near Wallacetown, was killed while at work yesterday morning. His employer found Raison lying dead on the floor at the foot of a ladder. It is supposed that while ascending the ladder he missed his footing, and fell to the floor, alighting on his head. The skull is badly crushed.

Injuries May Prove Fatal.

Woodstock, Aug. 12.—James Henry, a carpenter, fell 18 feet from a ladder while working on a new house yesterday afternoon, alighting on his head and shoulder. His collarbone was broken and he received severe internal injuries, which are expected to prove fatal.

Work Train Wrecked.

Winnipeg, Aug. 12.—A wreck occurred about ten miles west of here yesterday morning on the main line of the C. P. R., as a result of which John Leslie, a fireman, may lose his life. The accident was the result of a collision between a work train going west and a light engine running to the city. An engine and three flat cars were smashed to pieces.

ANOTHER CONSUL MISSING.

M. Rostkowski's Successor Disappears After Starting For Monastir.

Constantinople, Aug. 12. — Some anxiety is felt for the safety of Dr. Mandelstam, the acting Russian Consul at Uskub, who was appointed to succeed the late M. Rostkowski. He started up on his own responsibility accross the country for Monastir. Nothing has been heard of him since.

The Sultan has offered an indemnity of $10,000 to the widow of the late M. Rostkowski. Her husband was related to Russian nobility, hence the Sultan's anxiety.

M. Rostkowski was in disfavor with the Turkish authorities at Monastir owing to his persistence in investigating all the fighting in the district.

Turkish Troops Desert.

Constantinople, Aug. 12.—It is rumored here that the Turkish troops in Macedonia have become so demoralized by their failure to receive payment that hundreds are deserting and selling their rifles to insurgents in order to obtain provisions.

Sofia, Aug. 12.—The insurgents have blown up a bridge sixty yards long near Gievgeli, on the Salonica-Uskub Railway.

UNDER CRIMINAL CODE.

Toronto Junction Cattlemen Proceed Against Grand Trunk Railway.

Toronto Junction, Aug. 12.—Five charges under the Criminal Code were entered before Police Magistrate Ellis at the Police Court yesterday morning against the Grand Trunk Railway Company for detaining cattle in cars for a longer period than 28 hours. Charges Nos. 1 and 2 are laid by Chief of Police Royce on behalf of Albert Walker of Ellersley, who had forty cattle detained 36 hours between Ellersley and Toronto and forty cattle detained 31 hours between Dobbington and Toronto. Charge No. 3 is laid on behalf of John Wolfe, Walkerville, who claims his cattle were detained 30½ hours. Charge No. 4 is laid on behalf of George Pauline of Chesley, who claims his cattle were detained 31 hours. Irvine Schmidt lays the fifth charge of detaining his cattle 29½ hours. The company, upon conviction, is liable to a fine of $100 on each charge.

STILL ANOTHER!

BRIBERY RAMPANT — $10,000 OFFERED TO WITHDRAW A PROTEST!!!

At a banquet tendered Mr. Gamey, M.P.P., at Dundalk, Ontario, on the 7th inst., the astounding statement was made by Mr. G. M. Boyd, ex-M.P.P., of North Grey, that he had been offered no less than a sum in cash of $10,000 if he would consent to withdraw the protest which he had entered against his Grit opponent, who now sits in the Legislature supporting the Sullivan-Stratton Government.

Here is the report of Mr. Boyd's utterances:—

> Mr. G. M. Boyd, of Owen Sound, spoke at some length on the subject of political corruption. He said it was a proud privilege for him to be present and help do honor to Mr. Gamey. He, too, had been made to suffer by the political corruption. HE HAD BEEN OFFERED $10,000 IN CASH TO WITHDRAW HIS PROTEST IN NORTH GREY, but he was well acquainted with their corrupt ways, and repudiated the offered bribes.

When Mr. Ross, the Premier, arrived from England after the coronation ceremonies, his first utterance in a speech at Newmarket was that he intended to fight for a continuance of power to the bitter end.

Well have his friends and himself kept the threat. Scarcely a month passes without some new development in the line of political corruption practised for the sole purpose of retaining power.

A Government finds itself after a general election with a majority of one, though in a minority of from 5,000 to 7,000 votes of the people. Then commences the rain of bribery and corruption; in this respect Stratton "forgot nothing."

An attempt was made to purchase the member for North Essex with an offer of the speakership. Mr. Sutherland was offered "something handsome" if he would betray the trust the electors of South Oxford had reposed in him; then followed the Gamey-Stratton infamy, and now we have another expose. Mr. Boyd tells his hearers that no less a sum than $10,000 was offered him to withdraw a protest against Grits who secured a seat by corrupt means to support the Stratton-Sullivan gang in the Ontario Legislature.

Are these the only means by which this party of bribery and corruption retain power? Not at all. Before the Legislature met, a vacancy occurred in North Renfrew through the death of the member elect, but no new election has yet been held, the constituency has been robbed of its representative in Parliament, through the fear that if an election were held an oppositionist would be returned.

A vacancy occurred in Muskoka through the death of its member. No new election has been held. In Algoma the member elect was unseated on account of misconduct on the part of an agent. No writs were issued for new elections in either of these constituencies for fear of the result.

With a record of this kind is it not marvellous that any respectable Liberal can be found to raise his voice in defence of such a party and such conduct? Truly they have made a "big push" to keep in power.

Is it not time the political Augean Stables in Toronto received a thorough cleaning?

HIS ARTISTIC HELPMATE.

She is unsurpassed at costly Renaissance,
With her handiwork so fancy there is none that can compare—
But that button is still missing from my "pants."

Oh she makes fine silken splashes for each mantel in the place,
And to beat her gaudy pillows there's no chance;
She embroiders fancy flowers and initials she does trace—
But that button is still missing from my "pants."

Oh, you ought to see the patterns of the work that she crochets,
Her piano shades and covers, they entrance;
Her lace handkerchiefs and tidies they receive all kinds of praise—
But that button is still missing from my "pants."

A CONTRAST.

(Toronto Telegram.)

The young man who thought he loved the Union Jack not wisely but too well, has been fined and lectured by the Police Magistrate at Trenton.

The fate of this evildoer at the hands of Ontario justice is in striking contrast to the immunity which United States justice guarantees to every assailant of the Union Jack.

The Varuna, a Canadian boat, was lavish in the display of the Stars and Stripes. If an American boat displayed the Union Jack as freely in a small United States port the miscreant who took his rifle and shot holes in the foreign ensign would be more apt to get a gold watch and chain than a fine and a lecture in the police court.

The Home Rule address, introduced in the Dominion House of Commons by Hon. John Costigan, and which was backed up by Laurier and his friends, has just been published in London, and the Standard, probably the leading newspaper, next to the Times, indulges in the following caustic and unanswerable comment:

> "We will be surprised if Englishmen as a body relish the tone of the correspondence between the Canadian Government and the Colonial Office. It would be ungracious to assume that any calculations concerning the Irish vote in narrowly balanced constituencies affected the judgment of the Canadian Assembly, or that the motive is anything but a pure desire to promote the wellbeing of the Motherland, but surely if the colonists value the right of managing their own affairs they ought not to deny it to the people of the United Kingdom. Where the wellbeing of the whole Empire is at stake, colonial opinion will always be invited, but the claim to provide colonial solutions for British problems cannot be allowed."

Mr. Hurley, in his evidence published to-day, says he made out an itemized account, and finding it too small, "lumped the whole thing." By this means he was able to draw 90 days pay when he admitted he could only account for 75, and charged $15 for the use of his horse, when, as he also admitted, that noble animal had been doing nothing to earn Government pay. This method of keeping accounts is not taught in any commercial college. It comes naturally.

A Peculiar Accident.

Word has reached the Deseronto Tribune of a peculiar accident that befell two farmers near Lonsdale. One of them was going home and as he was later than he wished he was driving like Jehu furiously. The other was proceeding toward Melrose at a leisure gait. Driver No. 2 turned out to allow the other to pass, but through some mischance the horses collided head on. Each animal was impaled on a shaft of the other rig. The shafts penetrated the horses' chest to such an extent that both fell dead. The man who was given the right of way settled for the damage.

THE APPEAL DISMISSED.

FOX AND MOORE MUST SERVE OUT THEIR SENTENCES.

(Special to The Intelligencer).

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 12.—Chief Justice Falconbridge has dismissed the appeal of John M. Moore and Joseph Fox, of Belleville, who were convicted before the Police Magistrate at Belleville of the theft of $190 and sentenced to four and six months respectively. Counsel for the prisoners argued that the men had once been tried for the offence before the Magistrate at Madoc and acquitted, and that the Belleville Magistrate admitted evidence wrongfully. The men must serve their terms.

We Are Painting

AND

Kalsomining all the Belleville schools, making the schools artistic for school opening We have done and are doing the same in many of the country schools.

We keep from ten to twenty painters and paperhangers and decorators busy all the time—this branch growing very rapidly with us and there are reasons for the remarkable growth of this branch and the reasons are these—

We do our work Promptly,
We use good materials,
We have excellent workmen
We charge modest price,
We aim to and do please our customers,—

Consequently we are doing the business.

Then, too, we have such a mammoth stock of excellent Wall Paper, everything that heart could desire is shown in our Wall Paper assortment—a stock never less than fifty thousand rolls and a business to keep turning over the stock, so there is no old papers—no cleaner or more artistic stock of Wall Papers can be found in Canada than right here in this store.

ROLFF HOUSE

By G. H. BENEDICT.

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

and happiness. God's blessing be on you and with you through life.
RACHEL VAN BUYSEN.

After finishing the reading of the manuscript, Claude leaned back in his chair and gave himself up to reflection A light had been thrown on the mystery that had rested over Rolff House. He could not doubt that his aunt's statement was a true explanation of all that had seemed strange to him in the surroundings of his youthful days. It was such an explanation as accounted to his mind for his aunt's peculiarities of character and what had often seemed to him her inexplicable ways. Between the lines of the constrained, plainly-written narrative, he could read the tragic history of her life, with its one sombre, unbroken cloud of sorrow and sacrifice; and his heart melted at the thought of the ungenerous judgment with which he had always viewed her eccentric, apparently parsimonious ways.

A whirl of thoughts crowded on his mind. What did the old vault contain? Would it yield up him a princely fortune? If so, what use could it be to him now, that he was thwarted in the chief object of his happiness? Should he change his plans, and give up his idea of serving his country to revel in wealth and pleasure? Amid these conflicting emotions, he sat and reflected some time, and then made up his mind to go down and consult old Carl Crum in regard to his aunt's statement and the best course to be pursued.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Claude did not find that old Carl appeared much astonished when he communicated to him the strange facts he had derived from his aunt's written statement, or even after he had been allowed to read the paper. In fact, in such a perfectly matter of fact way did he take the matter, that Claude was inclined to believe that he had had previous knowledge, and had been entrusted by his aunt with greater confidence than he had ever suspected.

"Well, well," he said, "I am glad this thing has ended up so speedily. I never quite liked having that old priest in the house with his hands in those money chests, and particularly since the old lady died; but of course it was no business of mine. No doubt all has turned out for the best. It's my opinion that you ought to examine the old vault at once, ascertain what treasure is left in it, and take proper measures for its security. If it wasn't for the reputation the old house has for furnishing quarters for a select assortment of the most dangerous possible kind of ghosts, I would have been more concerned than I have been all these months for the safety of the valuables in the house. But now it's our own fault if everything is not made safe."

Claude was as anxious as possible to examine the old vault, and proceeded in company with old Carl at once to the house. They made their way to the cellar, and Claude produced the key that his aunt had left in his charge, and the outer door was opened after some difficulty. Within was another door, of iron, with a key in the heavy lock, attached to which was a folded piece of paper. Claude detached it, opened it and read it. It ran thus:

The last sum due on account of the bequest of brother Maximus (otherwise known as Rolff Van Buysen) to the order of which he was a member, having been taken, according to due arrangement, by me, I hereby make note of the fact. And herewith I make a statement of the amounts I have taken, and the times at which they were taken, in order that it may appear that the trust confided in me has not been abused, and that the wishes of our deceased brother have been strictly fulfilled. And I aver that I have taken no more than was justly due, and that all has been applied in works of charity as brother Maximus himself planned and desired. I leave my blessing on this house. I will pray always, and my brethren with me, that peace, prosperity and the blessing of Heaven may abide ever within these walls. I sign myself, JUSTINUS.

"Faith, a maganimous epistle," said old Carl. "Tis not every one who would have been so discreet, considering the opportunity he had. I must confess that the old man seems to have had a full share of honesty and piety—and it is well he did."

Claude put the papers in his pocket, and proceeded to open the inner vault door. Within this door, the vault was divided into a number of compartments each of which had its separate door, which was locked. To Claude's surprise, old Carl now produced a bunch of keys, which he said had been given into his possession but a few days before by the strange visitor, and which they found to fit the various locks of the inner vault. On opening the doors of these receptacles, they were found filled with bags of coin, and valuable papers of various kinds; and, although Claude was not able to make any estimate of the value of the contents of the old vault, he felt satisfied that it was considerable, and that his aunt's dying intimation that he would be left in the possession of wealth was realized.

But the young man did not hail his good fortune with the joy it once would have afforded him. He sought suggestions of old Carl as to what course to pursue for the security of his treasures, and followed his advice implicitly. The next few days were spent in installing old Carl and Margaret in Rolff House, and making all things as comfortable and safe as possible.

Then Claude, spite of all advice and remonstrances from his worthy old friend, bid a hasty adieu, and set out for the headquarters of the army.

CHAPTER XXXIV

The treaty of Ghent in 1814 brought peace again to the country. On the disbanding of the army, Claude Rolff returned to his native village. He had passed unscathed through two campaigns, and rendered his country brave and faithful service.

Some important changes had taken place during his absence at the seat of war.

Old Carl still remained at his post at Rolff House, and was as faithful and vigorous as ever; but the aged Margaret had passed away. Her health had long been feeble, and she had never recovered from the shock that Leb. Sackett's deviltry had caused her, and she sank to rest at a good old age. By advice of Claude's lawyer, Mr. Halstead, a new housekeeper had been engaged in her place, being no less a personage than the widow Grewy. Whether the widow was entirely satisfied with this arrangement is not known; but she had somehow failed in her assault on the obdurate heart of the bachelor lawyer, and had accepted through his influence the comfortable place in question as perhaps the only available compromise.

Ralph Saybrook had remained some time in the old village after his father's flight. He seemed to enjoy the dignity of being left in the possession of the business and property of his parent, and, being undisturbed by any legal proceedings, was apparently in no hurry to dispose of the property, as he was being constantly urged to do by his father's letters. In truth, Anthony Saybrook, in his voluntary banishment, began to realize what it is to educate a child to cold-blooded villainy and selfishness. Ralph was not without hopes that he could yet win the hand of Rosa Bruyn, and, with this object in view, he temporized with his father's orders to dispose of the property, urging various ingenious excuses, while he was in reality planning to appropriate his inheritance in a rather premature manner. But all of Ralph's hopes of gaining the hand of Rosa Bruyn came to an end through a lingering sickness that struck down the old farmer. A severe rheumatic attack held him confined to his bed for months. Racked with pain, and broken in strength and spirit, the obdurate old man found his only comfort in the love and tenderness of his wife and daughter, and a gradual change came over him that convinced Ralph ere long that he was no more susceptible to his manipulations. Thus disappointed, Ralph in time disposed of his father's property, and went to join him in a Western State, and the quiet little village heard of them no more.

Claude had returned home in many respects a changed man. He had grown in knowledge of the world as well as in years, and his military experience had been well calculated to discipline his impulsive and ardent nature. In one thing he remained unchanged, and that was in his devotion to the fair object of his first love. All obstacles had for some time been removed from his path. Rosa had obtained her father's consent to open correspondence with him ere he left the seat of war; and when he returned home the first doorway he had entered was that of old farmer Bruyn. Very tender and blissful was the meeting between the long-parted lovers. And when they went hand in hand to the chamber of the invalid old man, it was to kneel and receive his blessing Claude could hardly realize this happy change; but Death is a potent peacemaker, and the hand of death was on the old farmer. He lived to see his daughter the happy bride of Claude Rolff, and the mistress of Rolff House and then passed peacefully away.

Claude had the venerable mansion of his fathers restored, and settled down in it as a quiet country gentleman. Under the subduing influence of perfect domestic happiness, all his ambitious ideas of fame as an artist faded away, and he could dream of no happier existence than to be at the head of a well ordered household, dispensing hospitality and charity with a liberal hand. The blessing the stranger priest had invoked on Rolff House seemed to have descended to abide there. Gradually neatness and order and beauty were restored to the surroundings; light and cheerfulness replaced mystery and gloom; and the noble old mansion ere long lost its reputation as an abode of hobgoblins and evil spirits. The mirth and prattle of childhood's voice again were heard within its walls; and no happier family could have been found in all the land than that contained beneath the venerable roof of Rolff House. No fairer, wiser or more gracious matron than the wife of Claude Rolff ever ruled over a household with the rod of love. Age never came more gently to widowed dame than it did to Mrs. Bruyn, and no kinder or more indulgent grandmother ever shared the joys and sorrows of childhood. As for old Carl Crum, he always remained attached to the household, and was always a favorite with old and young—especially the latter. And he never was happier himself, or a greater hero in the eyes of wondering childhood than when he gathered a group of little ones around him of an evening and told anew the never old legends stored in his memory relating to the mystery of Rolff House.

TIMELY NOTIONS.

Useful Household Wrinkles For the Hot Weather Season.

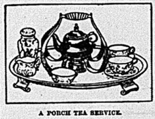
An expert who is acquainted with some of the finest private ice refrigerators in the country has anything but an exalted opinion of cleanliness as practiced in the kitchen. "I am often," said he, "called to the finest glass lined ice chests which are declared imperfect by the owners and find the tube carrying off the refuse packed solidly with a mixture of mucus and vegetable matter. All vegetables, milk bottles, green salads and so on should be cleansed before being put into the refrigerator. Even then there is a formation of mucus that will in time clog the waste pipe. The nature of this mucus is not fully understood. Experiments prove that even ice made from distilled water produces it. Another freak some women have is wrapping ice in paper and rags until it 'keeps beautifully,' as one woman said, when she complained that her refrigerator wouldn't keep things cold. Women should understand that it is only as it melts that ice produces units of cold in the ordinary chest. The mere presence of ten cents' worth of ice incased heavily in nonconducting material is not sufficient to lower the temperature of any ice box, however small. Get a good ice box in the first place. After an ice box has been washed and scalded carefully, put two tablespoonfuls of sweet niter in a pint of water and wipe the chest inside with this. It is powerful in the line of sweetness."

Don't let sticky fly paper lie carelessly on chairs or tables, ready to attach itself to garments or to melt and run off at the edges. Simply laying a sheet upon a newspaper is not sufficient. See that the newspaper is at least five inches longer than the sheet; then, beginning at one end, roll the newspaper (don't fold) fully up to the margin of the sheet and pin it there. Roll the opposite end in a similar manner, then the sides, pinning once all together at each corner. Your sheet of fly paper will now be incased in a shallow crate or dish of newspaper, and can be hung over the chandelier or upon the tops of pictures, where it will be out of range of human beings and more in range of the nuisances it is designed to attract.

To prevent the cracking of glass fruit jars or jelly glasses when pouring the boiling fruit or jelly in them, place a silver spoon in each before you pour the hot substance in. No previous heating of the glass is required, and after many years of canning I have yet to break the first glass, and have used no other method.—Good Housekeeping.

An Item In Summer Life.

No part of summer life is so enjoyable as that of being able to have the meals out of doors. If luncheons and suppers are too great an undertaking the making of a cup of tea can be very simply managed with one of the new trays with a stationary lamp. These trays are made of copper wrought by hand, with a handle for easy transporting through the house. They are especially adapted to porch use. The idea of the stationary handle is also brought out in a less expensive article in white enamel ware, —Delineator.



A PORCH TEA SERVICE.

New Bits of Furniture.

Some new nests of tables of unusual beauty have recently made their appearance. Four constitute the set, three sliding in under the top one. They are of beautiful polished dark wood, inlaid with lighter colored woods, in excellent designs. Marqueterie is being more and more introduced in single articles of furniture. It is pleasing and will not clash with the majority of furnishings.

A new window seat, suitable, however, for other places as well, commends itself, for it rises beyond merely a covered pine box. This one is upholstered, it is true, but the framework, which is beautifully polished bent wood, is entirely visible. It is a most desirable innovation and no longer resembles a makeshift, as the homemade window seats invariably do. These also do not set flat on the floor, but, having feet, are raised a few inches, giving it a less cumbersome appearance.—Art Interchange.

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good qualities which Parmalee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it; many without a trace of that hereditary disease have drifted into a consumptive's grave by neglecting what was only a slight cold. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup before it was too late, their lives would have been saved. Mr. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writes: "I think Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the best preparation on the market for coughs and severe colds. About six years ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and for three months I had a cough. I had a physician attending me, but gradually grew worse until I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hopes of being cured, when I was induced to try Bickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I was completely cured. I always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, and disordered stomach.

Lost chances never leave any trail.

AT DEATH'S DOOR.—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen,—My medical adviser and others told me I could not possibly live when I commenced to use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. My case was one of the worst of its kind. For three years I could not eat meat and my weight decreased from 219 to 119 lbs. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking the Vegetable Discovery consisted of milk. I am now entirely cured and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery since it cured me, as I am well-known and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I could not possibly be cured. They are eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life as I never expected to recover when first I commenced using it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as a certain cure for Dyspepsia.

Much talk, many lies.

The Flagging Energies Revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These comes from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare powder, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression, and reviving the flagging energies.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

HAD LA GRIPPE.—Mr. A. Nickerson, farmer, Dutton, writes; "Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back and hip that used to catch me whenever I tried to climb a fence. This lasted for about two months, when I bought a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and used it both internally and externally, morning and evening, for three days, at the expiration of which time I was completely cured."

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed 'Perfection.'

STANDARD TIME.

Its Origin and the Arrangement of Its Dividing Lines.

Standard time is a system arranged by the railroads of the United States and Canada originally. The purpose was to do away with the multitude of different "times" used in business which affected the railways and in operating the lines. The territory in which these railroads lay was divided into belts running north and south and about 15 degrees wide, from east to west; in every such division of the country all railway business was to be done on the same time. In the maritime provinces of Canada and a part of Maine the time used was that of the sixtieth meridian west of Greenwich. In the rest of New England and as far west as Pittsburg and Buffalo the time fixed was that of the seventy-fifth meridian, which is the time of Washington. The next belt westward was ninetieth meridian time, which is about the local time of New Orleans, and then comes mountain time, which is nearly that of Denver. Still farther west is Pacific time, which is that of the one hundred and twentieth meridian. Standard time divisions are not just 15 degrees from east to west nor are their boundaries regular. They are mapped out to suit the railroads, and the changes are usually fixed at points which are junctions for great railways or division terminals on the same lines. Sun time is supposed by most people to be the actual astronomical time of every place from day to day, but it is really an averaging or equalizing of exact local time, for the movements of the earth are too irregular to permit the convenient use of astronomical time, just as it is determined by the position of the heavenly bodies.

Daisy Pie.

Dining one day with a friend and being pressed to take some rhubarb pie, Lamb declined because it was physic.

"That may be," said his host, "but it is pleasant and innocent."

"So is a daisy," rejoined Lamb, "but I don't therefore like daisy pie."

"Daisy pie! Who ever heard of daisy pies?" said some one at the table.

"My authority is Shakespeare," Lamb replied. "He expressly mentions daisies pied."

His Plunge.

THE YANKEE'S FIRST.

Defender For Canada's Cup Beaten by Challenger 5 Minutes, 14 Seconds.

Toronto, Aug. 12.—The third race of the series of five for the Canada's Cup, now held by the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, was sailed yesterday over the 21-mile triangular course, and won easily by Irondequoit, Capt. Hannan at the tiller. The first leg was a starboard reach of seven miles to the southeast, the second a beat west to windward, and the third a good port reach, almost a run to the starting point. Irondequoit crossed first and gained on every leg, and finally crossed the line 5 minutes and 14 seconds ahead of the defender.

U.S. Cattle Still Barred.

London, Aug. 12.—In the House of Commons yesterday, in reply to the question why, in view of the United States Government's notification that the New England States are free from disease, the prohibition of the importation of cattle into this country was maintained, a representative of the Board of Agriculture replied that the evidence was not sufficient to justify the withdrawal of the prohibition, but detailed information on the subject was shortly ordered.

HOUSEKEEPING HINTS.

Ingenious and Helpful Ways Practiced In Various Homes.

I noticed a "discovery" which said to turn a tin pail over the gasoline burner to catch the smoke while generating gas, to keep it from spreading around the room. That is very good, but I would like to add my mite by saying that we used such a stove for many years and never had any smoke, as we generated by throwing a good teaspoonful of alcohol in the little cup and setting fire to it. It is a little more expensive, I admit, but very convenient, and then you don't have that big flame and nasty smell.

It does not seem a well known fact that jam should be covered hot. We have covered all our jams and jellies hot for several years and never have a case of mold. As soon as the boiling jam or jelly is poured into the jar a round piece of stout paper pasted on both sides should be put on. The steam rising through this paper stiffens and stretches it and the jam pots look very neat when dry.

In the making of currant or plum jelly if one cup of water is added for each cup of juice and a cup of sugar for each cup of juice and water the result will be a much daintier jelly than where the undiluted fruit juice is used, and at least a half more jelly from the same quantities.

"The proper way to dry woolens," says a large manufacturer of woolen goods, "is to hang the garments on the line dripping wet without wringing out at all. If dried in this way the shrinkage will be so light as to be almost unnoticeable."

At a small table in a certain hotel the people who gather around have a box in which a penny must be dropped at once for every spot made on the tablecloth. This is surely "spot cash." As the contents go for charity no one murmurs.

Left over yolks of eggs, if put at once into a tumbler of cold water, will keep fresh and soft for several days. If dropped into a cup and covered the yolks would be unfit for use the second day.

Camphor, as is well known, is useful in keeping away moths, but it should never be placed near sealskin, as it causes this fur to change color, producing streaks of gray and yellow.

Grind horse radish in a meat chopper. It beats the grating iron and there are no sore eyes.

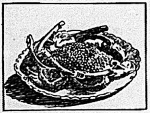
Lamb Chops With Green Peas.

Wipe each chop with a damp cloth and trim off any extra fat. Break an egg in a saucer, add a tablespoonful of warm water and beat with a fork just enough to break the stringiness. Have ready a quantity of dried and sifted bread crumbs. Cracker crumbs are often used, but do not give as crisp a crust. Dip each chop in the egg, lift up and drain for a moment, then roll in the crumbs. Repeat until all the chops are breaded.



LAMB CHOPS AND GREEN PEAS.

In a saucepan put a tablespoonful of butter, one-half of a teaspoonful each of salt and sugar and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper. Place over the fire, and as soon as hot add one quart of shelled peas. Cover and shake for two or three minutes, add just enough boiling water to keep from burning and cook, adding a little water as needed until tender.

Have a quantity of fat in a saucepan. Heat until smoking hot. Plunge in the chops, two or three at a time. In half a minute draw to the side of the fire and cook more slowly. They should be done in five to eight minutes, according to the thickness of the chops. Drain on unglazed paper. Heap the peas in the center of the platter and range the chops around.—Table Talk.

The Green Onion.

Table Talk tells of some good things to do with green onions:

Stewed Green Onions.—Peel and trim the onions, leaving them about six inches long. Tie in bunches of six or eight. Drop into a saucepan containing just sufficient boiling salted water to cover them and cook slowly until tender. Thicken the liquid with flour smoothly dissolved in cold water, season with pepper and more salt if necessary; simmer for five minutes longer, add one tablespoonful of butter and serve on toast.

Green Onions In Cream.—Prepare and boil the onions as in the preceding recipe. Make a sauce with one tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of white pepper and one cupful of milk Drain the onions, add the sauce and simmer for five minutes.

Green Onions au Gratin.—Boil the onions and prepare a sauce as in the preceding recipe. In a greased baking dish arrange alternate layers of onions and sauce. With two-thirds of a cupful of fine dry bread crumbs mix one teaspoonful of melted butter and a dash of salt, spread over the top and place in a hot oven until well browned.

Raw Green Onions.—Trim off the roots and the outer leaf from each. Let stand in ice or cold water until crisp and serve in the same way as radishes.

Danger Might Be Averted.

"My boy says his ambition is to grow up to be a man just like his father."

"I wouldn't let that worry me. When I was your boy's age I had a burning desire to be a pirate."

Not Interested.

"Did you read that article on 'Why Men Don't Propose?'"

The girl blushed. "It doesn't interest me," she said. "You see I know one man who does."

His Formal Abdication.

"No," said the college graduate, "I am not settling any of the great problems this year. You will find their solution in the baccalaureate sermons.

Falsehoods not only disagree with truths, but they usually quarrel among themselves.—Webster.

VERY REMARKABLE CURE OF DIARRHOEA.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who was cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists

Sneezing.

A sneeze may mean various things in some parts of Turkey. It is regarded as a confirmation of what the person speaking has just said. In that case he interrupts himself in order to address the sneezer as follows: "Health be to thee, for thou hast proved that I am speaking the truth." It is sometimes taken as a sign that absent enemies are speaking ill of the sneezer and the bystanders express the pious wish that those individuals, whoever they be, "may split." Sneezing is also considered as an indication of health, especially if the sneezer is just recovering from an illness.

The Way It Usually Ends.

Von Blumer—What kind of a cook shall I fetch home?

Mrs. Von Blumer—Get one about thirty, who can make good bread, knows how to cook all meats, can make fine pastry, who never has any company, doesn't go out nights and has the very best references.

Von Blumer—But suppose I can't get such a cook?

Mrs. Von Blumer—Oh, well, get any one you can, then.

Costly Solace.

Mrs. Neustile—I paid $100 for a Paris hat and that Pattern woman up the street managed to get one just like it. But I stopped her from wearing it!

Mrs. Neurich—How did you do it?

Mrs. Neustile—I gave the hat to the nurse and told her to wear it every time she took baby out.

Truth Will Out.

"What did you steal that cradle for?" asked the police magistrate.

"Oh, just for a kid," replied the prisoner, who was lost to all sense of shame.

The Reason.

The Farmer—Your cow must be sick. She doesn't chew her cud.

The Amateur Farmer—She doesn't have to chew her cud. I feed her with predigested hay.

SMALL GROUP OF STATUES.

This Is the Growing Time and There Is a Prospect of More Monuments Being Erected at Ottawa.

It is not the habit of the Canadian people to put many men on pedestals, writes H. F. G. in Toronto Star. Our praise is so careful that it is even reluctant. Although Quebec is given to hero-worship, the nation as a whole is slow to kindle. Perhaps this is the reason why the thirty-six years of Confederation contribute only four statues to Parliament Hill.

As a matter of fact, there ought to be five statues. George Brown, one of the foremost makers of Confederation, is not in the little galaxy. But the Liberal Government, which added Alexander Mackenzie to the Pantheon, will probably rear a bronze to the statesman of whom Mackenzie was merely a disciple. All these statues are erected by Government grants. It is only natural that the great political parties should each attend to the memories of its own illustrious dead. This explains why Alexander Mackenzie did not get his statue until a couple of years ago, and why George Brown has one coming. The Conservatives, although so long in power, did not turn Parliament Hill into a cemetery. They left a number of choice spots for the celebrities of the future. In twenty-five years they raised only two statues. Of course they had to wait until the men died before they could build monuments to them; but on a simple calculation of time they selected only one great man for every twelve years. This shows more restraint than the Liberal Government, which has one to its credit in six years. However, this is a growing time, and the crop of statues may be expected to follow the general tendency. Perhaps an average might be struck. If Canada can produce enough great men to make it figure out one in nine years, her renown is assured.

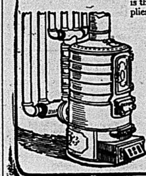
On Dominion Day these four statues looked down on a city gay with flags. All of them had more or less to do with the great event which was being celebrated. There was, for instance, Queen Victoria, who sanctioned the Confederation, because her Ministers told her that it was the right thing to do. Ottawa owes a debt to Her Majesty, for without her royal word it would not be Ottawa and the capital of the Dominion, but just Bytown, a headquarters for shantymen and camp supplies, not much bigger than Pembroke or Arnprior. There was also Sir John A. Macdonald. There was, for a third, Alexander Mackenzie. The fourth was Sir George Cartier, who fought for the cause of union in Quebec.

The oldest of these statues, and the finest from an artistic point of view, is Cartier's. The figure is simple and strong. The pediment is not plastered with allegorical fantasies. The man's greatness stands detached from the vagaries of the sculptor. It is as if he scorned any symbols to interpret him, relying solely on his deeds which are on record. This way it should be with all statues. Nothing should distract the mind from the man who is commemorated. Cartier's statue is, by the way, the best piece of bronze on Parliament Hill. It patinates beautifully. It is very different from the Mackenzie statue, in which the bronze is of such an inferior quality that it already blisters with rust and verdigris. The Cartier statue was erected in the early eighties. Sir John Macdonald was present at the unveiling and delivered the panegyric. It was a cold blustery day in October, and the old man stood bareheaded through the ceremony.

The statue of Sir John Macdonald stands at the eastern end of the terrace against a background of trees. It is remotely vis-a-vis of Cartier's statue, which occupies a similar position at the western end of the terrace. The bronze is by Herbert. Hebert is a French-Canadian who lives in Paris. He has had most of the artistic commissions in the gift of the Government, because he is a good sculptor, and because, in this as in other matters, it is well that Canada should be for Canadians. Hebert has given an excellent likeness of Sir John, and has even succeeded in lending impressiveness to the spare, rather unsculptable figure. Canada is symbolized at the base in the shape of a beautiful woman. But the effect is to take away from rather than to enhance the dignity of the work as a whole. This statue was set up in 1893. Sir Adolphe Caron was the orator of the occasion. Arthur Weir, the poet, now dead, recited an original ode.

Alexander Mackenzie has suffered most at the sculptor's hands. His gaunt, angular frame did not lend itself readily to idealization, and the artist made matters worse with a stilted pose and his uncouth treatment of the conventional frock coat. Mackenzie's right hand is extended. It seems to be out of proportion. At any rate it entirely overshadows the Scotch Premier and makes him shrink by comparison. Here, as in the Macdonald statue, the symbolical figures of Canada raising labor from the ground—which are the work of Hebert—are excellent in themselves, but very much out of place as an ornament. Hebert is not to blame for the Mackenzie part of it. Another man did it.

Hebert's chef d'oeuvre is the statue of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, which occupies the most commanding position on Parliament Hill, the big knoll which flanks the western block. It is the first thing to seize the eye from the central gateway and is the only statue that can be seen from the river. The Queen is presented standing, as she was in her prime. The sculptor has used his artistic license to give her the required effect of height and regality. The whole spirit of the work is allegorical. The British lion in a noble, rampant attitude and the figure of Fame offering the great Queen a wreath of laurel are well conceived. The motif is harmonious. This statue, at least, does not try to pink itself out with shreds and patches of idealism.



For healthfulness, cleanliness, and a steady continuous temperature there is no heating system for the home that compares with hot water. The is the acme of hot water heating. It supplies the house with even warmth, keeping the atmosphere pure and healthful. It is compact, very easily run and a great fuel economizer.

In connection with Oxford Radiators it makes a perfect heating system for the home. The radiators are artistically designed and can be decorated in harmony with the color scheme of the room. Write for our booklets.

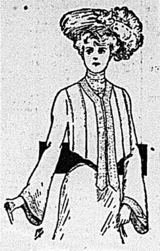
HIGH LIGHTS OF FASHION.

Linen Coats, Plaited or Sack Boleros and Various Other Items.

Linen coats are the natural complement of the already well established linen skirts. The plaited linen bolero shown has a stole end collar of stitched linen, bands of which also edge the bell sleeves. The plaits are repeated at the back. A basqued coat is also very smart. The back is quite plain fitting, the fronts cut to stand out smartly from the figure. The sleeves are of the new "coat bishop" order, so cut that the baggy fullness at the back of the wrist is contrived without more than the slightest gathering or plaiting, the seam outward taking its place. This is distinctly a gain where washing has to be contemplated.



A FAVORITE LINEN BOLERO.

Canvas is one of the favorite materials and may be had in cream and many other colors, and a popular design is the plaited skirt with a hip piece of openwork over silk. This model has a sack bolero with short plaited stoles and wide cape collar adorned with vandyked openwork and trimmed with motifs of cream guipure. It has wide bell sleeves and can be worn with any pretty waist.

A Paris correspondent notes as a fact worth chronicling the bold boleros have at present among the most elegantly dressed women in that city of fashion. At all smart gatherings dresses in crape, voile or mousseline display a short plaiting falling loosely above a high draped, close fitting ceinture.

A pretty style is found by those who do not care to adhere to the smart little bolero effects in the full blouse shaped bodice, having a pointed shaped shoulder cape ornamented with silk tassels and cords. A narrow velvet collar of some bright contrasting color is a becoming finish to these attractive capes.

For evening are beginning to be adopted some of the day dress garnitures—namely, ornaments in gimp forming a sort of basque from the center of the waist at the back.

The emerald green shade which has figured so largely in dressy hats promises to appear this season in smart fete toilets. Flame color and nasturtium red are other taking new hues, but perhaps there is nothing that can more certainly be depended upon for style than the universally worn black and white.

A new wrinkle in masculine vanities promises to be the hatband in two or more colors on the straw hat, but probably, except among the youthful contingent, dark blue and black will predominate as usual.

It appears that the broad, straight brimmed shape is to be the popular straw outing hat for women as well as the standard shape for men.

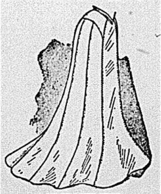
A silk Windsor tie in shepherd's plaid or polka dots is fashionable wear with a woman's linen collar on summer shirt waists.

A flat sole, high military heel and more pointed toe mark the latest summer Oxford ties for women.

J. VERNON WALDER.

A Skirt For the Tub.

The sketch shows one of the smartest models for the linens that are such a pronounced feature of the present season. It is cut with a hip yoke piece and plain front gore, the seams everywhere overlaid, and is eminently graceful and becoming in wear.



A SMART LINEN SKIRT.

Moreover, the necessary flow being obtained by the smartly curved seams, no extraneous plaits or tucks occur, which is a great consideration for washing skirts.

SHIRT SALE.

We bought our Soft Shirts with the expectation of having a warm season.

It has not been so—consequently we have more left than we should at this time.

Designs and qualities are alright. They come from the foremost shirs manufacturers in Canda.

We have had no trouble in suiting men who required fine soft shirts.

The continued cool weather has kept this requirement below our expectation.

There is almost sure to be plenty of warm weather yet. We could sell many at regular prices later on, but—we need the room.

Already the new goods are arriving and so, of necessity, we make this seasonable offering for Thursday Friday and Saturday.

—The balance of our Soft Front Shirts in newest designs and colorings sizes 14 to 17, regular $1.00 and $1.25, for....................75c

TWEED SKIRTS.

This combined with the neat styles and workmanship on the varieties we are showing make them "best obtainnble" in every way.

It's in appearance that our skirts surpass the majority.

Correctly made from start to finish they have the dressy appearance desired by every lady. A pleasure to show these.

—Fine Black and White Tweed Skirt with wide broadcloth straps stitched in white running around skirt, 12 inches apart, a very stylish garment....................$5.75

NEW AMERICAN HATS.

True—it's only August yet, but we like to be first to show the new goods.

It gives you a chance to study the new styles before purchasing.

These are the very latest American blocks in both stiff and soft varieties.

Just the styles every man will be wearing for the fall season.

Come in and see these whether you desire to purchase or not.

—Latest styles in American Hats both soft and stiff....................$2.50

CARPET ROOM ITEMS.

Many households contain convincing evidence of the ability of this department to furnish beautifully—yet economically.

We are pleased with the increased patronage enjoyed each succeeding season. Yet—not surprised.

Our DIRECT buying for CASH enables us to mark finest qualities at prices which cannot be lowered—seldom met.

It's edging toward fall housecleaning. Maybe a new rug or carpet will be needed.

Our assortment will be more extensive and—if possible—more pleasing than ever.

Every article backing our reputation for RELIABLE GOODS AT LOWEST CASH PRICES.

Give this department a call before purchasing. The values will interest you.

CHINA MATTINGS.

For inexpensive yet sightly and durable floor coverings our China Mattings are growing in popularity each day.

The excellent designs we were successful in obtaining this season making them more than usually inviting.

If there is a floor to be covered and a carpet will be too expensive, come in and see what pleasing effects these offer at most moderate prices.

Quick & Robertson's for Fine Clothes

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard—built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

Committee Room 34,
House of Commons,
Wednesday July 22, 1903

Q.—I notice you travelled by rail almost exclusively? A.—A good deal.

Q.—Almost entirely? A.—Oh no.

Q.—Well, this bill, to my mind, must have been made up by a lawyer? A.—No.

Q.—It does you credit. Perhaps it was a plumber that made it up? A.—No.

Q.—If you look at the bill see if it is not just about a diary of what you did? Just glance at it and see if it is not. A.—A good deal so; I tried to keep an account of what I have done.

Q.—When you travelled, going around the country, I noticed that you charged livery in Belleville, Deseronto and Tweed, all the way around on these trips; I am not finding any fault about it? A.—Yes, if I used any livery I did.

Q.—So that you travelled in the country, and not only got your railway fares, but had livery each time to the station.? A.—I live four miles from the station.

Q.—I am not finding fault? A.—I drove my own horse to the station.

Q.—And you charged this livery? A.—Yes.

Q.—And your horse would meet you when you returned? A.—Yes, sometimes I had to hire livery. If anything had turned up at Belleville that had to be attended to, there were some enumerators got sick and could not take the work, and a telegram would come to me to Belleville, and I would be in Belleville, and I got a horse and drove to Tweed.

Q.—That caused you to go there, somebody's illness? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you charged two dollars for livery each way? A.—For the day.

Q.—No, Tweed $2.00 each way? A.—Perhaps so.

Q.—Whenever you drove a horse you charged for it? A.—Yes, it might be so, but I do not think so.

Q.—On the 16th of April you went to Tweed to meet the enumerators, and you charged horse hire $2.00, hotel expenses, self and horse, $1.50, Tweed horse [illegible] you reviewed work.

Q.—That was your [illegible] drove that time? A.—I do not think so, but it might have been; if I had my horse in Belleville it would be.

Q.—You are aware you drove out, it was most likely your own horse, and you charged $2.00 each way; I am merely mentioning this fact to show that wherever you drove your own horse, there was a charge entered in the bill? A.—If I used it there was.

Q.—And all these charges are included in the $105.00? A.—Yes.

Q.—And after that you added yourself for your own horse ten days at $1.50, making another $15.00? A.—Yes, that was after the winding up.

Q.—Yes, I think it was. So that altogether you added $50 to the bill you had drawn up, after you had stopped, and to the $105.57 you added $50, making it $155.57? A.—Yes.

Q.—How many days would you say you were engaged in these duties as Census Commissioner? A.—I was engaged 75 days, that I started out with the intention of working on the census.

Q.—Then why, in your declaration, did you declare that you had given 90 days of effective service? Was that a suggestion, the 15 days additional? A.—No, but afterwards I added that 15 days, making it 90 for other days I had spent with the manufacturers, looking after the manufactures

Q.—After the census returns were in? A.—No, not after they were all in, but before my own went in.

Q.—That was something you had done between the time your books, the census enumerators' books, were returned, and the sending in your own account? A.—Yes, something like that.

Q.—Your account now only grew day by day while yourself and the enumerators were doing business, but after the census books were sent in, your account still kept growing? A.—After some of them were sent in, after they were sent in there was any amount of explanations wanted, they sent back schedules that I had to go and get them to fix them up in some places.

Q.—Why did you not make a charge of that kind in this account which hadn't been sent in? You understand if your census books had been sent in, your account had not? A.—Well, I lumped the whole thing.

Q.—After you had drawn up an itemized account? A.—Yes.

Q.—You made up your account as big as you could under the items? A.—Yes.

Q.—And then you added $50 after you had made out as big an account as you could by that method? A.—Yes.

Q.—After the books had been sent in? A.—Yes.

Q.—There are a certain number of affidavits and a certain number of declarations here to which the enumerators made affidavit, you will remember, as to the correctness of his work, and then made declaration as to the accuracy of his charges? A.—Yes.

Q.—You remember that each of them made two affidavits or declarations? A.—Yes.

Q. And the great majority are made before yourself? A.—Yes, those were the instructions.

Q.—I am not finding any fault. I suppose when they were made before yourself, you honestly and fairly filled up your jurat, when you were signing it as Commissioner? A.—Yes.

Q.—They bear a date; you would not put in any false date? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Now just let me call your attention to the certificate of a couple of dates. Mr. Solmes, of Deseronto, Mr. Charles W. Solmes, Deseronto, I see that on the 7th of June his declaration was made in Deseronto, on the 7th of June, 1901, before yourself. You have no charge in your bill there as being present at Deseronto on the 7th of June. I say your declaration is apparently made on the 7th of June, that would be before this account of yours was closed, because that account went up to the 12th of June; now on the 4th of June you were in Deseronto, but there is no charge for being there on the 7th of June. Would you say that you must have been there on another of these trips on that date.? A.—I do not know. Mr. Solmes lived at Deseronto, when he revised his books, and I would receive letters from him at some other place; he was at Trenton for a while.

Q.—That does not touch upon it. Here is the declaration made before you on the 7th of June, 1901, at Deseronto, and I say according to your bill, you do not appear to have been there on that date, although you were there on the 4th. Will you say from your own signature being there, on that jurat that you must have been in Deseronto on the 7th of June? A.—I do not remember the circumstances where that declaration was taken, it is so long ago.

MRS. HOWATSON'S THANKS TO A LOCAL LODGE OF ODDFELLOWS.

The following letter explains itself:

Lodge, I.O.O.F., Belleville.

Dear Mr. Osborne,—I am in receipt of the resolution of condolence passed by your lodge in which the members express their deep sympathy for me in the great loss I have sustained through the death of my late husband, James Howatson, a member of your order. I cannot express to you as I would like to my gratitude and thanks for the kind words of comfort contained in the resolution, coming as they do from those who have been friends, at a time when I needed them. I cannot value the sentiments too highly. I am unable to find words to convey to you my most sincere thanks for the many acts of kindness shown to me by your noble order during my late husband's illness and after his death.

Nothing was omitted by the order at Anaconda, Montana, during his sickness which would in any way give him comfort during those weeks of pain and suffering, while every kindness was shown to me which greatly assisted in enabling me to bear the terrible ordeal through which I was obliged to pass. I frequently heard my husband speak of the order, but I had no idea that it was founded on such noble principles. I cannot speak too highly of it, and when one has been obliged to pass through what I have, the kindness shown them which I have had shown to me by your noble order, I do not know what I would have done without it. I can only in conclusion thank you again and ask that you express to your lodge my appreciation of all they have done for me and my husband. I wish your order every success.

I am yours faithfully,
Carrie W. Howatson.

THE CAUSE OF DYSPEPTIC PAINS

They arise from the formation of gas, owing to improper digestion. A very prompt and efficient remedy is Polson's Nerviline. It relieves the distention instantly, and by its stimulating action on the stomach, aids digestion. Nerviline cures dyspeptic pains by removing the cause. Nerviline is also highly recommended for cramps, colic, summer complaint and inflammation. Sold in large 25 cent bottles everywhere.

IT IS A PERPLEXING THING.

For the reader of newspaper advertisements to determine what is what. We do not use as large type as some, but we are sure that what we have to say is not the less important to any one who is interested in the subject of clothing at this time. Our summer suits are ready to speak for themselves, if you will but take time to inspect them, and we think you will find no fault with the prices. We are making an immense display of hot weather clothing and furnishings.—Quick & Robertson.

You Can Save your strength, time, money and health by using one of our Auto-Valvo Blue Flame Oil Stoves the kind that transform your summer cooking from a drudgery to a pleasure.

HOCKEY.

Some Remarks from Port Hope.

The Guide says: "A little more than six weeks and all hockey players will have to become residents of the town in which they wish to play. Of course the Port Hope team is always composed of home brews, but we just mention this face for the benefit of towns who indulge in 'ringing in'."

It would be interesting to know what kind of nerve food the Guide man uses.

SLOWLY DYING FROM CATARRH.

Thousands are in this terrible condition, but don't realize their danger. If you have the slightest taint of catarrh would it not be wise to commence Catarrhozone treatment now and be perfectly cured in a short time? This pleasant remedy cures without the use of drugs, atomizers or snuffs. You inhale the medicated vapor which spreads to all parts of the breathing organs, kills the germs and heals the inflamed surfaces. Catarrhozone clears the throat and nose instantly, and never fails to cure the most obstinate catarrhal, lung and throat troubles. A trial will demonstrate the value of Catarrhozone, which sells for $1.00, small size 25c, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

VISITORS FROM HAMILTON & BRANTFORD WELCOMED

AND ENTERTAINED BY LOCAL "Y's" YESTERDAY—MR. BEST'S THRILLING ADVENTURE.

The schooner Maple Leaf, of Toronto, with a party of men from the Hamilton and Brantford Young Men's Christian Association, arrived here yesterday morning. Mr. T. F. Best, senior secretary of the Hamilton association, was in charge.

They visited the local "Y.M." and after Mr. Biggs had shown the party through the rooms, started for a trip around town under his direction. Mr. Best, however, wished to visit Albert College and, after inquiring he left the party for a time He was not satisfied that he had beenly rightly directed, so he started up Moira street, later taking to the field, where he undertook to rest awhile. A party coming up to him, seeing his seedy appearance, took him for a tramp at first sight, but being a stranger he was allowed to prove his identification and go on in peace.

Secretary Wilkie arrived from Camp Quinte last evening, after closing the camp for the season, to find the local rooms in possession of the crew of the Maple Leaf. A pleasant social hour was spent, the fellows enjoying themselves. At the close Mr. Best passed the hat to get the price of a shave, the proceeds and a hearty vote of thanks were tendered Mr. Biggs for his kindness to the party. Mr. Arthur Foster, who had been assisting in the entertainment, suggested that, since Mr. Wilkie only had a stew pan and half a pound of tea in the house, the rest of his outfit, including supplies, being safely locked in the freight shed at the dock, they come home with him. You should see those fourteen fellows travel up street to Mr. Foster's, where a tasty spread awaited them. After grace the following words describe the scene most accurately:

O, you should see us when we eat,—
when we eat,
We must be hollow to our feet,—
to our feet;
Though mountain high the bill of fare,
We always leave the table bare.

Mr. Shepherd, on behalf of the party, tendered the host a hearty vote of thanks for their kindness to the "tramps."

Secretary Wilkie seconded the motion which was carried unanimously.

Mr Arthur Foster spoke briefly, stating the pleasure it gave him to entertain the "Y's." After singing

A WELL KNOWN ALBANY MAN.

Recommends Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

About eighteen months ago Mr. W. S. Manning, of Albany, N. Y., widely known in trade circles as the representative of the Albany Chemical Co., was suffering from a protracted attack of Diarrhoea. "I tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," he says, "and obtained relief. cheerfully recommend this medicine to those similarly afflicted." Sold by all druggists.

Address and Presentation.

Rev. G. E. Ross, former Methodist pastor of Shannonville circuit, now of Hilton, recently took a trip to his native country, Scotland. Previous to his departure a large number of the members of his flock called on him and presented him with a gratifying address and a purse of $53.25. Rev. Mr. Ross made a suitable reply, thanking his friends for their kindness. The Rev. gentleman's friends in this city will be pleased to hear that he is properly appreciated in his new charge.

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by all druggists.

The Metropolitan Stock Exchange.

OFFICES, NO. 34, Bridge St., - Belleville, Ont.

The great advantage to local investors in placing their business with the Metropolitan consists in the fact that they have contracts with this strong financial institution itself, instead of with a local broker; thereby eliminating entirely the risk which may be involved in the question of a local broker's financial strength. Each commitment exists upon its individual merit, and cannot be affected by the short comings of the holders of other contracts nor even of the local manager. The local manager is the servant of this exchange, and the exchange is bound by his acts; consequently, the investor having the evidence that he has paid to a given point, his commitment is good to that point no matter what happens; and this is a valuable consideration —more so than most people imagine.

McINTOSH BROS.

Patty's Predicament.

By JEAN WEBSTER.

"HELLO, Patty! Have you read the bulletin-board this morning?" called Cathy Fair, as she caught up with Patty on the way home from a third-hour recitation.

"No," said Patty; "I think it's a bad habit. You see too many unpleasant things there."

"Well, there's certainly an unpleasant one to-day. Miss Skelling wishes the Old English class to be provided with writing materials this afternoon."

"Not an examination," quoted Cathy; "just a little test to see how much you know."

"I don't know a thing," wailed Patty; "not a blessed thing."

"Nonsense, Patty; you know more than anyone else in the class."

"Bluff—it's all pure bluff. I come in strong on the literary criticism and the general discussions, and she never realizes that I don't know a word of the grammar."

"You've got two hours. You can cut your classes and review it up."

"Two hours!" said Patty, sadly. "I need two days. I've never learned it, I tell you. The Anglo-Saxon grammar is a thing no mortal can carry in his head and I thought I might as well wait and learn it before examinations."

"I don't wish to appear unfeeling," laughed Cathy, "but I should say, my dear, that it serves you right."

"Oh, I dare say," said Patty. "You are as bad as Priscilla;" and she trailed gloomily homeward.

She found her friends reviewing biology and eating olives. "Have one?" asked Lucille Carter, who, provided with a hatpin by way of fork, was presiding over the bottle for the moment.

"No, thanks," returned Patty, in the tone of one who has exhausted life and longs for death.

"What's the matter?" enquired Priscilla. "You don't mean to say that woman has given you another special topic?"

"Worse than that!" and Patty laid bare the tragedy.

A sympathetic silence followed; they realized that while she was, perhaps, not strictly deserving of sympathy, still her impending fate was of the kind that might overtake anyone.

"You know, Pris," said Patty, miserably, "that I simply can't pass."

"No," said Priscilla, soothingly, "I don't believe you can."

"I shall flunk flat—absolutely flat. Miss Skelling will never have any confidence in me again, and will make me recite every bit of grammar for the rest of the semester."

"I should think you'd cut," ventured Georgie; that being, in her opinion, the most obvious method of escaping an examination.

"I can't. I just met Miss Skelling in the hall five minutes before the blow fell, and she knows I'm alive and able to be about; besides, the class meets again to [illegible]

"Why don't you go to Miss Skelling and frankly explain the situation," suggested Lucille the virtuous, "and ask her to let you off for a day or two? She would like you all the better for it."

"Will you listen to the guileless babe!" said Patty. "What is there to explain, may I ask? I can't very well tell her that I prefer not to learn the lessons as she gives them out, but think it easier to wait and cram them up at one fell swoop just before examinations. That would ingratiate myself in her favor!"

"It's your own fault," said Priscilla.

Patty groaned. "I was just waiting to hear you say that! You always do."

"It's always true. Where are you going?" as Patty started for the door.

"I am going," said Patty, "to ask Mrs Richards to give me a new room-mate; one who will understand and appreciate me, and sympathize with my afflictions."

Patty walked gloomily down the corridor, lost in meditation. Her way led past the door of the doctor's office which was standing invitingly open. Three or four girls were sitting around the room, laughing and talking—and waiting their turns. Patty glanced in and a radiant smile suddenly lightened her face, but it was instantly replaced by a look of settled sadness. She walked in and dropped into an arm-chair with a sigh.

"What's the matter, Patty? You look as if you had melancholia."

Patty smiled apathetically. "Not quite so bad as that," she murmured, and leaned back and closed her eyes.

"Next," said the doctor from the doorway; but as she caught sight of Patty she walked over and shook her arm. "Is this Patty Wyatt? What is the matter with you, child?"

Patty opened her eyes with a start. "Nothing," she said; "I'm just a little tired."

"Come in here with me."

"It's not my turn," objected Patty.

"That makes no difference," returned the doctor.

Patty dropped limply into the consulting chair.

"Let me see your tongue. Um-m—isn't coated very much. Your pulse seems regular, though possibly a trifle feverish. Have you been working hard?"

"I don't think I've been working any harder than usual," said Patty, truthfully.

"Sitting up late nights?"

Patty considered. "I was up rather late twice last week," she confessed.

"If you girls persist in studying until all hours of the night, I don't know what we doctors can do."

Patty did not think it necessary to explain that it was a Welsh-rabbit party on each occasion, so she merely sighed and looked out of the window.

"Is your appetite good?"

"Yes," said Patty, in a tone which belied the words; "it seems to be very good."

"Um-m," said the doctor.

"I'm just a little tired," pursued Patty, "but I think I shall be all right as soon as I get a chance to rest. Perhaps I need a tonic," she suggested.

"You'd better stay out of classes for a day or two and get thoroughly rested."

"Oh, no," said Patty, in evident perturbation. "Our room is so full of girls all the time that it's really more restful [illegible] out just now."

"Why not?" demanded the doctor, suspiciously.

"Well," said Patty, a trifle reluctantly, "I have a good deal to do. I've got to cram for an examination, and——"

The word "cram" was to the doctor as a red rag to a bull. "Nonsense!" she ejaculated. "I know what I shall do with you. You are going right over to the infirmary for a few days—".

"Oh, doctor!" Patty pleaded, with tears in her eyes, "there's truly nothing the matter with me, and I've got to take that examination."

"What examination is it?"

"Old English—Miss Skelling."

"I will see Miss Skelling myself," said the doctor "and explain that you cannot take the examination until you come out. And now," she added, making a note of Patty's case, "I will have you put in the convalescent ward, and we will try the rest cure for a few days, and feed you up on chicken-broth and egg-nog, and see if we can get that appetite back."

"Thank you," said Patty, with the resigned air of one who has given up struggling against the inevitable.

"I like to see you take an interest in your work," added the doctor, kindly; "but you must always remember, my dear, that health is the first consideration."

Patty returned to the study and executed an impromptu dance in the middle of the floor.

"What's the matter?" exclaimed Priscilla. "Are you crazy?"

"No," said Patty; "only ill." And she went into her bedroom and began slinging things into a dress-suit case.

Priscilla stood in the doorway and watched her in amazement. "Are you going to New York?" she asked.

"No," said Patty; "to the infirmary."

"Patty Wyatt, you're a wretched little hypocrite!"

"Not at all," said Patty, cheerfully "I didn't ask to go, but the doctor simply insisted. I told her I had an examination, but she said it didn't make any difference; health must be the first consideration."

"What's in that bottle?" demanded Priscilla.

"That's for my appetite," said Patty with a grin; "the doctor hopes to improve it. I didn't like to discourage her but I don't much believe she can." She dropped an Old English grammar and a copy of "Beowulf" into her suit-case.

"They won't let you study," said Priscilla.

"I shall not ask them," said Patty "Good-by. Tell the girls to drop in occasionally and see me in my incarceration. Visiting hour from five to six." She stuck her head in again. "If any one wants to send violets, I think they might cheer me up."

The next afternoon Georgie and Priscilla presented themselves at the infirmary, and were met at the door by the austere figure of the head nurse. "I will see if Miss Wyatt is awake," she said dubiously, "but I am afraid you will excite her; she's to be kept very quiet."

"Oh, no; we'll do her good," remonstrated Georgie; and the two girls tiptoed in after the nurse.

The convalescent ward was a white airy room, furnished [illegible] surrounded curtains. Patty [illegible] one of the corner beds near a window, propped up on pillows, with her hair tumbled about her face, and a table beside her covered with flowers and glasses of medicine. This elaborate paraphernalia of sickness created a momentary illusion in the minds of the visitors. Priscilla ran to the bedside and dropped on her knees beside her invalid roommate.

"Patty, dear" she said, anxiously; "how do you feel?"

A seraphic smile spread over Patty's face. "I've been able to take a little nourishment to-day," she said.

"Patty, you're a scandalous humbug. Who gave you those violets? 'With love from Lady Clara Vere de Vere'—that blessed freshman!—and you've borrowed every drop of alcohol the poor child ever thought of owning. And whom are those roses from? Miss Skelling! Patty, you ought to be ashamed."

Patty had the grace to blush slightly. "I was a trifle embarrassed," she admitted; "but when I reflected upon how sorry she would have been to find out how little I knew, and how glad she will be to find out how much I know, my conscience was appeased."

"Have you been studying?" asked Georgie.

"Studying!" Patty lifted up the corner of her pillow and exhibited a blue book. "Two days more of this, and I shall be the chief authority in America on Anglo-Saxon roots."

"How do you manage it?"

"Oh," said Patty, "when the rest-hour begins I lie down and shut my eyes, and they tiptoe over and look at me, and whisper, 'she's asleep,' and softly draw the curtains around the bed; and I get out the book and put in two solid hours of irregular verbs, and am still sleeping when they come to look at me. They're perfectly astonished at the amount I sleep. I heard the nurse telling the doctor that she didn't believe I'd had any sleep for a month. And the worst of it is," she added, "that I am tired, whether you believe it or not, and I should just love to stay over here and sleep all day if I weren't so beastly conscientious about that old grammar."

"Poor Patty!" laughed Georgie. "She will be imposing on herself next, as well as on the whole college."

Friday morning Patty returned to the world.

"How's Old English?" enquired Priscilla.

"Very well, thank you. It was something of a cram, but I think I know that grammar by heart, from the preface to the index."

"You're back in all your other work. Do you think it paid?"

"That remains to be seen," laughed Patty.

She knocked on Miss Skelling's door, and, after the first polite greetings, stated her errand: "I should like, if it is convenient for you, to take the examination I missed."

"Do you feel able to take it to-day?"

"I feel much better able to take it to-day than I did on Tuesday."

Miss Skelling smiled kindly. "You have done very good work in Old English this semester, Miss Wyatt, and I should not ask you to take the examination at all if I thought it would be fair to the rest of the class."

"Fair to the rest of the class?" Patty looked a trifle blank; she had not considered this aspect of the question, and a slow red flush crept over her face. She hesitated a moment, and rose uncertainly. "When it comes to that, Miss Skelling," she confessed, "I'm afraid it wouldn't be quite fair to the rest of the class for me to take it."

Miss Skelling did not understand. "But, Miss Wyatt," she expostulated, in a puzzled tone; "it was not difficult. I am sure you could pass."

Patty smiled. "I am sure I could, Miss Skelling. I don't believe you could ask me a question that I couldn't answer. But the point is that it's all learned since Tuesday. The doctor was laboring under a little delusion—very natural under the circumstances—when she sent me to the infirmary, and I spent my time there studying."

"But, Miss Wyatt, this is very unusual. I shall not know how to mark you," Miss Skelling murmured in some distress.

"Oh, mark me zero," said Patty, cheerfully. "It doesn't matter in the least—I know such a lot that I'll get through on the finals. Good-by; I'm sorry to have troubled you." And she closed the door and turned thoughtfully homeward.—From "When Patty Went to College" (Century Company).

"First Aid for the Injured."

We met in Kensington High street, and Hilda informed me that she was on her way home from an ambulance class that was held every week at Lady MacGregor's.

"Every woman ought to know how to render first aid to the injured," she said, with gentle decision.

I assented warmly, and asked for particulars as to the method of procedure at these valuable gatherings.

"First, of course, we have tea," said Hilda, "and then we all go into the library and sit round the table, with the doctor at the head and the skeleton at the side."

"And can you see the skeleton from your seat?" I enquired.

"Quite as much as I want to!" replied Hilda, firmly. "We were a little late in beginning to-day," she went on, "as Mrs. De Winton had forgotten the time of the class, and of course we could not begin till she had had her tea."

"And what was the subject this afternoon?" I enquired.

Hilda turned reluctantly from the shop window she was contemplating.

"Fractures!" she said, importantly. "There are eight signs and symptoms of fractures. I can only remember one—crep—crep—it sounds something like crepe, because when the doctor mentioned it I remarked to Gertrude how strange it was that one saw so little crepe de chine this season, when it was all the rage last year. Oh! I know—crepitus! And that," she added thoughtfully, "is the one thing you are not to try and discover for yourself. It is very important to remember this."

"And what is the treatment to be?" I ventured, much impressed.

"Keep the poor dear warm and comfortable till the doctor comes!" she said evidently quoting from a little manual she was holding in her hand. "You see it isn't likely you would be carrying splints and bandages about with you, to [illegible] safer not to [illegible] of the book, and it is really [illegible] too much! Though of course we have all learnt to bandage. We have a boy on purpose at 6d an hour."

"Wee MacGreegor?" I suggested.

"No," said Hilda, seriously, "Ronald wouldn't stand still long enough. We have a little fellow from the Boys' Home."

"And when is the next class held?" I asked.

"Well," said Hilda, puckering her forehead, "that is rather a difficult thing to settle. You see there is always someone away, and the best thing to do is to arrange to have the classes when as few as possible are absent. This afternoon while we were at tea, Lady MacGregor had a telegram from two of the members to say that they had been kept so long at Liberty's that they were positively obliged to have tea at Fuller's, and they didn't see how they could possibly be in time, and it would be such a pity to disturb the class."

"And what about the examination?" I asked, sternly. "What will you all do when the time of reckoning comes?"

"Oh, well," explained Hilda, "if you are absent more than once from the lectures you are not eligible for examination. There have been two lectures so far, and we have all been absent once, and I really don't see how we are to avoid being absent again. So we shall none of us be eligible for examination," she concluded cheerfully. "However, we shall have the knowledge, and that is worth more than any amount of certificates isn't it?"—"Punch."

Three Victims of Fashion.

In the attic there met a hoop-skirt, a bustle and a corset.

"Good morning, friends," said the corset, who was a new arrival.

The others saluted graciously.

"It has been a long time since I saw you," said the corset to the bustle.

"Yes," answered the bustle. "They told me to go 'way back and sit down quite a while ago."

"And I," murmured the hoop-skirt. "I once had my day of usefulness, and I must say I enjoyed life while I was in society."

"I understand," commented the corset, "that you whooped things up considerably."

"Indeed I did," answered the hoop-skirt with a flutter of pride. "If I do say it myself, they all had to make room for me."

"But at last," observed the bustle, a trifle maliciously, "you had to go in order to make room for them."

"True," retorted the hoop-skirt; "but you had to go——"

"Excuse me," interrupted the corset sadly, "but it does us no good to indulge in this recrimination. I remember when first I attained popularity. It was said then that I had come to stay."

The three were mingling their tears, when Dame Fashion groped her way through the attic to them.

"Here they are!" she cried. "Just what I want for next season."—"Judge."

The Kid—Papa, what did Lot do when his wife was turned into salt? Pa—He started looking for a fresh one, I've no doubt.

SILVER SPRAY WAS RIDDLED

20 Shots From Canadian Cutter Petrel Struck Fishing Boat.

One Went Through the Smoke Stack and Into the Pilot House—Capt. Schau Escaped One of Them by the Skin of His Teeth—Yankee Captain Will Report His Side of the Case to Washington Authorities.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 13.—The Silver Spray, a fishing boat owned here, came into port yesterday afternoon in a badly shattered condition due to an encounter in mid-lake about noon with the Canadian revenue cutter Petrel. For years the Canadian authorities have nad trouble with American fishermen poaching on the Canadian side of the lake.

About noon, the Petrel came upon the Silver Spray on the Canadian side, and at once ordered Captain Chris Schau to stop. The Petrel is a strong steel craft, and, it is said, attempted to ram the American boat before she could comply with the order. Captain Schau, remembering the fate of several other boats from this side, which had been captured and confiscated, attempted to escape and started ahead at full speed.

Opened Fire With All Guns.

The captain of the Petrel opened fire with all the guns she had on board and before he ceased firing some 20 shots had struck the American vessel. One passed through the smoke stack into the pilot house in which Schau stood and two others struck the pilot house. One came within a few inches of the captain.

That no one was killed is considered wonderful as shots entered the cabin and various parts of the boat.

The American Escapes.

The chase continued until the Silver Spray crossed the line into American waters, when the Petrel gave up the pursuit. The cold water pump on the American boat refused to work for a time and Captain Schau was in despair for a time before he reached the line.

The Silver Spray is a double-decker and was for 12 years at Buffalo as a pleasure steamer.

Capt. Shau's Excuse.

Captain Schau will report the affair to the American State Department at Washington, as he says he was only looking for some of the nets which had drifted from this side towards the Canadian shore.

A large number of American fishing tugs have been confiscated by the Canadian Government. One, however, belonging to Dunkirk, was a few weeks ago ordered returned.

FIERCE CYCLONE.

Swept District West of Town of Rockland Ontario, Shattering Buildings and Injuring Four People Severely.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—A terrific cyclone swept the district one mile west of the town of Rockland at 3.30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, carrying destruction and injury in its wake. Four persons were seriously injured, and sixty houses, barns and outbuildings were shattered, and in some cases carried completely away. Animals were killed in the fields, and great trees that have stood for centuries were uprooted or mowed down and hurled through the air. Much damage was done to crops. The storm gave no warning, nor was there any time for escape. At 3.20 the sky was clear. Then in less time than it takes to tell it a vast whirlwind cloud swept down the south shore of the Ottawa River.

Injuries and Damages.

So far as has been ascertained, the injured are Mrs. Oliver Deguire, Oliver Deguire, aged seven; Harry Deguire, aged four; Miss McCullough, Cumberland.

A summary of the damage to property shows:—Houses destroyed, five; barns and stables destroyed, sixteen; granaries, four; cattle sheds and outbuildings, twenty-four; other structures destroyed, thirteen.

Value of buildings and contents destroyed, $15,000; machinery and vehicles destroyed, $5,000. The crop damage is impossible to estimate, nor can a correct estimate be made of the loss of valuable woods, and nursing live stock.

CHANGES IN ASSESSMENT.

Principal Business of the Ontario Municipal Association at Guelph.

Guelph, Aug. 13.—The first thing the Ontario Municipal Association did yesterday upon opening the meeting was to draft a resolution protesting against the passing of the Toronto and Hamilton Bill.

The delegates from Niagara Falls, Brantford, London and Ottawa all spoke in favor of the resolution, and Mayor Cant of Galt said the streets of his city were being used as freight yards by the railway companies, and it was high time something was done to prevent inroads upon the people's rights.

Mr. F. R. Mutton of Hamilton gave a long address upon the changes it is proposed to suggest in the new Assessment act. It is upon the Assessment Act that most of the time of the convention will be spent. The act was introduced last session, but was afterwards withdrawn to go to the Municipal Committee, which will meet this fall.

The Assessment Commission which drafted the bill, or upon whose report it was drafted, abolished the personalty tax, and substituted therefor a business tax and a house tax, the latter being a supplementary income tax, applicable to rental income.

Stable and Horse Burned.

Owen Sound, Aug. 13.—A stable, owned by W. A. Grier, Mayor of Owen Sound, was damaged by fire yesterday. A valuable horse was cremated. The loss is estimated at $600.

DROWNED IN STONY LAKE.

James Woodruff of Brantford and John Bigelow of Hastings the Victims.

Peterboro, Aug. 13.—Two drowning accidents occurred Tuesday at Stony Lake. The first occurred about 7 o'clock in the evening, and the victim was James Woodruff of Brantford. He had been employed about the lakes as a guide, and while conducting Mr. Stock, a traveler for Labatt's Brewery, across the lake, the canoe capsized and Mr. Woodruff was drowned. Mr. Stock clung to the canoe till assistance arrived. Woodruff's body was recovered at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

The second accident occurred at Burleigh Rapids, where John Bigelow of Hastings lost his life at 10.30 o'clock. He was employed on Rathbun's drive and fell from a log on which he was standing into the water, which was running swiftly, and, being unable to swim, was drowned. His body was recovered in 40 minutes, but all efforts to restore life were useless.

Sarnia, Aug. 13.—The twentieth annual conclave of the Sovereign Grand Priory of Canada, Knights Templar, opened a two-day session yesterday morning. The attendance is the largest in the history of this order in Canada and the fine weather made the features of the day most enjoyable.

FEAR HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

Thirty Fatalities Among Seamen Have Already Been Reported.

At Port Antonio Only Six Houses Are Left Standing—Thousands of Peasantry Left Homeless, and Now Wandering About Seeking For Food and Shelter—Banana Plantations in Ruins—Property Loss Estimated at $10,000,000.

Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 12.—(Delayed in transit.)—The hurricane, only the fringe of which struck the western end of Jamaica yesterday, and which it was thought had passed, instead of proceeding to the northwest, veered to the south early this morning and struck Jamaica with its full force, inflicting damage which it will take years to repair. Owing to the interruption of telegraph communication it is impossible as yet to estimate the amount of the losses, but they must reach millions of dollars. Every banana plantation in the eastern half of the island has been devastated. The situation in the western half is unknown.

Only Six Houses Standing.

Later.—The effects of the hurricane upon the Island of Jamaica, were greater than at first believed. At Port Antonio only six houses were left standing. The United Fruit Company's wharves, offices, hotel and plantations were demolished. Five of the company's steamers including the Simon Dumois, Alfred Dumois and Brighton, were driven ashore, but are lying in easy positions.

Fear Heavy Loss of Life.

It is feared that the loss of life has been heavy, 30 fatalities having already been reported, principally among seamen. The entire eastern end of the island has been devastated. Villages have been wiped out and public buildings and churches demolished. Thousands of the peasantry, rendered homeless and destitute, are wandering about seeking food and shelter.

Banana Plantations in Ruins.

The destruction of the banana plantations has been complete and the fruit trade is paralyzed for the next 12 months. Hundreds of prosperous fruit growers have been brought to bankruptcy and ruin.

The western end of the island, which it was at first thought had escaped, also suffered considerably.

Wrecks on the Shore.

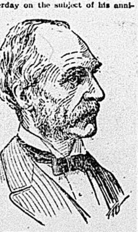
The Norwegian steamer Salvator di Giorgio was driven ashore at Annotta Bay and lies in a dangerous position. Several sailing vessels were wrecked on the north side. It is still stormy and threatening and there are fears that there may be a renewal of the storm. Torrential rains have increased the misery of the poor and homeless. Thousands of houses were damaged, and the wharves were battered and several coasting vessels were sunk in the harbor. Trade is practically at a standstill.

Carried Out to Sea and Drowned.

The southeastern portion of the island has been completely denuded of its crops, the rivers are flooded and many men were carried out to sea and drowned. It is estimated that the death list will reach 50. Hundreds of persons were injured and there were numerous hairbreadth escapes. The property loss is estimated at $10,000,000.

Goldwin Smith's Birthday.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—Dr. Goldwin Smith is 80 years old to-day. His health is fine, and, as he chatted yesterday on the subject of his anniversary, he said he never felt better. He is very busily engaged in his literary work—English history—which he expects to publish shortly.



PROF. GOLDWIN SMITH.

The interest that is manifested in the illustrious sage of the Grange abroad is evidenced by different influential dailies wiring their Toronto correspondents last night to telegraph them stories of several thousand words concerning Goldwin Smith's birthday anniversary.

King Travels Incognito.

London, Aug. 13.—King Edward sailed yesterday for Flushing, whence His Majesty will go to Marienbad to take the waters for a fortnight. He will travel incognito as Duke of Lancaster until Aug. 31, when he will proceed to Vienna to pay his accession visit to Emperor Francis Joseph.

Boy Fell Off Steamer's Deck.

Barrie, Aug. 13.—Jas. Kennedy, the 13-year-old son of Alex. Kennedy, blacksmith, Barrie, was drowned at Big Bay Point Tuesday night. While he was standing on the stern deck of the steamer Myrtle the boat gave a lurch in the heavy sea, throwing the boy into the water.

ELECTRICAL COMMISSION.

Appointed to Investigate the Power Question Under Act of Last Session—Sixteen Municipalities Interested.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—Sixteen municipalities were represented at the City Hall yesterday when the joint committee, appointed at the conference in Berlin, met to decide upon the appointment of a commission to go into the matter of cost of developing and transmitting power for the municipality from Niagara or other objective point.

Among those present and the towns and cities they represented were: John R. Eden, Mayor, Berlin; Samuel J. Cherry, Preston; J. 3. Klotz, Preston; Lieut.-Col. Gartshore, Mayor Beck and Ald. Minhinnock of London; Mayor Heppner and Geo. McLagen, Stratford; Ald. Patterson and R. McGregor, Galt; W. J. Mills, W. J. Berry, Ingersoll; E. W. B. Snider, St. Jacobs; J. C. Haight, Mayor Bean, Waterloo; Mayor Maxwell, St. Thomas; R. S. Graham, St. Mary's; Ald. Brewster, Ald. Whitham, Brantford; P. W. Ellis, Ald. Spence, Controller Burns and Engineer Rust of Toronto.

Purpose of the Meeting.

Under the act passed at the last session of the Legislature the municipalities were empowered to meet together when proposing to go into the power business, and the first step was to appoint a commission of three, with a fourth member as an electrical expert and this commission was to go fully into the matter of cost of developing and transmitting electric energy for power and light purposes throughout the province, but particularly that portion of it lying between Toronto and London.

The duties of this commission, by the terms of the act, are: to investigate the different propositions before the municipalities, the probable cost of developing power at Niagara, the cost of transmitting it to the cities, towns and villages, and all the cost of plants, etc.

When they ascertained the above the result must be submitted to the people to vote upon, and if carried by them the chief justice of the province shall appoint a commission of not less than three nor more than five members, and this commission shall then control the power scheme, though not at all under the control of the municipalities who pay for the development, transmission, etc.

It was for the purpose of electing this first commission that the committee met yesterday. These gentlemen were selected as the first commission: E. W. B. Snider, St. Jacobs, Ont.; P. W. Ellis, Toronto; Adam Beck, London and W. F. Cockshutt, Brantford.

A resolution was then adopted unanimously ratifying the selection, and the addition of such electrical engineer as the committee may choose to act with them.

TURKS DESTROY EKSHISU.

Village 28 Miles South of Monastir Bombarded—Massacre of Christians Is Now Considered Inevitable.

Salonica, Aug. 13.—It is reported that the Turkish troops on Monday bombarded and destroyed the Village of Ekshisu, 28 miles south of Monastir. According to another rumor the insurgents who have occupied Krushevo, after repulsing two assaults by the Turkish troops, offered a conditional surrender. Instructions were asked from Constantinople, and in reply the Turkish commander received orders to give no quarter.

Massacre of Christians Inevitable.

The whole Bulgarian Government takes a decidedly pessimistic view of the situation, and the officials openly express their fears that a general massacre of the Christians in Macedonia is inevitable. Meanwhile the Government continues to maintain its peaceful attitude, but it believes that a sudden development of affairs across the border may at any moment render the authorities powerless to prevent war. The reports from Bulgarian official agents in Macedonian show that affairs are rapidly growing worse. The fact that the Mussulman population is becoming excited and congregating in the Mosques is regarded as a bad feature, indicating the possibility that a massacre may occur within a very short time.

Turkey Is Blamed.

The officials here blame Turkey for the present sudden outbreak, attributing it largely to the action of the Porte in instituting a search for arms in the villages. The Macedonian leaders, finding that their followers were being deprived of guns and ammunition, decided to rise immediately. The Bulgarian Government is said to be particularly displeased with Turkey's action, because it had urged the Porte to leave the villages in peace, believing that this would result in staving off the trouble till next year, as the insurgents seemed to entertain hope that the powers would soon intervene.

TWO FOR AND TWO AGAINST

Progress of the Debate on the Grand Trunk Pacific Bargain.

Messrs. Monk and Barker Score the Government—Quebec Conservative Leader Strongly Endorses Proposal For Complete Government Ownership and Operation of Line to Lake Superior—Hon. Clifford Sifton Will Continue Debate.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—Two Government supporters and two Oppositionists measured strength in the debate on the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme yesterday. Hon. W. S. Fielding and Mr. John Charlton energetically supported the bargain with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co. Mr. F. D. Monk and Mr. Samuel Barker of Hamilton just as energetically condemned it.

As an argument Mr. Fielding's speech can hardly be contrasted with the speech of Hon. A. G. Blair. The same may be said of Mr. Charlton's effort to defend the scheme. The Government following, however, was in a most receptive frame of mind. It took in every word with a keen relish and wildly applauded on the slightest provocation.

Mr. Fielding paid considerable attention to the scheme in its bearing on the Maritime Provinces. What the political effects of the two speeches in the lower provinces will be it is difficult to forecast. Mr. Blair undoubtedly had the better of the argument, but the antidote which Mr. Fielding offered in the shape of a stump speech will carry weight in certain quarters.

Mr. F. D. Monk made a strong, forceful speech. He advocated the principle of Government ownership with unmistakable fervor and offered as an alternative of the G. T. P. scheme the extension of the Intercolonial Railway westward to Georgian Bay. It looks very much as if this will be the line that the Opposition will follow.

When Mr. R. L. Borden speaks he is expected to go even farther than Mr. Monk in declaring for the principle of Government ownership, and its application to conditions which are said to demand a new transcontinental railway.

Many Liberal members freely admit that the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme can be most effectively opposed by the presentation of a counter policy in the form of public ownership. They have felt all along that the Opposition would not adopt this progressive policy, but it now looks as if they have been indulging in false hopes.

Mr. Barker spoke until nearly midnight. His practical knowledge of railways enabled him to make a most able and effective criticism of the scheme as a whole and of clauses which the Government has asked the House to believe are ironclad in the protection they afford to the public.

Mr. Charlton's speech exhausted the morning sitting and consumed no small portion of the afternoon sitting of the House. In the afternoon he dwelt on the advantages of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway scheme as against the bargain made with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

Hon. Mr. Sifton has the floor this morning.

Yachts Racing For Canada's Cup Have Now Two Races Each.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—Irondequoit, the challenger from Rochester, won the fourth of the series for the Canada Cup yesterday, beating R. C. Y. C.'s defender Strathcona 1 min. 18 secs., in a varying wind that changed at least a quarter round the compass during the race. Strathcona was beaten in her own weather and to Irondequoit belongs all the credit. The deciding race, triangular course of 21 miles, will be sailed to-day.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

Big Crowd and Fine Addresses at the Liberal-Conservative Picnic at Hanlon's Island, Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—From all over they came—the east, the west and the north—the stalwart rank and file of the Conservative party, to listen to and associate with the leaders of their party and with its representatives in both the provincial and Federal arenas. They came singly and in groups, from various towns and ridings, and they go home to regale their friends and co-workers in their local struggles with the story of a day that will long live in the memories of those who attended. Ten thousand people at least thronged the oval at Hanlan's Point, and while considerable and general disappointment was felt at the absence of Mr. R. L. Borden, still the knowledge that he was busily and sternly engaged in fighting at Ottawa for those principles which the traditions and future of the Conservative party render dear to the hearts of its loyal adherents in a measure atoned for his enforced absence.

Mr. Whitney and a host of M.P.P.'s and M.P.'s nobly represented the official strength of the party, while the presence of Hon. R. P. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba, was enthusiastically welcomed, and so, too, that of Hon. Messrs. Pelletier and Hackett as representing the Province of Quebec.

Banquet a Cordial Affair.

The opening event was a large and enthusiastic reception at the Queen's Hotel by J. P. Whitney, Hon. R. P. Roblin, Hon. L. P. Pelletier, and Hon. M. F. Hackett. Here a great handshaking and exchange of ideas took place between the committee mentioned and numerous M.P.'s and M.P.P.'s and many other party lights from all over the Dominion.

After this the local members held a similar social reception at the King Edward, where many others who had not been able to speak to the committee at the Queen's were greeted in a thoroughly cordial manner, and where the old and young partisans enjoyed a good talk on the great matters of interest to their party.

At 1 o'clock editors of Conservative papers in the province, who received invitations, provincial and Dominion members, and members of the local committee sat down to a banquet at McConkey's.

At the Island.

The oval was appropriately decorated with mottoes. Mr. E. F. Clarke conveyed Mr. Borden's regrets that press of business in the House prevented his presence.

Speeches were then delivered by Mr. J. P. Whitney, leader of the Ontario Opposition; Hon. L. P. Pelletier of Quebec; Hon. Rufus Pope, Hon. R. P. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba; Mr. F. [illegible] R. Gamey, M.P.P., Hon. M. F. Hackett of Quebec, Col. Sam. [illegible] A. Dunlop, North Renfrew; E. King Dodds, Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, M.P.P., Dr. Reaume, M.P.P., and others.

The massed bands played the National Anthem, and there were cheers upon cheers to the leaders as the crowd wended their way to the boats and the city.

POPE IS BETTER.

But His Physicians Order Abstention From All Work.

Rome, Aug. 13.—The Pope yesterday morning left his apartments for the first time since his fainting fit Tuesday, going for a drive and walk in the Vatican garden. He remained in the open air about two hours, and returned to the palace feeling much better. All that remains of Tuesday's collapse is a slight feeling of lightness in the head.

Drs. Lapponi and Davenzie visited the Pope yesterday, and, though they found him almost entirely recovered, they continued to recommend that he should take a rest and an abstention from all work. "But this will mean such an accumulation of work that it will kill me afterwards to catch up with it," said the Pope in reply.

SUBSIDIES OR TARIFF—WHICH MOST SERVICEABLE?

The Canadian Trade Review of August 7, contains the following highly pertinent article:

The Government has decided to grant subsidies to certain iron and steel goods manufactured in Canada the raw materials of which are, to a large extent, the produce of Canada. Stated briefly these goods are, iron or steel rods for converting into wire, plates of a prescribed thickness, and structural steel articles. It has also decided to extend the time during which subsidies will be paid on pig iron made in Canada from Canadian ores, and steel billets made from iron smelted in Canada. The Finance Minister states, that no time limit would be fixed during which the new grants on manufactured iron and steel would be paid. In doing this he made an indefinite allusion to possible changes in the tariff. The most natural meaning of which allusion is, that the tariff may be changed so as to protect our native iron and steel industries.

The question is thus raised as to, whether grants in aid of production or duties to protect the goods produced are most serviceable in promoting and maintaining industries? So far as the principle of protection is involved grants in aid of production are more essentially objectionable on Free Trade principles then import duties. Whatever amount is paid in subsidies to manufacturers of iron and steel is taken directly from the public revenue. Such subsidies are paid at the cost of the tax-payers, and they are intended to prevent the consumers of the classes of goods subsidized from importing them at lower prices than they could be produced here without subsidies. There is no possibility of such grants being paid at the cost of any persons but the people of Canada.

On the other hand, if the same classes of products were protected by adequate import duties the burden of these duties might, and in most cases would fall upon the foreign exporter. A subsidy is, practically, a direct tax levied on the whole people to assist capitalists in carrying on a profitable enterprise, whereas duties on imports are paid, in many cases, by foreign manufacturers for the privilege of doing business in our markets.

An essential condition for a manufacturing industry to permanently prosper is, the continuance of those fiscal conditions which led to its establishment. For some years a factory or mill may be worked at a loss, the foundations are being laid on which the business has to be built. To meet this vital necessity a tariff is being adopted, as it is a very rare event for duties on a manufactured product to be reduced, and rarer still for them to be abolished. But subsidies are only temporary, they are given on a sliding scale, so that, in a short term, they will cease to be paid.

To erect costly works, instal expensive plant, engage in the expense of organizing a large business, on the strength of subsidies granted for a few years is a risky proceeding; it handicaps capital by making its basis to be of a temporary nature. Subsidies are based on no economic principle, they are essentially experimental, and they may impose a most unjust charge upon the revenue, for, if the enterprise to which they are given proves inheritently profitable, then the grants in aid are superfluous, they are a gratuity to capitalists by whom they are needed. If too the enterprises so helped prove a failure the public money paid to the proprietor has been wasted.

On the other hand protective duties are based on an economic principle, the principle that it is desirable for a country to guard its industries from attack by foreign rivals. We trust therefore that the Government will take the wise course of placing all iron and steel manufactures under the protection of such duties as will cause their development and permanent maintenance.

Say, you Grits, what do you think of Hon. Mr. Blair's characterization of Laurier's railway scheme? "A sheer, unjustifiable squandering of public money," he calls it. And Hon. Mr. Blair, it may well be noted, is in a position to know more about Canada's railway necessities than any other man in the Dominion.

But have not the Laurierites been unjustifially squandering public money for the past seven years? To be sure they have, Everybody knows it.

A TOUCHING APPEAL.

(Kingston Whig.)

What's the matter, girls, that you don't answer the matrimonial advertisement appearing in the Whig? There is no catch about it, you have the word of a charming man in a neighboring town for that. Don't be slow, sweethearts. Remember there are about eight girls to every young man in Kingston, at least so reported. So far few answers have been received, and this is harrowing to anxious, tender feelings.

The Yankee yacht's new skipper is named Hanna. Judging from his recent actions there is nothing the matter with Hanna.

TALK ABOUT GALL!

(Hamilton Spectator.)

Goldwin Smith sits away up on the top of his pedestal of self-righteousness and patronisingly remarks: "The election of the Pope seems to have been creditably conducted." Talk about gall!

• • •

The Ottawa Citizen thinks the young man who fired on the U.S. flag at Trenton should not have been fined, because "American newspaper will blazon the occurrence with big headings as an evidence 'Old Glory' that the strong arm of how Canadians so love and respect 'Old Glory' that the strong arm of the law reaches out instanter to punish anybody who shoots holes in it, and that Canadians are just aching for the time when they can call that flag their own. That is the thanks we will get for being decent."

• • •

It is a pity that the incident occurred, but, as it did occur, it may as well be used to point its own moral, which seems to be that Canadian vessels, when in Canadian waters, should be satisfied with the British flag, which, either in beauty or glorious tradition, takes second place for none. U.S. vessels, when here on a visit, of course, have the legal and moral right to fly their own flag, and it will never be molested in these waters, or any other waters in Canada. Canadians are neither chumps nor churls, but it will be time enough for Canadian vessel owners to run up "Old Glory" on their flag poles when our neighbors across the line show a willingness to reciprocate, something they decidedly do not at present.

IT IS A PERPLEXING THING.

We are making an immense display of hot weather clothing and furnishings.—Quick & Robertson.

STYLE IN TYPEWRITING.

Points by Which Each Operator's Work May Be Identified.

It will come as a surprise to many people to know that there is a great deal of character in typewriting. Were half a dozen operators to use the same machine, paper and actual words, each printing off a dozen sheets, and were all these to be mixed up indiscriminately, a practiced eye could distinguish each operator's work instantly.

In a recent law case, where a lengthy typewritten document of many sheets was in question, it was alleged that one of the papers included had been substituted for another sheet. Although to a casual eye all the sheets seemed to be the work of one hand, experts showed that the spacing was quite different, especially between the end of one sentence and the beginning of another, and on the substituted sheet the new paragraphs began in quite a different position on the lines, and the letters were shaky instead of upright and firm, and the punctuation—the crucial test—was wholly different.

The experts were unable to trace the person who had done the bogus typewriting, but they agreed that it was a young woman and only a beginner at typewriting; that she was nervous, not very strong, and that her education was only moderately good.

The writer of the other sheets comprising the document was defined, from the evenness, correctness and firmness of the typewriting, to be an experienced operator.

The greatest homage we can pay to truth is to use it.

Duty faithfully performed crowns the hours with flowers.

CONCERNING CORRECT SPEECH.

By William F. Lampton in The Reader for August.

Oh why should the spirit
Of Grammar be proud
With such a wide margin
Of language allowed?
Of course there's a limit—
"I knowed" and "I've saw,"
"I seen" and "I done it,"
Are rather too raw;
But then there are others
No better than they
One hears in the talking
He hears every day.
"Where at?" asks one person,
Quite thoughtless. And; "Who,"
Asks another, "did Mary Give that bonnet to?"
Hear a maid as she twitters:
"Oh, yes, I went out
With she and her fellow
In his runabout."
And hear a man saying:
"Between you and I,
That block of Pacific
Would make a good buy."
And this from a mother,
Too kind, to her boy:
"I had rather you shouldn't
Do things to annoy."
And this from a student,
Concerning a show,
Who says to the maiden:
"Let's you and I go."
There's lots of good people,
That's talking like that,
Who should learn from we critics
To know where they're at.

More Glasses Are Worn

Now-a-days than ever before. No doubt of it. People used to think that the wearing of glasses should be put off as long as possible—that it was an old age necessity only.

We know more now. We apply every known agency for the relief and care of eye sickness — and there are in use to-day methods which weren't heard of even ten years ago.

Now we commence to right eye sight just as soon as it commences to go wrong. Now school children by the hundreds use glasses. And it's wise and proper.

BOWSER GETS MAD

He Tries to Make His Wife Believe That May Apples Grow on Trees and, as Usual, Is Worsted

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

"BY George," exclaimed Mr. Bowser as he sat smoking and reading one evening in May, "but when I read such items as this I wonder if the writer is a fool or a lunatic!"

"What is it?" naturally asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Why, it says that a little girl in Ohio who was gathering May apples in the woods put her hand on a snake and went into fits and died of fright."

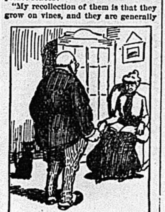
"Well?"

"Well, in the first place, May apples do not grow in the woods, and in the next the snakes of the United States do not climb trees. If the girl was after the fruit she was up a tree, and if she had a fit she would have fallen. It is a wonder that such asinine items are allowed in print."

"Did you ever see May apples growing on trees?" quietly asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Where else did I ever see them growing? Of course they grow on trees. Do you imagine they roost on picket fences?"

"My recollection of them is that they grow on vines, and they are generally found in old pastures or clearings in the forest. The little girl spoken of was probably on her knees on the ground."



"WOMAN, HAVE I BECOME A DRIVELING IDIOT?"

"Your recollections don't amount to putty. I was gathering May apples before you were born. They grow on trees, and you will generally find three or four trees together. Didn't I fall out of a May apple tree when I was twelve years old and break my leg?"

Mrs. Bowser should have dropped the subject right there and let Mr. Bowser go on hugging his delusion, but she didn't. She was impolite enough to say:

"My dear, you are thinking of thorn apples or crab apples or something else. May apples certainly grow on vines, something like strawberry vines. I gathered them a hundred times as a girl."

"Thorn apples! Crab apples!" shouted Mr. Bowser as he rose to his feet with his face growing red. "Woman, have I become a driveling idiot? Don't I know enough to go out to the gate and back? In one hour I can show you a hundred trees loaded with May apples, but you wouldn't know 'em from coconnuts or pumpkins."

The family cat purred and the family clock ticked, and there was an interval of suspense. Then Mrs. Bowser said:

"Perhaps I am mistaken; so let us say no more about it. Did you see about the oilcloth for the kitchen table today?"

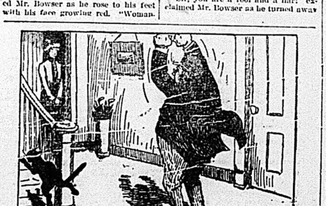
"Don't try to oilcloth me," he sulkily retorted. "You have made certain statements here. I want you to prove them or apologize. I may be in my dotage, and perhaps I don't know a washing machine from a bobtailed dog, but I am going to have this May apple question settled before I sleep. Do they grow on vines or trees?"

"What do we care where they grow? They are nothing to us."

"They are everything to us, and I care if you don't. I want an answer to my question."

"Let it go tonight."

"Never! I want to know whether I am the biggest jackass in America or still have some sense in my head. Is it vines or trees?"



"WELL, DEAR, DID YOU BRING ME HOME SOME SAND TO POUND?"

Mrs. Bowser had walked into the trap and must take the consequences, but when driven to it she replied that May apples grew on vines, and she could prove it.

"Now let me tell you something," said Mr. Bowser after a long glare at her. "One of us doesn't know enough to pound sand. If it turns out to be me then I'll go to the idiot asylum tomorrow."

"But where are you going now?" she asked as he started down the hall.

"To investigate matters. If it becomes necessary I'll go ten miles into the country and pull up a May apple tree by the roots and bring it back to show you."

Mr. Bowser's family butcher came from the country and has always continued in touch with it, and it was likely that he knew all about May apples. When questioned on the subject in a careless way he replied:

"May apples? Why, my dear man, every six-year-old child in the country knows what they are."

"How tall are the trees they grow on?" cautiously asked Mr. Bowser.

"How tall are the trees pumpkins and squashes grow on?" laughed the butcher. "You are not foolish enough to think that May apples grow on trees, I hope. You meant vines, didn't you?"

"No, sir. I meant trees. I know they grow on trees."

"Then mandrakes and leeks must grow in your hat. You are on a false trail and had better give it up. Might ask the plumber, though. He owns a farm yet, I believe."

Mr. Bowser asked the plumber whether he had any May apple trees on his farm, and the man of solder looked at him in a curious way and replied:

"No, not any. If I had I should present them to a museum. When May apples take to growing on trees I shall expect to see corn growing on vines. You'd better go out into the country for a day and look around."

Mr. Bowser was not satisfied. In his mind's eye he could see bushels and bushels of May apples growing on dozens and dozens of trees as he walked in the direction of his family drug store. He could almost taste the fruit as he entered.

"Well, Bowser, what's up?" was the greeting of the druggist.

"Nothing much. Didn't you used to live on a farm?"

"I did, my boy, and I wish I was back there."

"You must know what May apples are?"

"As well as I know what grass is."

"And what does a May apple tree look like?"

The druggist laughed a long, loud horse laugh and then sobered up and said:

"Better go home and call a doctor, old man."

"Why?"

"Because you've got 'em, and got 'em bad. You'll be seeing rats before morning."

"Sir, you are a fool and a liar!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser as he turned away and started for home, with his ears twitching.

He tried to open the front door so softly that Mrs. Bowser couldn't hear him, but as he closed it she stood in the door of the sitting room and asked:

"Well, dear, did you bring me home some sand to pound?"

He waved his arms about his head, but did not answer.

"And have you got to start for the idiot asylum in the morning?"

He choked and gasped and gurgled, but as the words would not come he dodged into the library and locked the door.

Discontent.

I knew a fellow once that had a horse
That trotted at a very merry clip.
But he was very sad at heart because
He had no whip.

I knew a fellow once that found a whip,
But he was not content with it, of course,
For after that he wished and wished and wished
He had a horse!

Now, if the two had met and made a swap
Each would have got the thing he so desired,
But neither would have been quite satisfied—
Which makes me tired!

The Antiquity of Hospitals.

Many centuries before the Christian era there existed in India and Ceylon institutions which performed the functions of hospitals (Real-Encyclopadie, Eulenburg). They were built and maintained by the Buddhists. In the Scripture there is a mention of what the Hebrews called Bethesda, but this was nothing more than a few rude huts in the neighborhood of a mineral spring supposed to have healing properties. According to Lecky ("History of European Morals"), the first hospital was founded by a Roman lady named Fabiola, about the fourth century, at Rome. Soon after another hospital was founded by St. Pammachus, and another by St. Basil at Cæsarea. During the crusades numerous hospitals arose in all parts of Europe. San Spiritu, built by Innocent III., was erected in 1204 at Rome. The first hospital in England was built by Lanfranc, archbishop of Canterbury, in 1080. The first hospital of any size erected in America was the Pennsylvania hospital in Philadelphia, begun in 1751 by Dr. Bond and Benjamin Franklin.

The Emperor and the Mandarin.

The favorite horse of the Chinese emperor Tsi having died through negligence on the part of the master of the horse, the emperor in his rage would have run that functionary through with his sword. Mandarin Yentsi, however, parried the blow, saying:

"Sire, this man is not yet convicted of the crime for which he deserves to die."

"Well, then, tell him what it is."

"Listen, you scoundrel," said the minister, "to an enumeration of the crimes which you have committed. First, you have allowed a horse to perish which the emperor has intrusted to your safe keeping. Moreover, it is owing to you that our sovereign became so exasperated that he was on the point of killing you with his own hand. Lastly, it is your fault that he was about to disgrace himself in the eyes of everybody by killing a man for a horse."

"Let him go," interrupted the emperor, who understood the lesson. "I pardon him."

Horses of Celebrated Men.

It is generally known that Napoleon's white stallion, the horse he rode at Waterloo, was named Marengo and that Wellington's charger in the same battle was Copenhagen. The latter lived to be twenty-seven years old. The remains of Marengo are preserved in the Museum of the United Services, London. Do you remember the names of any of George Washington's horses? In nearly all of the Washington statues the Father of His Country is represented as on horseback, but what is the name of the animal he bestrides? Richard III. owned White Surrey, and it was for that splendid animal that he cried when he shouted, "My kingdom for a horse!" William III.'s favorite horse, Sorrel, had one eye. Savoy, the black horse of Charles VIII. of France, also had only one eye.

When Carlyle Pinched His Wife.

A volume by the late Anthony Froude, the historian, tells this story of Carlyle and his wife, who lived on notoriously bad terms, the latter dying first: "Carlyle found a remembrance in her diary of the blue marks which in a fit of passion he had once inflicted on her arms. As soon as he could collect himself he put together a memoir of her, in which with deliberate courage he inserted the incriminating passages of her diary, the note of the blue marks among them, and he added an injunction of his own that, however stern and tragic that record might be, it was never to be destroyed."

One Cause of Deafness.

"Deafness is often caused by the violence with which people blow their noses," said a New York specialist in eye and ear diseases. "There is an intimate relation between the aural and nasal passages. You sometimes feel it when you are bathing and get your nose full of water. Then you will find more deafness in localities where the residents are subject to catarrh. In the straining attendant on blowing the nose persons stretch the eardrum. Sometimes they burst the membrane. I have handled many cases of this sort, where deafness came suddenly after a heavy cold in the head."

Making Up.

"Miss Ethel is a long time coming down," said the youth to the servant after waiting some time for the young lady's appearance. "Perhaps," he added, with a laugh, "perhaps she is making up her mind whether to see me or not."

"No," said the servant, with an icy smile; "it is not her mind she is making up."

A Change of Name.

Boothby—What are you thinking about, Ethel?

Miss Warringford—About our wedding. I wanted to ask a favor of you.

Boothby—Anything, dearest.

Miss Warringford—Well, I don't want to change my name to Mrs. Henry Boothby. I want you to change yours to Mr. Ethel Warringford.

Thinner Then.

Barber—Hair's very thin, sir.

Customer—It was thinner than that thirty years ago.

"Indeed; sir, you surprise me! Why, you don't look more than thirty now, sir."

"Thirty yesterday."

Favorable Indication.

"Miss Charmington says she is very fond of animals," remarked Biggens' sister.

"Perhaps there's hopes for me, then," said Biggens. "She called me a brute the other day."

Laziness travels so slowly that poverty soon overtakes him.—Franklin.

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it; many without a trace of that hereditary disease have drifted into a consumptive's grave by neglecting what was only a slight cold. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup before it was too late, their lives would have been saved. Mr. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writes: "I think Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the best preparation on the market for coughs and severe colds. About six years ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and for three months I had a cough. I had a physician attending me, but gradually grew worse until I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hopes of being cured, when I was induced to try Bickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I was completely cured. I always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, and disordered stomach.

AT DEATH'S DOOR.—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen,—My medical adviser and others told me I could not possibly live when I commenced to use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. My case was one of the worst of its kind. For three years I could not eat meat and my weight decreased from 219 to 119 lbs. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking the Vegetable Discovery consisted of milk. I am now entirely cured and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery since it cured me, as I am well-known and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I could not possibly be cured. They are eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life as I never expected to recover when first I commenced using it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as a certain cure for Dyspepsia.

Much talk, many lies.

The Flagging Energies Revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These come from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare powder, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression, and reviving the flagging energies.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

HAD LA GRIPPE.—Mr. A. Nickerson, farmer, Dutton, writes: "Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back and hip that used to catch me whenever I tried to climb a fence. This lasted for about two months, when I bought a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and used it both internally and externally, morning and evening, for three days, at the expiration of which time I was completely cured."

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed 'Perfection.'

TIMELY TOPICS

In his evidence published to-day Mr. J. M. Hurley acknowledges that he filled out blank affidavits and sent them out to his enumerators to be signed. They put in what they thought proper and sent them back, and then Mr. Hurley forwarded the jurats to Ottawa and the Government paid the claims. And those statements were supposed to be made UNDER OATH. People can draw their own conclusions of Mr. Hurley's fitness for the position and the way he performed his duty.

Happy a man may pass his life
If he's directed by his wife;
If free from matrimonial chains
He's sure to suffer for his pains.

No tongue is able to unfold
The virtues in woman you behold;
The falsehoods that in woman dwell
Are almost imperceptible.

In woman's heart you'll see appear
Truth, darling of a heart sincere;
Hypocrisy, deceit and pride,
In women never can abide.

Destruction take the men I say,
Who no regard to woman pay;
Who make the women their delight,
Keep always reason in their sight.

"Nothing particularly clever in that." One might hear some disgruntled old bachelor exclaim. Well let him read the verses in another way and see how he likes them; read lines one and three, then two and four, and so on through the poem, and no doubt he will be satisfied.

Some Warm Conversation from St. Catharines.

There is not much love lost between Brantford and St. Catherines, judging by some remarks which appear in the Star of the latter place. It may well be asked, however, if the national game can survive in Brantford if there is any truth in the St. Cats paper's allegations: "The Athletics are out of the C.L.A. championship race this year, but certainly it is not because the winners are a better team. It was not good lacrosse playing that landed the championship this year, but downright brutality and Hooliganism. Brantford has an aggregation of sluggers, who have no more right to be called sportsmen than have the bettle-browed, bull-necked, ignorant masses of muscle and brutality yclept prize fighters. Raked from all quarters of the Dominion, maintained in direct defiance of the C.L.A. rules, and in violation of every principle of fair, honest, manly sport, they are a standing menace to amateur athletics in this province. Yesterday they proved that, when they are face to face with the possibility of defeat they will display all the attributes of the enraged canine, and will stop at no degree of unmanliness in their efforts to win.

Athletics are Champions of Group 12.

The Peterboro Athletics yesterday afternoon beat the T.A.S. of that town by 10 to 4, thus winning the championship of group 12 in the C.L. A. and going into the semi-finals.

A horse attached to a delivery wagon of a sewing machine company became frightened near the market and ran up Front street and turned up Bridge street. In front of the Quinte the conveyance upset and this caused the horse to fall, when it was held, although it endeavored hard to get away. The harness was slightly damaged.

HAY FEVER UNKNOWN.

Certain it is, and many years of careful experience are back of the statement, that hay fever, and kindred annoying and troublesome summer affections distressing to so many thousands all over the country, recurring as regularly as July and August, are absolutely unknown in the "Highlands of Ontario." Thousands of people go to Muskoka, Georgian Bay or the Lake of Bays every year for nothing else but to avoid hay fever, and find perfect immunity from the ailment, and many by going there regularly for a period of a few years are said to be permanently cured.

SENATOR COCHRANE DEAD.

Pioneer in Canadian Stock Breeders Industry Passes Away.

Montreal, Aug. 13.—Hon. Senator Cochrane died yesterday afternoon at his home in Hillhurst, Compton County, after a lengthy illness. The deceased was a celebrated agriculturist and cattle breeder.

Sketch of His Career.

Hon. Matthew Henry Cochrane was one of the largest importers and breeders of high-class cattle in this country. In early life Mr. Cochrane was in the leather business in Boston, but returning to Canada in 1854 he started the business known as Cochrane, Cassils & Co., boot and shoe manufacturers.

It is as a breeder of good cattle that he was best known to this country, however. He was the pioneer in the stock raising industry of Canada. His one object was to secure the best specimens of shorthorn cattle money could buy, and in this aim he purchased the famous cow, "Rosedale," which animal had not her peer in England. From Rosedale was secured a calf which brought the neat sum of $3,500. The next year Mr. Cochrane paid 1,000 guineas for another cow, "Duchess 97th," the highest price ever paid for a female shorthorn. It was estimated that Mr. Cochrane in 1870 alone paid as much as $60,000 for breeders in England, bringing them to this country for stock purposes.

Mr. Cochrane was appointed to the Senate in 1872 by the Earl of Dufferin. A Conservative in politics he was also a life long member of the Church of England.

TESTING THE MILK SUPPLY

The following is the result of an official examination of the milk supply of Belleville, conducted under the direction of the Medical Health Officer.

The result cannot be said to be altogether satisfactory, for while the test showed several samples to be excellent milk, and to contain considerably above the average amount of butter fat yet the majority were below, or just average in quality:

The Bartender's Revenge.

Since the bar is a necessary evil—to some folk—and is an institution of the state, being licensed, reference to it occasionally must be excused. There are some very clever men behind the bar, and once in awhile a gentleman. Tab is usually kept on him by the metal cash register. He feels that he is watched at all hours by a maze of patented machinery. If he steals a check of 15 cents he is caught, you may say. Not at all! The other day in a fashionable resort the proprietor, big and pompous, "called down" one of his men before some customers. As to the question of right or wrong I say nothing. But presently, when Signor Pomposity turned his back, the bar man emptied a full bottle of the finest whisky into the washing trough under the bar. It was worth at least $1.50. That was his way of getting even. I am informed that it is the usual way of resenting an insult from the proprietor. The mere stealing of 15 cents is a small matter when the bar man is to be trusted with thousands of dollars' worth of liquors. If a man is not to be trusted with change how is he to be trusted with liquors?

Grammar and Writing.

One day Julian Hawthorne was complimenting a certain writer on his wonderful facility in his handling of words and in his construction of sentences. "You are a master of phrases," said the novelist, with a twinkle, and then added:

"How do you do it, anyhow?"

"I don't know," replied the writer. "You see, I have forgotten all that I ever learned at school except that the preposition governs the objective case. To save my life I couldn't tell you the difference between the present tense and a predicate. I write by ear and don't know any more about grammar than a cockroach knows about painting roses on jugs."

"That's all right, my boy, that's all right," said Hawthorne dryly. "No man who's a purist and a master of style ever knows anything about grammar."

How Bright Joined Cobden.

John Bright's account of how he and Richard Cobden came to join forces against the corn laws early in the last century is as follows: "I was in the depths of grief, I might also say of despair, for the light and sunshine of my house had been extinguished. All that was left on earth of my life and of a too brief happiness was lying still and cold in the chamber above us. Mr. Cobden called upon me, and, having expressed words of condolence, said: 'There are thousands of houses in England at this moment where wives, mothers and children are dying of hunger. Now, when the first paroxysm of your grief is past I would advise you to come with me and we will never rest till the corn law is repealed.' The offer was accepted and the work was done."

A Queer Floating Island.

There is a floating island in Derwentwater, England, not far from Lodore falls. Its travelers are restricted to alternations between the bottom of the lake and the surface. When moved to retirement it sinks and remains in watery seclusion for periods which vary from a few months to as long as seven or eight years. Its existence above or below water appears to be determined by the presence within the island of gases whose quantity governs its buoyancy. Esthwaite lake, in the same neighborhood, boasts a not less puzzling but more amenable island. This has served as a ferryboat to conduct as many as fifteen persons at a time across the bosom of the water upon which it rides.

A Literary Record.

Sir Edward Russell's record in the way of literary work was his article on Matthew Arnold on the day that great man died. Sir Edward had exclusive information of the event, which happened on a Sunday. He did not get to work until half past 7 in the evening, and it was necessary for him to catch a train at 9 o'clock. By dint of dictating to his secretary and writing himself, he got through a biographical article of a column and a half and a two column leader within one hour and twenty minutes. Such a feat has never been excelled.

Scotland Insulted.

A highland waiter once refused to serve Max O'Rell at dinner, and when reproved explained: "It's no' to be expected that a self respecting Scotsman could serve him with ceeveelity. Didn't he say we took to the kilt because our feet were too large to get through trousers?"

Where the Work Came In.

D'Auber—I only got $25 for that painting.

Friend—Well, you didn't put much work on it.

D'Auber—What! I guess you never saw me trying to sell it.

Plainly Evident.

"Bridget," queried Mrs. Scribble, "do you know why I am called a literary woman?"

Breaking Him In.

Anxious Mamma—Why do you keep George waiting so long when he calls?

Pretty Daughter—I want to get him used to it by the time we are married.

A Cheerful Outlook.

Guest—Here, waiter. Has my bill been made out yet?

Waiter—No, not yet. The proprietor says that his ideas seem to come very slowly today.

Quick & Robertson's for Fine Clothes

There's no use of disputing the fact that this store stands pre-eminent in this city as the store for Men's Fine Clothes.

With our large and pleasing varieties, up-to-date styles, and good making, we've won the trade of every man, and especially the trade of those men who are particular about the clothes they wear.

And why shouldn't we? You can't find a store that has, Ready-Made, such exclusive styles in suitings and summer garments as we are showing and everyone of them is from the best British and Canadian Mills.

Then, too, every garment is built to come up to the our high standard—built by the best makers who know how and do give close attention to important parts of tailoring—such as adjusting the collars, shaping the shoulders, proper placing of the sleeves and stays and making of the button holes.

Clothes made this way never lose their shape. And by so doing we have overcome that appearance which markes clothes as being Ready-Made.

The prices for such goodness you'd expect to be high but they are not—are no more than you would pay for ordinary sorts elsewhere.

TWEED.

About 1.30 on Thursday night last the fire alarm was sounded for a fire in rear of the Town Hall, in the scale building. When the firemen arrived the flames had spread over the building, and in half an hour it was in ashes. The house and barn of S. B. Rollins had a close call. The origin is supposed to be incendiary. The burned building belonged to the corporation of the Township of Hungerford.

The Village Council have passed an early closing by-law, to come into force next week.

Q.—Where the declaration was taken, in such a way that the fact that you found your own signature under the date of the 7th of June, that it does not satisfy you that you were there, that it may be taken anywhere, although the declaration has on its face your own signature, showing it to have been taken on the 7th of June, at that place? A.—I do not remember about the circumstances—

Q.—The point I want you to get at is whether the sworn affidavits and declarations coming in before you, would you sign any with a wrong date? A.—I would not if I knew I was doing it.

Q.—Then it is down here, so that you must have been in Deseronto on the 7th of June, although you have not charged for it. Perhaps this is one of the trips you made to see about the manufactures? A.—Well, I had been down there about that time, but I do not remember the circumstances.

Q.—I am not asking about the circumstances. I find your signature there to the jurat taken in Deseronto on the 7th of June; will you say you must have been there on that date owing to the fact that your name is signed to the jurat? A.—Perhaps I might, and he may perhaps have come to see me at Belleville; they were all looking after their pay.

Q.—The fact that you have it in your jurat, that it was taken at Deseronto, does not satisfy you that you were there? A.—I do not remember.

Q.—You might have taken it, and signed it, although you were not in Deseronto at all? A.—Yes.

By Mr. McKinnon.

Q.—I think this should be shown to the witness, if he is being asked questions about the document, it should be shown to him.

(Document handed to witness).

By Mr. Northrup.

Q.—Well, Mr. Hurley, let us get along; does that suggest anything to you? A.—I do not know that it does, these forms were all filled out—

Q.—So that you might have been so careless that you might have signed the jurat, as being taken at Deseronto, although you were not there? A.—I may have been there, and it may have been done there; I do not remember the circumstances.

Q.—You notice that "Deseronto" is in your own handwriting? A.—I filled that out.

Q.—You would hardly have filled it out on the 7th of June if you had not been there? A.—I do not know, I might have filled it out the evening before I went down, or I might have filled it out in Belleville in order to have it all ready. It was for Deseronto and I may have filled it out in that way and whenever I caught the men I got their signatures.

Q.—So you filled them up and got them signed wherever you could catch the men? Perhaps you were in Belleville that day, for I see you took another one in Belleville on the same date, that of Mr. Robert Tufts, jr. A.—Perhaps I may have been in there, I used to do a good deal of the work at home, and perhaps I got them all filled up at the same time without signature.

Q.—Will you kindly look at this, Mr. Hurley? It is the declaration of Mr. Tufts, and see if it was not signed in Belleville on the 7th of June, 1901. It is also in your own handwriting. That is correct, is it not? A.—Yes.

Q.—That is your own handwriting? A.—Yes, I filled that in.

Q.—And you sent in these false jurats, they are really false jurats, they are not correct, are they? A.—I do not consider them false.

Q.—You did not swear one in Deseronto, and the other in Belleville on the same day, did you? A.—I do not know. I might have done so.

Q.—Please turn over a couple of pages and you will find that you signed one for Mr. Robert Allen, of Marlbank, on the same day? A.—I think I made these forms out at home and might have made it that day.

Q.—So that the dates in the jurat do not give us any evidence of the date they were taken? A.—Not being a professional man, I did not think it made much difference.

Q.—Is it not a fact that these men may not have made them before you, that you signed them when you received them? A.—I may have done that.

Q.—You may have done that. You may have filled up the affidavits and declarations and sent them out to the men and they signed them, they sent them back, and when you get them back you filled in the jurats and sent them down to Ottawa, and these are the accounts the Government paid? A.—Yes, it may be so.

Q.—As a matter of fact, when the Government thought they were getting sworn statements, they were not sworn statements, but merely statements prepared to be sworn. Is not that a fact? A.—Perhaps it is. I know all the enumerators.

LARGE CROWD SAW EXCELLENT RACES

Yesterday Afternoon, Some of the Finishes Being Close and Exciting.

Local Horse Made Gallant Fight for Victory in the 2.20 Class.

The races yesterday afternoon on the Driving Park furnished excellent sport for a large crowd, who thoroughly enjoyed the various events. The Wednesday afternoon holiday, no doubt, helped to swell the attendance, but then Belleville people as a rule love a good horse race, and there were some finishes yesterday close enough to make a fellow stand up and shout for his favorite. The ladies, of course, were out in force. It was a well-behaved crowd, and there were no untoward incidents. Mr. Smith, the starter, showed himself to be the right man in the right place, and when he put his foot down it didn't take the drivers long to decide that it was up to them to quit jockeying and get into line. The track was fairly good, in some places excellent; the weather ideal, the cigars not bad enough to kill a man if he didn't get too close to them, and the conditions generally such as were fitted to give lovers of sport their money's worth.

It was a quarter past two when Mr. Smith rang his dinner bell for the first event, namely, the 2.50 class, for which there were four entries, namely, Modeskey, J. H. Allen, Picton; Lady Hamburg, Ashley Stock Farm; Symbol, T. H. B. Purdy; and Keepabelle, Dr. Johnson, Peterboro. The horses scored eight times without a start and then the starter took off his overcoat and addressed a few remarks to the drivers, which appeared to do them good, for they came up in line next time and got off well together. Modeskey, the Picton mare, seemed to have the heels of her field, and led all the way, beating Lady Hamburg by about 20 yards, the rest being strung out.

In the second heat the drivers again incurred the starter's wrath by their eagerness to get the best of the start, till at last he said something about $10 fines and talked to them like a Dutch uncle. They started at the next score. Lady Hamburg got rather the best of the start, and led the first time round. Then Modeskey began to crawl up and they kept close together. Coming into the stretch on the last time round Lady Hamburg was a length in the lead. Modeskey's driver put the "bud" on and the Picton mare came up fast, passing Lady Hamburg and winning the heat by half a length. It was an exciting finish.

When the horses came out for the third heat the judges told Gerow, who drove Lady Hamburg, that he would be excused, and put up Mr. James Timlin behind the Lady. For the first time round it was a great race between Modeskey and Lady Hamburg. When about half the second round had been covered Modeskey drew away and won under a pull by about ten yards. Summary:

2.50 Class—Purse $150.

Modeskey	1	1	1
Lady Hamburg	2	2	2
Symbol	4	3	3
Keepabelle	3	4	4

Time, 2.30, 2.30, 2.29 1-4.

The best race of the day was undoubtedly the 2.20 class, for which there were also four entries, namely, Billy G., b.g., Geo. I. Thomas, Belleville; Gypsy Girl, gr.m., A. Martin, Toronto; Matt., b.g., Geo. Barnum, Madoc; and Lord Russell, jr., b.h., Geo. W. Bell, Kingston. By consent the distance rule was waived in this race. After several false starts they were off with Billy G. in the lead. The Belleville horse, trotting like a picture, led all through the heat, with Gypsy Girl sticking closer than a brother. The rest were nowhere. Coming into the stretch the grey mare was ten yards behind. Fifty yards from the wire she made a great sprint and came up to the local horse hand over hand. They passed under the wire side by side, while the crowd cheered heartily. It was a hair-raising finish and looked like a dead heat, but the judges decided that Mr. Thomas' horse had won by a nose.

The second heat was a fine race for the first time round, Billy G. making the pace and the grey mare close up. Just as they started the second round the grey broke badly. When she came down again the bay gelding was too far away to be caught. This heat went to Mr. Thomas' horse by about 20 yards.

It now looked like straight heats for the son of Douglas Harold, but those who had noted the grey mare's sprint in the first heat were not yet laying very long odds against her. The third heat was a repetition of the others in everything but the finish. Billy G. got the worst of the start, but went to the front and made the pace all the way till an eighth of a mile from home, when the grey challenged and passed him, winning by a length after as nice a heat as one would care to see trotted.

In the fourth heat the local horse again got the worst of the start, Gipsy Girl led all the way, with Billy G. close up. A quarter of a mile from home the local horse made his effort, and for a couple of hundred yards they trotted like a team. Then, hard luck, Mr. Thomas' horse broke badly and spoiled his chances, the grey mare winning by ten yards under a pull.

When the horses scored for the fifth heat there was a new driver behind Billy G., but it did no good. The Toronto mare led all the way. In the back stretch, the second time round, the game little bay horse did his prettiest to pass Gypsy Girl, but he was tired and didn't have the goods. The grey flyer pulled away and won easily by about 10 yards. Summary:

2.20 Class—Purse $175.

Gypsy Girl	2	2	1	1	1
Billy G.	1	1	2	2	2
Matt.	3	3	3	3	3
Lord Russell, jr.	4	4	4	4	4

Time, 2.23, 2.23, 2.22 1-2, 2.24 1-2, 2.27.

The half-mile run, in heats, 2 in 3, brought out a field of six starters, namely, Lamontagne, ch.g., G. F. Slosson, York; Glesseg, bl.m., Alex. Murray, Hamilton; Demanton, ch.g., Thos. Herreman, Ogdensburg; Logan Laudeman, b.g., C. Bolander, Goderich; Rotha, b.m., P. S. Burrel, Toronto; and Lovina, fox m., S. Conley, Kingston. This event was made somewhat tiresome by the fact that the starter had apparently very little control over the jockeys, who, in their anxiety to get the best of the start, kept dancing round for a good half hour before they were sent away, and, as it was, Lovina was left at the post. The nags were all fairly speedy, and the first three finished in a bunch, with all the whips going. Lamontagne won, it being a close thing between Glesseg and Rotha for second place.

Lamontagne and Glesseg now having won a heat apiece, the judges decided that they could fight it out for first and second money. They got a good start, but at the first turn Lamontagne crowded Glesseg into the rails badly. However, on they went side by side, running like a team, till half the distance had been covered, and then, slowly but surely, the chestnut with the French name began to draw away. The little black mare was game, but she didn't have the speed with her, and Lamontagne won by two lengths. We were told by one of the judges that, had Glesseg's jockey protested he would have been given the heat and race, on account of the crowding at the turn, but, however, he didn't, and the York gelding was given first money. Summary:

Lamontagne	1	5	1
Glesseg	2	1	2
Demonton	4	2
Rotha	3	3
Logan Laudeman	5	4
Lovina	6	6

Time, 52 1-4, 50 1-2, 51 1-2.

The officials were:

Starter—Frank G. Smith, of Buffalo.

Starter for Running race—Matt. Williams, of Cobourg.

Timers—W. D. Chisholm and Jas. O'Neil.

Notes of the Races.

The grand stand was only sparsely filled.

There were some handsome rigs on the grounds.

Very few farmers were present. Too busy harvesting.

The band, which was advertised to be present, was conspicuous by its absence.

Mr. Allen, of Picton, was in the stand to see his mare, Modeskey, win her first race.

The little coon jockey was a favorite with the ladies, but he didn't get inside the money.

"Oh, I hope Hully Gee will win," said a lady in the grand stand, when Mr. Thomas' horse was fighting it out with Gypsy Girl.

"Stop acting like schoolboys," said Starter Smith to the drivers in the 50 class," and go up there and score like gentlemen." And they did.

LAMP EXPLODED.

BLAZE ON BROWN STREET LAST NIGHT GAVE BRIGADE SOME WORK.

Through the explosion of a lamp at a few minutes before 9 o'clock last night, a rough-cast house, situated on Brown street, off Station street, was considerably damaged before the blaze was extinguished. The building is occupied by Mr. Black, a G.T.R. fireman, and is owned by Mr. Patrick Ryan. The Fire Brigade were soon upon the scene when the alarm was given and succeeded in confining the flames to the rear portion of the premises. Considerable damage was done to the contents by water and smoke, but the loss to both building and furniture is covered by insurance.

LACTATED FOOD

Identical in Effect to Mothers Milk.

Sugar of milk being the basis of Lactated Food, the effect of the food in young infants is identical with mother's milk. It can be used in alternate feedings with mother's milk, when the latter is deficient, without the slightest disturbance.

Lactated Food has the very valuable quality of correcting irritability of the stomach and bowels, and overcoming constipation. It far surpasses all other foods in the most essential points. No mother should fail to use Lactated Food if unable to give her infant a full and regular supply of breast milk. All druggists sell Lactated Food.

SLOWLY DYING FROM CATARRH.

Thousands are in this terrible condition, but don't realize their danger. If you have the slightest taint of catarrh would it not be wise to commence Catarrhozone treatment now and be perfectly cured in a short time? This pleasant remedy cures without the use of drugs, atomizers or snuffs. You inhale the medicated vapor which spreads to all parts of the breathing organs, kills the germs and heals the inflamed surfaces. Catarrhozone clears the throat and nose instantly, and never fails to cure the most obstinate catarrhal, lung and throat troubles. A trial will demonstrate the value of Catarrhozone, which sells for $1.00, small size 25c, at druggists or Pelson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

The great advantage to local investors in placing their business with the Metropolitan consists in the fact that they have contracts with this strong financial institution itself, instead of with a local broker; thereby eliminating entirely the risk which may be involved in the question of a local broker's financial strength. Each commitment exists upon its individual merit, and cannot be affected by the short comings of the holders of other contracts nor even of the local manager. The local manager is the servant of this exchange, and the exchange is bound by his acts; consequently, the investor having the evidence that he has paid to a given point, his commitment is good to that point no matter what happens; and this is a valuable consideration—more so than most people imagine.

Eat It and Forget It

It is worth while to be able to eat a suitable amount of food and then forget that you have eaten it. Those who suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia are never able to do this.

Food sours, ferments, or gives distress in many cases for hours after eating. This is a condition which we believe to be unnecessary and are willing to guarantee Carter's Dyspepsia Cure to cure all forms of indigestion, no matter whether the case be an acute or chronic one. This remedy has been tried by hundreds of people in this locality and has given universal satisfaction. Price, 50c a bottle.

Accept Lord's Amendments.

London, Aug. 13.—The House of Commons yesterday accepted all the amendments of the Irish Land Bill, adopted by the House of Lords, except two, which are of an unimportant nature. It is believed that the Lords will accept the bill in its present form.

A committee was appointed to meet a committee of Lords with regard to these amendments, with which the House of Commons disagreed.

Let Dead Past Bury Its Dead.

Cape Town, Aug. 13.—Princess Radziwill, who was sentenced to two years' imprisonment on April 30, 1902, for forgery in connection with notes purporting to have been endorsed by the late Cecil Rhodes, has been liberated from prison and has started for England.

Hot Weather Beauty

The fresh bloom and beauty which is so attractive in women—the beauty of perfect health—falls an easy victim to the enervating heat of summer. The roses fade and a sickly pallor takes its place: nervous headaches leave dark shadows beneath the eyes: the eyes themselves lose their sparkle and lustre: rashes and blotches destroy the fine texture of the skin and almost without warning beauty has fled.

These troubles are but outward manifestations of the effect of hot weather upon the digestive system. With perfect digestion beauty can defy the heat.

"Nerves" lassitude, loss of appetite and the hundred and one troubles that make hot weather almost unbearable are unknown to the person with a sound digestion.

IRON-OX

Tiny Tonic Tablets

With them you can defy the heat, escape rashes and blotches, retain your appetite, preserve the roses in your cheeks, or make them bloom where they never bloomed before.

Iron-Ox Tiny Tablets are the best tonic for women and children. Best because they are dainty and gentle. Not a harsh purgative but a safe tonic-laxative. Pleasant to take—very certain in their effect.

Fifty Iron-ox Tablets, in an attractive aluminum pocket case, 25 cents at druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price. The Iron-ox Remedy Co., Limited, Walkerville, Ont.

MADNESS IN COLORS.

TINTS THAT WILL TURN THE BRAIN AND INVITE DEATH.

Purple Is the Most Lethal of All Hues, and Scarlet Is Nearly as Bad. Blue Will Stimulate the Brain, but It Will Wreck the Nerves.

If purple walls and red tinted windows surrounded you for a month, with no color but purple around you, by the end of that time you would be a madman. No matter how strong the brain might be, it would not stand the strain, and it is doubtful if you would ever recover your reason, for purple is the most dangerous color there is in its effects on the brain, which it reaches by way of the nerves of the eye.

A splash or two of any other color in the room would save your reason for some time longer, but dead purple would kill you eventually as surely as would foul air. Scarlet is as bad, but scarlet has a different effect. It produces what is called homicidal mania—a madness that drives its victim to kill his fellows, especially his nearest relatives. Even on animals scarlet has this effect. It will drive a bull or a tiger to charge a naked spear. But purple, on the contrary, brings on melancholy or suicidal mania.

Blue, as long as there is no trace of red in it, stimulates the brain and helps it, but its effect on your nerves, if you are saturated with it and cannot get away from it, is terrible. Scientists class blue as a kind of drug in its effects on the brain.

It excites the imagination and gives a craving for music and stagecraft, but it has a reaction that wrecks the nerves. If you doubt it stare hard for a few minutes at a large sheet of bright blue paper or cloth—not flowers, for there is a good deal of green in their blue—and you will find that it will make your eyes ache and give you a restless, uneasy feeling.

Green, on the other hand, is the king of colors, and no amount of it can do any harm. On the contrary, it soothes the whole system and preserves the eyesight. If you were shut up in an artificial green light for a month it would develop your eyesight immensely, but it would be fatal, because when you returned to the world you would be utterly unable to stand ordinary lights and colors and you would certainly contract ophthalmia, or possibly destroy the optic nerve altogether unless you were very mindful to take great care.

Most people imagine the sky in clear weather to be blue. It is really white tinged with green. It is only the distance and clearness which make it seem blue.

Green is so soothing that it makes a big difference in the length of an illness, helping the system to fight the disease, and nearly all hospital wards have every possible detail about them colored green. Sage green is the most soothing tint of all; metallic green, however, is by no means so good.

Solitary confinement in a yellow cell for six weeks will hopelessly weaken any system and produce chronic hysteria. A long course of it will produce foolish lunacy, and even on a guinea pig or a rabbit will drive the animal at last to bite and wound itself or reduce it to such a state of nervousness that it will die of sheer fright if suddenly startled.

On the other hand, if you are not smothered with it yellow is the healthiest, cheeriest color there is, and will make a dark room bright and habitable when even green would be cold and depressing. But to be well "soused" with yellow day and night, and to be unable to get away from it, would bring you to nervous madness within two months at the outside.

Sheer dead white, unbroken, will destroy your eyesight as surely as cataract would if you are exposed to it for a few days—a week at the latest. It kills the optic nerves, and the sight goes out like a candle, while the effect on the brain is so maddening that blindness is almost a relief.

This is why arctic explorers have to wear colored "goggles" of green tinted glass; otherwise "snow blindness," as it is called, and which is really "white blindness," is almost a certainty. Even in the polar regions, though, the white is not complete. The sky breaks it. If it did not no man could keep his eyesight there without glasses.

Not Serious.

"How is your brother the poet?"

"He has just undergone an operation. You would hardly recognize him; he is so altered."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; he has had an epidermatoid growth removed from his head."

"Poor fellow! Was it anything very serious?"

"Not at all. He has only had his hair cut."

SIFTON SIFTS THE DETAILS

But Fails to Grasp Magnitude of G.T.P. Railway Scheme.

Hon. John Haggart Says the Government's Scheme Is the Maddest Project Ever Thought of by a Government—Former Minister of Railways Makes an Effective Speech in the House—Hon. Mr. Emmerson on Trial.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—The debate on the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme yesterday was really a battle between Hon. Clifford Sifton and Hon. John Haggart. Mr. Sifton spoke for five hours, exhausting the whole of the morning and afternoon sittings of the House. It was not a forceful speech, nor did it begin to measure up with the argument advanced by Mr. Fielding and Mr. Charlton. It was length without breadth. The Minister of the Interior went into every nook and corner of the contract, defending a detail here and a detail there. Perhaps this was the duty to which Mr. Sifton was assigned; at any rate he signally failed to show a comprehensive grasp of the question.

Mr. John Haggart made an effective speech. He covered a wide field of argument and mercilessly assailed that part of the scheme which provides for the paralleling of the I. C. R. "It meant," he said, "virtual abandonment of that portion of the Intercolonial Railway between Levis and Moncton. Not only would a road upon which $70,000,000 had been spent be destroyed, but property all along the Intercolonial would be rendered less valuable. It is the maddest scheme that ever entered into the mind of a Government." He ventured the opinion that when the Government obtained accurate surveys it would never construct and never think of constructing a road between Levis and Moncton.

Mr. Fielding had estimated that it would cost nearly fifty million to construct the railway from Moncton to Winnipeg. Mr. Fielding's calculation that the interest upon this for seven years, and perhaps for three years longer, could be provided for by an immediate payment of some thirteen million dollars, passed Mr. Haggart's calculation. As a matter of fact, the scheme would add 125 million dollars to the debt of the country, if the line were to be made a first-class one. What could we do with that money? We could have the Grand Trunk built by its own proposed plan to Fort Simpson; we could have our waterways developed to a depth of 20 feet to Montreal; we could have the Georgian Bay Canal built, and we could have the St. Lawrence between Montreal and Quebec put in first-class condition. That was the true transportation scheme. The Georgian Bay would enable wheat to be carried from Port Arthur to Montreal for 5 cents per bushel, and it was low rates that demanded the route.

Mr. Haggart had doubts of the guarantee of the Grand Trunk Railway Company would be so valuable as the Government estimated. The Grand Trunk owed the Government a debt of fifty million dollars now, and if we could not collect that preference what reliance was to be put on the promise of the Grand Trunk?

In conclusion he said he trusted when the Government came to know the facts that they would not allow such a gigantic expenditure for so utterly useless a purpose.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson of West Moreland, the prospective successor of Hon. A. G. Blair in the Cabinet, was put on trial last night. He had barely launched upon his argument, which dealt with the New Brunswick end of the line, when he moved the adjournment of the debate. He will have the floor when the House meets to-morrow morning, and it may be safely stated that upon the success or failure of his efforts hangs the fate of his ambitions to become a Cabinet Minister.

German Navy Recruits.

Before the House adjourned Dr. Sproule called attention to a report published in a Montreal paper to the effect that young German residents of Montreal were recruiting on the German warship Gazelle, which is now in the St. Lawrence.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that he could not give definite information. He was informed, however, that no recruiting was going on for the German navy. The fact appeared to be that a number of free German subjects who are in Canada temporarily and such liable to conscription, were taking advantage of the visit of the Gazelle to Montreal to pass the necessary examination and thus become exempt from service so long as they remain in Canada. The Premier said this information had been conveyed to him yesterday and he proposed to make further enquiries.

Toronto, Aug. 14.—Sydney White, the law firm office boy, was sentenced to two years in the Reformatory at Penetanguishene for the theft of $8,000 from his employers.

HEAD-ON COLLISION ON C.P.R.

Two Men Killed About Six Miles From Sharbot Lake.

Engineer Patrick Halloran of Smith's Falls Was Cut Completely in Two—Brakeman James Forsyth of Havelock Also a Victim—Operator Is Said to Have Failed to Deliver to the Conductor Order of Train Despatches.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—Going full speed two C. P. R. freight trains crashed together in a head-on collision about 2 o'clock yesterday morning at a point between Mountain Grove and Arden, about six miles from Sharbot Lake.

The dead are: Engineer Patrick Halloran of Smith's Falls; Brakeman James Forsythe of Havelock.

The scene of the accident is on the Ontario and Quebec division of the road. It was about half-past one when the accident happened, and it appeared that a freight train made up at Smith's Falls, was proceeding west and got orders to cross an eastbound freight at a siding near Arden. An operator at one of the stations failed to deliver to the freight conductor the order of the train despatcher as to the crossing, and the westbound train went through, the engineers unconscious of the impending fatality.

Two or three others were slightly injured. The engineer Halloran's body was cut in two.

Train Went Through a Bridge.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 14.—The engine, mail car and baggage car of the Texas Express on the Rock Island, went through a bridge across Hendrick's Creek, near Alma, yesterday, killing Fireman Leggett and seriously injuring Engineer McSteen. A cloudburst had filled the creek and weakened the bridge.

Roasted in Furnace Pit.

New York, Aug. 14.—John Crawford, a laborer living at Paterson, N. J., met a horrible death Wednesday afternoon at the Passaic Steel Works. He was working in the pit when the man in charge of the furnace tapped it for the purpose of discharging the slag before filling the retort. The presence of Crawford in the pit was unknown to the furnace man until his screams caused by the stream of molten metal pouring upon him attracted their attention. The hole was plugged immediately, but by that time Crawford was dead. His body was dragged from the pit with a rope.

TRIED TO SWIM ASHORE.

Bank Clerk Percy Hespeler Goes Down in Lake Rosseau.

Waterloo, Aug. 14.—The sad intelligence of the drowning fatality near Maplehurst on Lake Rosseau on Wednesday of Percy Hespeler, only son of Jacob Hespeler, manager of the Molsons Bank, Waterloo, has cast a gloom over the town.

The young man attempted to sail a canoe in a strong wind, and when quite a distance from the shore the canoe upset. Percy struck out to swim ashore, and though a good swimmer evidently underestimated the distance and sank before help could reach him.

Deceased was a bright and very popular young man, 22 years of age, and was on the staff of the Bank of Montreal at Fort William, Ont. He came east to spend his vacation with his parents, who were spending a few weeks at Maplehurst, Muskoka.

Mother and Child Drowned.

Winnipeg, Aug. 14.—Word has just been received of a sad drowning accident at Edmonton Lake, whereby Mrs. F. Allen and child, late of Toronto, lost their lives by the upsetting of a rowboat.

Died From Scalds.

Stratford, Aug. 14.—While Mrs. Jacob Koenig of Newton was washing, her little son, Conrad, a lad of three years of age, fell into a pail of boiling water and was so severely scalded about the back and hips that he died next day. He was an only child.

Fell Down a Hoist.

Brantford, Ont., Aug. 14.—Yesterday afternoon, a man named Martin, working at the erection of the Cockshutt new buildings, fell through a hoist hole to the ground, a distance of about 15 feet, breaking his arm and received a severe shaking up.

KING PETER MAY ABDICATE.

Is Virtually Prisoner in Hands of Military Party.

London, Aug. 14.—The Daily Telegraph prints a despatch from Vienna which says that there is an unconfirmed report that King Peter of Servia has threatened to abdicate, as he is virtually a prisoner in the hands of the military party.

Grand Priory Officers.

Sarnia, Aug. 14.—Brockville secured the next assembly of the Sovereign Grand Priory of Canada, Knights Templar, yesterday morning. Senator William Gibson of Hamilton was elected Supreme Grand Master, and J. B. Tressider of Montreal was made Deputy Grand Master. The other officers elected were: Grand Chancellor, W. H. Whyte, Montreal; Grand Chaplain, A. W. Richardson, Kingston; Grand Constable, R. W. Kerr, Sarnia; Grand Marshall, Alexander Ames, Sherbrooke; Grand Treasurer, C. S. Hallman, Hamilton; Grand Registrar, W. Bligh, Toronto.

Lord Salisbury Is Ill.

London, Aug. 14.—Lord Salisbury is seriously indisposed, according to information received direct from his family at Hatfield House. The late Premier is greatly exhausted, and physicians are in attendance. There is no immediate danger, although his condition is critical.

AWAITS ROYAL ASSENT.

The Irish Land Bill Passed by the House of Lords.

London, Aug. 14.—The House of Lords yesterday agreed to the Irish Land Bill in the form finally approved by the House of Commons. The latter House Wednesday accepted all the amendments save two unimportant ones added to the bill by the Lords. The measure now only awaits the royal assent to become law.

Delegates Arrive in Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 14.—The great congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire seems more real from day to day, and yesterday afternoon some 80 delegates landed from the Canada. If Lord Strathcona be in the city in time, he will likely welcome the delegates to Canada when they gather at the Board of Trade on Sunday morning. There will be two sessions each day the congress lasts.

Want Col. Lynch Released.

London, Aug. 14.—A petition to the King, asking for the release of Colonel Arthur Lynch, the predecessor of Mr. C. R. Devlin as member for Galway, who was convicted of treason in having served with the Boers during the South African war, is being largely signed in Ireland and elsewhere. It is supported by Mr. C. R. Devlin, and the other Nationalist members of Parliament.

Servian Ministry Resigns.

London, Aug. 14.—A despatch to The Central News from Vienna says the entire Servian Ministry has resigned in consequence of the differences in the personal relations between the army officers, who participated in the assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga, and those who took no part in the murders.

ONLY TWENTY TURKS ESCAPE

Bulgarian Insurgents Massacre Inhabitants of Kenarti.

Salonica Civil and Military Authorities Wire Constantinople That a General Insurrection Is Expected to Occur on August 14 (To-day)—Reply Was to Arm 2,000 Mussulmans For Services in Salonica.

Salonica, Aug. 14.—It is reported that the Bulgarian insurgents have massacred the inhabitants of the large Turkish village of Kenarti, near Monastir. Only twenty escaped.

The civil and military authorities at Salonica wired to Constantinople Aug. 11, stating that a general insurrection was expected for Aug. 14, and disclaiming all responsibility unless they were reinforced. Constantinople replied, ordering the enrollment immediately of two thousand exclusively Mussulman gendarmes for service in Salonica, showing that the insurrection is spreading eastward.

Four thousand troops are bombarding Krushevo, which is in the hands of the insurgents.

Trustworthy information from Chegani in the district of Florina says that the Turks have decided to murder the Austrian Consul. It is stated that the French and Italian Consuls in Monastir are in danger of their lives from Turkish troops. Fighting is proceeding at Chernareka, near Gumenje.

THE VENEZUELAN DISPUTE.

Lord Spencer Says Arbitration Is Expected—Shanghai Reform Journalists Will Not Be Given Up.

London, Aug. 14.—Answering various questions on foreign affairs raised by Lord Spencer, the Liberal leader, in the House of Lords yesterday, Foreign Secretary Lansdowne, said there was reason to hope that the difficulties in the way of a settlement of the claims against Venezuela, by arbitration at The Hague, would soon be removed.

Definite instructions, he declared, had been given by the British Government, that the Chinese journalists at Shanghai should not be surrendered to Chinese justice.

The Government was watching events in the Balkans, and would utilize every opportunity of mitigating the troubles there.

Lord Spencer further called attention to the Government's agreement with the Cunard Steamship Company, which was approved by the House of Commons, and moved for a return of the statistics relating to previous subsidies.

Lord Shelbourne defended the agreement on naval and economic grounds. It kept, he said, at least one of the great trans-Atlantic lines under British control, and it had not merely a naval, but a wider national aspect.

Lord Spencer's motion was afterwards accepted.

"BATTLE ON LAKE ERIE."

Washington Officials Find No Precedent For Any Interference.

Washington, Aug. 14.—No despatches were received during yesterday by the United States State Department concerning the firing upon the fishing vessel by a Canadian revenue cutter in Lake Erie. Several officers of the department, upon reading the despatches of the occurrence, searched for precedents in such cases and found none. In the absence of advices it is believed that the case is not of such serious consequences as to make it an international complication.

Rome, Aug. 14.—The Pope was feeling quite well yesterday, took a long drive and walk in the Vatican gardens, and then received the Austrian Ambassador.

Mgr. Cagiano, the Major Domo, accompanied by Cardinals Rampolla and Mocenni, opened the apartment of Pope Leo yesterday morning, breaking the seals put on at the time of the Pontiff's death. They found a considerable amount of money, it is stated, several millions of francs, besides other valuables.

The Pope yesterday received Cardinal Satolli, who suggested Vincenzo Vannutelli for Secretary of State. Cardinal Satolli then proposed the appointment of Father Edward Fowler, secretary to Rev. J. Hardy, as a domestic prelate to the Pontiff. The Pope granted the request.

Cardinal Gibbons will come to Rome to assist at the consecration on Saturday of the Rev. J. J. Hardy as Archbishop of Manila. On Sunday the Pope will receive the new archbishop. He will receive the pallium from Cardinal Macchi on Monday.

Dr. Hart Nominated.

DISTINCT ISSUE RAISED.

Shall the Municipalities Surrender the Control Over Their Highways—Amendments to the T. & H. Bill Suggested.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—Two hours of hard fighting in the Railway Committee yesterday defined the issue involved in the Toronto and Hamilton Railway bill. That issue is: Shall the municipalities surrender the control over their highways that the B. N.A. act vested in them, or shall that control be transferred to the Dominion Parliament.

A conference was held and amendments drafted late last night. The amendments which have been proposed and which will probably be accepted, provide:

(1) That the Toronto and Hamilton Railway shall build only one line of railway into the City of Toronto.

(2) That the company shall not do any local business in the city.

(3) That it shall construct no branch lines.

(4) That it shall be liable for rentals for the use of the city's streets.

(5) That the class of cars and rate of speed shall be subject to the control of the Railway Commission.

(6) That the company shall be liable for all damages to property injuriously affected in addition to damages recoverable under the Railway Act.

(7) That the suburban railways now operating under provincial charters shall continue under the jurisdiction of the province, notwithstanding their amalgamation with the Toronto and Hamilton Railway.

The foregoing are the essential features of the amendments proposed in consideration of the passage of the bill.

ONTARIO MUNICIPAL ASSOCIATION.

Passes Important Resolutions and Elects Its Officers.

Guelph, Aug. 14.—Yesterday the Ontario Municipal Association passed a number of important resolutions, among which was one supporting the opposition to the passage of the Toronto and Hamilton bill at Ottawa, and emphasizing the rights of municipalities to the control of their own streets. Another was passed to enable municipalities to expropriate phone companies already doing business within their borders.

After Mr. James Forman, Assistant Commissioner of Property for Toronto, had delivered an address explaining the provisions and effect of the proposed new Assessment Act, the meeting passed a resolution thereanent, affirming that the bill should not be passed in its present form, but that, "in the event of the bill being passed by the Government, it be amended to provide for the taxation, being (1) upon real property; (2) by a business tax similar to what is provided in the bill, but to be applied to all trades, businesses and professions, and that the rate be increased and graded so as to be equitable between retail and wholesale dealers; (3) by an income tax upon all persons, whether engaged in business or drawing same from private or other sources, the taxation on the real property and income to be as fixed by each local municipality; (4) by a house tax, and that the proposed exemption thereon should be reduced, and the rate for determining the annual value increased; (5) that this association oppose the appointment of a commission to assess the property of railway companies and companies holding franchises, believing that this work can be done better by the local assessor; and also to oppose the section of the bill dealing with tax sales being conducted by the sheriff instead of by the treasurer as at present."

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, F J Kennedy, ex-Mayor, Guelph; first vice-president, W A Boys, Mayor, Barrie; second vice-president, W A Grier, Mayor, Owen Sound; secretary, S H Kent; Executive Committee—Mayors of Lindsay, Peterboro, St. Catharines, Brantford, Galt, Windsor and London; J Mackelcan, City Solicitor, Hamilton; R P Slater, Niagara Falls; Ald W T Hubbard, Toronto; Thos Caswell, City Solicitor, Toronto; Ald Ellis, Ottawa; D M McIntyre, City Solicitor, Kingston. The next meeting will be held the first week of Toronto Fair, 1904, in Toronto.

WILL NOT SHIRK HIS DUTY.

Lord's Day Alliance Encouraged by Answer of Premier.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—The members of the Dominion Lord's Day Alliance in session here met Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir William Mulock yesterday morning and pressed the claims for Dominion legislation to replace the quashed Ontario law. Sir Wilfrid's reply was pleasing. H said that nothing would be done this session. He said that beyond what had appeared in the papers he was not cognizant of the action of the Privy Council.

Secretary Shearer thereupon handed the Premier a copy of the judgment, which was accepted with thanks, accompanied by the promise if the Dominion Government is responsible he would not shrink his duty. The delegation seemed satisfied with the Premier's answer.

In the afternoon the Alliance officers conferred with Senator McMullen and a number of members of Parliament, including Messrs. John Charlton, Holmes, Ross, McLaren (Huntingdon) and Dr. Douglas. They discussed a proposed bill, but did not reach any definite conclusion.

SHAM AND FRAUD.

The new National Transcontinental Railway Bill introduced into Parliament by Sir Wilfrid Laurier has attached to it a schedule, being the agreement entered into by the Government with the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada providing for its construction. Among the clauses of this agreement is to be found the following:

> "37.—The company shall purchase all material and supplies required for the construction of the western division and the equipment of the whole said line of railway from Canadian producers, when the same are produced in Canada, and when such material and supplies can be purchased in desired quantities and equal qualities suitable for the purpose required and for prices and upon terms equally advantageous with those procured elsewhere."

It requires very little depth of thought to fathom the true meaning of such a clause, which in a word, is meaningless; in fact, a sham and a fraud, idiotically framed with a view to deceive and mislead.

Commenting upon this clause in the contract the Toronto Telegram sarcastically but truthfully says:

"This clause in the Grand Trunk Pacific contract will not be a perfect safeguard to the country's interest until it is supplemented by these two additional clauses:

1.—The Grand Trunk Pacific hereby covenants with the said Government that it will permit water to run down hill.

2.—The Grand Trunk Pacific hereby agrees with the said Government that it will allow the sun to rise in the east as usual.

"In the terms of plain, every-day English, the clause regarding the purchase of supplies and equipment simply binds the Grand Trunk to do exactly as it pleases. The Grand Trunk could surely be trusted to follow its own inclinations in the expenditure of the country's money without the assistance of a clause that is a fraud and a sham."

"Another clause binds the company to buy all its material for the construction of the western division and all its equipment for the whole line in Canada—when it suits the company to buy them in Canada; or in the precise words of the Act; 'when the same are produced in Canada and when such materials and supplies can be purchased in desired quantities and of equal quality suitable for the purpose required and for prices and upon terms equally advantageous with those procurable elsewhere.' Is it possible to conceive of a more deliberate fake? The company is not bound to buy one dollar's worth of material in Canada, which but for the clause it would buy elsewhere. An actual encouragement to buy material abroad is found in clause 17, which provides that: 'No addition shall be made to the cost of construction or to the capital of construction account in respect of customs duties in cases where there is direct importation of material or supplies by the Government.' The very Act which professes to compel the company to buy its supplies in Canada abolishes all customs duties on materials imported by the Government for the construction of the road.

"Never was an Act of Parliament so innocent of penalties for its infringement. Nearly every provision of seeming importance appears to have a string to it somewhere, rendering it nugatory—including the provision for the building of the Eastern Division."

Mr. Hurley gave an unique excuse for some of the Deseronto enumerators' bills being large—they had to employ a French interpreter. And they were only receiving instructions from Mr. Hurley himself. That's the first time we ever knew he was a linguist. No doubt he wanted to show the Deseronto enumerators he could speak the language of his friend Laurier.

Some other Census Commissioners have been on the carpet at Ottawa, and it would appear that they were all fairly proficient at the game Mr. Hurley played. One gentleman got paid for 28 days' horse hire, which had been crowded into 24 days, counting Sundays, or 21 actual working days. Another had $15.70 in his account, the circumstances in connection with which he had "forgotten." Another fellow had been allowed ten days' horse hire because he said he was entitled to it, though he couldn't tell what horse he drove or where he drove it.

THE TALE OF A HAT.

A "PRIZE" WHICH THE LOCAL BAND GOT FROM KINGSTON.

A year ago last Wednesday the I.O.O.F. Band went down to Kingston with the 'Prentice Boys and won a prize for being the best uniformed band in the procession. The prize was to be a hat, and for twelve long weary months the boys waited for it to come. Yesterday the secretary, Mr. O. C. Brickman, was told there was a package for him at the Express office, on which the charges were 25 cents. "Oc." went after the package, opened it, and there was the hat the Band had won. And such a hat! It is one of the kind the hard-hearted landlords wear in Irish plays, and is supposed to have been brought over to this country in the Daniel Webster somewhere about the year 1798. Any man who wore it and looked in a mirror would surely fall in a faint. To-day the Band boys are taking turns expressing their opinion of the Kingston people who sent that "prize."

VERY REMARKABLE CURE OF DIARRHOEA.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who was cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists

"WORK AND PLAY."

The biggest summer resort within easy reach of civilization is what is commonly termed Muskoka, a district in the "Highlands of Ontario," about 100 miles north of Toronto, including an immense tract of country bordering on the Georgian Bay. IT IS A PERPLEXING THING.

For the reader of newspaper advertisements to determine what is what. We do not use as large type as some, but we are sure that what we have to say is not the less important to any one who is interested in the subject of clothing at this time. Our summer suits are ready to speak for themselves, if you will but take time to inspect them, and we think you will find no fault with the prices. We are making an immense display of hot weather clothing and furnishings.—Quick & Robertson.

More Glasses Are Worn

Now-a-days than ever before. No doubt of it. People used to think that the wearing of glasses should be put off as long as possible—that it was an old age necessity only.

We know more now. We apply every known agency for the relief and care of eye sickness — and there are in use to-day methods which weren't heard of even ten years ago.

BOWSER'S STRANGE ACTIONS

He Spends the Evening at Home In a Quiet Manner and Makes His Wife Very Anxious

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

When Mrs. Bowser sat down to her sewing the other afternoon she half expected that an express wagon would unload a fire escape or a patent alley gate at the door before the dinner hour. She also regarded it as highly probable that a man might come along with a new milk cow or a dozen hens purchased by Mr. Bowser earlier in the day.

Nothing out of the usual routine took place, however, and she made up her mind that he would bring home a bottle of spring tonic or a painting bought at an auction. She was disappointed in this as well. He quietly entered the house, carrying nothing but his umbrella and having failed to bang the gate after him in his usual vigorous style.

"Aren't you feeling as well this evening as usual?" she queried as she met him in the hall and noticed that he hung up his hat instead of dropping it on the floor.

"Never better," replied Mr. Bowser, "and I am ready for dinner."

"I must tell you," she said as she followed him to the dining room, "that our cook has gone. She walked off this noon, and I haven't got much of a dinner for you."

"That's all right, and you needn't worry," he good naturedly replied. "I didn't imagine she would stay long, and we can easily get another."

Mrs. Bowser had expected the usual lecture when a girl quit—all her fault; want of system; put too much work on the help; had no real interest in their welfare—and she looked at Mr. Bowser in astonishment. He hadn't another word to say, nor did he utter a single complaint about the food. He spoke of the canal treaty and Roosevelt's chances of renomination, and when dinner was over he quietly observed:

"As the girl has gone, I will help you do the work."

"But you needn't do that. I can manage everything while you smoke and read."

He took off his coat and helped to clear the table, and when that had been accomplished he took his stand at the sink and washed the dishes for her to dry. His action brought tears to her eyes, but they were banished again by the thought that Mr. Bowser must have lost his mind since breakfast. It was years since he had been so quiet. Never in all his married life had he had a dishcloth in his hand. She had read and heard of people's minds becoming blanks, and as a test she softly asked:

"Can you remember all that happened to you today?"

"Certainly," he replied with a smile as he finished the last dish.

"And did you meet with any accident or hear any bad news?"

"Nothing at all, dear. Now we are done I'll have a smoke."

When he had taken a seat in the rocking chair in the sitting room the family cat leaped upon his knee for the first time in two years, and to her great surprise he did not at once try to break her neck. On the contrary, her spinal column was rubbed in a way to bring out purs, and he even extended the rubbing to her tail.

"You haven't got a telegram that mother's dead, have you?" asked Mrs. Bowser as she became nervous over the situation.

"No, dear. I should be very sorry if I had."

"And is business good?"

"Never better."

"And—and you haven't seen a doctor who told you that you had heart disease and were liable to drop dead at any moment?"

"No, nothing of the kind. I think my heart is all right."

The cat and Mrs. Bowser exchanged looks, but they could not make it out. The newspaper was full of things to be discussed or disputed, but Mr. Bowser wasn't saying a word. His cigar was a bad one, but he didn't utter one single threat against the seller. There was a hole in the heel of one of his socks, but he wasn't claiming to be a martyr and on his way to the poorhouse.

The cat thought it over and grew suspicious and jumped down, and Mrs. Bowser thought it over and made up her mind to try a heroic remedy. The gas bill had come in that afternoon, and she took it off the mantel and said:

"I don't see how this comes. Our gas bill for this month is 35 cents more than last. I think you ought to investigate it."

"Oh, it's probably correct," indifferently replied Mr. Bowser, looking up.

On a hundred different occasions, even when the bill was smaller, he had waved it aloft and paraded around and threatened to sue and be sued clear to the court of last resort, but on this occasion he wouldn't even look at the figures.

There was one more remedy, and as soon as she could control her emotions Mrs. Bowser tried it. The range coal was out and some more must be ordered, and she so stated.

"Coal out, eh?" he repeated. "Well, dear, you made it last three days overtime and you'd better telephone the first thing in the morning."

"But do you think that last ton was as good as we have been getting?"

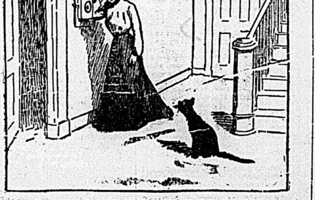
"Fully as good."

Neither the gas nor the coal question could start him, and Mrs. Bowser incidentally mentioned that the basement bell was out of order, the back door needed fixing and the boys in the street had thrown a stone and cracked a pane of glass in one of the upper windows.

Mr. Bowser made no reply for three minutes. Then he yawned out:

"Well, don't worry over these things. I didn't sleep very well last night and I guess I'll go to bed."

He bade her good night and went upstairs. Five minutes later she was at the telephone in consultation with the family doctor, while the cat stood by with anxious countenance.



IN CONSULTATION WITH THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

When she had related her fears and anxieties over the wire, the doctor soothingly replied:

"Yes, it may all be as you say, but don't be alarmed about it. It is simply what we call a reaction. He is taking a rest from antiques at auction and pigs for winter pork, and it won't be three days before he will be buying a barrel of fireproof paint or digging for coal in the back yard." M. QUAD.

Giants In These Days.

"He has been a giant in the literary world."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; he has seen the time when he could keep five historical novels running serially at the same time, blindfolded and with one hand tied behind him."—Puck.

A Wonderful Man.

"What is there so remarkable about him?"

"Why, he can put in two weeks fishing and when he comes back refrain absolutely from telling about the fish that got away."—Brooklyn Eagle.

My Lady.

She does not know how to guide the rod of the whirring automobile
Or to sit all day under balmy skies in a yacht with her hand at the wheel,
Nor does she care for the clubrooms gay, nor does she possess a throne,
But she knows how to guide, to steer and be queen in the paradise of home.
—George C. Watson in New York Herald.

Some Irish Wit.

Mr. McDonnell Bodkin, K.C., tells some fine stories of the Irish judiciary in his recent book on the "Diversions" of the Irish law court. Of an eminent Judge he says:—He was an Irishman and a Connaught man to his finger-tips—with a western brogue which, to use his own expression, you could "hang your hat on." There is a story current that on one occasion he was present at a wedding with the Irish Sydney Smith, the famous Father Healy of Bray, to whom he complained he had "no slipper to throw after the bride." "Throw your brogue, my Lord," retorted Father Healy, promptly.

Fortunately for the fun of the world, the advice was not taken. The broad brogue was part of the man's self. It was relished as keenly at the most aristocratic dinner tables in London as in the Claddagh, in Galway. Our Judge, though a strong Irishman, was a strong Unionist. It is told that he sat at a brilliant dinner beside Lord Aberdeen when he first came as home rule Viceroy to Ireland.

"I assume, my Lord," said the unsophisticated Viceroy, glancing round at the brilliant gathering, "I assume we are all home rulers here."

"Faith, your Excellency," was the blunt and unexpected retort, "there isn't a home ruler in the room except yourself—and the waiters!"

I have often heard him quaintly justify his political creed. "Here we are," he said, "a quick-witted, poor nation, in partnership with a dull-witted, rich nation, with our full share of the till, and yet nothing will please us but to go off and set up a miserable little shebeen of our own."

That the humor of the Bench and Bar is still alive, let one or two stories of living personages prove. An eminent living leader of the Bar, as eloquent and powerful an advocate as ever addressed a jury, has a perplexing habit of confusing the Christian names of the parties to a case. He got mixed up badly in his speech for the plaintiff in a recent case of "Brown v. Robinson." The Judge bore it for some time with exemplary patience. At last he interrupted:—

"Mr. Attorney," he said, "will you pardon me for one moment? So long as you persistently and consistently called the plaintiff Brown by the name of the defendant Robinson, and defendant Robinson by the name of the plaintiff Brown, the court could contrive to follow your speech; but when you introduce a third party—by the name of Jones—without explaining whether you intend him to represent the plaintiff Brown or the defendant Robinson, some difficulty arises."

Just an illustration or two of modern Irish judicial politeness, and I have done. Two criminals were recently convicted of an atrocious offence. The Judge proceeded to pass sentence. "The prisoner Moriarity," he said, "is the more guilty of the two. Which of these two men is Moriarity?"

"Thank you, Moriarity," replied the courteous Judge, "twenty years' penal servitude, Moriarity."

Another old offender was more fortunate in a recent case. The jury acquitted him in the teeth of the plainest evidence. They sat abashed when the Judge had read aloud a yard long list of previous convictions for similar offences. "But," his Lordship concluded, gravely, "the jury have in their wisdom acquitted you of the crime for which you were here tried. In the eye of the law you are wholly innocent of that crime, and you accordingly leave the dock without any—additional—stain on your character."—From M. A. P.
